Yes it was the suffragettes of Britain who initiated the trend toward greater equality for women. But that was half-a-century ago. And now we have Canada in 1968 setting the pace with its royal commission on the status of women — and British women apparently looking enviously in this direction.

That is the word from Joan Lestor, 36-year-old Labor MP for the constituency of Eton and Slough. A native of Vancouver, Miss Lester has lived in Britain since she was five. In Canada for a New Democratic Party workshop for women, Miss Lestor says there is a notable absence of women in public life in many advanced countries, including Canada and Britain.

The British House of Commons has 27 women members out of a total of 630. Mrs. Grace MacInnis (NDP Vancouver-Kingsway) is currently Canada's only woman MP.

"Very often," says Miss Lestor, "women in public life do not become involved in the subject of international affairs for instance, because many men have the attitude that women are only fit to discuss such things as welfare."

Indeed, it would make for a much more interesting political scene in Canada, not to mention Britain, if more women were involved in politics. If there are women of ability around, with knowledge of international affairs, then they should come forward. They would be surprised to know just how little many of the menfolk, in or out of politics, know about other lands. And incredulous at how little they know about their own country. So ladies, don't hide your light under a bushel. Besides, Mrs. MacInnis, who prior to the last election had Miss Judy LaMarsh and Mrs. Jean Wadds for company, must be feeling pretty lonely.

Good Manners

We were reading somewhere about the modern tendency to give children free rein, if not entirely ignore them, so that before long the child is doing what he wishes and at the same time frustrating his parents.

It is a sorry situation to be sure and you can observe it at first hand in those restaurants or snack bars where there is counter service. Enter parents, or a mother, with several children in tow, but there are only one or two seats. So who sits down? The children of course, or the ones who can get to the available seats first.

Certainly this kind of behavior with the custom in Germany and Scandinavia where small children bow or curtsy as the case may be when they are introduced to adults.

It may be formal, but there is a great deal of charm, good manners such as these on the part of the young. Friends were given an example during a recent trip in the western United States. A Swedish family they met invited them to their home in San Francisco. In the U.S. only a short time for business reasons the children of this family had not forgotten their manners. So, when the introductions were made, it was bows and curtsies all round.

"No" To Sideburns

Even the civil service scene in Ottawa these days is said to be laden with long hair, beards and sideburns.

It is refreshing therefore to read of at least one enterprise that involves service to the public insisting that all its employees conform to certain standards of grooming.

Airlines are among the bastions of good grooming where employees are concerned. They are not averse to beards but long hair and sideburns are out, even for ground crew not in direct contact with the public.

That is the way Northwest Orient Airlines at least sees it. The airline has suspended 14 cargo handlers at Kennedy International Airport for wearing their sideburns too long.

Inevitably the men's union has stepped in, a spokesman warning that the ban could lead to a no-shaving edict, that could turn North-west into an "all-hippie airline." If the union carries out such a threat it will of course prove that those who behave thus are a little immature in the first place.

Poverty . . . Birth Control Issues

Latin American Catholics Split on Papal Encyclicals

By CAROL KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Pope Paul's visit to Latin America may prove a turning point of his reign and authority. The teeming, poverty-cursed continent is the laboratory where the pontiff's two most controversial pronouncements meet in a potentially explosive test-tube.

Few areas of the "third world" are more concerned than Latin America with the implications of Pope Paul's 1968 ruling on birth control and 1967 encyclical on the plight of poor countries—the one a conservative stand, the other so radical as to be dubbed "warmed-up Marxism" by the Wall Street Journal.

Although Western Roman Catholics argue endlessly about the birth control "crisis" in the church and its effects on such heavily-populated, poor areas as Latin America, reports suggest the Latins themselves may be more concerned with the 1967 pronouncement.

This was a document that gained little attention in the advanced countries, but stirred up ferment elsewhere with its suggestion that expropriation of wealth might sometimes be necessary for the common good.

The two encyclicals have sharpened the rift between the largely conservative, traditionalist hierarchy in Latin America and a growing progressive, even militant—wing of the clergy.

The latter embraced the Pope's 1967 words as a revolutionary concept but erupted in protest at his ban on artificial birth control.

This wing contains a small minority which has expressed the opinion that violence can be justified as a release from oppression.

Vatican officials have shown awareness of the church's split personality in Latin America—a continent which holds one-third of the world's Roman Catholics —and the influence this can have on social problems.

Rev. Alling von Gessan, secretary-general of the Vatican council's information centre, has warned that the church too often "acts like a landowner" and seems to side with authority while young laymen are attracted by such Marxist heroes as Fidel Castro and Che Guevara.

Some Colombian priests urged the Pope not to make his trip to Bogota later this week to preside over a congress of bishops, fearing it might appear he was throwing his authority behind traditionalist Catholic power.

But the Pope is also making a 20-mile journey into rural Colombia—a country where 80 per cent of the population is said to live in dire poverty, 15 per cent in poor conditions and five per cent in lavish wealth.

Pope Paul again last weekend criticized situations where "inert privileges and crippling poverty" are explosively contrasted.

Latin America will no doubt hang on his words to see what kind of a lead he will give when he sets foot on a land most urgently concerned with his two most vital pronouncements.

How to Live To Be 100

St. Thomas Times — Journal

Here are eight rules to living to be 100.

Be a woman.

Choose a family with a history of longevity.

Don't drink or smoke.

Be moderate and regular in your habits.

Raise a family.

Work hard.

Be contented.

Live in the country.

These are the findings of a survey which was conducted in Britain after it was discovered recently that there are 800 centenarians living in that country.

The questioning turned up other rules for living to a ripe old age, ranging from eating lots of onions to drinking stout, but the aforementioned are those most of those surveyed agreed upon.

Take note, you city-dwelling bachelors, who smoke, drink and live it up till all hours. Your days are numbered.

"Us fellows have run out of ammunition — we were wondering if you'd lend us a few shells."

Russians Take to Cosmetics

Montreal Gazette

There was a time, not so long ago, when the Soviet Government looked upon cosmetics as an unnecessary evil, a remnant of bourgeois decadence. Soap and cream was suggested as the best thing for the skin.

In those days, perfume might be forgiven only if it carried an honest name like "Triumph of Socialism," or "Heroine of Heavy Industry," or "Moscow Motor Works."

When V. M. Molotov's wife ran the cosmetics industry for Josef Stalin, she gave one perfume the glorious title of "The Fifth All-Union Day of Soviet Railroadmen."

Those days are over. Old ideology is under pressure from big business. Cosmetics plants are being expanded and new ones built and the products are now being sold in 30 countries.

Soviet perfumes now bear such titles as "Moscow By Night," "Cossack Love" and "Aurora Borealis."

The Soviet cosmetics industry has been overcome by that subtle aroma of the decadent West, the sweet smell of profit.

Panama Hats Are Scarce

Edmonton Journal

From his corner on the front page, Art Evans has complained that merchants in Alberta no longer stock the "top-grade" Panama hat he wants to buy.

There are Panama hats and Panama hats, of course, but the top grade is something to be spoken of with reverence.

Back in the Hungry Thirties, an Edmonton MP promised a newspaper friend "the best Panama in town" if he were re-elected. Victory followed, the newspaperman remembered the promise, and the bill was sent to the MP. He must have shuddered dropped dead from shock, or at least resolved that in the province's finance department, even a politician should not get carried away. The hat cost $75.

Seventy-five Depression dollars were the equivalent of at least $225 today. MPs were then paid $4,000 a year. They now get the equivalent of more than $20,000. Times have changed, and so, it seems, has the demand for Panama hats.

Once in a While Democracy Works

Providence Journal

Never underestimate the power of Vox Populi. Once in a while the little people win.

There is a lesson for all of us in what has just happened in Jamestown, Colo., a pinprick on the map in the Rockies north-west of Boulder. Uncle Sam was all set — in fact the contract was drawn and signed — to give the fewer than 200 villagers of Jamestown a $14,000 post office. They didn't want it. They thought the post office they had in a corner of Donald Haynes' general store was just dandy.

So the people of Jamestown organized under a banner with a strange device. It said V.O.L.C.E. and the letters stood for Voters Opposing Indiscriminate Civic Expenditures. The V.O.L.C.E. was loud enough to be heard by a congressman, and his voice was loud enough to be heard by Uncle Sam.

The contract for the post office Jamestown didn't need or want has been cancelled, and the little mountain village will continue to pick up their mail and buy their stamps in Mr. Haynes' store.

It's a nice comprehensible, bite-size example of democracy in action. Up, V.O.L.C.E! Up, Vox Populi!

Vancouver's Sea Festival

Vancouver Sun

The remarkable success of the Vancouver Sea Festival is understandable enough to those of us blessed with hindsight.

In the first place it was never one of those instant institutions superimposed on a surprised and defenceless populace by incurable optimists. It was begun in 1963 on a $500 bankroll and it grew because growth came naturally. Like lobsters, festivals can't be planned in any old pond with expectations of survival. The water must be just right, the currents favorable, the nourishment ample and the predators absent.

Given these hospitable conditions and an enormous amount of hard work by inspired enthusiasts, the Sea Festival took off — and a glance at the 10-day schedule of its sixth annual presents to a sea urchin granted teeming ovaries.

Sea parades, canoe races, bathtub race, salmon derby, potlatch, band concerts, street dances, special sea food menus, nautical beauty queens, fire works, marine radio talkfests, regattas, do-it-yourself marine paint - ins, barbecues, treasure hunts, field lacrosse, water-skiing, life boat races, stage shows, power boat races, sabot races, kayak races, scuba diving, water polo, navy at-homes, a Japanese lantern festival — what can one do but salute!

We're a city of the sea. Let's put on our sailor hats and make the most of it.

Former Minister Jobless

Peterborough Examiner

Former labor minister Mike Starr is probably too proud to place an advertisement, but unless some job opportunities present themselves soon, he may have to swallow his pride. Some defeated politicians, particularly lawyers and professional men, have little problem returning to civilian life. But Mr. Starr, who lost by 15 votes in the New Democrat candidate in the June 25 election, has no business or profession to fall back on and, according to reports, he has received no worthwhile offers of employment.

While he is entitled to a $3,000 a year pension for life, he will undoubtedly find it difficult to make ends meet on this sum after accustoming himself and his family to the $27,000-plus he received as a minister in the Diefenbaker cabinet. Mr. Starr is almost certain to find something before long, but his situation will serve as a vivid reminder of the fact that the political life is far from being the bed of roses that some suppose it to be.

Trawler Fleets Quit Newfoundland Ports

Montreal Star

At a time when a great deal of effort is supposed to be going into productive industry in the Atlantic provinces, it is sad to read of the departure of some of the deep-sea fishing fleets from Newfoundland ports through Canadian default. Servicing of the fleets may not have bulked large in national terms, but it was important to the scale of local employment and minor changes in existing regulations might have kept the business. The switch of the trawler trade to the French colony of St. Pierre-Miquelon was foreshadowed four years ago, but apparently nothing was done. Now the Germans and Spaniards have established new operational bases and there is no reason why the Portuguese should not follow them. They are able to sail in, transfer their catches, take on supplies and make repairs and then return to the banks.

The old basic objective of the continuing Canadian restrictions was understandable. Foreign fleets were forbidden to unload in Canadian ports to protect the market of Canadian fishermen. It was always harder to understand why they could not unload if major repairs were necessary; impossible to see why they still cannot make use of storage or transfer facilities.

Decisions in Offing

Pace of Municipal Reform Must Quicken Says Darcy McKeough

TORONTO (CP) — So far, there's no map with a master plan for regional government hanging in Darcy McKeough's office.

The Ontario minister for municipal affairs says that need not surprise the administration does not yet stand committed to the principle of regional government.

His department has initiated eight studies on larger administrative units throughout the province. Reports are in for Niagara, the Lakehead, Ottawa-Carleton and Peel-Halton. Reports are due in the fall for Muskoka and Kleinec-Waterloo and in a year for Hamilton-Wentworth. A Brant-Brantford study is under way at what the minister calls a "leisurely pace."

Next in line is likely to be the Sudbury-Nickel Belt area in Northern Ontario, he says. Action there depends on what Queen's Park decides to do about taxing smelters.

These studies, not counting a ninth on Metropolitan Toronto, take in 40 per cent of Ontario's 7,000,000 population.

"Everyone talks about regional government and larger units," Mr. McKeough said in an interview. "But there are reasons for studies has come locally from areas that need it and I'm encouraged by that. I'm encouraged them. But a great deal more planning could be done.

"For instance everyone agrees that Six Niagara fruit lands should be preserved. But when someone is offered a good price for his land he seldom turns it down. The province can never afford to buy all the lands itself any more than the municipalities can."

For now, Mr. McKeough has called a halt to most studies while the department catches its breath. He hopes to introduce new pieces of regional legislation next year.

The New Democratic Party has criticized him for a "bits-and-pieces approach" to planning.

Mr. McKeough told the legislature in July that a decision on regional government will be announced with the white paper on the Smith commission on taxation. The paper is expected about next May.

At the appropriate time, he told the MPPs, they will be asked to make far-reaching decisions on the future of local government.

"I wish to make absolutely clear my strong feeling that the pace of reform must quicken," he said.

Why the urgency? By 1980, 70 per cent of Ontario residents will live in cities with populations of more than 100,000. This shift of people and resources puts a strain on the municipalities — the units are too small and too limited financially to plan and pay for all the services demanded by a complex society.

In redrawing the map from 907 municipalities to an undecided smaller number of more-workable units, money is a big factor. A third of all the municipalities spend less than $100,000 annually on municipal programs.

The municipal system set up in the Baldwin Act of 1849 doesn't fit any more, said Mr. McKeough.

Already, municipalities have yielded responsibility in education, health, conservation. "We don't want municipalities that are merely figureheads."

The Smith report said poorly-drawn municipal units contribute to tax imbalance, cutthroat competition for new industry and the freezing out of low-cost residential development.

But it seems unlikely that a master-plan map would follow the regional areas suggested in the Smith report. It recommended 10 new regions — seven metropolitan, three "urban" areas in the county and seven "contracting municipalities" with low populations.

The objections aim at the separation of urban and rural governments which C. E. Bateman, president of the Association of Ontario Counties, labels "unacceptable".

"Regional government as proposed by the committee would create a city-type of government which would benefit urban areas far more than rural ones," Mr. Bateman said last year.

Mr. McKeough agrees. One thing that pleases him most about the Ottawa-Carleton structure is that 92 per cent of its area is rural.

Here's what has been done so far to redraw the map:

In 1965, the Goldenberg royal commission said Metropolitan Toronto should be made into a four-city Metro. Instead, in January, 1966, 13 municipalities were compressed into a city and five boroughs under a stronger council.

In September, 1966, a metropolitan form of government was recommended for the Niagara Peninsula. Study chairman Henry B. Mayo blamed an antiquated municipal structure for pollution problems in Lake Ontario and Lake Erie. The report suggested a two-tier government with four cities — Welland, St. Catharines, Niagara Falls and Port Colborne — and eight boroughs with a 35-man council.

The same month Dennis Plunkett, a Montreal planning consultant, presented the Peel-Halton report. It said the 19 municipalities in the two counties between Toronto and Hamilton should be replaced with two huge one-tier governments, one tying the urban centres of the south into a super-city while the other formed a unit for their rural counterparts in the north.

The report met strong opposition from the municipalities involved. Except for Oakville.

Peel County has come up with an alternate idea — that its 19 municipalities retain their autonomy. Superimposed would be a second tier of regional government responsible for capital financing, arterial roads, water, sewage, planning, parks and police.

"The Peel-Halton situation is in limbo," says Mr. McKeough. "Their alternate plan is unacceptable in this day and age. It bastardizes the concept of representation by population."

Of Ottawa-Carleton, where regional government actually went into effect recently, the minister said:

"Ottawa-Carleton has good legislation: We've taken the kids off pay for councillors and put the responsibility for planning where it belongs — locally."

He told the infant council at its inauguration it might consider some amalgamations within the region.

"Any time we can cut this (907 municipalities) down to 908 or 905 so much the better."

The $85,743 Thunder Bay report, released April 16, covers Port William, Port Arthur and the townships of Neebing, Paipoonge and Shuniah.

Mr. McKeough has said legislation creating a new city could be ready by Jan. 1, 1970, if all goes well.

"It would be a good time for the two cities to amalgamate, their populations are almost the same, they have one telephone directory, one union hall, one John Howard Society, one Children's Aid."

The report recommended that regional government be responsible for planning, health, ambulance, welfare, libraries, emergency measures, fire protection, assessment, tax levying, and collection for regional purposes, tax billing for municipalities, borrowing, flotation of debentures on behalf of municipalities and review of school boundaries.

Negotiations Resume

Toronto Transit Strike Could Start Friday

TORONTO (CP) — A mistake in arithmetic has given this city's 2,000,000-plus residents a day's respite from a transit strike threatened for rush hour Friday morning.

But plans already are under way to cope with a crippling shutdown.

Midnight tonight had been named deadline, but Leonard Moynehan, president of division 113 of the Amalgamated Transit Union, said Monday night union legal counsel had made a mathematical error in setting the strike date.

The Labor Relations Act requires seven days to elapse after receipt of a conciliation report before start of a legal strike. This means a transit strike could start at midnight Thursday night, but union officials have set the deadline at 7 a.m. Friday to allow night transit workers to finish their runs.

Meanwhile, last-minute negotiations were expected to resume today. W. H. Dickie, government conciliation officer, said: "Let's not talk about a strike deadline — we're going to have a settlement soon."

Subway, bus and streetcar service will halt if the 3,400 transit workers strike against the Toronto Transit Commission. The TTC handles about 1,000,000 fares on a normal working day.

A strike would also close down Gray Coach Lines, a TTC bus subsidiary serving several Ontario centres from Toronto.

Fringe benefits are a major hurdle in the dispute. The union wants the TTC-operated health plan replaced by Physicians' Services Inc. It also wants pension plan improvements, relief time for drivers and time-and-a-half for drivers volunteering to work their days off.

Streetcar, bus and subway operators now make $3.05 an hour. A conciliation board recommendation of a 15-per-cent raise in a two-year contract would give them about $3.50 hourly.

Trapped Czech Leaders Stare Into Guns

out the world called emergency meetings to assess communism's most explosive crisis since Soviet tanks crushed the Hungarian uprising 12 years ago.

The Soviet tanks and troops were airlifted into Prague Airport for the attempt to crush Czechoslovakia's liberalization drive.

Prague Radio, which broadcast intermittently throughout the morning, said clashes had taken place between the convoying troops and citizens who built barricades.

An official Soviet statement issued in Moscow said that Soviet, Bulgarian, Polish, East German and Hungarian troops had moved into Czechoslovakia to save that country from the enemies of communism.

Unconfirmed reports in Moscow said a coup in Prague Tuesday deposed Czechoslovak party chief Alexander Dubcek and replaced his liberal regime with leaders who invited the Soviet troops.

But Dubcek and his colleagues were reported meeting in the party's central committee headquarters, a building surrounded by Soviet paratroops and tanks.

Czechoslovak President Ludvik Svoboda was reported in his office at Prague Castle, which was surrounded by other troops.

In Bratislava, troops of five Warsaw pact countries were said to be holding key positions on main roads, the airport, the Danube Bridge and the radio station.

A crowd of many thousands gathered in the main square in the centre of the city in demonstrate peacefully and express their support for Dubcek and the party leadership.

Radio stations controlled by the liberal government were forced off the air. Only Vltava, described as Prague radio as an illegal station of the occupying armies, remained on the air. Its broadcast appeals to the Czechoslovak military to support the invaders.

Tass defence correspondent Vincent Bulat reported that Soviet troops there had been instructed not to let Radio Prague building, but some of the gunfire was over their heads.

Troops guarded the Czechoslovak Communist party central committee building and Prague radio said shooting outside the radio building was gaining in intensity. Then another radio station reported that Czestmir Cisar, could be heard.

Cisar, a staunch unconfirmed chairman of the Czechoslovak national council, "has been deported by three unknown men to an unknown destination."

The Czechoslovak news agency CTK later reported that occupying troops were entering the Prague radio building.

The Czechoslovak National Assembly appealed to the invaders to withdraw from Czechoslovakia.

One of Prague radio's best-known commentators, Dienstbier, read out the assembly message over the radio as rifle and machine-fire crackled in the streets outside.

The message said: "The entry of foreign troops was a complete violation of Czechoslovak sovereignty.

"The National Assembly is in total disagreement with the invention."

In Brussels, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's permanent council was hurriedly summoned by Canada's James Roberts, deputy secretary-general, for an emergency meeting today to discuss the invasion.

The permanent council is composed of the ambassadors of the 15-member state including Canada.

President Ludvik Svoboda, making a personal appeal over Prague radio for calm, told the Czechoslovak people he could offer no explanation for the Soviet invasion.

He also urged the populace to remain calm.

The presidium of the Czechoslovak Communist party issued a statement saying the invasion was considered "as running counter not only to all principles of relations between Socialist states, but also as a denial of the basic norms of international law."

In a stronger statement to the leaders of the five invading nations, the presidium of the Czechoslovak Parliament said:

"We ask you most resolutely to withdraw your armed units at the streets of Prague to immediately order the withdrawal of all troops."

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said the invasion was requested by Czechoslovak government and party leaders who asked Moscow for help against "the threat to the Socialist system." It did not name the leaders.

Tass said the occupying troops would be "withdrawn as soon as the threat against socialism in Czechoslovakia ends."

The East German news agency ADN said that "personalities" in Czechoslovakia "who are faithful to socialism" had attacked to fight openly against counter-revolutionary activities and had asked other Warsaw pact countries for "any help, including military aid."

Prague radio said the troops crossed into Czechoslovakia at the invitation of Svoboda, the president of the republic, the chairmen of the National Assembly, the premier or the first secretary of the Czechoslovak Communist party central committee.

Alexander Dubcek, Czechoslovak Communist party leader, and members of the Czechoslovak party presidium met in a state of emergency surrounded by tanks marked with white crosses.

Prague radio called all members of the National Assembly to Prague for an immediate meeting.

Television, which began broadcasting at 7 a.m., said expressions of support were being received from all over the country for Dubcek and other liberal leaders.

In a special edition, the Communist party newspaper Rude Pravo said: "We are convinced the measures of the allied armies are a result of bad information of the other Socialist countries on our true internal situation."

It expressed full support for party chief Dubcek.

Prague radio said it had heard "unconfirmed reports that Romania has offered to help" the Dubcek government. It gave no source for the report.

The Romanian news agency Agerpres said the Romanian Central Committee was called into special session to deal with the situation "created by the fact of the penetration by foreign armies in the territory of the Socialist Republic of Czechoslovakia."

Romania's government also was called into special session.

Milan Hodza, Slovak leader in Europe, Romania and Yugoslavia have been outspoken supporters of Czechoslovak's right to choose its own system of communism.

Prague radio proved the centre of the country's resistance. As long as it remained on the air it urged the people not to fight but to resist passively, to ignore the invaders — and this is how many did.

As troops marched down Prague's cobbled streets, ordinary citizens turned their heads, refusing to look at them, almost pretending they were not there.

But others gathered in crowds, shouted "Liberty! Liberty!" or "Where is Dubcek?"

reached the city centre, Prague At 7:36 a.m., one hour and 36 minutes after dozens of tanks radio told the country: "We are still here — when the Czech national anthem plays you will know its all over. . . ."

One minute later Radio Prague broke into the national anthem and listeners wept.

Large crowds gathered in Wenceslas Square, facing Russian troops in tanks and armored vehicles. The Russians stared stolidly back, apparently under strict orders not to cause bloodshed.

Czechoslovaks even climbed on top of the tanks to urge the Russians to go away.

Food stores in Prague immediately instituted meatshift rationing when they opened this morning. Housewives waiting in long lines were allowed to take home only half a pound of butter and one pound of flour and sugar.

glist party in Prague this morning the tank and armored car had surrounded the building.

I drove up the embankment road towards the building and as I swung around a corner a Russian soldier with a machine-gun in the crook of his arm pointed the gun at me and waved me back.

I reversed very smartly and returned to the other side of the large four-storey building. I stopped Russian soldiers taking up positions on the double along the embankment.

A Russian tank clattered up to the entrance of the building and the turret swung around until the gun was pointing at the main entrance of the central committee building.

A crowd of young demonstrators began gathering and increasing in size. A few warning shots were fired over their heads and blue smoke from the Russian carbines curled up in the early morning air.

Men and women near the central committee building stood as if stunned at the sight of the troops and tanks. Although machine-gun fire crackled not only a 100 yards away, many of them could not grasp what was going on and remained motionless watching the Russian troops adopt kneeling positions.

Despite the gunfire, young demonstrators continued chanting "Liberty," "Where is Dubcek" and "Russians out."

A few minutes later I heard the rattle of machine-gun fire and I saw the crowd fleeing and taking cover behind trees along the embankment.

I passed one boy car around to return to the centre of the city. more T-34 tanks were rumbling over the bridges from north Prague.

Youths continued to race through the streets in cars or commandeered taxis with Czechoslovak flags billowing out of side windows long after the tanks entered the city.

Thousands of people were standing in the streets holding transistor radio's to their ears. One man sat in his car sobbing convulsively.

When I arrived outside the Prague radio station at 4:30 a.m. there were no Russian troops. The doors were barred and workers inside were leaning out of windows gazing down at a gathering crowd in the street below.

The troops arrived at the radio station sometime around 5 a.m. and the next time I arrived back at the building there were armored cars and armored troop carriers filled with red-berreted soldiers around the building.

They seemed to be engulfed in a crowd of angry Czechoslovaks.

The Czechoslovaks glared at the Russians who looked stolidly back, their machine-guns and carbines held at the ready.

A mile away outside the central committee building a young man stood on top of a taxi and began to harangue the Czechoslovak demonstrators.

As he spoke the crackle of gunfire broke out. I dodged behind a tree and could not see what happened to him.

Nurse Forsakes Career to Work With Young Children

TORONTO (CP) — Gladys Sharpe is leaving nursing after 42 years, but not to retire. She's going to begin a new career.

After a long nursing career which has spanned active nursing, teaching, administration and military wartime service, Miss Sharpe is leaving her job as senior nursing consultant to the Ontario operating standards division of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission to work with kindergarten children.

"As a young girl my ambition was to be a kindergarten teacher, but it wasn't possible then," she said. "I still retained my fondness for children and now I'm going to do what I wanted to do then."

Miss Sharpe also feels "too often people stay in a profession too long."

"I would hate ever to become an obstacle."

Last year Miss Sharpe took the first year of a two-year child development course at Seneca College of Applied Arts and Technology. This fall she plans to enter her second year.

Combined with her nursing and teaching qualifications, as well as her lifetime of experience, she feels this will qualify her for some minor role in a nursery school."

Seneca plans to set up a model nursery school in about a year where research will be carried out and experience provided for students in the training program. Miss Sharpe hopes to become associated with this school.

Miss Sharpe entered the school of nursing at Toronto Western Hospital in 1922, graduated in 1925, then went to McGill University to take a graduate course.

In 1935 she was chosen by the Canadian Nurses Association to receive the Florence Nightingale International Foundation scholarship for a year's training at Bedford College, London University.

After receiving her certificate, Miss Sharpe became the director of nursing at Toronto Western.

She was appointed first matron of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps Hospital at Camp Borden, Ont., after the outbreak of the Second World War. In 1941 she was posted to South Africa as liaison officer for the Canadian, British and South African army medical services and between the 300 Canadian nurses in Africa and the Canadian government.

She has been director of the school of nursing at McMaster University, Hamilton, president of the Ontario and Canadian nurses associations and consultant to the Canadian Forces Medical Council.

She was appointed senior nursing consultant to the OHSC 10 years ago. Appointed to succeed Miss Sharpe is Jennie E. Ives, who has been with the commission for nine years.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD A. FINNEGAN

Finnegan – Birdie

Father C. D. Cummings officiated at the double - ring ceremony when he united in marriage Beverly Joan Birdie daughter of Mrs. William John Birdie, of Belleville, to Edward Aloysius Finnegan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude J. Finnegan, of Belleville. The recent wedding took place in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, with Miss Dorothy Grant rendering the traditional wedding music, accompanying the soloist Robert Burke.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Orley C. Glass, wore a floor-length fitted sheath gown of Chantilly lace with a semi-detachable lace coat effect. The gown featured a shallow portrait neckline and lily-point sleeves. The train fell from a yoke at the back. Her veil was a four-tier slit illusion with seed pearls and aurora borealis. She carried a cascade of polynesian sunset roses with ivy and stephanotis.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Orby Glass, sister of the bride, wore a mother blue silk chiffon over taffeta dress. The gown featured an empire waist with an sleeveless bodice; her headdress consisted of coral and white mums, and she carried a casual bouquet of white and coral mums. Bridesmaids were Mrs. I. Regent, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Lois Masterson, cousin of the bridegroom. Both were identically attired to the maid of honor, and carried casual bouquets of white and coral mums.

Flower girls, Miss Brenda Lynn Glass, niece of the bride and Miss Erin Finnegan, niece of the groom, were attired in full-length blue chiffon gowns with empire waistlines and blue bow trim. Their headpieces were of coral and white mums. They carried baskets of coral and white mums.

Attending the bridegroom was Leo Finnegan, brother of the groom, and the ushers were Ivo Regent, brother-in-law of the groom and Carl Harris.

The reception was held at Club Canara, where the mother of the bride received the guests attired in a powder blue crepe ensemble with matching Chantilly lace duster and white lace accessories. A contrasting corsage of pink and white miniature carnations completed her attire. Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom wore a two-piece navy crepe ensemble with three - quarter length sleeves and jewel neckline with white accessories and a contrasting corsage of pink and white miniature carnations.

For the wedding trip to "Man and His World," Montreal, and Lake Placid, New York, the bride chose an Italin A-line dress which featured a scoop neckline and matching duster with a roll collar and three-quarter sleeves with complementary accessories of navy. In her hair, she wore pink and white miniature carnations, and matching corsage. Upon their return, the couple will reside in Belleville.

Great Headway in The Study of Genetics

HALIFAX (CP) — Advances in research on links between chromosomes and behavior patterns may enable doctors to predict differences in behavior while the subject is still an infant.

Dr. Philip Welch, who came to Halifax from Johns Hopkins medical centre in Baltimore, Md., says great advances have been made in the study of genetics since 1956.

Before that date, it was not even known how many chromosomes the human body contained.

Dr. Welch was responsible for the first American study on the link between chromosomes and behavior patterns. "I believe there is a definite link, and it is very dramatic."

He said such studies have changed society's thinking about behavior in many areas. For example, the theory that criminal tendencies were inherited, long discounted in favor of environment, has been revived.

With current genetic study, scientists think there is a link between abnormal behavior and inherited characteristics.

Another example of the value of genetics, he said, is the recently-acquired knowledge that about 30 per cent of all miscarriages are caused by chromosome disorders.

Dr. Welch's immediate concern is a study of genetic diseases which lead to mental retardation or physical abnormalities.

He is also studying the risk in procreation, if the parents suffer from genetic diseases.

With continuing studies of inherited diseases and their distribution in the population, geneticists now can advise parents with genetic problems what risks would be involved in procreation, or in having additional children.

Studies of the causes of mental retardation, Dr. Welch said, will not reverse the cases of children already born with the disease, but it can open doors toward preventing the disease.

Already, he said, a change in the diet of new-born infants can arrest the progression of several types of retardation.

"You live under the shadow of your inheritance," he says.

His hope is that geneticists can help turn the shadow inheritance to the most beneficial use.

High Fashion Clothes Are Made in Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — You can dress from the skin out in clothes made in Ontario and be in high fashion every stitch of the way, says Joan Sutton.

She is executive director of the Ontario Fashion Institute, an offshoot of the province's four-year drive to help promote the industry in Canada and in other countries. Annual awards for, design excellence have been part of the campaign.

This year, for the first time, the three year-old institute is putting on fashion shows at the Canadian National Exhibition, which runs through Labor Day, Sept. 2.

Mrs. Sutton says about 50 manufacturers of women's and children's wear now belong to the OFI and pay a membership fee to support its programs.

She says the campaign is producing results in sales and in a growing reputation for good-quality Canadian clothes, especially in furs, woollen sportswear and in high fashion evening dresses.

With government encouragement, the OFI has sent trade missions to the United States and other countries. Two are planned for the fall, to Detroit and to San Francisco.

Mrs. Sutton says the usually goes first, to talk to buyers and come back to tell manufacturers that, for instance, they don't like inter-linings in coast in San Francisco.

"We don't design clothes especially for these missions, because good design is good design. But we do try to be aware of specific differences such as the linings."

Her visit is followed by publicity mailings, then by the arrival of OFI members as a group to hold a reception and show their wares.

Mrs. Sutton says the OFI tries afterward to keep a check on sales and on reaction and requests from the stores that bought.

She estimates there are 22 jobs involved in every garment made in Ontario.

Well-endowed Female Athlete Has Advantage

LONDON (AP) — Girls with big bosoms could have as much as a four-inch advantage over their less well-endowed rivals in the sprints at the Olympic Games.

So suggests the editor of Britain's Tailor and Cutter, a magazine—recognized authority on this side of the Atlantic about what men and women should wear.

And at least three of Britain's girl athletes agree with him.

"It stands to reason that in a close finish girls who are well blessed have a much better chance than those who are not," said 19-year-old Lillian Board.

Lillian—statistics 36-24-37—is Britain's big hope in the Olympic 400-metre race in Mexico City in October.

Della James, a 19-year-old British sprinter with a figure of 32-22-33, said:

"I have actually lost a race because of this lack of bosom. . . .

"Nevertheless, I wouldn't try to increase the size of mine. You never know what might happen. Anyway it's more weight to carry."

Janet Simpson, 23-year-old British hope in the 400 metres, remarked wryly: "I would love to have a big bust.

"But if I did think I would have to stop running. I think it would be painful."

John Taylor, editor of Tailor and Cutter, in an article under the headline "Bronze Medal—or Bust?" writes:

"In a close photo finish, the kind of extended uphill which used to play such an important part in the silhouettes of the fashionable young lady a few years ago, could nose out—if that's the phrase we are searching for—a dead-heating rival who follows the current in-ness (the opposite of the out ness) of the Twiggy look."

Maybe it's something for the Olympic medical commission to look into. Already it is testing girls to determine whether they are male or female and keeping a close watch on drug taking.

Women Panic in Face of Accident

CORNWALL (CP) — The biggest problem with women bus drivers is that they may panic in the face of an accident, says Pearl Leroux, a veteran of four years.

However, she adds, driving a bus is no harder than driving a car. In fact, buses are much easier to control.

"I was a little nervous at first, but found I could judge space and distance better in a bus, because the windows offer a wider range of view. But a bus can't be manoeuvred with the same ease as a car can, and it requires more braking distance."

Mrs. Leroux, who drives a school bus about 15,000 miles a year, has only one complaint against other drivers.

"When I pick up and drop off children in the city, drivers won't slow down. This makes my job very difficult, especially when the child alighting from the bus is retarded."

Another of her self-imposed duties is that of counsellor.

When a behavior storm is brewing the children get out of hand and often confide their plans for revenge in her.

"Five minutes counselling usually puts them straight."

Hot Cheese Canapes disappear like hot cakes at a reception. Mary Moore made and served them to V.I.P. guests and has given you the method today with the advice to clip and make it now and file for future entertaining.

Favorite Cheese Canapes

By MARY MOORE

When I tasted what the stewardess called simply "Cheese Canapes" on an Air Canada flight out of Vancouver I knew I had to have that recipe.

After three months, three letters and one reception at which a facsimile was served and the kind co-operation of Pat Harvey and Barbara Hill of Dairy Foods Service Bureau, I have it now for you. If you are puzzled by their name "Fondue Bruxelloise" (pronounced Brooks-el-wahz) simply substitute —

HOT CHEESE CANAPES
(Fondue Bruxelloise) (about 30 or 40)

(NOTE:) Be sure to clip this for your Christmas entertaining.

1) Take note that this mixture must be chilled overnight.

⅓ cup butter, less 1 tablespoon
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
2 cups scalded milk
2 egg yolks
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 cup shredded old Cheddar cheese (packed down a little)
1½ tablespoons dry white or red wine (optional)
1 whole egg
2 tablespoons cold water
about 1¼ to 2 cups fine dry breadcrumbs

In a large heavy saucepan barely melt the butter and stir in the flour. Slowly add, while stirring, the scalded milk until smoothly blended and stir for at least 2 minutes over medium heat. Beat egg yolks and stir a little of the hot mixture into them and return to saucepan, stirring to mix. Add cheeses and stir until they are melted and blended. Remove from heat and add wine, if used. Turn into buttered 9 x 9" pan, smooth top and chill overnight. This 'paste" is reminiscent of cream puff paste (choux paste).

Cut into one-inch squares. Dredge these with flour on both sides and edges. Beat egg and add water. Dip floured squares in egg, drain a moment, then dip in crumbs and transfer to large platter to dry. At serving time heat oil to 365 deg. Fahr. — it should be at least ¾" deep in shallow medium fry pan. Carefully slip in about four of the crumbed canapes and fry until golden on bottom then turn over with slotted spoon and brown other side. Transfer to paperlined kitchen platter and keep hot while you fry all remaining canapes. Serve at once.

These are exceptionally good and unusual. You should make them and file the recipe for your friends and for future parties. More cheese canapes to come using Gouda and Edam.

Bell Investigates Obscene Phone Calls

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My wife has been plagued by obscene phone calls for three weeks. We have notified the police and they say they can't do anything unless we can keep the caller on the line while someone alerts the police or the phone company.

Often the calls are made from public phone booths so you can see how hard it is to catch someone in the act.

ANN LANDERS

My wife is on tranquillizers and losing weight. She asked me to write and ask if you know of an effective method of dealing with these nuts who have nothing better to do than call people and talk rotten. — MR. L. OF BOISE.

DEAR MR. L. — The best way to deal with an obscene phone call is to hang up immediately. This deprives the caller of the thing he wants most — an audience. If the caller is phoning from a booth he will not keep throwing dimes into the slot to hear the click of a receiver.

The person who is being harassed should never—repeat, never — express fear, disgust or anger. This will delight the caller and encourage him to keep calling. If the caller makes a threat of serious bodily harm the call should be reported to the police; The Bell System is developing some amazing electronic equipment that can automatically set off an alarm in the central office and trace the caller.

I was surprised to learn from Joseph O'Brien of Illinois Bell that many harassing calls are from relatives, neighbors or acquaintances who bear a grudge.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — You missed a good opportunity to educate your readers when the woman told about her friend who lost 40 pounds and suddenly began to behave like a teenager. She wanted to know if there was any connection.

Many physicians are running into "diet pill psychosis." This type of personality change is associated with addiction to amphetamines. The public should be made aware of the problem. You can help. I hope you will do so. — J.H.B. (M.D. OF SHARON PA.)

DEAR DOCTOR — Thanks for your letter. My medical consultants agree that diet pills psychosis is a real danger to those who want to lose weight without the help of a physician.

Amphetamines (or pep pills) produce tension, accelerate the responses and promote impulsive behavior. No one should take the pills (or any pills, for that matter) without the approval of his physician.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — In a column which appeared some time ago there was a passing reference to a woman who strapped a bicycle horn around her husband's head at night to keep him from snoring.

Will you please repeat the details because my old goat has been keeping me up with his infernal snoring for the past three years and I am willing to try anything.

Don't suggest separate bedrooms because I put him in another bedroom two years ago and he moans so loudly I can hear him anyway. Please tell me the price of the horn and where I can purchase one. — NEED A NIGHT'S SLEEP.

DEAR NEED — I do not recommend the solution. Bicycle horns are for bicycles.

If your husband's snoring is as bad as you say, I suggest he go to a doctor. Minor surgery might solve the problem.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing an unstamped, self-addressed envelope, plus 6c for postage.

Successful Living

Daydreaming Results in Failure

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I failed my first year of university. In the first place I could not settle down to study. I would get so bored I would daydream half the time and it would take me all night just to get one lesson done.

Daydreaming became like a narcotic habit I couldn't help. I wanted to pass and knew I had to study, but I couldn't concentrate. I did not go out at all; had no boy friends. No problem there. I am a plain Jane.

I want to get a degree for security and I want to be through studying before I am an old maid of 27. — Bothered

Dear Bothered: Decide first whether your boredom is because the work is beyond you or because you lack variety. People daydream when real life holds not enough to keep them interested. A first step is to talk heart-to-heart with your faculty adviser.

Plain janes can get gals and join parties. Start something. You can study to better effect with a few good times in the offing.

Dear Doris: I'd like to tell Stymied how one Aged Mother gets on without getting under her daughter's feet. I am 70- can hardly hear at all. I was left alone three years ago.

My family are like gold to me but I would not move in with them and make life difficult. I prayed to my God to show me the answer to my problem, and in a few days I was able to make a try to live by myself in rooms.

I can't use a phone or mix much as I am not well. But I keep my room clean and do my own laundry and shopping. If I go to see my children I like them to go out and I baby-sit for them. That is my life.

My eyes are not too good at fine print but at the library they have good books with large print. I now read a lot. Take a walk every day and have a nap in the afternoon.— Not in Anybody's Hair.

Dear Not In: Bravo! And when you visit the kids you are something special. You have quietness for that life-giving nap; you eat what you want when you want it. You can pick your own TV programs.

The library and the publishers of large-print books are tops for you and other Grannies.

Dear Doris: I am entering high school and I have a bit of trouble with my eyesight. I can see better with my left eye than with my right eye.

I am afraid that I will eventually have to wear glasses. I know that in this age the glasses and styles are most authentic but I still fear it.

Therefore I would appreciate it if you would advise me on how I could exercise my eyes to retain normal vision instead of gradually weakening it, to the point of having to wear glasses. — Eye Trouble

Dear Eye Trouble: If there had been exercises to do about it, all the spectacle wearers would be doing them. My ophthalmologist tells me there is no way of changing one's eyeball shape — which governs just how the eye focuses.

Glasses are not a hardship but a 20th century privilege.

Tests Shouldn't Be Main Criteria for University Entrance

OTTAWA (CP) — Aptitude and achievement tests must not become the universities' main criteria in selecting students for admission, Dr. Gerald Maher, assistant superintendent of North York School Board, said Tuesday.

He told about 350 Ontario high school guidance counsellors and university admissions officers attending the three-day Guidance Dialogue at the University of Ottawa that high school teachers and students need definite assurance that these tests will be kept "in close rein."

"My fear is that as the present Grade 13 program becomes widely divergent in various schools, there will be a temptation as in the U.S. for universities to place undue emphasis on these aptitude and achievement tests," he said.

Last year Ontario Grade 13 departmental examinations were discontinued.

Universities, he said, were generally giving insufficient credit and attention to the student's Grade 13 record and his school record in general.

Mr. Maher, one of four panellists representing high school and university points of view, said the early May 15 date at which grade 13 students were notified this year of their admission to university had an "unsettling" effect.

E. M. Davidson of Toronto, secretary of the Ontario universities' council of admissions, said the notification date will be at least two weeks later next year, partly to help the student avoid an "uncertain period" wondering whether he would apply himself to the remainder of his high school studies.

The problem had been overemphasized, however. There had been almost no formal complaints from schools.

Another panellist, Miss J. I. Royce, registrar for Queen's University in Kingston, said universities should simplify entrance requirements.

Earlier in the conference, Dr. Donald Ivey, principal of the University of Toronto's New College, said he hopes comprehensive tests are developed to aid universities in selecting students for admission.

But he said such tests should not put teachers back into the "straitjacket" the old system imposed. Too often the teacher's job in the past had been to train students to pass Grade 13 examinations.

Today one of the main conference topics was to be financial aid in Ontario universities.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 21, 1968

Mo-Hawks' Hockey Fate At Stake

Gord Roblin, president of the Belleville Mo-Hawks Senior Hockey Club, said Tuesday night that a meeting scheduled for Thursday will decide the fate of the Belleville senior hockey entry.

"It's getting late and it'll have to be decided one way or another," Roblin said. "We have to see about the sponsors, the money, a coach, and the players and that's what the meeting will be about."

Jack Devine, president of the Ontario Hockey Association said Wednesday morning that if the present operators of the senior hockey club pull out on their entry, there is still time to file another entry.

"Although the OHA deadline was officially seven days after the mail strike ended, if the other teams want a Belleville team, they can vote to accept a late entry filed by other operators," explained the OHA official.

"As long as the present operators want to maintain their operation of the Belleville club, the OHA will protect their claim."

Roblin said that the Thursday meeting will be closed to the public because of the "discussion" involved in the final decisions.

It is rumored that if the present operators of the club fail to uphold their entry, another Belleville group is ready to file an application in order to continue senior hockey locally.

Canadian Golf Pros Seek Payoff as Tour Nears End

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — With pros like Moe Norman and Jay Dolan chasing $5,000 in prize money down its fairways, the par 70 of the Moncton Golf and Country Club is likely to look a bit emaciated when the three-day Atlantic open golf tournament winds up Sunday.

Par for the 54-hole event is 210 over the 6,185-yard course and "right under will probably win it," says tourney official John Wolstenholme.

Some local golfers predict 10 under or less will be needed to win professional top money of $1,250 in the initial running of the Atlantic open, the next-to-last stop on the 1968 Canadian professional golf tour.

The 10-tournament tour will wind up with a championship battle between the 12 pro qualifiers at the Board of Trade Golf and Country Club at Woodbridge, Ont., Sept. 13-15.

The race for championship berths and a crack at the final treasure of $15,000 prize money will put a strain on Moncton's competitive course record of 63, shared by Bill Ezinicki of New Glasgow, Mass., and Jackie Bryant of Halifax.

Six of the 12 spots in the tour championships are unfilled heading into the tee-off of the Atlantic open Friday and seven Canadian competitors are hoping that if they're not the winner, who automatically qualifies they'll pick up enough points to make it to Woodbridge.

Should there be no new winner in the open here, six berths will be decided on the points system.

Twenty points are awarded for second place among the pros, 18 for third and so on down the line to one point for a 20th-place finish. Only Canadian professionals are eligible for qualification points, but United States entries will be hot after the prize money and amateurs will be swinging for prizes.

Bobby Cox, Jr., of Quilchena, B.C., is the leader in points after eight tourneys with 70.75, followed by Stan Homenuik of Dauphin, Man., with 62. Bob Breen of Woodbridge has 55.25 points, John Hebert of Montreal, 42.70, and William Wright, Jr. of Edmonston, 43.

Of the six already qualified, unpredictable Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont., is the only one entered in the Atlantic open. The other qualifiers are Alvie Thompson of Thornhill, Ont., Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg, Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver, Trevor Bateman of Montreal and Bill Wakeham of Victoria.

Among the U.S. players, Jay Dolan of Worcester, Mass., must be rated a major contender. Dolan last year captured the old Maritime open at Saint John, N.B. Another threat is Bruce Dobie, also of Worcester, who won the recent Island open at Charlottetown.

A total of 129 golfers - 51 pros and 78 amateurs were entered in the open at the deadline for registration Tuesday.

Cubs' Regan Absolved by Giles

CHICAGO (AP) — President Warren Giles of the National League Tuesday absolved Chicago Cub pitcher Phil Regan of any wrongdoing in Sunday's baseball controversy up in the air.

Giles met with Regan, manager Leo Durocher and Chicago vice-president John Holland before issuing a statement in which he said he would have to confer with the umpires involved and other umpires as to whether a foreign substance can be detected merely by the flight of the ball.

In the seventh inning of Sunday's first game with Cincinnati Reds, Regan took the mound and umpire Chris Pelekoudas on several occasions accused Regan of throwing "illegal" pitches.

Pelekoudas later said he found no evidence on the ball and detected the illegal pitches by the flight of the ball.

"A inker spins when it breaks down," said Pelekoudas. "An illegal pitch breaks down without any spin."

Jimmy Comes Marching Home and City Celebrates

By JERRY HOFF
Staff Reporter

What a homecoming!

The first game of the Commercial Softball League playoffs Tuesday night at the Aleguin diamond saw pitcher Jim Nickels of City Hotel, absent from the team for six weeks of Air Force duty in Germany, come marching home to the tune of a seventh-inning homer which tallied the winning runs for City as they topped Stinson Construction 4-2.

Nickels, who relieved Gerry Genereaux in the fourth, came to bat in the final frame with two away and the game tied 2-2. The big pitcher's blow scored first baseman Doug Murray ahead of him to give the Hotelmen a two-run victory margin.

City Hotel had trailed 2-1 since the fourth when they collected three runs in the last-inning rally. Bob Brooks drew a walk for the Hotelmen to open the inning, then Murray's double sent him home to tie the game.

Genereaux allowed two runs on five hits and three walks in his three and two-thirds innings and struck out one. Nickels shutout the Builders in his turn on the mound and struck out one.

Pug Kellar, City's shortstop collected his third home run in three straight games to give the winners their only pre-seventh tally.

Scotty Reid pitched for Stinsons, allowing four runs on four hits and two Stinson errors. He walked three and struck out nine.

City's hits were homers by Kellar and Nickels, a double by Murray, and a single by Moe Hawkins.

Catcher Lyle Thompson led the Stinson hitters with a single and a double, Paul Stinson had a double, and Bob Boyle and Ken Genereaux had single.

BELVEDERE HOTEL — 3
BLACK DIAMOND — 2

In the second game of the night, Belvedere Hotel won its fifth straight extra - inning game. Doug Ellis, who won last night's contest over Black Diamond 3-2, has pitched the extra frames in four of the five contests starting two and relieving in two.

In Tuesday night's contest, Ellis took over from an ailing Wayne McConnell in the fifth and still ended up pitching a full seven as the game stretched to 11 innings.

Ellis allowed one run on two hits and one walk in his stint and struck out seven. McConnell allowed one tally on three hits and one walk and struck out two.

Don Holoway for Black Diamond went all the way and gave up three runs on five hits and four walks and struck out 12.

Black Diamond drew first blood in the opening playoff game between the teams as third baseman Wayne McTaggart tagged a triple and went home on an error by the centrefielder in the top of the second.

Paul Goodfellow of Belvedere evened it up in the bottom half of the inning by reaching third on a centrefield error and coming home on a passed ball.

It stayed that way until the top of the eleventh when Black Diamond second base man Gene Francis tagged a homer to right to put the Cheesemen on top 2-1. But the Hotelmen weren't going to give it up that easily after 11 innings.

Lyle Wannamaker, Belvedere outfielder, led off the bottom of the eleventh with a single, then scored on a combination of a single by Paul Goodfellow and an error by Black Daimond centrefielder Jack Gilbey on a hard-hit fly by Cliff Hineman. Belvedere backstop.

Hineman stopped on third and third baseman Gary Gow of Belvedere brought the big catcher home with the winning run by slapping a single through second baseman Gene Francis.

Lions Even Score, Defeat Eskimos 12-4

EDMONTON (CP) — British Columbia Lions shut the door on Edmonton Eskimos Tuesday night and Ted Gerela turned the key in a Western Football Conference game before 18,213 fans.

Gerela, a soccer-styled, field-goal specialist, booted three field goals to lead the Lions over the Eskimos 12-4 and thwart an Edmonton bid to take over first place.

It was the second defeat in five starts for the Eskimos, who also have a 10-10 deadlock with Saskatchewan Roughriders. The Lions have split their first four starts.

Calgary Stampeders, meanwhile, will be out tonight to increase their WFC lead to three points when they meet Toronto Argonauts in Eastern Conference in an interlocking game in Calgary.

In Edmonton, the Eskimos committed five fumbles and lost three on a field left muddy and wet by a Monday rain. The Lions had three fumbles and lost one.

Gerela, successful on three of eight field goal tries from 48, 44 and 37 yards out, added a 21-yard single. A safety touch early in the first quarter accounted for British Columbia's other points.

Conference Player Kempf put Edmonton on the scoreboard at 6:29 of the second quarter with a single with his attempted field goal midway through the final quarter when the Lions thwarted the Eskimos' best scoring bid.

The Lions, handed an 18-17 setback in Vancouver last Thursday when the Eskimos staged a late rally, had their best scoring attempt for a touchdown foiled in the dying seconds of the fourth quarter.

Edmonton lost the ball on a third-down gamble on its own 40 late in the game and five plays later British Columbia moved to the Eskimos' one. They failed to score as Edmonton's defence put up a goal-line stand.

The Lions outplayed the Eskimos in the air and along the ground, although both offences sputtered throughout the game.

Pete Ohler completed 15 of 22 attempts, including four for 42 yards to Dale Brady, as B.C. gained 154 yards passing. The Lions had 131 yards along the ground with Jim Evenson carrying 17 times for 105 yards.

Frank Cosentino of Edmonton hit receivers on 13 of 25 attempts for 167 yards. Cosentino's favorite targets were Jim Thomas and rookie Charles Fulton, each catching four passes. Thomas made 50 yards and Fulton had 26.

Grind Takes Toll on McLain As Sox Whack Tigers 10-2

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A strong young arm has put some zip into Detroit's pennant push. But the Tigers' pitching is a lot happier today if it belonged to Denny McLain.

John Hiller, a second-year southpaw who hadn't been to the winner's circle in two months, pitched a one-hitter Tuesday night as the American League leaders whipped Chicago 7-0 in the opener of a doubleheader.

The White Sox then kayoed arm-weary McLain, Detroit's 25-game winner, with a nine-run blitz in taking the nightcap 10-2. The setback ended a seven-game winning string for McLain, 25-4, whose powerful right arm apparently is beginning to feel the strain of 361 innings' work.

McLain denied a report he had torn a muscle in his pitching arm, but admitted to a minor muscular irritation.

"What I mean by that is it's strained," the 24-year-old fireballer explained. "It's something I've had for two or three years. But I can still pitch every four days."

The doubleheader split increased the Tigers' edge over second-place Baltimore to seven games.

The Orioles bowed to California 7-2 as Rick Clark and Clyde Wright flipped a combined one-hitter. New York's Jerry Koosman beat Minnesota 5-0 behind Mel Stottlemyre. Cleveland nipped Boston 2-1 for Sam Dyroff and Oakland divided a twin bill with Washington, taking the nightcap 4-3 on Danny Cater's ninth-inning homer after a 7-5 loss.

Hiller, who set a major league mark by striking out the first six batters he faced in Detroit's 17-inning victory over Cleveland two weeks ago, nailed his first victory since June 14 by limiting the White Sox to a fifth-inning single by Ron Hansen.

Gates Brown drove in two runs with a single and his fourth homer and Mickey Stanley delivered a pair with a bases-loaded single.

Shoddy fielding contributed to McLain's demise in the nightcap. Seven of the nine runs off him were unearned, the result of four Detroit errors—two of them by Al Kaline.

Gerry McNertney, McLain's catcher, a singlemanbeforeDenny was traded from the Chicago organization to Detroit five years ago, drove in four runs with the first three of his four straight hits. Ward cleared the bases in the sixth with his 12th homer, finishing the Detroit star.

Wright pitched 6 1-3 innings of hitless relief after a hit batsmen, two walks. Mark Belanger's single and a passed ball by Tom Satriano gave the Orioles two runs off Clark in the third. Jim Fregosi's three-run double capped a five-run California burst in the fourth.

Stottlemyre flipped a four-hitter and Andy Kosco drove in three runs with a single and his 13th homer, leading the Yankees past the Twins.

Jose Cardenal's triple and a pinch single by Russ Snyder in the eighth carried the Indians past Boston. McDowell, 13-10, scattered four hits, including a homer by George Scott, and fanned seven to regain the major league strikeout lead with a total of 229.

Cater broke up the nightcap at Oakland by slamming Bob Humphreys' first delivery in the ninth over the left field fence. Brant Alyea's three-run pinch homer in the eighth lifted the Senators into a 3-3 deadlock.

Del Unser led off the twilight game with his first homer in the majors, then poked four singles to pace the Senators' 12-hit attack. Mike Epstein homered and Paul Casanova drilled a two-run single for Washington.

Swoboda Swings Love Bat at Giants

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dapper Ron Swoboda, the mod Met, had a swinging time against San Francisco Giants.

Swoboda, who occasionally accentuates his lengthy sideburns with a set of love beads, displayed great affection for Giants pitching Tuesday night, driving in five runs in New York's 8-0 victory.

The splurge included a three-run eighth-inning homer—Swoboda's first in almost a month —and helped Tom Seaver win his 11th game.

Elsewhere in the National League, Philadelphia bombed St. Louis 9-2, Pittsburgh rapped Cincinnati 8-3, Houston dropped Los Angeles 8-5 and Chicago took Atlanta 6-5 in 10 innings.

Swoboda, who struck out three times in 17 frustrating innings as the Mets lost 1-0 the night before, drove in a run with a fielder's choice grounder in the third inning, singled another across in the fifth and climaxed a four-run Mets rally in the eight with his 12th homer.

It was his first since July 23 and only his fourth since the end of April.

Seaver worked six innings, allowing four hits, before wilting in the Shea Stadium heat. Cal Koonce finished up.

Larry Dierker, who hasn't lost a game in two months, ran his record to 12-10 as the Astros hopped on Don Drysdale and defeated the Dodgers.

Rusty Staub drove in three runs with a double and a sacrifice fly and Danny Coombs extinguished a ninth-inning Dodger rally, preserving Dierker's sixth consecutive victory.

Cookie Rojas and Clay Dalrymple hit home runs as the Phillies clawed the Cardinals, ending Nelson Briles' five-game winning streak.

Briles retired the first two batters in the first inning and then two walks, four hits and an error cost him four runs.

Matty Alou tagged three hits, drove in two runs and scored a pair as Pittsburgh ended Cincinnati's seven-game winning streak.

Alou's three hits boosted his average to .333, 10 points behind NL leader Pete Rose, who had 1-for-4. Rose's ninth-inning triple extended his batting streak to 10 games.

Willie Smith's second home run of the game gave Chicago its 10-inning victory over Atlanta. Smith, who had a three-run shot in the first inning, connected with two out in the 10th after the Cubs tied the game on a pair of errors and Glenn Beckert's sacrifice fly in the ninth.

Batting—Willie Smith, Cubs, drove in four runs with a pair of homers, including the 10th-inning game winner, as Chicago nipped Atlanta 6-5.

Marlene Misses - Once

MONTREAL (CP) — A caddy's reverent comment provided some indication of the stature of Marlene Stewart Streit, the Fonthill, Ont., resident who blitzed her way to an easy first place in the qualifying round of the Canadian women's open golf championship Tuesday.

The caddy, attached to Mrs. Streit's partner Marilyn Palmer of Kamloops, B.C., watched in awe as Mrs. Streit headed toward a one-under-par 73.

"Doesn't she ever miss a shot?" he whispered to Miss Palmer.

She did eventually and Miss Palmer's reply was: "There it is."

Mrs. Streit admitted she played "pretty good" golf, turning in a par 148 to end the two-day, 36-hole qualifying round with a six-stroke lead over Gail Borthwick of Ancaster, Ont., and Miss Palmer.

Mrs. Streit finished Monday's 18 holes with a one-over 73 for a two-stroke lead on the beautiful 6,042-yard Kanawaki Golf Club in nearby Caughnawaga.

"I had a lot of chances for birdies and missed," she said, "but I'm really quite happy."

The nine-time winner of the Canadian women's close golf title, out to win her eighth open crown, shot a front-nine par 37 and then got a one-under 36.

Tied for fourth were Gayle Harvey Moore of New Westminster, B.C., and Betty Cole of Edmonton at 155.

Jacelyne Bourassa of Shawinigan, Que., was alone at 156 and the rest of the pack was scattered with scores ranging to more than 190.

Sixty-four out of the original 105 qualified for today's section of the tournament that ends Saturday.

Today—with tee-off time at 8 a.m. EDT—the 64 who got under the 181 cutoff will play 18 holes of match play. The final is Saturday.

PGA Bars Rebel Pros

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Golfers joining the new American Professional Golfers Organization will be barred from participation in Professional Golfers' Association tournaments, the president of the PGA warned Tuesday night.

Max Elbin told about 70 pros: "You can't belong to two organizations. You either belong to the PGA or forget it" as far as tournament competition goes.

Elbin made his comments at Whitemarsh Valley Country Club, site of Thursday's $100,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic. The ruling will not apply for the Philadelphia tourney.

Later this month, Elbin said, the PGA will issue new entry blanks for tournaments. Those refusing to sign the new blanks, which apparently would include a statement saying the pro did not belong to any other player's organization, would be banned from PGA play, Elbin said.

Formation of the APG was announced Monday in New York by 13 touring pros who identified themselves as the new group's organizing committee.

Grade 13 Students to Get Later University Notices

OTTAWA (CP)—Grade 13 students in Ontario will be notified of their admission to universities at least two weeks later in 1969 than they were this year, E. M. Davidson of Toronto, secretary of the Ontario universities' council on admissions, told delegates attending Guidance Dialogue '68 here Tuesday.

About 350 delegates from Ontario high schools and universities are having a three-day conference at the University of Ottawa to establish effective communication between high school guidance counsellors and university admissions officers.

Mr. Davidson said the new date for admission notification will probably be May 30, instead of this year's date of May 15. The council would have to ratify the new date in September.

Czech Crisis Seen Likely to Help Humphrey

CHICAGO (AP)—At a sensitive moment in American politics, the Soviet Union's invasion of Czechoslovakia is likely to harden the foreign affairs posture of Democrats convening in Chicago and of the Republican party as well.

Frankford

FRANKFORD — Mr. and Mrs. G. Renwick have returned home to Toronto after spending the past two weeks with their daughter, Mrs. William Murray and family.

Miss Cheryl Patrick and her grandmother, Mrs. Earl Sharpe returned home after spending the past week with relatives at the Ozark Mountain, Arkansas and camped at Lake Northfork.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Strome and children of Brampton spent this week with Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Strome.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Marshall and daughters returned home after a month's vacation with relatives in B.C.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Thompson of Ottawa spent Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. William Murray and daughter Heather.

Misses Janice and Marie Chapman spent last week at Lakeshore Pentecostal Camp, in Cobourg.

Weekend guests with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gardner were Mr. and Mrs. Murray Hemstock and family of Owen Sound; Mr. and Mrs. Sam McColl of Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Alexander of Sudbury spent this week with Miss Marguerite Shannon.

Among Democrats, the crisis in eastern Europe probably will assist Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey, who already is the commanding leader for the presidential nomination to be awarded at the party's national convention next week.

His chief rival, Senator Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, is basking heavily on a convention battle over Vietnam war policy to bolster his bid to overtake Humphrey.

But echoes of the European crisis undoubtedly will make the task of Democratic doves far more difficult. For the convention is not likely to adopt a conciliatory plank on dealing with the Communists in Vietnam while Communist troops in Europe are on the march.

The movement by Soviet, Polish, East German, Hungarian and Bulgarian troops came after weeks of tension over internal liberalization of the Czech Communist regime. The trend represented a break with old line Communism.

The Soviet government said its troops moved at the request of Czechoslovaks to meet a threat to the Socialist system.

While the situation was not clear, its impact on the Democratic platform hearings underway in Washington could only be one of stiffening attitudes toward the Communist world.

President Johnson summoned the National Security Council into crisis session—and candidate Humphrey is a member of that panel.

If the crisis persists, the political drawbacks of identification with President Johnson's administration—and its Vietnam policy—may be offset for Humphrey by the tendency toward national unity behind the government, which normally occurs in times of international tension.

In fact, there has been the expected flurry of gossip that in this time of crisis there might be a late-starting movement to draft Johnson himself for the nomination—though he has said he would not accept renomination.

For the Republicans and their presidential nominee, Richard Nixon, there was a tinge of irony in the European developments. Two weeks ago, Nixon accepted his nomination with a speech in which he held out hope for a time of negotiations with the Communist world.

"After an era of confrontation," he said, "the time has come for an era of negotiations.

"Where the world's super powers are concerned, there is no acceptable alternative to peaceful negotiations."

But the ever-cautious Nixon added that "we shall restore the strength of America so that we shall always negotiate from strength and never from weakness."

In view of European developments, the latter phase of his remarks is likely now to take precedence.

A similar trend can be expected among many Democrats.

This was evident even in the swift adoption of a new strategy by Democratic promoters of a platform plank dedicated to ending the Vietnam war. Their argument: the heavy commitment of U.S. forces in Southeast Asia hampers the American ability to react to crisis elsewhere.

But the symbolism of a conciliatory Vietnam plank is not likely to prove attractive to the party's convention while a Democratic president seeks to deal with new trouble in Europe.

Magistrate Agrees Marijuana Penalties Too Heavy

OTTAWA (CP) — Magistrate J. A. Archambault suggested in court Tuesday that a royal commission should investigate the use and effects of marijuana.

He made the suggestion in putting Paul Jamieson Green, 16, on probation for two years after the youth pleaded guilty to possession of the drug.

He agreed with federal Health Minister Munro, who said Monday in Regina that giving criminal records to curious young users involved with marijuana seems to serve no worthwhile purpose.

A news report of Mr. Munro's speech was read to the court by defence counsel Louis Assaly. The health minister said federal authorities are considering lesser penalties for young marijuana offenders.

Magistrate Archambault said there is insufficient medical evidence on the narcotic to warrant present stiff penalties.

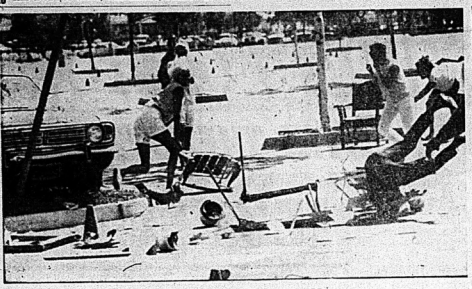
Hilda's Column is a new weekly feature in Loblaw ads. Hilda Wilson heads up our Loblaw consumer affairs department. If you have a shopping problem, a suggestion or a complaint Hilda wants to hear from you. Write to her at Loblaw Groceterias Co., Limited, 545 Lake Shore Blvd. West, Toronto 2B.

HILDA'S COLUMN



This week I learned something about trading stamps—mostly from the comments you put on the Loblaw survey forms. According to you, trading stamps are sticky paper given to shoppers by cashiers in proportion to the size of their shopping order. They cause slowdowns at checkout counters, clutter up the kitchen until they are pasted into books and really frustrate a shopper who finds herself buying specials she doesn't need just to get bonus stamps. There's a strong feeling among you that stamps add to the cost of shopping regardless of what anyone tries to say to the contrary, and that without stamps prices would go down.

Well, Loblaws is going out of stamps—and prices are already coming D-O-W-N.

Anybody out there feel like saying, "I told you so"?

Havoc at Car Rally

When the sports car at left went out of control at a slalom rally in San Diego this was the result. The auto slammed into a starter's position, sending the man at right tumbling end-over-end, and the girl at centre scrambling to safety. They had been seated at the table, but had enough warning to try to run to a safer place. Witnesses said no one was seriously injured. (CP Photo)

Changes in Canada's Program Of External Aid Are Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — Signs of impending change in Canada's external aid program are likely to appear at the October annual meeting of the World Bank in Washington.

In one major public statement and in many conferences, the Canadian delegation is expected to picture a new relationship between Canada and the World Bank group as well as other international aid organizations.

Statements by Prime Minister Trudeau and aid officials suggest this will take the form of a tighter rein on contributions to these agencies for multilateral aid programs.

But Canada will at the same time seek closer working relationships with their experts on selection and co-ordination of assistance.

The clear emphasis of Mr. Trudeau's comments to date on aid programs has been the unique relevance for Canada of bilateral aid.

A pre-election policy statement said Canada will concentrate on "places and projects in which our bilingualism, our own expertise and experience, our resources and facilities make possible an effective and distinctively Canadian contribution."

The government will maintain its "broad policy of support" for co-operative efforts, but its contribution "may benefit from some shift of emphasis."

"In making our reappraisal we shall be looking for realistic means for making multilateral organizations as effective as possible and correspondingly Canada's participation in their endeavors."

Bilateral aid is traditionally "tied" aid, given in the form of the donor country's own goods and services.

From one point of view bilateral aid is therefore selfish, because the donor nation gets back perhaps 80 cents of every aid dollar in the form of increased exports.

Canada has tried to minimize the hidden costs of its bilateral aid. But unless other donors go along, it cannot move heavily into multilateral assistance without damaging its export position.

The question that seems to be raised by Mr. Trudeau's statements is whether Canada has enough confidence in multilateral efforts to maintain even its current four-to-one bilateral-multilateral ratio in aid during the next few years.

Better Homes Likely When Shortage Eases

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Canada will get better cities when the current demand for housing eases, Dr. James Gillies, vice-president of York University, said Thursday.

Speaking at the annual conference of the Parks and Recreation Association of Canada, Dr. Gillies cited the "tremendous" improvement when the housing market in southern California collapsed a few years ago.

He said residents there lost interest in buying box-like houses in subdivisions and builders and land developers were forced to produce something better.

Dr. Gillies said once similar buyer pressure is put on builders and developers in Canada, they will have to co-operate with public agencies such as parks and recreation boards in planning attractive housing areas.

He called for formation of a central mortgage system to lend money to middle-income groups. A Canadian should be able to borrow 95 per cent of the money for a $20,000 house, payable over 50 years in instalment no more than one-fifth of a monthly salary.

Low-cost housing is not the answer for low income groups, he said. A way should be found to supplement incomes so that better housing could be bought.

Commitments to Mental Hospitals to Be Studied

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Charles Stewart of the Ontario Supreme Court has been named chairman of Canada's first statutory review board for persons committed to mental institutions by provincial order-in-council.

The appointment, under Ontario's Mental Health Act of 1967, was made in an order-in-council released Tuesday which also named Dr. H. C. Moorhouse, a Cobourg psychiatrist, as permanent member of the new advisory review board which will also include 21 members of regional advisory boards previously appointed.

Under provisions of the act the senior advisory board will review cases annually of an estimated 100 persons committed by the cabinet as unfit to stand trial for, or not guilty of, alleged criminal offences on grounds of insanity.

Membership of the five regional boards:

Central—Roy Cornish, Port Perry; Dr. A.M. Doyle, Toronto; Phillip D. Ishister, Toronto; Dr. J. N. Senn, Hamilton; Rt. Rev. F. H. Wilkinson, Toronto.

Western—E. Russell Hooper, Exeter; Mrs. Clifford Morris, Hamilton; Dr. O. J. Stewart, London; Dr. W. A. Tallman, London; E. J.R. Wright, London.

Eastern—D. G. Cunningham, Kingston; A. S. Fraser, Iroquois; Dr. S. G. Laverty, Kingston; Dr. William Powles, Kingston; A.C. Runiman, Brockville.

Northwestern—Reg. Davie, Kenora; Dr. D. Lewkin, Port Arthur; C. Bruce Noble, Sault Ste. Marie.

Northeastern — R. F. Donnelly, North Bay; A. E. Humphries, Timmins; Dr. E. C. MacLeod, Sudbury.

The order-in-council specified that the terms of all 23 members will expire May 31, 1971.

Bus Driver Charged

KINGSTON (CP) — The driver of a Greyhound bus involved in a fatal accident on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway near here Aug. 16 was charged Tuesday with careless driving.

The driver, Cecil Arthur Mumford, 43, of Peterborough, was driving the 38-passenger bus west on the freeway when the accident occurred. The bus skidded along on its side, killing one woman passenger and injuring 37 others.

Iradj Elrat, 21, of Montreal, driver of a car that passed the bus, was charged with dangerous driving and remanded to Aug. 26.

Unions Would Talk Until Settlement

WINNIPEG (CP) —Negotiators for the 10 strikebound Lakehead grain elevator companies are willing to "sit down in marathon negotiations until settlement is reached," a company spokesman said Tuesday.

W. S. Neal, counsel for the companies, made the announcement a few hours after the Canadian wheat board announced a proposal to clear Canadian grain through Duluth, Minn.

Mr. Neal said he has urged a reopening of negotiations to end the strike of 1,300 grain handlers but union officials at the Lakehead and the Chicago headquarters had not replied. Talks broke down more than a week ago.

The men, on strike since July 18, are members of the Brotherhood of Railway, Airline and Steamship Clerks. Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employes.

Wrong Men Achieve Power

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

It has long seemed quite plain to me that one reason — perhaps the chief reason — that governments of all kinds go bad is that exactly the wrong sort of men are chosen to run them; and it makes little difference which party or principles they adhere to.

The men who get political power are those who want it the most. And with only a few notable exceptions, the temperaments and drives of such men have been responsible for most of the world's woes. It was no accident that the shrewd and ruthless Stalin, rather than the intellectual Trotsky, seized control of the Lenin died.

Communist apparatus after

The only man who can be trusted with authority, said Plato, is the man who does not want it; but his opposite is almost always the man who gets it. And he is often willing to push, subvert, shout, bribe or betray his way into positions where his capacity for doing damage is incalculable.

This is not to say that all public men are bounders or bullies, but it is to suggest that men who lust after political power generally get it; and a lustful man is not likely to be cool, moderate or unselfish, when his opinion is challenged or his authority is in any way threatened.

Hamilton Fish, the historian, once declared that if, around 1850, a carriage had been filled with the extremist leaders of both North and South and plunged into the river, the nation might have been spared the calamitous Civil War.

And Lecky, that magnificent historian of the 18th Century England, remarked that "a wise and moderate statesmanship might easily have averted the catastrophe" of the American Revolution, which destroyed the political unity of the English race. The original cause of difference was so small, and so easily capable of mediation, but pride and stubbornness prevented any compromise on the issue.

Indeed, Lecky goes on to generalize, "there has scarcely been a great revolution in the world which might not at some stage have been averted, materially modified, or at least greatly postponed, by wise and moderate statesmanship."

That the world has seen so little of this sort of statesmanship may be a flaw built into political institutions; but just as much, I am convinced, it is the fact that public ability is so often coupled with personal aggressiveness — and, in times of crisis, the possessor of such ability cannot distinguish between public and private goals.

"When a man seeks public office," said Jefferson, "a kind of corruption begins to creep into his soul." Perhaps, like the ancient Athenians, we ought to choose our leaders by lottery; could we do much worse?

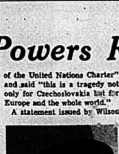
Hopes Shattered

World Powers React to Soviet Invasion of Czechoslovakia

LONDON (AP) — The swift Soviet-bloc thrust into Czechoslovakia has shattered hopes of West European leaders that the Czechslovaks might be able to work out some freer mode of life.



Some analysts of Soviet affairs had cautioned that Soviet action was inevitable unless there was a clampdown on the new liberalism. But most expected the Soviet Union to combine external pressures and internal subversion rather than use military force.

Soviet Ambassador Mihail Smirnovsky brought the first word to the British government in a post-midnight call at the home of Lord Chalfont, minister of state in the foreign office.

He delivered an oral message for Prime Minister Wilson, who immediately returned to London from a vacation, called key ministers for a morning meeting and stayed in contact with Washington and other NATO allies.

Britain today condemned the invasion as a "flagrant violation of the United Nations Charter" and said "this is a tragedy not only for Czechoslovakia but for Europe and the whole world."

A statement issued by Wilson

said he has asked that Parliament be called into emergency session to discuss the crisis.

Foreign Secretary Michael Steward also hurried back from a holiday trip. He told reporters: "It is very serious news indeed."

Sir Alex Douglas-Home, former prime minister and spokesman on foreign affairs for the opposition Conservative party, said in a statement: "Russia's crude use of military force has returned the world at one stroke to the atmosphere of the cold war."

In Bonn, West German Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger and his cabinet issued a statement condemning the invasion as "a clear violation of Czechoslovak sovereignty and interference in its internal affairs."

Bonn then broke its long-standing policy of declining comment on the liberalization in Czechoslovakia.

At his summer residence in Castel Gandolfo, Italy, Pope Paul delivered a prepared address for his last general audience before he was to leave for Colombia. Then he added that he hopes "the dignity of a people jealous of its destiny will not be offended" by the Soviet bloc invasion. He said he hopes "wisdom will prevail over any problem."

Addressing himself to the

HAROLD WILSON

Czechoslovak people, he said: "This appearance of power cannot but provoke trepidation in our spirit which shares the feeling of your entire nation." He called for avoidance of "zonficts of violence and blood."

Vatican informants said the Pope would proceed on his planned trip to Latin America.

As in Washington and London, Soviet ambassadors made calls to other NATO leaders. In Paris, Ambassador Valerian Zorin called on Bernard Tricot, secretary-general of President de Gaulle's Elysee Palace, to inform him of the troop movements.

Premier Maurice Couve de Murville was in the French Alps on vacation. A government plane was sent to Geneva to pick him up.

There was no immediate reaction from the government. But the leadership of the French Communist party expressed its "surprise and severe disapproval." It has strongly opposed any Soviet pressure on the Czechoslovak reform program.

Italy's Communist party, largest in the West, has sided with the Czechoslovak liberal wing.

Mitchell Sharp, Canada's external affairs minister, said the Soviet-bloc troop movement could set back progress for East-West understanding but that there did not appear to be an immediate threat to peace.

"There's little that we can do or little that we need fear concerning any outbreak of hostilities," he said in an interview.

James Robert of Canada, acting general secretary of the NATO council, arranged a morning meeting of the council in Brussels to discuss the situation.

Yugoslavia's President Tito, who recently visited Prague in a show of support for the program of Alexander Dubcek, the Communist party chairman in Czechoslovakia, called a meeting of the Yugoslav central committee's presidium on Brioni Island.

Nicolae Ceausescu, Romania's party chief, another supporter of Dubcek who visited Prague last week, had no immediate comment.

Norwegian Premier Per Borten said he has called an emergency meeting of his government to discuss the situation.

Prime Minister Keith Holyoake of New Zealand said the invasion moved the clock in Europe back to the darkest days of the cold war.

Johnson Watches Developments

U. S. Would Join Move to Censure Russia at United Nations

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — President Johnson kept close touch with Prague developments today while officials studied diplomatic options available to the U.S. to meet the menacing Czech crisis.

The White House and the Kremlin both appeared anxious to head off a new East-West confrontation following Russia's blitz movement of troops into Czechoslovakia. First Washington reactions were cautious.

Diplomats predicted the focus would shift quickly to the United Nations and that the U.S. would join—but probably not initiate—a move to censure the Soviet Union and its hard-line Communist allies, Poland, East Germany, Bulgaria and Hungary.

Because of the Vietnam war, America's diplomatic manoeuvrability is regarded as strictly circumscribed.

Military action by the Western powers also is considered highly improbable. But diplomats believe the Soviet decision to use force in Eastern Europe for the second time in 12 years will deal a heavy blow to President Johnson's efforts to ease East-West relations.

Johnson summoned the policy-making National Security Council to the White House for an emergency 55-minute meeting immediately after news of the Russian invasion reached Washington late Tuesday night.

He acted shortly after Russian Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin handed him a special message from the Kremlin explaining Russian rationale for the sudden move.

Officials refused to reveal contents of the Soviet note, but said it was along the lines of a Moscow statement claiming troops were sent in at the request of Czech leaders.

On Johnson's orders, State Secretary Dean Rusk called Dobrynin to the state department for a 15-minute talk shortly before midnight. Details were withheld, but informed sources said Rusk expressed the administration's shock and concern.

The quick contact between the two governments was seen as proof that both wanted to try to control the situation.

So far, the U.S. has maintained a strict "hands off" policy in the mounting crisis between Moscow and Prague.

This attitude has been seen as an attempt by Washington to avoid any situation which could spoil new efforts by Johnson to improve relations with Moscow, particularly to negotiate a joint ban on anti-ballistic missile systems.

The president was expected to confer with key advisers again this morning after evaluating latest reports.

Terse Radio Bulletin

All Citizens Requested to Remain Quiet, Not Offer Resistance

BONN (Reuters) — Text of the Radio Prague bulletin announcing the entry of Soviet and other Communist bloc troops into Czechoslovakia, monitored in West Germany:

"To the entire people of the Czechoslovak Socialist Republic . . .

"Yesterday around 2300 hours (11 p.m. local time) troops of the Soviet Union, Polish Peoples Republic, East Germany, Hungary and Bulgaria crossed the frontiers of Czechoslovakia.

"This happened without the knowledge of the president, of the chairman of the National Assembly, the premier and the first secretary the Czechoslovak central committee.

"All citizens are requested to remain quiet and not to offer any resistance.

"In the evening hours the presidium of the Czechoslovak central committee met and discussed the preparation of the 14th party congress.

"The central committee presidium appeals to all citizens to remain calm and not to offer any resistance to the troops on the march.

"Our army, security corps and people's militia have not received a command to defend the country.

"The Czechoslovak central committee presidium regards this act as contrary not only to the fundamental principles of relations between Socialist states but also as a violation of the principles of international law.

"All leading functionaries of the state, the Communist party and the National Front are to remain at your functions as representatives of the people, elected according to the laws and other norms valid in the Czechoslovak Socialist Republic.

"Constitutional leaders are immediately convening a session of the National Assembly and the presidium is at the same time convening a plenum of the central committee to discuss the situation which has been created."

The radio transmitted the message as coming directly from the Communist party presidium and broadcast it repeatedly through the early-morning hours.

Country Invaded in 1939

Occupation of Czechoslovakia Is Second Time for Republic

By A. I. GOLDBERG
Associated Press Staff Writer

The occupation of Czechoslovakia today by Soviet and satellite troops is the second for the relatively small bicultural republic that was born from the ashes of the First World War.

Hitler's Nazi armies moved into Bohemia and Moravia March 15, 1939, and Hitler paraded into Prague. Under the Munich agreement of September, 1938—where Czechoslovakia had no voice—no country raised a hand to stop him.

By April 4, Constanin von Neurath was installed as the German Third Reich's top authority in the country. Karl Hermann Frank, who later became known as the instigator of mass killings of hostages, served then as state secretary. The newly-seized territories, by Hitler's decree, committed to Soviet ate of Nazi Germany.

In 1948, when Klement Gottwald, the Czechoslovak Communist party leader, took over power from ailing President Eduard Benes, Soviet troops were massed on the northern border, in east Germany, but did not move.

To the south were Hungarian cree, were declared a protectorpolicy. To the east were Polland's armies.

The threat of Soviet troop movements was credited by some observers with the quick accession to power by Gottwald.

He was aided by a Communist-oriented left wing of the Social Democratic party which gave the Communist leaders leverage despite opposition of the majority of Czechoslovakia's people to Communist doctrines.

The latest move by Communist forces into Czechoslovakia Tuesday night came 29 years, 11 months and 20 days since the 1939 invasion.

The Second World War followed that excursion.

For Czechoslovakia the fateful years have been 1938, 1948 and 1968.

Soviet troops marched through the Vaclavske Namesti (Wenceslas Square—on May 11, 1945, as friendly liberators.

Soviet troops took over posts the length and breath of the country although the Czechoslovak government in exile, under Benes, had returned to resume activity. Evacuation of Soviet troops did not begin until late summer of 1945.

Canada Seeks Condemnation of Soviets

BULLETIN

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will seek United Nations condemnation of the Soviet Union for its invasion of Czechoslovakia, Foreign Minister Sharp announced today.

"We condemn this use of force," he told a news conference minutes after leaving a cabinet meeting where a formal statement of reaction was approved.

Mr. Sharp referred several times to an "invasion" of Czechoslovakia by Soviet forces.

It was a "flagrant breach" of the principle of non-intervention to which the Soviet government was supposed to subscribe.

He said Canada is holding discussions on the Czech crisis with other western capitals, at the United Nations and in the NATO council.

All NATO countries were anxious to keep in mind the goal of an East-West accord. The Czech development was a serious setback to this.

A defence department spokesman said no official alert has been ordered for the Canadian brigade or air division in Europe, or by North American Air Defence Command.

He added, however, that it is normal for commanders to take any precautions they feel necessary on their own initiative.

Messages from the Canadian embassy in Prague continued to pour into external affairs headquarters here during the night.

Charles Cole, charge d'affaires for Canada in Prague in the absence of Ambassador M. H. Bow, said the 16 members of the embassy staff, their 14 dependents, and 73 other Canadians in Czechoslovakia registered with the embassy are all well.

Reports on the situation were also received from North Atlantic Treaty Headquarters in Brussels and other Western capitals.

Mr. Sharp planned to be in touch with Mr. Trudeau by telephone before going to a cabinet meeting. There was no indication that Mr. Trudeau planned to cut short his vacation and return earlier than next Monday, as planned. He was last reported on the island of Majorca.

200,000 Men

U. S. Army in Western Europe at Lowest Strength in Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet troop movement into Czechoslovakia comes at a time when the U.S. 7th Army, backbone of West Europe's defence, is at its lowest strength in years.

Because of the balance-of-payments problem, U.S. Army forces in West Germany have been cut to about 200,000 men and are due to drop even further by Sept. 30.

By contrast, the U.S. Army had about 273,000 soldiers arrayed along the Iron Curtain during the Berlin crisis of 1961.

U.S. tactical air strength also has been cut to ease the gold-dollar drain and to bolster U.S. air power elsewhere. The air force's tactical fighter strength in West Germany is down to five squadrons.

Because of this—and even more because the United States has about 534,000 men pinned down in the Vietoam war—the last problem U.S. military leaders wish to face at this time is a crisis in Europe.

The United States has no military commitment to Czechoslovakia, nor does it have even an implied moral commitment to American officers who have assessed the relative military strength of Czechoslovakia and its Communist neighbors have felt it would be suicide for the Czechs to resist if invaded by Russia and other Warsaw pact armies.

According to recent estimates, a Czech army of some 175,000 men in 16 divisions faces overwhelming Russian, East German, Polish and other Communist forces.

The Russian Army has some 30 divisions in East Germany, pus four in Hungary and two in Poland. The Russians have based about 900 tactical planes in East Germany alone.

The East German army numbers some 85,000 men in six divisions, the Polish Army some 185,000 men in 16 division.

Embassy Demands End to Occupation

OTTAWA (CP) — The Czechoslovakian government has demanded that five invading Communist neighbors put an immediate end to the "lawless occupation" of Czechoslovakia, the Czech embassy here said today.

An embassy spokesman handed to The Canadian Press a statement which he said was issued by the Czech foreign ministry and received here at 8:10 a.m. EDT.

The ministry statement said that Czechoslovakia has called on Russia, Poland, East Germany, Hungary and Bulgaria to withdraw all military units "without delay."

The statement added:

"We believe at this historic moment that the governments and the people of the U.S.S.R., Poland, German Democratic Republic, Hungary and Bulgaria will understand the seriousness of the situation created by this act, for which any motivation and explanation cannot be found, and thus they will make it possible for the people of Czechoslovakia and its constitutional representatives to work and to continue to execute their duties."

The spokesman said he had no reports of fighting in Prague beyond those he had heard on the radio.

Causes Fractures

FT. LEWIS. Wash. (AP) — The traditional cadence of "Hup, two, three, four" has been altered and this army band is to "hup, two, three, slow down, four." The army says it is because the troops are getting too tired, but because marching too fast on rough ground sometimes causes small fractures and bruises in the feet.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

When an owner cannot sell his home at a satisfactory price, he is often advised, Spend money improving it, you'll get your cost back several times over." Usually, this advice is incorrect.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I spent $24,000 for a new home 3 years ago. Now I'm trying to sell it, but am not doing too well. After 4 months, the best offer I've gotten is $20,000.

I admit, I haven't spent a penny on the house in all the time I've owned it. Friends tell me that the cause of my trouble is the condition of my property. Accordingly, I've been getting bids from contractors.

One has offered a very sensible program of adding a game room, enlarging the garage, and a new patio — all in addition to putting the house back in condition equal to new.

Although the improvements would cost $6,000, he is willing to finance it for me. Best of all, he says the value of the house will go up at least $10,000. I'm about to accept his offer for this is about the only way I can see of breaking even. What do you say — Mr. D.

ANSWER: Expensive home improvements are often sold with the theme, that in many times their price to the value of the house." Rarely is this true.

In fact, the opposite is usually the case. The amount added in value is never more than fraction of the cost. Home improvement must be viewed from the standpoint of personal enjoyment and convenience of the family, not from the value standpoint.

Since the house was new five years ago, I would recommend, at most, papering and painting together with fixing up items that obviously need attention. If anything, this program is the only one that will give back several times the costs. If value has dropped, it is because of a more basic reason, and not because of lack of home improvements.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I signed a one year lease for an apartment at $150 per month. I have no more than moved in when the owner showed up and told me that the rent was $125 per month. He explained that the agent who rented the place to me for him and signed the lease "didn't know what he was doing." I am threatened with eviction unless I cough up $25 per month more. Shall I give in? — H. H.

ANSWER: The real estate agent who made the agreement with you was apparently fully authorized to act for the owner at the time. This procedure is not unusual in real estate practice.

Tell the owner that, as far as you are concerned, the lease is valid and that all you intend continuing to pay is $100 per month. If he wishes to raise the rent, tell him to come back and see you when the lease expires, and not before then.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Twenty years ago, when we built our house the taxes were $206 per year. The population of the county has doubled in the past 20 years, but my taxes have more than tripled (now $720 a year).

I don't understand what's happening. Every time a new subdivision appears, or a new apartment house is built, I keep reading about the new ratables that are coming. Logically, taxes should be going down. Yet, not only are they increasing but even increasing faster than we are growing. What's the explanation? — Mr. O. C.

ANSWER: It may come as a shock, but taxes do not go down as "a community grows — they go up. As a general rule, the larger the community the higher the taxes. Taxes are lowest in sparsely populated and rural areas. As the density of an area increases, the services furnished and the need for services increases more than proportionately. So this is why taxes go up at a faster rate.

LSD Effect on Chromosomes Not Clear

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: I am one of those unfortunates, and I think that is the right word, who took LSD before the damage it caused to the chromosomes was known.

I have long since discontinued using the drug, but now I am beginning to worry about future consequences. If I marry and my wife has children, what can expect? What can be done to correct what may have happened to me? What kind of a doctor would I go to have my chromosomes checked? — D. S

You ask some hard questions, too hard in view of present knowledge, possibly.

It has been noted that LSD damage some chromosomes, however, it may be that your having discontinued the drug for a long time, the damage will undo itself.

This is supposition on my part; I do not know what proof has been obtained one way or the other.

The condition of your chromosomes involves tests such as blood and bone marrow studies, and is complex and time - consuming, and done in comparatively few medical centres. You would have to determine where such studies are being done and refer you to specialists.

As to your future in marriage, you may just have to take your chances and hope for the best.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any truth or is it just rumor that there is a connection between taking hormones and cancer? — R. M. N.

There is no established evidence that taking hormones has any effect in causing cancer. On the other hand, if cancer is present, hormones can affect the rate at which the cancer progresses.

It makes a difference what hormones you are talking about, however. Certain female hormones can accelerate the growth of a breast cancer or other tumors. Yet one of the great discoveries of a few years ago was that use of proper hormones also could very much retard the growth of prostate cancer.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it safe to live by a grain elevator if one has emphysema? — Mrs. M. T.

If the area is dusty, it will bother an emphysema patient, as would any area with daily air pollution.

Russian Says Moscow Prepared To Study Arctic With Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — The Soviet Union is ready to share a polar research program with Canada and such a scheme only awaits official approval by both governments, a Russian weather scientist said here Tuesday.

Vitale G. Morachevski, director of the Hydro-Meteorological Institute at Leningrad and one of five Russian weather scientists attending the 13th radar meteorology conference at McGill University, said he hoped the international plan could start within a few months.

He said work groups from the Soviet Union had already begun to prepare data to be released to findings of the 1969-72 Global Arctic Research Program, organized under the Geneva-based World Meteorological Organization.

Dr. Morachevski, who also is head of the Scientific department of general meteorology, said a Canada-Russia research program "would be useful for both our countries."

Asked about a Soviet proposal to erect a dam across the Bering Sea linking Siberia and Alaska—suggested a number of years ago as a means of making north Pacific waters warmer by cutting off cold Arctic currents—Dr. Morachevski said it was a scheme "engineered more by the press than by Soviet scientists."

"If such a dam could be constructed, it could only be built far in the future, perhaps in 1990. We are much more concerned about counteracting what the weather is doing now."

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For August 22

Your birthday today: The responsibility and the initiative for what happens in the coming year in your life belongs in your hands alone. The trend seems to be to disengage so as to start in a new direction in another year. The need for simplicity comes in crisis proportions. Today's natives generally are unpredictable but have intense powers of concentration.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Hold your temper, while you rescue a misdirected plan. Go to the heart of the matter and set the original purpose out clearly.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): It's time to take a break! Quarrelling arises from neglect or a short cut, so make amenities with courtesy. Pursue romantic interests later in the day.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Yes, your ideas have been good lately. Put them into effective words and pass them along. Plan for a quiet evening at home.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Keep the same steady pace as yesterday. The difference today is that everybody is looking to see how you are doing. Favorable views are more probable than not.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): The temptation today is to push your ideas too strongly. Give other people time to analyze them. Leave room for the new ideas, after they are accepted.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Trifling irritations abound. Stoop to seek them or disregard them! It's up to you. You have something worthwhile to mull over this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): More secret efforts are likely. Somebody of the opposite sex is involved in the deal today with positive results. Do something to show your appreciation while you really mean it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Tension is your biggest hindrance today. Give other people time to muddle through. Take respite altogether this evening with some very different activity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): An absence or distortion of the news may upset you a little. Do what you can with what you have to check out, meanwhile waiting for better information. Make every effort to change you've earned extra rest.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Select your goals, then disregard petty obstacles which appear in time. If you plan a long journey, today is a good time to start.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Today brings to the surface your latent abilities to find lost papers. Use it! Make a determined search for anything which is missing . . . Think hard.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You could lose your temper today with little provocation and regret it for a long time to come. Use whatever kills there are to review where your main interests lie. Be home early, see what is going on there. Avoid bickering.

QUESTION: We have friends visiting from the United States and would like to know how much liquor and tobacco, etc., they may take back with them.

ANSWER: United States residents returning from Canada may take back, once every 31 days, merchandise for personal or household use to the value of $100., free of United States duty and tax, providing they have remained in Canada 48 hours. The exemption will be based on the fair retail value of the article acquired and goods must accompany the resident upon arrival in the United States. Members of a family household travelling together may combine their personal exemptions and thus a family of 5 could be entitled to a total exemption of $500. Up to 100 cigars per person may be imported into the U.S. by U.S. residents, and also one quart (32 oz., U.S.) of alcoholic beverages if the resident has attained the age of twenty-one years. Cigarettes may be imported by persons sixteen years of age and over. If, however, the State laws of residence prohibit importation of any such goods, United States customs will not clear.

If your travels this summer take you to New York State, don't try to bring any plants back with you. They'll be taken from you at the border. Agriculture inspectors with Canada Customs have banned all New York State plants or anything carrying New York soil. The quarantine was installed to protect this country's farmlands from the dreaded "Golden Nematode". Despite its classy name, this pest is nothing but a little old eel worm that attacks anything from potatoes to tomatoes. So far, Ontario is free of the pest, and officials want to make sure it stays that way. The Nematode is so tenacious that it costs about $500 an acre to free soil from its clutch.

Toronto International Airport has been a scene of chaos this summer with so many people travelling overseas. But the planes trying to get on the way to the airport that many people have missed their planes trying to get there. The best thing to do, while the summer rush is on, is to take an airline limousine or the airport bus to get there. The buses are cheaper, and leave every 15 minutes or so from a stand beside the Royal York Hotel.

QUESTION: We are spending September in Europe and would like to motor through several countries. Should we make reservations for a car before we go?

ANSWER: Motoring is the best way to see Europe, but you can waste a great deal of money if you don't study all the available car rental literature and make your reservations before leaving Canada. Rental rates in Europe vary quite widely, even for the same type of car. Generally it is best to rent a car manufactured in the country where you are doing most of your touring, as it is easier to find a garage in case the need arises for service or repairs. Remember, trunk space is limited in most European cars, so be sure it will accommodate all your luggage. One solution is a roof rack: these are available on request.

QUESTION: We are motoring to British Columbia in September and would like to visit Barkerville. Please tell us the history of this town.

ANSWER: Back in the 18-60's everyone knew Barkerville, B.C. After all, it was the second largest city west of Chicago. Only San Francisco outstripped it. It was a roaring mining town then, home to 10,000 brawling, lusty souls, a place where a fortune was made in the morning could be gone by night. When the gold mines petered out, the people did too; and for 90 years the town crumbled, its ruins haunted by the ghosts of the golden days. Then in 1958 British Columbia declared the site a historical park and began rebuilding the community into a living museum of the gold-rush days. Barkerville is named after Billy Barker, who arrived at Williams Creek in 18-62, sank a shaft 42 feet and struck a rich gold mine. This brought men running from all over to stake claims around the mine. The province is in the process of restoring all the original buildings, and many of the stores are refurnished with antiques and wax figures to give the appearance of being just the way they were before the boom went bust. To get to Barkerville, you travel to Quesnel, about 400 miles north of Vancouver, then you take a 56-mile side trip to the town.

It Really is "MAINLY BECAUSE OF THE MEAT." Here are the facts!

DOMINION trims off fat that others include in the price you pay per pound.

And we trim our Weekly Specials to the same exacting specifications

This is our policy. This is our practice. This is what makes a Dominion meat special a genuine meat special. If you're not a Dominion shopper, you may have noticed how extra fat is sometimes left on when a meat item goes "on special". Not so at Dominion. Dominion meat is trimmed to give you "just enough" finish to preserve the natural juices and full natural meat flavour. At Dominion excess fat and bone is always trimmed away to guarantee you a full measure of meat value for every meat dollar you spend. Stop and think about it. Dominion actually trims off fat that others include in the price you pay per pound. So, if you want honest meat value—shop where you can be sure. Switch to Dominion and discover the difference.

Children Back To Class

Back in June your children's school vacation seemed endless. But here it is many weeks later, and once again the daily newspapers bulge with back-to-school advertising.

Department stores and specialty shops are obviously ready. Are you?

Have you kept your promise that this year, by golly, there wouldn't be any procrastination in preparing your children for the return to the classroom?

Do you have a well thought-out shopping list for your youngsters' back - to - school wardrobe? Have you taken an inventory of "school-worthy" clothes? Have you and your children agreed on a date to do all the things that need doing before another school year starts?

Once you've decided on a day, make it something special by planning it carefully—it'll save time, money and nerves. Here are a few suggestions to make it a happy event:

Start the entire family out with a special breakfast treat — this'll give everyone a chance to tell Dad about the big day ahead.

First stop in the family dentist's office for the back-to-schoolers' semi-annual check-ups. If you live in an area where the water supply is fluoridated or your dentist has been prescribing vitamin fluoride supplements for your children, chances are that little work — perhaps none — needs to be done on their teeth.

The value of fluorides in dental health has been known for more than 25 years, and recent studies indicate that vitamin-fluoride supplements can be as effective as fluoridated water in preventing cavities, and of course, dental bills.

This is a most important consideration for those two-thirds of American families who don't have the benefit of fluoridated water. Scientists at Indiana University found that tooth decay was reduced up to 68 percent in children who were given daily doses of a vitamin-fluoride combination.

Fluoride given this way can begin its work long before the first teeth start emerging. Most families find vitamin-fluoride supplements fit easily into their already established daily vitamin habit.

With the visit to the dentist happily out of the way, schedule the shopping trip next. In mid-morning the stores aren't crowded and the sales clerks can devote sufficient time to helping you find exactly what your children need.

Third on the calendar of events, plan a leisurely lunch in an attractive restaurant. If reservations are advisable make them the day before.

Schools Using Community Resources To Introduce and Supplement Textbooks

Ontario schools are moving towards a "child experience program" in education — using community resources to introduce and supplement textbooks.

The trend was noticeable in many Ontario centres before the Hall-Dennis report on education made it official.

The report, called Living and Learning, recommended a new system of education emphasizing individual discovery and continuous learning, accompanied by abolition of the grade system, examinations, marks and report cards.

The idea behind the Hall-Dennis report concept is that people of the future will have to be more resourceful in finding answers to problems for themselves, and will put less reliance on memorized facts.

In common with other schools across the province, Belleville schools have moved toward the child experience program.

That's why you see more groups of children being shepherded along the streets on their way to tours of businesses, industry and community service organizations.

Before a projected tour, pupils look up information on the subject, and on their return divide into groups to prepare projects illustrating what they have learned.

In Belleville, this means every class in the city is doing something different every week, and some classes are divided into groups doing different work.

The teacher cannot set an examination and place a conventional mark on each pupil's work which would stand comparison with the work of any other pupil in the same grade in the city.

The result has been elimination of the report card in the classrooms most deeply involved in the child experience program. It has been replaced with a ten - minute parent - teacher interview.

"The value of these interviews will be felt more next year, with the introduction of the county-wide school board, responsible for both elementary and secondary education," says public school superintendent L. A. Kells.

The Home and School Association may become an important means of keeping the public informed about education and fostering parent-teacher liaison.

The Hall-Dennis report also recommended transfer of all federal schools on Indian reserves to local school boards, where the citizens agree.

Although Chief Earl Hill of Tyendinaga Reserve expressed doubts on the feasibility of so drastic a step, senior public school pupils from Tyendinaga began last year to be transported to Harry J. Clarke School, Shuksita in junior grades continue to attend federal government operated schools on the reserve.

Frontier Battles Still Rage

TAY NINH (CP) — President Nguyen van Thieu flew to this provincial capital for an on-the-spot briefing of fighting in which a U.S. spokesman believed 500 Communists may have been killed since Saturday.

Other battles raged from the Cambodian border to the northern frontier for the third straight day today.

Thieu said he could not say precisely whether the new series of attacks presaged a new Communist third offensive this year.

Counterfeit Bill Flood Dries Up

TRENTON — The threat of counterfeit bills has "passed through the area" Brighton OPP reported today.

The Quinte area has been plagued with the phoney $10 bills since Aug. 9.

They began to appear in Brighton and then spread to Trenton and Belleville. Police in Belleville reported the discovery of two $1 bills.

By Thursday of last week a total of $102 in counterfeit money had been reported by banks and stores in the area.

Fortunately the bills were easily identifiable due to their "dull texture and poor paper quality."

A spokesman for Brighton OPP said the person who had passed the bills had "probably left the area to do the same thing somewhere else."

"They only stay so long in one place," the spokesman added, "and when things start to get hot they leave."

Sluggish Kidneys May Bring Restless Nights

If you "fight the pillow", toss and turn all through the night and don't really know why — perhaps here's the real help for you! One cause of such restlessness may be traced to sluggish kidneys. Doctors say kidneys should filter out 50 gallons of waste fluid and poisons daily. But many folks don't drink enough water to help kidneys function properly. Thus, they may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, dizziness, leg cramps, when kidneys are sluggish. Don't allow sluggish kidneys to cause you restless nights. Take Doan's, use with confidence. Get Doan's Pills today! Used successfully by millions for over 70 years. Now large size saves money.

Attic Becomes A Study

Searching for a work room for the students in your family? Don't overlook the attic as a practical solution.

Attics make ideal study rooms for three reasons: 1. They're out of the family traffic areas. 2. They're isolated from distracting noises, 3. they're easily and economically converted from catch - all storage bins to serviceable living space. All that's generally required are a re-organization of storage facilities and minimal remodelling for comfort.

What most attics lack to make them "livable" are sunlight and ventilation. Their primary source of light and air is usually a ventilator or a small window. Installing a fullsize stock wood window can solve this problem.

Any style you choose—from traditional double-hungs to contemporary casements or sliders — is readily available at local lumber dealers in ponderosa pine units that are precision-manufactured for easy installation.

An interesting idea would be to use a stock bow or bay window. These units give maximum light, have operating panels for good ventilation, and come with optional window seats that make comfortable reading nooks. The space under the seat can be used for storage.

To make the most of available space, and keep the room neat and attractive, separate the storage area and study quarters. This can be done by installing a series of folding or sliding ponderosa pine louver doors to about a five-foot height under the sloping attic walls.

The "hidden" space behind the doors can be utilized for bookshelves, supply drawers, a typewriter table and other school equipment as well as for cartons, odds - and - ends and out-of-season clothing. Louver doors are especially practical when storing clothes because they allow a free flow of air that helps prevent mildew.

High Fashion For Boys

Now that the well-dressed Dad is sporting the "country look" in his suits, the well-turned out lad (a n d his style-conscious Mom) are looking for something similar for Junior.

This stylized, somewhat urbane look goes over just as big in Brooklyn and Minneapolis as it does in Great Shovel, Montana, to say nothing of Kahnbawl, Miss.

For boys are turning more and more to fashion (formerly a sissy word), including the belt-loops, the extension waistbands — more than anything, the color element associated with styling '68-69.

Boys are now accustomed to wear the sports suit and the blazer (offshoots f r o m the "country look") and they are expected to take to the longer jackets, the slight shapery, even in twills or tweedy fabrics. This shapery is of course more subtle than in Dad's suit, . . . it suggests rather than defines.

Perhaps the most significant development is the stampede of co-ordinates to enhance this look; . . . for instance:

High fashion-dress shirts in medium shades of yellow, blue, green, gold and even g r a y (how sophisticated can you get!) These s h i r t s have French c u f f s and fashion spread collars . . . a definite departure from the button-downs.

No longer will Momma be able to figure only two shirts for Junior. For Junior himself will be demanding a wardrobe of shirts (like his fashionable dad's).

Budget stand to suffer? Of course, but think of the prestige, the new status on the block!

REVIVED BY TOURISM

CAIRO (AP) — German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Afrika Korps headquarters during the El Alamein campaign and Cleopatra's hideaway bath in Egypt's western desert are to be turned into tourist areas. The city council of Mersa Matruh has decided to floodlight the two locations and install marble seats and other tourist trappings.

Summer holidays behind him, public school superintendent L. A. Kells reviews teacher placements in the schools under his direction.

Kindergartens for Separate Schools

Decrease Expected in Public School Enrolment

Addition of kindergartens to city separate schools may result in a slight decrease in enrolment in the public school system this year.

Roman Catholic parents sent their children to public school kindergartens in former years.

Now, the inclusion of kindergarten in separate schools may result in a drop of 80 pupils in the public schools.

Belleville public school superintendent L. A. Kells is predicting an enrolment of 5,300 this year, compared to last year's total of about 5,380.

Public school teachers will total 189 when school opens. Four of them are specialists in French, and their presence will mean the extension of the French program to grade 8.

Last year it was taught in grade 7 only.

Expected to affect enrolment in the future is the abolition of permits to allow students to leave school before the age of 16. Until this year, rural students could obtain permission to leave school at 14 if their assistance was needed on the farm. Home help and employment permits were also issued in previous years.

Under new provincial legislation, every student in the province must remain in school until June of the year of his 16th birthday.

Students who reach 16 between January and June of a calendar year must stay in school until the close of school in June. Students whose 16th birthdays occur between July and December 31 are not required to return to school in September of that calendar year.

The five secondary schools administered by the Bay of Quinte District High School Board will hold about 5,300 students in September.

Of these, 4,300 will be enrolled in the four Belleville schools and 800 in Central Hastings High School in Madoc.

The board will employ 286 teachers — 254 of them in Belleville schools.

Elementary and secondary students in the county total 27,000 — all of whom will come under the jurisdiction of one body when the new Hastings County School Board takes over education Jan. 1.

New Administrative Unit

Hastings County Board of Education Takes Over on Jan. 1

Forty-four is the magic number that will change the face of education in Ontario.

That's the number of the Bill introduced in the Ontario Legislature to amend the school act and create county-wide boards of education.

Education minister William Davis announced in November, 1967 that the change was coming, and all educators and school board officials on their ears.

Passage of bill 44 was marked by the proliferation of committees, more committees to advise the first committees, paper-work and problems.

Purpose of the bill is to streamline the administrative side of education by the consolidation of 1,012 small school boards in Ontario into 42 county-sized units, and ensure equality of educational opportunity to all children in the province.

Hastings County Board of Education will take over administration of public education in the county on Jan. 1, 1969. Because it is one of the largest of the new administrative units, stretching from the Bay of Quinte to Algonquin Park, the educational fabric of Hastings has more that the usual number of wrinkles to be smoothed out during the transition period.

Debated by politicians and educators since last March, have been such topics as the boundaries of the new administrative unit, determination of ward boundaries in the county for election of trustees, the type of administration desired, the site of board headquarters, even the date of school board and civic elections.

First committee set up to discuss the issues was the Hastings County consultative committee. In July it presented a report outlining county representation on the new board.

Based on provincial equalized assessment figures, the report called for election of 18 trustees. Belleville will elect five, and Trenton two. Separate school supporters in Belleville will elect trustees, and another will be elected by separate school supporters in Trenton and the rest of the county.

The remainder of the county is divided into six wards. Two wards in north Hastings will have one representative each, as will the two centre Hastings wards and Thurlow township. Sidney, Stirling and Frankford will combine to elect two trustees.

Date of the election of school board members is set by bill 44 for Monday, Dec. 2, 1968, and trustees will serve a two-year term.

It appears Belleville and other municipalities in the county will have to seek legislation to change civic election dates to coincide with the school board election date.

Belleville, for instance, has its next civic election scheduled for December, 1969.

Unless the legislation is changed, Belleville would be faced with an election every year — for school board in even-numbered years and for council in odd-numbered years. City council is expected to deal with the matter at its September meeting.

Two district communities have protested the use of county boundaries to define the school board area.

High school students from Ameliasburg in Prince Edward County attend classes in Belleville and have representatives on the Bay of Quinte High School Board. Under the new system, the students will continue to attend city schools, but Ameliasburg trustees will sit on the Prince Edward County Board.

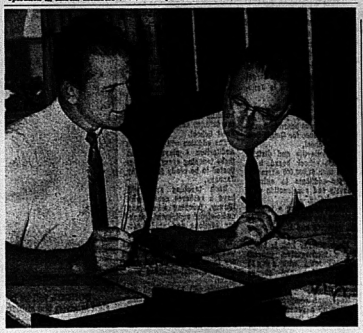
In Deseronto, the opposite situation occurs. Students will continue to attend Napanee High School in Lennox and Addington County, but the Deseronto trustee will sit on the Hastings County Board.

The minister of education has promised to review the situation in two years' time and adjust the boundaries if it proves necessary.

The Interim School Organization Committee went into operation in March. Members represent 12 school boards in the county, and their job is to gather facts on the existing schools in the county and make recommendations to guide the new board in the first months of its operations.

Advisory committees have been set up to assist ISOC.

The secretariat is composed of district school superintendents and inspectors. The district school business administrators have set up an advisory committee, as have the teachers.



The administrative system to be followed by the new county board has become a contentious issue.

The minister of education favors a unit control system, with one superintendent responsible to the board for both academic and financial matters.

Some trustees favor a dual system, with a superintendent, responsible for academic affairs, and a business administrator responsible for financial matters.

These trustees claim a board requires an academic head to investigate a proposed program, and a business administrator to investigate the costs, leaving the decision on implimentation to the board. Otherwise, these men say, the board would become a mere rubber - stamping machine.

Left for decision by the new board after Jan. 1 is the appointment of a superintendent of the county school system, and choice of location of the administrative offices.

Revising Registers

Vice-principal Jack Sisson and Principal John Hayman study the student registers at Quinte Secondary School in preparation for the new term in September.

White's District

WHITE'S DISTRICT — A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Jones on Wednesday evening to honor Miss Sheila Carve on the eve of her marriage to Gary Ginnes, both of Bayside.

Over 30 guests attended the shower. The hostess was assisted by the Misses Judy Haw, Christine Jones, Janice Caves, Ann Caves and Rosemary Caves. The mothers of the bride-to-be and the bridegroom-to-be also assisted.

The dining room table was decorated with streamers and pompoms in pink and white and the chair for the guest of honor was similarly decorated.

A social evening was enjoyed prior to the opening of the gifts which were many and varied. The bride-to-be thanked all for the lovely gifts.

School Boards Spending Huge Sums To Accommodate Student Population

Education is big business, and nowhere is the fact more evident than in construction of new schools.

To cope with the burgeoning student population, boards throughout the district are adding new wings and building new schools.

To accommodate students who will be transferred to Madoc with the closing of high schools at Marmora and Stirling, as well as the increased student enrolment, Bay of Quinte High School Board is putting up a $2,150,000 addition to Central Hastings Secondary School.

The architectural firm of Boigon and Heinonen, Don Mills, designed the layout of the 72,700 square foot addition, planned to accommodate about 800 students.

Tenders are expected to be called in October and target date for completion is January, 1970.

In Belleville, the only major construction planned by the high school board is a $12,000 greenhouse for Quinte Secondary School.

The Belleville and district separate school board has more than $1,000,000 earmarked for additions to existing schools and construction of a new building.

Additions costing a total of $265,000 are now under way at St. Joseph's and Holy Rosary schools.

Hugh Murray Ltd. is building a kindergarten, general purpose room with small stage, kitchen and change rooms on the existing St. Joseph's School.

The same company is also putting up a general purpose room at Holy Rosary.

Tenders will soon be called for the new George Vanier School in the Park Dale area, designed by architects Nowak and Hovitch of Ottawa.

The new building will accommodate more than 200 pupils from kindergarten to grade 6 level. Estimated cost is over a half million dollars.

The school will incorporate the newest concepts in school architecture. It will be flexible in design, with learning areas instead of conventional classrooms.

A learning area is equal in size to the present day classroom, and has folding walls. Three learning areas are grouped together to form an environment centre. By folding back the walls, the three learning areas can be converted quickly into one large centre for multi-group activities, and closed off again as quickly for small group instruction or study.

Focus of George Vanier School will be a cultural centre, incorporating a library, religious guidance office, music room, art, foreign languages and physical and health education centres.

Belleville Public School Board has a similar type of building under construction in the $270,000 addition to Hillcrest School.

The addition will contain an auditorium - playroom and three teaching areas. It is expected to be ready for use by January.

Each teaching area will have a resource centre with library, teaching aids and audio-visual equipment, teaching sections and study sections.

A team teaching approach will be used with three teachers in each teaching area to handle a semi-ungraded program.

Pupils will be grouped according to age and learning ability and will move from one section of the teaching area to another for instruction, research and study. Carpeted floors will cut the sound level of three groups of children working in the same room at the same time.

The new design for schools provides a physical plant geared to the new concept of continuous education. The Hall-Dennis report, expected to revolutionize Ontario education, calls for flexible curricula, schedules and buildings.

Existing school buildings have been called "a collection of one-roomed schools glued together with common washrooms". They keep the weather out and the pupils in.

New buildings are designed to fit the aims and practices of education. "Child experience programs" are replacing textbook and blackboard teaching methods. Hence the resource and environmental centres in modern schools, and the emphasis on libraries, audio-visual equipment and facilities for experimentation and research.

Children can move freely from one section of the learning area to another, absorbing knowledge at their own pace, and with three teachers instead of just one for consultation and guidance.

SCHOOL will be back in business soon. At Moira Secondary the school sign is given the shineup treatment for another year by maintenance staffer.

EQUIPMENT and classroom furniture is stowed away at new Loyalist building on Wallbridge Road. Move to new quarters is planned so that delivery and layout of equipment follows completion of various floor areas by work crews.

Nearing the Finish

Workmen keep up steady pace to complete new Loyalist quarters on Wallbridge Road, Quinte-area community college must be finished in time for opening September 19.

Moves to New Home

Loyalist College Opens on Sept. 19

Loyalist College launches its second year of educational service Sept. 19 — ending a carefully co-ordinated plan of movement to its own home.

Work crews are racing to finish the community college's new Wallbridge Road quarters on the west flanks of Belleville and the speed up is being paced by moving men and Loyalist staff.

As the crews complete one section of the pre-engineered building, their activity is replaced by the bustle of a take-over operation, transforming the completed construction sections into fully-furnished college departments.

On the move is classroom, laboratory and workshop equipment — all the apparatus that will see service as Loyalist settles in on the Wallbridge site.

The building is only temporary — some day it will be replaced by a nearby college campus — but what happens there will determine teaching patterns influencing the future of many a Quinte - district student.

Registration for upcoming courses will be at least double that of 1967, Loyalist's first year of operation in rented quarters at Centennial Secondary School.

At the moment, some 300 students have indicated they will enrol and more will be heard from daily as the registration date nears, says Loyalist president J. K. Bradford.

Skin Problems Irk Teens As They Return to Class

No matter how much like adults teenagers try to appear, most of them have skin problems that label them conspicuously as adolescents.

With classes beginning and the past year's progress more obvious to them, they may be tempted to "grow up" but hesitate because of facial blemishes or acne — their badges of adolescence.

A survey of 11 million teenagers revealed that 92.2 per cent had skin problems of varying degrees.

The exact cause of acne has not been determined but many authorities believe that underdeveloped pores are to blame.

The secretion of wastes through the skin has increased with approaching adulthood but the pores have not adjusted to handle the increase. In other words, a major cause of acne may be waste-clogged pores.

A Chicago firm has developed a new adjunct in the treatment of acne which involves the use of a warm mist machine where vapors open the pores, allowing the skin to "breathe" and remove dirt and wastes naturally, and the application of healing medications after the warm mist treatment.

Research has shown that the deep-cleaning action of the warm mist coupled with the medication provide one of the most effective facial aids to date.

The warm mist method has been tested for over 25 years by John Smernis. Chicago cosmetologist and consultant, who says he has used the mist treatment and similarly formulated preparations on his patrons of all ages suffering from complexion problems.

"The warm mist does a much more effective job of cleaning the face than soap or creams," Smernis said, "because it causes the face to perspire and loosen encrusted matter such as old makeup and excess oil.

With the skin cleaner and the pores unclogged, medications are much more effective."

New College Extends Services Throughout the Quinte Area

In only its second year, Loyalist College is almost doubling its efforts to extend educational services to the Quinte district.

This year, its potential is being further tapped by the introduction of evening extension courses.

The scheme has been undertaken in the midst of creating a teaching pattern for normal daytime operations, assembling a staff and the move to new quarters.

The shift to its own building — on the Wallbridge Road west of Belleville — has, however, helped bring about the extension of services.

The night-school scheme only now is being advertised and response to it still is awaited.

However, Loyalist president J. K. Bradford already has set sights on a possible enrolment figure:

"I would like to see about 400 take these courses," he says. "And we could accommodate twice that many with no problem."

Courses being advertised should evoke a wide range of student interest.

A new staff appointment has been made to co-ordinate the extension program within the college framework.

Responsible for all courses outside normal day classes is Harold J. Butterill, director of extension.

Mr. Butterill's post will keep him in constant touch with the requirements of the community, the needs of industry, and other educational requirements the increase in leisure time.

A professional engineer and University of Toronto graduate, Mr. Butterill served with RCEME during World War II, attaining the rank of major.

He has been connected with the management and technical phases of such industries as International Nickel, Atlas Steels and Deloro Smelting and Refining. For the past eight years he has been mathematics department head at Fenlon Falls Secondary School.

Good Lighting Necessary

Privacy Important for Study

School days are back — lazy warm, Indian-summer days. More than one youngster returns to the school room with dragging feet and a wistful backward glance at the sun.

But you can help your young student get into the mood by setting the stage for study. One of the best encouragements is a permanent study area with a quiet atmosphere, good lighting and the proper equipment for work.

If possible, the privacy of his "own" personal work place can make the study area itself a desirable retreat, one where he can learn to look forward to a ritual quiet time in his day.

Eyesight is important to the learning process, both physically and psychologically. About 80 per cent of our knowledge is gained through our eyes.

But the condition in which our eyes receive knowledge also subtly influences our reaction to the information. For example, a student studying often and long in poor lighting slumps close to the page to see better, incurring both eye strain and muscle fatigue.

It's easy to imagine why a student studying regularly under these conditions won't like that subject, or, simply, won't like to read. It's too hard.

Fashion Trends Changing

Because the women of today are more fashion-minded than ever before, trends are being set at a record-breaking pace. It is proving difficult for most women to keep up with the in of the fashion market, but rest assured, there's enough variety in designing so women of all tastes can still maintain a fashionable wardrobe for the '68 Fall season.

Designers for a leading separates manufacturer are saying this about color: "Togethemess is back and mix - and-match is bigger than ever." Red, white, black and blue have been predicted as the dominate colors for Fall, but brown has stirred new interest and is definitely in the race for the coming season.

"Cholive" s an important in word this year . . . a blend of charcoal gray and olive green . . . smashing with accents in plaids of wine-and-gold or turquoise - and - moss.

Defiant Czechs Assemble In Prague Demonstration

ANTHONY DAICAR

Quinte Man Spokesman For Czechs

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

BATAWA—The community picnic scheduled for Saturday was eagerly awaited here. Now it likely will be cancelled.

Picnics are lively occasions, but the Czech people here are far from feeling disposed toward fun and games.

"Yesterday," says Anthony Daicar, "yesterday it was like mourning. Everybody was so shocked."

Czechoslovaks are a dominant group in the Quinte area's ethnic mosaic. This factory village, founded by Czechoslovakia's expatriate International Bata organization, is their core community.

The appalled reaction here, noted by Mr. Daicar, typifies the response of all Czechs in the area to yesterday's takeover of their homeland by the communist alliance. Many have relatives in the suddenly-coerced country.

As president of the Czechoslovak National Association of Canada, Mr. Dlicar was called to Ottawa yesterday to speak for his compatriots before Canadian government officers.

Russia Behind Times--Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau today accused Russia of following old political concepts in its actions against Czechoslovakia.

He talked to reporters at Uplands Airport on his return from a Spanish holiday.

Mr. Trudeau said the invasion of Czechoslovakia by Russia and her allies was "a clear case of non respect of the frontiers of a sovereign state."

"Apparently, the Soviets by their actions are still trying to bind the social and economic fate of Europe to political concepts developed 20 years ago.

"To me, this is slow thinking. We have to move beyond that."

The Soviet action showed that the government's review of Canada's NATO role was even more necessary than it was before.

It was obvious Russia still believed in the partition of Europe as established late in the Second World War and immediately after.

Canada was hoping Europe would "evolve beyond this political partition of spheres of influence" and Canada's thinking was based on this premise. He said the Russian move would condition Canada's thinking on the peace and stability of Europe.

Mr. Trudeau said he would not at this stage go to the United Nations to place Canada's case against intervention.

He confirmed that Canada is working on a United Nations resolution with several other countries to demand that Russia and her allies withdraw their troops from Czechoslovakia.

He said "we are all concerned" about the whereabouts of leaders of the Czech reform movement which led to the Soviet occupation.

Dubcek Called Traitor

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Kremlin today accused Alexander Dubcek, Czechoslovak Communist party leader, of heading a minority right-wing revisionist group in the party's 11-man presidium.

It said the group was guilty of "perfidious, treacherous activities."

The charge came near the end of a 12,000-word document published in the Communist party newspaper Pravda explaining the occupation of Czechoslovakia by Soviet and other Warsaw pact troops.

The document charged Dubcek and his associates with breaking agreements made with Soviet and other East European leaders at top-level meetings in Czechoslovakia at the end of July and the beginning of August.

It was the first time that Dubcek, reported to have been arrested by occupation troops in Prague Wednesday, was publicly attacked by name in the Soviet Union.

Chinese Assail Russia

LONDON (CP) — Russia today faced an unabated storm of condemnation from both Communist and non-Communist nations over its invasion of Czechoslovakia.

A Japanese report from Peking quoted sources as saying the Soviet move was an open display of the "big power spirit" and the "imperialistic" nature of the Soviet Union.

Hong Kong's two major Chinese Communist newspapers attacked Russia for "occupying" Czechoslovakia. One of them, Wen Wei, said in an editorial that the Russian-Czech confrontation was a "fight between two dirty revisionist dogs."

In Yugoslavia the Communist party expressed "the deep indignation and bitterness of all Yugoslav people and Communists at the trampling of sovereignty of an independent Socialist country."

One of the few voices of approval came from North Vietnam, which said the Soviet intervention was for the "noble revolutionary forces." Russia is North Vietnam's chief benefactor in the Vietnam war.

Russian Veto Expected To Shut Off UN Protest

UNITED NATIONS (CP-Reuters) — The threat of a Russian veto today hung over efforts in the Security Council to condemn the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia and urge withdrawal of all Warsaw pact forces there.

The council met in emergency session Wednesday night and debated the situation for almost five hours without a resolution being introduced.

But diplomatic sources said Western members who requested the meeting less than 24 hours after the Soviet move planned to present a draft today and hoped to press it to an immediate vote.

The session, expected to resume at 10:30 a.m. EDT, was rescheduled for 11:30 a.m.

Canada, the U.S., Britain, France, Denmark and Paraguay formally called for the session.

Sources said the possibility of convening an emergency session of the General Assembly if the council was hamstrung by Russia's 105th veto was being privately discussed.

Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik Wednesday defended his country's action as taken only at the request of the Prague government to beat back counter-revolutionary forces inspired by Western "imperialists."

But the ranking member of the Czech delegation, Jan Munik, denied the claim and called for withdrawal of the Soviet-bloc troops "without delay."

Munik, who also read statements received by radio from Prague, made his dramatic appearance shortly after the 15-nation council soundly defeated a Russian attempt to prevent any substantive debate in the council. Only Hungary backed the Soviet objections against 13 members, including Canada, the U.S., Britain and France.

Canadian Ambassador George Ignatieff said the council must make clear to Russia and its allies "that their actions infringe the most basic rights of sovereign states to decide their own affairs."

The situation can only be rectified, he said, if they "desist immediately from intervention by means of armed force and withdraw all their forces without delay from Czechoslovakia."

Party Parley Starts

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovaks massed today on Vaclavske Namesti, Prague's main square, in a violent demonstration against the Soviet-led occupation and the arrest of their reform-minded Communist chief, Alexander Dubcek.

Ignoring requests by the clandestine Prague radio to maintain calm and avoid giving the foreign soldiers an excuse for further violence, a crowd of about 20,000 shook their fists at the Russians and shouted: "Russian murderers go home!"

They called for Dubcek's release.

Shots were heard from the square. It could not be determined immediately whether the soldiers were aiming at demonstrators or loosing warning shots into the air.

Soviet tank troops, who had been covering all approaches to the square since their arrival Wednesday, immediately closed all bridges across the Vltava River, which divides the city.

Clandestine broadcasts said a new authority was formed to replace the reformist government of Communist party chief Alexander Dubcek, but did not name its members. They were said to be Czechoslovaks.

Earlier broadcasts reported the Russians were negotiating with a pro-Moscow group in the Czechoslovak central committee.

Four of the negotiators were immediately branded as "traitors" in news sheets spread throughout Prague.

The move came as Czechoslovak Communists, reacting to the occupation by 200,000 Russian and Kremlin-line satellite troops, convened in an extraordinary party congress that its liberal leadership had originally scheduled to open Sept. 9.

This was a last-ditch attempt through political pressure.

The clandestine pro-liberal radio announced 927 delegates met at 11:20 a.m. Though the broadcast did not specify the site, the delegates had been urged to go to the liberal-controlled CKD factory on the outskirts of Prague.

Under arrangements that had been made by Dubcek, 1,500 members would have been on hand for the September meeting. In that session it had been expected he would oust conservative opponents from the ruling party presidium and the central committee.

The seven central committee members who have declared loyalty to the Soviet-led occupation troops tried to shift today's meeting to the party-owned Praha Hotel.

Soviet tanks and armored cars guarded the approaches to the hotel. Several black limousines were parked outside.

The pro-liberal station broadcast warnings to congress delegates not to go to the hotel. The calling of the congress was another attempt to discredit the pro-Soviet members

Eisenhower's Heart Irregularity—Returns

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors report a resurgence of the irregular heart beat that poses a major threat to former president Eisenhower's survival.

The new heart spasms were reported in a bulletin issued Wednesday night by doctors at Walter Reed Army Hospital, where Eisenhower fights to recover from his seventh heart attack a week ago.

Although doctors said the 77-year-old general was resting comfortably and his life signs were stable, the report indicated a setback after nearly 24 hours in which the dangerous spasms had steadily declined.

The bulletin for the first time used the word "irritability" instead of irregularity, but the doctors did not spell out why.

'No Safety in Hiding'

Edward Kennedy Carries on in Politics

WORCESTER, Mass. (CP-AP) — Senator Edward Kennedy says he will not retire from public life because of the assassination of his brothers. His decision to pick up the "fallen standard" of his late brothers was made because "there is no safety in hiding."

The Massachusetts senator returned to political activity Wednesday with a call for an end to the war in Vietnam and a statement that he is not a candidate for any office this year.

Kennedy made his first public speech since the assassination of his brother, Senator Robert F. Kennedy, June 5.

Senator Kennedy told the Worcester Chamber of Commerce he had been silent since the assassination of Robert Kennedy, and during the 10 weeks since then had been advised by many to retire from public life. "for safety's sake."

"But there is no safety in hiding," he said. "Not for me, nor for any of us here today; and not for our children who will inherit the world we make for them.

"Like my three brothers before me, I pick up a fallen standard," he said. "Sustained by the memory of our priceless years together, I shall try to carry forward that special commitment to justice, to excellence, to courage, that distinguished their lives."

'Union to Stay and Fight'

Strikers in Picton Turn Down Latest Proctor-Silex Offer

PICTON (Staff) — The current strike at the Proctor Silex Ltd. Plant in Picton, will not be a short one. From all indications at this time, it could drag on for weeks.

"We don't give a damn how long it takes, the union will stay here and fight this company until these people get what they need" said George Hutchens, International vice-president and Canadian president of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers.

The support of the union seems solidly behind him. A vote by 71 of the workers unanimously turned down a Proctor Silex offer yesterday.

A 5.6 cents increase was offered on the basic female incentive rate, and 9.3 cents on the male rate.

At present the incentive plan is based on a 22.5 cent basic rate for women and 141.4 cents for men.

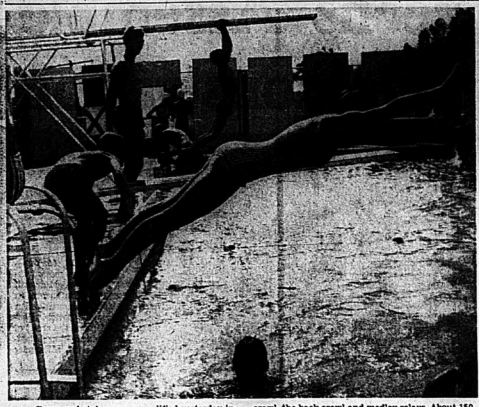
The guaranteed minimum rate for men would increase 25 cents to $1.52 and for women, 25 cents to $1.25.

Mr. Miller pointed out however that the large increases is the guaranteed minimum wages would have little effect upon overall wage increases.

On non-incentive jobs the increase amounts to about six percent, he said.

He compared the Proctor Silex figures to rates paid at comparable plants elsewhere.

Wages at the Sunbeam corporation in Toronto, as a rule exceeded rates here by almost $1. per hour, he claimed.



Glenn Pattinson the IUE Canadian vice-president compared Proctor-Silex wages in a chart of living costs.

Since August of 1956 when a raise was granted at the plant the cost of living has increased by 12 per cent. Since that time, he said, one wage increase has amounted to three per cent increase. Male wages have increased five cents per hour, female wages, 2.7 cents.

Talk of injunctions and stronger methods filled the meeting hall yesterday.

Officials claimed the workers at the cement plant here said, if necessary, they could be counted on for assistance. They did not specify what form this would take.

"We are going to harness all the resources available," said Mr. Hutchens. "We will settle this strike no matter how long it takes."

Grace and style were exemplified yesterday in the East Central Ontario Open Swim Meet at the Kinsmen Pool. Competition included the front crawl, the back crawl and medley relays. About 150 children attended the meet.

Quinte Man Czechs' Spokesman

Heading a delegation of organizations representing 70,000 Czechs in Canada, he met with External Affairs Minister Sharp and Transport Minister Hellyer, acting prime minister.

The theme of their angered protest was expressed in a two-page brief which demanded several instances of action by Canada.

The government's response was "very good" although Mr. Daicar would have liked further action.

However, he praised the federal administration for its quick action in making a formal international protest and taking the initiative in the United Nations.

These were the two major demands in the brief.

Mr. Daicar said Mr. Hellyer promised to view the possibility of aiding Czech refugees to come to Canada.

The preamble to Mr. Daicar's emission reflected the stunned reaction of his countrymen to the Soviet takeover.

It termed the invasion "rape," and added:

"This brutal action cannot be justified on any legal or moral ground. After the abandonment of Czechoslovakia in Munich and in February 1948 the first Communist takeover) we believe that the Czech and Slovak people deserve the support and help of every decent man in the free world."

Today Mr. Daicar, Bata sales manager, was behind his executive desk as usual at 7:30 a.m. In common with his countrymen he has had no personal news out of his stricken homeland.

"I don't think we will hear for a long time," he says.

However, Czechoslovaks feel a bond with Canada and any official gesture is a morale booster for them, he believes.

"There is great admiration in Czechoslovakia for Canada as a peaceful and democratic nation," says Mr. Daicar.

The feeling was further strengthened during Expo, when the Czech national pavilion was one of the hits of the Centennial exhibition.

"We planned a big picnic for Saturday here," he noted. "But I think we'll postpone it. People still worrying about everything. Nobody is in the spirit to sing . . ."

Party Affiliations Not Needed: Scott

Belleville has done very well in the past without political party affiliations in city council and as far as Mayor Dr. J. Russell Scott is concerned he would like to see it continued that way.

That is the feeling expressed yesterday by this city's first magistrate following this week's suggestion from Toronto that municipal elections be run along party lines.

In the past Belleville citizens and members of council have stayed away from party affiliations during municipal elections.

"Regardless of party membership, all are for the city and I think Belleville stands to benefit more that way", the mayor said.

Mayor Scott said he felt the city should come before party affiliation and he was confident council members felt the same way.

Trenton Team Wins Swim Meet

About 150 children were present yesterday for the East Central Ontario Open Swim Meet held at the Kinsmen Pool.

The children were members of five teams from Peterborough, Kingston, Trenton, Batawa and Belleville.

Competitions were held in the front crawl, the back crawl, the butterfly, the breast stroke and medly relays.

Trenton won the competition with 235 points. In second spot was Peterborough with 213 points and in third Belleville with 118 points. Kingston was fourth with 91 points and Batawa was fifth with 18 points.

Chief winners on the Belleville teams were Stephen Whitly who won the 25-yards free-style and the 25-yards butterfly, and Ann Dobson who won the 25-yards free-style and 25-yards back stroke.

An Irwin twist to the afternoon was the presentation of the winner's trophy to the Trenton coach by Ernst Sulkevicious. Her own father, George, was the recipient of the award.

Humane Society Set To Take Over Duties

society is all set to take over animal control duties in Belleville and Trenton on Sept. 1.

Meeting at the society's new headquarters in Sidney township this week, executive and regular committee heard final details of the September takeover and inspected the new quarters recently purchased from Eastern Breeders' Incorporated.

Following certain renovations the breeders' unit property will be used as a dog and animal pound. Eastern Breeders will move all animals to their Kemptville headquarters but will maintain a district office here in space rented from the humane society.

As of Sept. 1 the humane society will take over all dog catching and animal control duties in both Belleville and Trenton and will operate on a 24-hours-per day basis.

Liberals Want Action From Prime Minister

TRENTON — The Prince Edward-Hastings Liberal Association announced today that a telegram would be sent to Prime Minister Trudeau by which he would be advised "in strongly condemning the gangster activities of the USSR in attacking Czechoslovakia".

It was moved at the regular meeting of the executive that the telegram be sent to the prime minister. It asks that th PM call on both of the large powers, the USSR and the USA, to cease interfering in the affairs of small nations.

A decision that "both adhere to the charter of the United Nations and withdraw immediately from Czechoslovakia and Vietnam" was made.

W. R. Menzies, secretary of the Liberal association, hopes this telegram will aid the prime minister in taking the correct action.

Belleville Native Named New Manager at Northern

A native Belleville boy who joined Northern Electric here 20 years ago, has been named manager of the Northern Electric Company plant at Belleville.

The new Belleville plant manager is Kenneth Woodley, 38, now director of informations systems at the firm's headquarters plant in Montreal.

Mr. Woodley assumes his new duties on August 26, taking over the position left vacant by the recent death of plant manager Walter Gait.

Born in Belleville, Mr. Woodley is the son of Mrs. Harold Woodley, R.R. 7, Belleville (Peach Point) and the late Harold "Twigz" Woodley and is the brother of Dr. W. L. Woodley of this city.

A graduate of Belleville Collegiate he joined Northern shortly after leaving school and for many years was associated with the firm's accountancy department. While working at Belleville he studied accountancy to become a certified general accountant.

Married with three children, Mr. Woodley's wife is a Belleville girl, the former Joyce Markle.

He was transferred from Belleville to Montreal about 12 years ago.

Mr. Woodley's return to Belleville as Northern Electric plant manager in one way establishes a first in management appointments.

It is the first time that a native of Belleville has been named plant head. And Mr. Woodley is also one of the youngest, if not the youngest, to hold the position as Belleville manager.

Attempted Breaks Plague City Police

Continuing the outbreak of attempted break and enters in Belleville, city police had two more to report last night.

Around midnight an unknown tried to enter the Oliphant Electric Company on Dundas St. by breaking a window in the side of the building.

However, two citizens who parked their car on the lot picked up the person with their headlights and frightened him away.

Early in the morning, around three o'clock, a person tried a door at a house on Stanley Park Drive.

Chief Douglas Crosbie said there have been seven or eight similar attempts in the past few days.

"Only $20 has been stolen totally," he said. "Sometimes we aren't even sure if a report is truly an attempted break and enter but we have to treat them as such."

He said th a t police watch carefully all areas where reports come from in an effort to stop any actual break-ins.

It's A Shoe-In

Top float, this entry 'Old Woman in a Shoe' took top prize for the best float at the annual Penny Parade and Fair in Trenton yesterday. About 800 youngsters and parents attended the events.

Children Run Parade, Carnival At Trenton Playground Closing

TRENTON — It all began early in the afternoon and the kids were still smiling when darkness came as the annual penny fair and parade yesterday marked the closing of Trenton's supervised playgrounds.

The kids run the show so it is not hard to figure out the reason for its continuing success.

The day began with a parade commencing at Bay Shore Park and ending at Hanna Park. The procession turned heads and the many and colorful floats prompted double takes from the onlookers in the streets.

Following arrival at Hanna Park a few shouts, screams were heard — to relieve the tension. The tension?

That's right. Mr. and Miss Penny Fair were to be chosen and that's quite an honor.

All the playgrounds were represented but it was Irene Bouchard from Queen Elizabeth and Len Freeman from Hanna who came out on top.

The honors for best float went to College playground for its "Old Woman in a Shoe." Presentations over, now down to business.

The business being the fair which began at six and went until dark. Over 800 persons, children and parents alike, came to reap the rewards of the summer playground season.

Some tried the "sponge throw" where the object was to throw the soaking object smack into the victims face. For the oldsters there was a bingo or a relaxing ride through the grounds hay wagon style.

Councillor Duncan McDonald, of the Trenton Recreation Committee was enjoying himself as he commented, "this fair is the best yet."

There were over 650 children involved in the summer playground program, and it looked like all of them had made it to the closing ceremonies.

Trenton Housing Project - - 20 New Units

TRENTON — Trenton is on its way to a record building year with the announcement that a Toronto firm will construct 20 three and four bedroom houses in Burttdale Heights.

Tall Oakes Construction has taken out building permits totalling $305,000 and will begin construction Monday. The houses will be ready for occupancy by Nov. 15.

The houses will have brick veneer exterior and will sell for $13,800, $14,800 and $15,800.

The development will aid the federal-provincial land assembly project which allows a low income earner to purchase or rent a lot over a long period of time.

Town officials said this will be the largest number of homes to be constructed all at once in Trenton in recent years.

Building inspector William Anderson has issued 36 building permits during August, for a total value of $630,685. Value of permits issued in July exceeded the $2,000,000 mark.

Burttdale Heights is located on the west side of Reid St., in the northeast section of town. The subdivision is completely serviced and all installations are underground. V. P. Carswell Public School is located in the subdivision.

Tall Oaks Construction has indicated it will employ local labor as much as possible in on the project.

Eleven of the new homes will be built on the south side of McQuade Dr., six on the north side of Seneca Rd., and three on the south side of Seneca Rd.

A town official said Tall Oaks is now building houses in four Toronto subdivisions.

Allied Chemical Building Takes Shape Fast

City Industrial Park Expanding

Belleville's north-east Industrial Park area, immediately south of the MacDonald Cartier —401 highway has to be one of the most rapidly developing sections of the city.

Two years ago the entire area north of Adam Street and the Smith Transport warehouse was a deserted commons.

As of today two new industrial buildings — Superior Electric and International Cooperage — have been erected and the plants placed in operation.

Currently three other industrial buildings, the largest being Allied Chemical, are under construction — the last being scheduled for completion in approximately another month.

Rapid progress has been made in the construction of the Allied Chemical building at the eastern end of the University Ave. Extension.

The building is now completely enclosed with prefabricated metal siding covering the steel framework and bricklaying is going ahead on the front office section.

The recently completed University Ave. extension swings east over the Belleville-Peterborough branch of the Canadian National tracks providing ready access to International Cooperage and the new Allied Chemical building.

The private company road leading from University Ave. to the Allied Chemical building is roughed out and in use by construction employees.

An Allied Chemical official said that while their building would be "well along" in another month, no date had yet been set for commencing operations.

It was expected, however, that operations might commence "toward the end of the year."

Moscow Nips Czechs

The reoccupation of Czechoslovakia by Soviet forces makes it abundantly clear that Moscow is in no mood to tolerate the blasting shocks of liberalism that the Prague government hoped to nurture, or the disintegration of the communist empire in Eastern Europe.

This is further proof of the intrinsic weakness of a system which already has been forced to put down one satellite rebellion — in Hungary in 1956 — and erect a wall to prevent residents of East Berlin from crossing into the Western sector of the city. Although life in Hungary is easier today the country's serfdom vis-a-vis the Soviet Union is complete, while East Germans are solidly locked away from any possibility of freedom by the infamous wall and a regime that obeys the Moscow line implicitly.

Once again the Soviets have turned back the clock. The lesson for the Western world is one that should be taken to heart. For too long things had been going too well for the Soviets, in the sense that people in the free world were forgetting the brutal evidences of communist oppression as the Berlin blockade, the suppression of freedom in Hungary more than a decade ago and the continual denial of independence to other countries of eastern Europe and the Baltic trio of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia.

For Czechoslovakia the facts of political life just now are difficult. And its humiliation is all the greater because of the presence also of troops from the other satellite countries, pressed into entering its territory by the Soviets as a gesture presumably of communist solidarity.

But no one in the West will be fooled by this latest example of Soviet oppression. Indirectly it will be heartening for the United States and its allies as they seek to contain the communist menace in Vietnam. The Soviet Union no longer will be able to complain about the U.S. presence in Asia.

Downtown Plan

Encouraging indeed is the receipt of federal government approval in preparation of a plan for the redevelopment of downtown Belleville and part of Foster Ward.

Ottawa has agreed to pay half of the $81,900 cost of preparing the plan, which has been placed in the hands of a Toronto firm, Redfern, Bousfield and Bacon.

Given this city's slow rate of growth one wonders, however, how much time will elapse before such an ambitious concept comes to fruition. A year has passed since the Chamber of Commerce unveiled the original idea envisaging a downtown shopping mall, a "magic circle" traffic system and other improvements. The Chamber's proposals will be made available to the Toronto firm. And yet, almost another year will elapse before the plan is ready.

Still, it is a start, and a welcome one at that. It is an exciting concept, one that in its realization could place Belleville in the forefront of the show-look cities of Ontario's future. We hope this plan will become a reality and not disappear into the limbo of forgotten things.

African Chaos

While thousands starve, the Nigerian federal authorities are still pursuing a fruitless military campaign against the breakaway province of Biafra.

Television film of the Nigerian military leaders tends to confirm that here is a group of men unused to running a war while at the same time maintaining law and order and essential services behind the lines. They seem mere dilettantes full of their own self-importance.

Their attitude is typical of many in authority in the emerging African nations. For instance, Red Cross officials trying to get relief to hungry civilians report that even private soldiers carry sufficient authority to prevent the movement of supplies.

Meanwhile, there are reports of increased guerrilla activity in Rhodesia. Government troops there have suffered casualties in recent clashes. Also engaged in hunting the guerrillas are South African troops and police.

These activities, coupled with guerrilla activity against Portuguese colonial rule in Angola and Mozambique presents a picture of unrest on a continent where colonialism and independence, as well as being in conflict with each other also manifest their own separate problems.

Ottawa Offbeat

"Anything Goes" and the Yorkville Image in Civil Service

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The federal government prides itself on being the "model employer."

It likes to think it is the style-setter in staff relations.

Where it leads, the government long has maintained, other employers follow.

If sheer bigness makes for this kind of influence, then the government is right.

For across all the land, no other organization has a staff so given to glamism — nearly 250,000 on the payroll.

And what a payroll: $1,468,-154,107 in wages and salaries plus another $77,702,917 in special allowances for a total public service jackpot of $1,495,917,-124.

And that's not counting another 175,000 or so who work for the federal crown corporations such as the CBC.

But if it's not just immensity that gives the government its so proudly self-proclaimed leadership in employer-employee relationships, if it's something else — call it style or flair or talent for innovation, something more real and basic — then business and industry can't know, really, what kind of leader it's supposed to be following.

For this summer of civil service discontent, the government has gone mod and its staff a bit hippie.

The key word is permissiveness.

As if you had to be told, with the government's own seaway and postal workers holding the nation in ransom by shutting down what probably any other civilized country in the western world would consider basic and essential public services.

Everybody who is anybody in the federal government, right up to and including Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, has been telling it to the taxpayers that the civil service staff is "frozen."

Which means, they have been at pains to explain, nobody's being hired.

Except that over in posh Place de Ville, the new black-walled, twin-towered mid-town office complex that tops the country's Peace Tower itself, the government has opened a sickly sleek employment centre.

The idea, says the Public Service Commission — the agency that hires all for people the prime minister keeps saying aren't being hired — is to give the government the "swinging" image."

This, baby, in the federal civil service is where it's at.

So the employment centre is a decorator's dream . . . rows of individual walnut desks where the government job-seeker in decent privacy may flip through green leatherette covered ring binders containing detailed outlines of the hundreds of positions available . . . green leather swivel chairs . . . aqua green deep pile tweed rugs . . . blue and violet drapes . . . photographic multi-colored blowups of swinging civil service careers.

So you've got long, long LONG hair, grubby, greasy, unwashed. Feel welcome.

"We're pretty permissive," a senior civil service mandarin has been quoted.

You wear sandals?

So what . . . doesn't everybody . . . even the prime minister?

Bell Telephone, the Royal Bank, Simpson-Sears, Loblaws, Dominion Stores and other big food chains, Eaton's — the list canvassed, could go on indefinitely — all demand standards of dress and deportment.

Call it the "clean-cut look," says a Bell executive.

The government doesn't see it that way.

It discriminates not between the long and the short-haired, or between the booted, the shoed or the sandalled, and if you're a messenger or clerk doing a lot of running around the corridors of power, roller skates are nothing more than a good idea.

Even the defence department as it, and it, frowns on "split hairs" on the civilian side where almost 30,000 work. Only if a man gets into uniform does defence insist on a shearing.

In some departments, especially in these newly permissive government days, you can't always be sure you're in a business (public business, that is) establishment, on a campus or slumming in Yorkville.

The place is loaded with hair — miles and grimy miles of it in beards of all kinds, wild shapes and weird sizes — high boots and sandals — mini-minis and jeans — beads, bangles and bezazz.

It's the swinging federal image, man!

"Tough but good" is the way Sea Cadet Officer Peter Kouri, of this city, summed up his impression of the two weeks' course in naval instruction which he recently took at Royal Roads College in Victoria.

Economics of Witchcraft

Ottawa Journal

In these days of glue sniffers and "pot" smokers the crime of witchcraft has been relegated to television. But a Toronto woman was recently fined $500 for pretending to practise witchcraft.

Seems she tried to cure stomach pains by advising her client to leave an egg and $40 in a shoe. When this failed she took the $40. If her witchcraft was weak, there was nothing wrong with her economics. Witches have a tough row to hoe. Bat's wings and monkey dust have been replaced by antibiotics. Even children laugh at witches, finding satellites more interesting than brooms riding brooms. In more barbaric times witches were locked in stocks or burned at the stake, giving them martyr status. Now they are fined as common charlatans.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Aug. 22, 1868 . . .

The International Red Cross was established at Geneva 104 years ago today —in 1864—one year after an international conference was held in that city to set up the world body. The organization for the relief of suffering owes its inception to Swiss banker Jean Dunant, who was so moved by the suffering at the battle of Solferino in 1859 that he urged the formation of a voluntary aid society to help the wounded in time of war.

1810—Korea was formally annexed by Japan.

1911—Leonardo da Vinci's Mona Lisa was stolen from the Louvre in Paris but was recovered a year later in Florence, Italy.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—British forces, attacking between the Ancre and Somme rivers, captured Albert; French troops made rapid progress in the Lassigny sector and reached the Divette River; it was announced that Allied forces had taken 100,000 prisoners since July 18, 1918.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—Prime Minister Mackenzie King and President Roosevelt announced the creation of a joint war aid committee to study land-lease problems involving the two countries; the retirement of Maxim Litvinoff as Soviet ambassador to the United States was announced; Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commanding officer of the Canadian forces overseas, arrived in Sicily.

Letter to the Editor

Pensioner Makes A Plea

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I have at times read articles regarding pensioners not having enough pension to properly support them. This is true of pensioners who only get old age pension, and I suggest them,

There is another group of pensioners — here is an example: Single gets a D.V.A. pension of $100 per month; rent from a cottage $12.50 per month; lot on farm land and a wood lot of 55 acres. He got the old age pension of $75 per month but applied for the subsidy and now it is increased to $107 per month. He pays $20 a week for room and board; $15 a week to his wife for support and the balance is used for travelling expenses. He has just returned from a three-weeks' trip to England etc. and travels about Canada. He is now planning a train trip to B.C. and the Rockies.

All this is financed by the pensions, for which the taxpayers are contributing. It seems to me this subsidy could have been used for the first group of pensioners, who I'm sure are lucky if they can get away for a land or a holiday. This is only part of the administration of the taxpayers' money; let us all be pensioners in the second group for a sweeter way of living.

Hardy Homesteaders Still To Be Found in Canada

Ottawa Journal

To most Canadians the word homesteader means fuzzy photographs and men in sheepskin coats disembarking in Halifax or Montreal on their way west. While the sheepskin coat is gone, homesteading — acquiring ownership of public land free by living and working on it — is very much alive in Alberta.

Alberta has more than 3,000 active homesteaders, according to the provincial Department of Lands and Forests, and about 750 homestead titles are awarded each year. Thousands of enquiries are received every year but when prospective settlers hear that land must be cleared for the land title, they look elsewhere for a place in the sun.

Many of the available homesteads are in Northern Alberta — a land thick with poplar and pine with low lying muskegs — where summer temperatures react. 90 degrees and dip in winter to 40 below for a week at a time.

Despite these drawbacks, a man with a will to work and a fat bank account can carve out a real empire. At least one homestead now being developed at Breaking Point, Alberta, consists of one and three-quarters square miles of virgin land plus 5,000 leased grazing acres.

The axe, blasting powder and team of horses disappeared with the sheepskin coat. To clear a profitable land area one must now own or rent a bulldozer. Bulldozers cost upwards of $20,000 and a cat skinner with machine costs $100 a day in Northern Alberta.

There are, fortunately, those who, for 1,001 reasons, will sink their savings into the ambition of opening up the land and, perhaps, building a personal bonanza. The rest of us, for the same number of reasons, fulfill our bonanzas by watching television.

Only His Barber Knows for Sure

Toronto Globe and Mail:

Does he or doesn't he? Only Pierre Trudeau's barber knows. Ottawa tonsorial artist Robert Barton has revealed that the prime minister poses for him once every three weeks for a "sculptured haircut." That laurel wreath look, we learn, comes about because each of Mr. Trudeau's hairs is losing more than his illusions. "He's losing his hair on top," confides the artist, "so we try to fill in the spots."

One gathers Mr. Barton is allowed more leeway in his indiscretions than Mr. Trudeau's ministers. If he keeps up the flow of top secrets, he just may manage the miracle of enticing the press gallery boys away from cut-rate cuts at the Common's barber shop.

India Has Doubts About Trade With Soviet Union

Toronto Star Syndicate

The groundwork for India's latest 5-year plan began in January, 1963 and ends with the 5-year plan. The Russian suggestion is that their experience can be used to do what is relatively new to India.

Indian reaction was swift.

The influential newspaper Indian Express published a blunt editorial, calling such coordination "National Harakiri". Further: "Planning stands within the inner citadel of our internal economy. If now that citadel is to be breached by the Trojan horse or Goujhas, New Delhi fears capitals should resign itself to the fate of Troy."

Color and Your Car

Troy Times Record

Safety experts say that if cars were painted various giddy colors with fluorescent stripes and dots they would be more visible on the road and thus safer. They can't sell the manufacturers on that idea.

Henry Ford once said, "Thinking is the hardest work there is, which is probably the reason why so few engage in it." He never had to think much about the color of his cars. Ninety per cent of them were black. Some had fancy brass trimmings and now and then a little red was thrown in.

Now only 2 per cent of all cars are black. The rest (except for many white cars) are every color under the sun. Many think that the feminine members of the family decides.

A car styling expert believes that the color of a car is an emotional matter rather than a technical one. How can you determine the emotional needs of the country in advance?

He says that after times of great depression, like World War I, people want wanted brilliant blues and greens and blazing reds. In the 1930's they wanted pastels and the whites became popular. After a few years that changed to blues, greens and tans, all sort of muted.

The name of the color also enters in. Calypso blue sells where cadet blue may not. South Sea coral is popular but salmon goes begging. It all comes back to the fact that people are funny, of the presidium, who include Slovak party chief Vasil Bilak and Drahomir Kolder, a former head of economic planning.

The general radio this morning mentioned Rude Pravo Editor Oldrich Svestka as one of the pro-Soviet members, but later broadcasts dropped his name.

He was reported arrested by Soviet troops Wednesday, although he has come out against some of Dubcek's policies in the past.

Dubcek himself was still in Soviet custody, along with other leading members of his liberal regime.

The radio said a general strike started in the South Bohemian district to protest the occupation.

The radio also called on the army to protect President Ludvik Svoboda and not to take orders from anyone except from the legal government.

Czechoslovak secret police, who have kept in the background since Dubcek took over early in January, were arresting prominent writers and journalists.

Witnesses reported hundreds of political prisoners were arriving at Pankrac Prison.

At noon, sirens and car horns sounded to call for a general strike until further notice.

Meanwhile, the Czechoslovak army appears to be taking a stand on the side of Dubcek's ereigtsy.

The prosecutor-general of the army, whose name was not available on the air, issued instructions to all Czechoslovak troops to take orders only from their own superiors.

The statement said: "Do not collaborate with the occupiers. Surrendering arms to the occupiers will be regarded as treason and will be punishable. . . . Do not give any army material to the occupiers."

At least 23 persons, including some Soviet-bloc soldiers, were reported killed in incidents since the invasion began late Tuesday night.

Broadcasts said seven persons were killed in fighting around the Prague radio offices, six in Liberec, 35 miles northeast of Prague, and 10 in the east Slovak town of Kosice.

Reports from Kosice said some Soviet soldiers were killed by a Molotov cocktail thrown into their tank, and that Russian troops fired on a crowd, killing a youth, 17, and wounding about 20 persons.

The Czechoslovak news agency CTK, before reporting it had been put out of business at 11:30 p.m. Wednesday, said about 180 persons were wounded in Prague.

Angry thousands of Czechoslovaks marched in Prague behind a Second World War Jeep filled with young people carrying a black flag. On the hood sat a teen-ager with a bloody Czechoslovak flag.

Dozens of taxis and trucks sped through Prague this morning blasting their horns and flinging out pamphlets urging people to join in a general strike to protest the occupation.

Scores of extra Soviet tanks rumbled into the centre of the city at noon while thousands of Czechs, mostly youths, defied the occupation by hanging a black flag on the outstretched arm of King Wenceslas's statue in the main square.

A loudspeaker began a long demand for the withdrawal of Russian troops.

A special edition of the party newspaper Rude Pravo — presumably now under Soviet supervision—warned the inhabitants of Prague not to provoke Soviet troops.

It said no photographs could be taken of Soviet tanks or troops.

It also said there was enough food to supply Prague although there were distribution problems.

Traffic moved more freely through the city today, but Soviet soldiers stopped cars and searched trunks for arms, electronic apparatus and subversive documents.

Emil Zatopek, the famous Czechoslovak athlete and an Olympic gold medallist, addressed a crowd of hundreds in one of the main streets.

Under the snouts of Soviet tank cannon he told the Russians: "We don't think that bombers and tanks are friendship."

Clandestine radio stations reported that the 14th Congress of the Czechoslovak Communist party began a secret meeting somewhere in or near Prague this morning.

The congress is the supreme organ of the 7,600,000-member Czechoslovak Communist party and is authorized to elect officials to all ruling bodies.

Although politically the gesture seemed to be an apathetic move against the overwhelming armed might of the occupation forces, it would provide a legal basis for continued passive resistance to these troops.

Meanwhile, reports circulated that leading Czech writers and intellectuals were being rounded up. Some of the staff of the Literarni Listy, the writers' magazine prominent in the fight for reform, were arrested Wednesday and charged with distributing unauthorized news sheets.

Thousands of Czechs lined up around tables set up outside public buildings and signed petitions calling on the Soviet forces to release party leader Alexander Dubcek and the top aides they arrested Wednesday.

Broadsheets appeared in the city centre naming "traitors" and telling people not to collaborate with them.

Signs calling for the release of Cestmir Cisar, a leading reformer, sprouted all over Prague.

Another wall sign said "Hungarians go home—did you not have enough of this your, selves?"

Linguistic Rights Vital Asserts Frank Scott

MONTREAL (CP) — Frank Scott, a member of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, says linguistic rights are a fundamental right of man and that every Canadian should be able to receive instruction in the language of his choice.

Mr. Scott, speaking in French Wednesday to the annual convention of the Canadian Association of French-speaking Teachers, said linguistic rights generally have not been defined as one of the inalienable rights of man.

The British North America Act contains "the first constitutional protection" of the right to use either of the two languages in Canada before the legislative houses and courts of the Federal government and those of Quebec, he said.

But a judgment of the Privy Council, holding that the right to separate school systems arises from religious rather than linguistic considerations, was the basis on which "certain persons in Quebec" proceeded that the right to instruction in English in public schools be taken away from immigrants.

It would be a great "irony" if Quebec were to adopt the one-language policy of Manitoba when that policy had been condemned for almost a century and now was about to be rejected by tre western Canadian province, Mr. Scott said.

But although there were those extreme enough to suggest that English Quebecers be refused the right to instruction in English in public schools, he did not expect that Quebec would in the 1970s repeat "the error committed by Manitoba."

"It is up to the parents to choose the language of instruction and the religion of their children. And that is their natural right. Therefore, this right does not depend on any particular statute in any particular province in Canada."

But a Quebec government official, speaking during a workshop session of the convention, said French-language education should be made mandatory for all immigrant children in the province since "the survival of the francophone group is in danger."

Rene Gauthier, director of immigration in the provincial secretariat, said immigrants have a right to learn English, but also a duty for them to learn the French language and to enter into the culture of the majority of Quebec's population.

The best way to achieve this cultural integration of immigrant children was in the schools.

News Media Clutter Up Minds Is Claim

MONTREAL (CP) — The news media were given a hard time Wednesday as two lecturers at a teachers conference attacked them from opposite flanks and came to the same conclusion: The media clutter up minds instead of educating them.

Speaking at a meeting of the Canadian Association of French-speaking Teachers, Jean Lagasse, director of citizenship in the State Secretary's department in Ottawa, said:

"Don't it time we asked the news media, who daily make us face social upheavals in Canada as well as all over the world, to complete their task of information by providing in-depth and well-organized education?"

The average man was filled with unco-ordinated facts which he could not use profitably.

"Thus the same individual who will be made to feel pity and sympathy for the plight of the American Negro through the news media will refuse a Negro couple the right to live next door to him."

Too much uneducated exposure to human misery could result in wholesale rejection of all news dealing with human problems.

"It is time the news media played formation ahead of information," Mr. Lagasse concluded. "Thus the public will learn to face problems and to try to find cures and solutions to the world's problems instead of hiding its ostrich's head in the sand."

Pornography Legal, Sex Crimes Fall

COPENHAGEN (Reuters) — Topless sales girls are helping to boost the sale of pornography in Denmark, which has one of the most permissive societies in the world.

Dozens of "porno stores" sprang into being in an area near Copenhagen's main railroad station after the abolition of all laws prohibiting the publication of written pornography 13 months ago.

Sales soared in the first few weeks after the abolition. Then they fell off, as Joergen Hallum, a photographer and store owner, introduced the topless sales girls.

"It has put sales up nicely," said 25-year-old topless sale girl Lykke Prikjaer, wearing only panties and a transparent nightie when she talked to a reporter.

Miss Prikjaer, pretty, shapely and bespectacled, thought her job was "much better than being in a factory."

She said customers like the topless service.

"They are not a bit shy—well you would not expect them to be with all this stuff around," she added, pointing to shelves of colorful literature.

Miss Prikjaer's view is that "there is a need" for pornography.

"I mean, they would not buy so much of it if there wasn't, would they?"

Careful studies of the sexual behavior of Danish youth back her view that the abolition of restrictions on pornography has in no way led to a decline in morals.

"The need for pornography must have been very great," said psychiatrist Anders Greth, a member of the government's commission on sexual education.

"It is remarkable that in the six months after the law was passed there was a 26-per-cent fall-in sexual crimes in Copenhagen. It is probable that there is some connection."

A recent survey of young Danish women revealed that two-thirds of them marry the man which whom they first have an interview and that few have sexual experience with more than two or three partners before marriage.

In Denmark, sexual intercourse before marriage is the rule, and in schools and colleges no one would be punished for having intercourse.

Sex is discussed freely in the press and on radio and television.

Papers Facing Three Credibility Gaps

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Newspapers face three credibility gaps in trying to convey the truth in stories to readers, says John Dauphinee, assistant general manager of The Canadian Press.

He said Wednesday that papers must expose any outright lies by governments, untangle government propaganda and breach the gap between the news media and the reader.

He quoted a consensus of United States newspaper editors that Washington is "a centre of news management." This could mean that news coming from all capitals must be watched closely and judged accordingly.

Mr. Dauphinee spoke at a Newspaper in the Classroom conference at the University of Waterloo on a panel with Prof. Donald Gordon of University of Waterloo.

Prof. Gordon said there have been instances of news management by the United States government, sometimes justifiably.

"We have now reached the point where we wonder whether the stories we get are true at all."

Prof. Gordon said it would be difficult to persuade a newspaper editor to print a warning at the top of a story that might be slanted, biased or lacking in information.

He criticized newspapers for playing up events that go wrong instead of concentrating on more constructive thinking.

Mr. Dauphinee said it would be a dull newspaper that lacked every-day elements of conflict, controversy, contradiction and condemnation. He said the "why?" behind the happenings increasingly is being included in newspapers.

The five-day seminar, sponsored by the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association, concludes Friday. Fifty elementary and secondary school teachers from across Canada are attending.

RE-SEEDING
Poor Old Lawns

Although many small city lawns should be plowed under and completely replaced, there are still a goodly number that could be improved with a major overhaul, and early autumn is the time to do it.

First dig out or spray the weeds, then after about a week, set the lawn mower as low as it will go and scalp the turf. Follow this with a severe raking with a steel rake, removing all thatch and grass and cutting the teeth of the rake down into the soil to break the crust. It may be necessary to soak the soil first, or to water the affected areas with a garden hose for several days before you will reach moisture. Be consistent, so don't spare the muscle. At this stage you should be ready to sow seed mixture given the name VERDANT. Sow at the rate of one pound per 500 sq. ft.

You are now ready for fertilizer and for this purpose we recommend one of the fertilizers such as TURF SPECIAL 5-8-4 or SPECIAL-FIT 18 should be used at this time of year. As always the best quality seed mixture gives the most satisfactory results, therefore we either use VERDANT or our VERDANT - 60% MEDIUM MIXTURES since they contain plenty of Blue Grass and Creeping Fescue. Sow at the rate of one pound per 500 sq. ft. with your Rotovator or Merion Blue Grass.

Check with us for tips on soil conditioners for faster germination. Water daily to ensure a successful germination.

Pay 2½ Per Cent Interest

Postal Banks to Close

OTTAWA (CP) — Progress has finally overtaken the century-old Canadian post office savings banks.

The banks, located in some 1,200 urban and rural post offices across Canada, will accept no new accounts after Sept. 2 this year, a department spokesman said in an interview Wednesday.

The move has been long recommended by Royal commissions and other inquiries into postal operations which said the service wasn't worth the deficit it ran up.

The banks came into existence in 1868 at a time when there were few chartered banks or other institutions to provide such a service.

Now, there is an abundance of chartered banks, credit unions and co-operatives to provide a banking service in virtually all parts of Canada, the spokesman said.

The post office savings banks pay only 2½ per-cent interest on savings. Deposits today are less than half of the record $39,200,000 that was on deposit 15 years ago.

The department is asking all depositors to close out their accounts over a 16-month period. Parliament will be asked to approve legislation officially ending the service as of Jan. 1, 1970, the spokesman said.

Large Hailstones Arrive In Time for Conference

TORONTO (CP) — "Please send one dozen large hailstones," was the University of Toronto request to the Alberta Research Council in Edmonton.

The council didn't bat an eye. It waited for a hailstorm, picked a dozen stones 1½ inches in diameter, packed them in dry ice and sent them by air.

Prof. Roland List of the university's physics department will exhibit them during the International Conference on Cloud Physics at the university Aug. 26-30.

About 200 physicists from 23 countries will spend a half-day session discussing various research studies in hail.

"The aim, of course, is the ultimate control of hail," Prof. List said in an interview Wednesday.

The largest stones recorded fell in Texas—where else?—last year and measured 10 inches in diameter. Prof. List said Canadian stones rarely exceed two inches.

"The Russians," said Prof. List, "claim they are having success in limiting hailstorms. They use four-inch anti-aircraft guns to shoot self-destroying shells with silver dioxide in them.

"Clouds suspected of carrying hail components are tracked on radar and the silver dioxide apparently stops the hail from forming."

Prof. List explains that hail is the same as snow—frozen water. "However, hail needs warmer air and lots of water before it can form. It is like snow only more condensed."

Yorkville Policemen Charged

TORONTO (CP) — Police Chief James Mackey Wednesday said disciplinary charges will be laid against two undercover officers involved in a fracas in the hippie-dominated Yorkville district last week.

Chief Mackey said the hearing would be held "entirely within the confines of the department."

Constable Powell said head injuries were the result of a blow from an umbrella wielded by a hippie and from kicks to the face and head by bystanders. Other witnesses said a uniformed police officer hit him with a nightstick before Constable Powell could identify himself.

MacDonald Wants Crown Agency In Newfoundland

GRAND FALLS, Nfld. (CP) — Donald MacDonald, Ontario leader of the New Democratic Party, called Wednesday for creation of a Crown agency to act as a partner with British Newfoundland Corp. in developing the giant Churchill Falls power project in Labrador.

Mr. MacDonald said the partnership system would serve the public interest and provide a continuing financial return to the people of the province and the country." In an address to the annual convention of the Newfoundland New Democratic Party, Mr. MacDonald said the Churchill Falls development is opening up "one of the last great frontiers on the North American continent."

But it was being done after the granting of a charter to Brinco which the NDP leader said had been termed "the greatest giveaway since the days of the Hudson's Bay Co. charter."

Excerpts from the speech were released to the press before delivery.

Vote Ordered For Truckers

OTTAWA (CP) — A vote has been ordered among 60 drivers of Tank Truck Transport Ltd. to decide whether they want to switch their bargaining rights to the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

The Canada Labor Relations Board announced Wednesday that the Teamsters' bid for certification will be tested on a ballot with the United Mine Workers of America, which now holds a certificate to bargain for the unit.

Tank Truck operates terminals at Montreal and the Ontario cities of Cornwall, Sudbury, Toronto and Sarnia.

RED, BLUE STRONGEST

EDMONTON (CP) — A plant biochemist at the University of Alberta says the wave lengths in the light spectrum which most affect photosynthesis in plants are blue and red. Derek Trachsel said the practical application of this knowledge has been put to use in plant production in greenhouses under artificial lights.

Smaller Babies Are Result Of Smoking

SHEFFIELD, England (AP) — Pregnant women who smoke generally have smaller babies and run more serious risks, a survey here indicates.

Prof. Charles Scott Russell, a gynecology specialist at Sheffield University, said Sunday he believes the study showed for the first time that there was a direct link between smoking and smaller babies.

The findings of an investigation among 2,000 pregnant women were reported in the British Journal of Preventive and Social Medicine.

They were indications that women smokers run a greater risk of miscarriage, stillbirth or the death of the child in the first month of life, especially when they have high blood pressure the report said.

—The over-all rate of unsuccessful pregnancies was found to be 7.9 per cent among smokers, compared with 4.1 per cent among nonsmokers.

—Smokers with high blood pressure had an unsuccessful pregnancy rate of 27 per cent, compared with 14.5 per cent among non-smokers.

The Sheffield team led by Prof. Russell took into account related factors such as social background and employment, the mother's age, height, number of previous pregnancies and work during the waiting period.

Ketcheson – Fargey

Rev. D. C. MacPherson performed the August 17th wedding ceremony at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling, when he united in marriage Nancy Elizabeth Fargey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Fargey, of West Huntingdon, to Everett Owen Ketcheson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Ketcheson, of R.R. No. 2 Roslin. Mrs. Harry Morrow rendered the traditional wedding music, accompanying the soloist Mrs. Arthur Hassall.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length empire-style original gown of white Venice lace and Paloma, featuring an a-line skirt and long lily point sleeves fashioned of lace. The front panel of Paloma on the skirt was edged with scallops of lace as was neckline of the dress. The long watteau train of matching lace fell from the shoulders of the gown and fastened at the back with a row of tiny buttons. Her four-tier shoulder length veil was of silk tulle; the headdress was of satin rose and lily of the valley. She carried a white Bible enhanced with red sweetheart roses and satin streamers.

Maid of honor was Miss Linda Ketcheson, sister of the groom and the bridesmaids were the Misses Anne Ashley and Margaret Sills. UCW Meetings

Units one and two of the Queensboro United Church Women held an open meeting in the church last Wednesday evening.

The speaker for the evening was Rev. Don Raffin, a missionary, who is home on leave from Brazil. Mr. Raffin showed slides of the scenery and old and new buildings in Brazil. He spoke of the good that the missionary and maintenance of the United Church can do in that country. Mr. Raffin is a native of Ontario and has spent some time at the summer camp at Quin-Mo-Lac, in the past.

Unit one of the U.C.W. held their regular monthly meeting, in the Sunday School room on Thursday afternoon, with Mrs. Arthur Holmes as hostess; Mrs. Harold Lokley, group leader was in charge. Mrs. Harry Declair had charge of the program. At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served.

Redingote Popular This Fall

ROME (AP) — The slim-waisted, flared redingote emerged as top item from this year's Italian fall-winter showings.

The redingote was tied into almost every house's show.

But some novel departures were also produced by the Italians. Daniele paraded evening dresses of Sangland feathers. Galitzine showed stockings with a seam in front and Marucelli sent models fourth clanging—with white silks dresses trimmed with aluminum discs along the breastline and down the whole front.

Cutouts and see-throughs were frequent and when those were not sexy enough, designers split skirts to the thigh or slashed necklines almost to the navel.

American designer Ken Scott showed a circus of wild animal wares, featuring leopard pants and tiger-striped suits with clown costumes thrown in for fun.

Italian designers generally abandoned their penchant for dazzling colors this season, turning to black and white and neutral shades for daytime. But they decked out their evening clothes with rhinestones and other sparklers.

Hemlines, with a few exceptions, hovered at about two inches above the knee.

Ann Landers

Good Sex Life May Be Attained

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I wish to comment on the letter from "Starvation Diet" — the man whose sex life was terrible. He blamed her and she blamed him.

ANN LANDERS

For ten years my husband and I had the same problem. It was neither frigidity on my part nor chronic fatigue on his part. It was simply that that attitude toward sex was primitive and mechanical and I felt I was being used to satisfy his animal passions. It took two years of counseling to set us straight.

Sex is the highest form of communicating love between woman and man. It should be seen as an act of giving, for both parties. A woman must feel that she is an object of love and not just a convenient escape valve for releasing sexual impulses.

I urge Mr. Starvation Diet to take some quiet walks and examine his deepest motives. I am willing to bet that if he changes his attitude and approaches his wife with unselfish love and takes the time to be gentle and considerate he will find himself graciously received — not rejected. A good sexual relationship can make a married man heaven. A poor one can make it hell. — ONE WHO HAS KNOWN BOTH.

DEAR ONE — Amen.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I recently went to a doctor who ordered me to have some laboratory test. I was told I'd be notified of the results. One week passed and I heard nothing so I called and asked about the tests. I was informed that they were "in the lab."

Five days elapsed and nothing arrived so I called again. I was told, "The post office must have lost them."

I asked what the doctor because I think he lied to me. I want to change doctors and I have asked for my medical records. I was told, "It is not ethical for a doctor to give a patient medical records."

I discussed this with a friend who is well-versed in medical ethics He said, "That doctor is right."

Do you think it is fair that I should have to take all those lab tests over just because the doctor doesn't want to give me my medical records? And why is it unethical for a doctor to give them to me? Please explain. — MAD AT CROAKERS.

DEAR MAD — It is indeed unethical for a doctor to give a patient his medical records. The reason is obvious. For example, if the physician should recommend the "surgical excision of multiple lipomatia" it might frighten the patient to death. Another physician would know that this procedure is no big deal.

You doctor should, however, furnish you with a report of your lab tests. You have a right to know how the tests turned out. If they were lost in the mail the doctor has an obligation to replace them.

CONFIDENTIAL TO BELOW SERO RAY OR SHINE — Seven months is a long time to use a cold as an excuse for a good night kiss. I suggest you look for a young woman who is in better health.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing an unstamped, self-addressed envelope, plus 6c for postage.

Successful Living

Schizophrenics Anonymous Patterned After AA Group

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Enclosed is literature about Schizophrenics Anonymous which is patterned after the very successful organization, A.A. We have found that the 12 steps of A.A. can be used very effectively by schizophrenics.

At present we have 21 active S.A. chapters in Canada and the U.S.A., with headquarters in Saskatoon, Sask.

It is wonderful for the schizophrenic to find an organization like this where there are other people who have had similar experiences, and therefore understand what they are going through. We have also started family groups which are similar to Al-Anon. This has been helpful to families in understanding and learning to live with the schizophrenic. — Corresponding Secretary, Schizophrenics Anonymous International.

Dear Secretary: Good news The recovery program of S.A. teaches a philosophy and a health regime which would lift anybody's spirits.

For instance, I read that in S. A.: "We made a searching moral inventory of ourselves, made amends, sought help through prayer; we believe we should eat a balanced diet, exercise regularly, be moderate, get enough rest." And much more.

There is prescribed vitamin therapy, too.

I'll pass any enquiries on to you for further guidance about forming groups or joining groups already formed.

Dear Doris: Our son is being married in a city far from here. He wrote to say that they would prefer to have a gift of a cheque to put towards the purchase of furniture as their wedding gift.

Now I know it is customary to send the gift to the bride's home, yet I really don't feel that we should make out this large cheque to the young lady. I feel that it should be made out to our son.

If I address the cheque to Mr. and Mrs. it means they can't cash it until after the wedding, and I know they are buying furniture now. The wedding is not until October. — What Is Correct?

Dear What: Make it out to the bride-to-be in her maiden name. For the rest of his life your son will be trusting her with large sums of money.

And here's your bonus: This is your first opportunity to tangibly express a wholehearted confidence in her and to welcome her into your family.

Confidential to Married Again such discrimination between five-year-old Bobbie and Tiny Tim, by his new grandmother, can be devastating. His only crime is to have been born of your previous marriage.

Have Bobby do something friendly for her. Talk with her about his need for her love and attention. I cannot believe that a woman who has shown such generosity to you and her son, would knowingly break a little boy's heart.

There are Canadian resources to help solve your problems. Write to Doris for direction, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Applesauce Used in Oat Cookies

By MARY MOORE

Carried away with the wonderful flavor of our first summer apple pies of the year I made a big batch of foamy applesauce from the leftover apples. I had too much. My thrifty nature overcame my generous impulse to give it to the neighbors and I made applesauce cookies. I will give my time-saving method of making applesauce and of course continue with the recipe for the applesauce cookies.

SUMMER APPLESAUCE (time - saving method)

Wash summer Transparent apples. Cut into quarters, removing stems only. Turn into deep saucepan and add cold water until you can just see it below top layers of apples. Cover, bring to boil and simmer until mushy. Turn into colander and drain and rub through. Some seeds will go through colander holes. Either fish them out by stirring them to surface or put all puree through a large sieve. I had six cups of this unsweetened apple puree so I added 1¼ cups sugar, but you may want yours a little sweeter than I do, but do not oversweeten this or you will obscure the fresh apple flavor. I colored mine a delicate pink with red food coloring and chilled it before serving.

APPLESAUCE OAT GOODIES (blender; makes 5 dozen)

NOTE: If you do not have a blender simply mix in beater bowl or by hand.

1 cup thick homemade sweetened applesauce (see above)
2 eggs
½ cup soft shortening
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon soda
½ cup chopped nuts or raisins
1½ cups quick-cooking rolled oats

Into blender goblet measure the applesauce, eggs, shortening, sugar, vanilla, spices and salt. Blend until mixed, stopping twice to push unblended ingredients down into mixture. Combine flour and soda in large bowl and pour blender mixture over and stir to mix well. Add rolled oats and nuts (or raisins) and blend. Drop by heaping teaspoonfuls onto greased cookie sheets two inches apart. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. 8 to 10 minutes. NOTE: If desired rind from ¼ of an orange may be added to blender or goblet along with applesauce mixture.

CWL Delegates Asked To Assist with Centre

WINNIPEG (CP) — Delegates to the annual national convention of the Catholic Women's League of Canada were asked Tuesday to give priority to donations to the National Catholic Communications Centre in Toronto.

Rev. Frank W. Stone, director of the centre, also asked the league to assist the centre in its information work, which includes television spots.

The information centre was formed in 1959 and was made part of the Canadian Catholic Conference of Bishops in 1964. The centre provides material and advice to media working in areas relevant to the church.

Reports presented to the convention, which continues until Thursday, showed an increased social awareness in the programming of the 10 Dominant councils.

Members of CWL visited homes for unwed mothers, adoption agencies, jails and homes for pensioners. Emphasis was also placed on work with youth groups.

Extensive work was done with Indians and Eskimos. Several councils worked toward integrating the Indian into white society and the diocese of Mackenzie in the Northwest Territories opened a kindergarten for native children to teach them the cathechism.

Few Women Attend Meet

SYDNEY, Australia Reuters — A Roman Catholic nun from Halifax Tuesday upbraided 700 of the world's top economics over the almost total absence of women attending the 10th Commonwealth Universities Congress here.

Sister Alice Michael, president of Mount Saint Vincent University in Halifax, asked if this was because there were no women in high administrative positions in universities or if it was merely an oversight by the men who organized the congress.

Her speech brought loud applause from the audience which included only three other women.

New Standards Are Established For Student Loan Eligibility

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Benson formally announced Wednesday that criteria have been revised for considering applications under the Canada Student Loans Plan.

The announcement followed reports that student aid officials in universities of the plan's nine participating provinces are already applying the new regulations. This would ensure consistent treatment of students in need of money.

For the first time since eligibility standards were set up three years ago, all provinces will apply uniform procedures in considering the amount of money that parents can be expected to contribute to students' educational costs.

Mr. Benson's statement said the procedures will take into account factors such as family income, the number of other dependent children, taxes paid, medical expenses, allowances for a working wife, and other considerations affecting a family's ability to support a son or daughter in college."

Family income will not enter into criteria for students considered to be financially independent.

These are defined as married students, students who have completed four years of post-secondary education, and single students 21 or over who have had at least one year of full-time employment.

Barbed Wire Guards Democrats

BARBED WIRE — Tight security will prevail at the Democratic National Convention when it will get under way at Chicago next week. Heavy chain link fence, topped by barbed wire, will virtually encompass the amphitheatre. Additionally, certain streets will be blocked off, traffic will be detoured and homes and business places within sight of the convention hall will not be permitted to have their windows open. Church Has Lost Its Chance To Instill Right Values

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — A minister Wednesday told the opening session of the three-day Ontario Secondary School Headmasters' Council that the church had lost its chance to instill the right values in youth.

"The only stronghold now is in the education area," Dr. Thomas J. Shipp of Lovers' Lane Methodist Church, Dallas, Tex., told 250 Ontario high school principals.

"If you don't care, and you don't love, don't try to teach the right values," he said, adding that "whoever wins youth today will be in control of youth tomorrow."

Prior to the opening of the conference, controversy over the highly-acclaimed Hall-Dennis report on Ontario education erupted, with Toronto educationist Dr. J. R. H. Morgan saying in an interview that the report's "permissive" approach to education won't work.

Dr. Morgan, secondary school liaison officer at the University of Toronto, said the report, prepared by a team headed by Mr. Justice Emmett Hall and educationist Lloyd Dennis, ignores the nature of adolescents.

He said that while the permissive approach might work with children up to 10 or 12 years of age, "the adolescent tends to be mentally lethargic . . . and left to his own devices would probably learn very little."

He said permissiveness was implied in the report's recommendation of a non-graded system without promotion examinations and with a wide range of elective subjects.

He added: "I don't believe that a child will turn out to be an acceptable social being unless he is subject to certain disciplines and strictures."

Another principal, Ronald Hall of Toronto said no one on the Hall-Dennis committee represented the secondary school point of view.

Studies Urged Outside Schools

CATCHACOMA, Ont. (CP) — A move is underway to get students out of the classroom.

The governors of the Ontario Teachers' Federation Wednesday recommended legislative changes to increase outdoor education in elementary and secondary schools.

The governors, meeting near this community 35 miles north of Peterborough, said the Schools' Administration Act should be amended to enable school boards to buy land tracts of 500 acres to be used for activities in all subjects.

The act currently limits the size of such tracts to 200 acres and specifically requires that they be used for the establishment of natural science schools.

G. A. Wright, who proposed the changes, said outdoor classes in geography, mathematics, English and social studies can be as important as natural science studies.

Mr. Wright, vice-principal of Banting Memorial High School in Alliston, said that the recent Hall-Dennis report on Ontario education recognized the need for more outdoor study.

A former head of the federal government's physical fitness program, Mr. Wright said that teachers must "get away from the dull, routine classroom approach."

The 40-member board of governors also allocated $25,000 for meetings in the next school year to study the Hall-Dennis report.

Frobisher Bay To Be Updated

OTTAWA (CP) — Tenders will be opened Sept. 18 on proposals by private enterprise to change Frobisher Bay on Baffin Island from just another Arctic settlement into a modern community.

The northern development department has asked for bids from contractors to erect an office building, a shopping centre, a hotel, houses, apartments and recreational facilities in the community 1,200 miles north of Montreal.

In return, the government will guarantee occupancy of the office building, most of the housing and apartments and a fixed number of rooms in the hotel.

It is the biggest building program proposed for a Canadian Arctic community since the Diefenbaker government established the modern town of Inuvik in the Western Arctic at a cost of about $55,000,000 in the late 1950s.

Inuvik, administrative centre for the Western Arctic, was created at government expense. This time the government hopes to get rid of the headaches and troubles it has experienced as a landlord in the North by giving private enterprise a chance to make a profit from northern investment.

More than six years ago the federal government announced plans for a multi-million-dollar development of Frobisher Bay.

But the withdrawal of the United States Air Force from Frobisher and its gift to Canada of a large Strategic Air Command base there led the government to abandon the plans and set up headquarters in a four-storey SAC building.

Plans to locate a $4,000,000-plus vocational and academic training centre for Baffin Island Eskimos in Frobisher Bay brought on the decision to dust off plans for its development.

The SAC building now is to become a residence for pupils attending the new school.

Since the U.S. moved into Frobisher in 1942, the community has become tre largest Eskimo settlement in Northern Canada. Of its 1,800 residents, about 1,200 are Eskimo.

Both Eskimos and whites are slated to occupy the row housing and apartments and thus wipe out the impression of discrimination that the present widespread community now presents.

Humphrey Still Favored

Democrats: A Troubled Party Meets in A Confused City

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Democrats assembling in Chicago next Monday to name a presidential candidate are a troubled political party in a troubled city amid unprecedented confusion, uncertainty and concern about public safety.

Vice-President Hubert Humphrey remains favored to garner a majority of the 2,622 convention votes easily, although another public opinion poll shows that Humphrey fares worse against the Republicans than Senator Eugene McCarthy, his chief rival.

Otherwise, the portents for the four-day convention are murky on all counts.

The Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia has undermined efforts to put a more dovish plank into the party platform on a Vietnam settlement.

Perhaps 40,000 federal, state and city troops, police and secret service men are standing by to handle anticipated anti-war and Negro demonstrations in a racially-tense city.

The possible death of former president Dwight Eisenhower hangs over convention planning.

A telephone strike that has been in progress for three months has reduced communications to a bare minimum, sabotaged some facilities and prevented television coverage outside the barricaded convention hall. Most of the action may be outside.

Two-thirds of the taxis are on strike and Negro drivers on the public transit system are threatening to strike by Monday.

The International Amphitheatre, site of the convention, is surrounded by a steel fence, topped by barbed wire.

Tension inside the party runs high.

Hearings continue on a draft platform to put to the 3,099 delegates and their alternates. McCarthy supporters have threatened a fight on Vietnam unless a more peace-oriented policy emerges than has been indicated.

About 1,000 of the delegates face challenges on one count or another. Some are contested in the dogfight for delegate support between Humphrey and McCarthy.

More are being questioned on racial grounds.

There has been a complete blackout on what President Johnson plans to do at the convention.

There is increasing evidence that he has been masterminding the whole show, hence the lack of public knowledge on what the score is.

It is possible he could skip the convention, on grounds that he withdrew from politics when he announced March 31 he wasn't running again.

Others scoff at this prospect, noting his 60th birthday next Wednesday is an ideal occasion for a convention appearance.

Liske Hogtied

Poised and Balanced Argos Lassoo Stampeders

CALGARY (CP) — Since the start of last season, Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference have lived by the pass. Occasionally they have died by it.

Wednesday they died.

Toronto Argonauts, invaders from the Eastern Conference, put a strong rush on Calgary quarterback Peter Liske, intercepted three of his passes and embarrassed the Stampeders 19-7 before a record Calgary crowd of 23,280 fans.

The previous record attendance was 22,711 on Labor Day, 1965.

Stampeders coach Jerry Williams early this season said he wanted a strong running attack to balance his club's aerial offensive, but Wednesday, when the passing was less than great, there was no ground game to support it.

The Stampeders rushed for only 71 yards and gained 220 through the air. Liske completed 18 of 37 pass attempts—low for him—and the completions were missing when needed most.

Despite the loss, the Stamps remain in first place in the WFC, half a game ahead of Saskatchewan Roughriders. The win moved the Argos into a second-place tie in the EFC with Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

The Stampeders led 6-0 after the first quarter, but fell behind 14-6 by the half. Argos held a 15-7 lead after three quarters.

Mel Profit and Wally Gabler each scored a touchdown for the winners. Dave Mann converted both and added three singles. The other Toronto points came when Calgary punter Jim Furlong conceded a safety touch.

Calgary's lone touchdown came from Liske, with Larry Robinson adding a single.

Defensive back Dick Thornton picked off two Liske passes, returning one 60 yards to set up Gabler's touchdown.

The Toronto quarterback slipped over from the six on a broken play. He also had a 25-yard run on another broken play, and ended up with 50 yards rushing, tops on either team.

Ron Arends nipped the final Stampeder attempt at a rally with the third interception of the game.

The Argonauts showed the most balanced attack, picking up 171 yards rushing and 128 passing. They had 15 first downs; Calgary had 17.

Dave Mann had a good night punting, kicking singles of 53, 43 and 30 yards. In all he had 12 punts for an average of 49.2 yards.

The Argonauts complete their western swing Sunday with a game in Regina against Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Marlene Heads Team

MONTREAL (CP) — Marlene Stewart Streit, that oh-so-good golfer from Fonthill, Ont., gained more laurels Wednesday before the tournament was over.

Mrs. Streit headed the selections of the Canadian Ladies' Golf Association as one of the four members of Canada's team in the world championship Oct. 2-5 in Australia.

The CLGA announcement followed Mrs. Streit's expected victory over a gutsy Nova Scotian junior in the first round of the Canadian women's open golf championship over lush Kanawaki Golf Club in nearby Caughnawaga.

The CLGA picked the members during the first round of match play leading to a two-player scrap over 36 holes for the championship Saturday.

On the team with Mrs. Streit are Marilyn Palmer of Kamloops, B.C., Gayle Harvey Moore of New Westminster, B.C., and Dulcie Lyle of Montreal.

Alternates are Gail Bortwick of Ancaster, Ont., Betty Cole of Edmonton and Jocelyne Bourassa of Shawinigan, Que.

Wednesday—in a no-contest affair—Mrs. Streit won 7 and 5 over stubborn Mary McLellan, 18, of Truro, N.S.

Miss McLellan, in her last year as a junior and in her third Canadian women's open, said she learned a lesson by playing with Streit.

"I learned the hole isn't over until the ball is in the cup," she said. "I thought I was dead a few times until I started putting."

Miss McLellan said she was nervous Tuesday when the draw was announced, but "was okay" when play started Wednesday.

"I lost my drives on the 11th and 12th holes, but otherwise I played the best golf of my junior career," she said. "I was just hoping to give her a halfdecent match."

Meanwhile, the "name" golfers held their own in Wednesday's action.

Mrs. Borthwick—tied in second place in the qualifying round with Miss Palsifer, six strokes behind Mrs. Streit—defeated Marcia Redman of Calgary 5 and 4.

CN Combines Rally To Defeat Printers 7-6

A seventh-inning rally by the CNR Combines tied the series "A" playoffs in the Departmental Softball League at one game each as the Railroadmen dropped the Intelligencer Printers 7-6 Wednesday night.

The Intell had collected three runs in the third, including a homer by Terry Hiddleston, one in the fifth, and two in the sixth to lead the Combines 6-3 going into the bottom of the seventh.

But Intell pitcher Ron Culleton loaded the bases and Combine hitters Arthurs and Craig dropped in doubles to send the winning four runs home.

Culleton took the loss, allowing seven runs on seven hits and one Intell error. Conway of the Combines had the win by allowing the Intell six tallies on eight hits and three CNR errors.

Culloden struck out one and walked five while Conway walked none and struck out two.

Arthurs led the winners with a double and two singles and Schreiber and Craig collected doubles. Schwarzer and Conway had singles.

Hiddleston added a single to his homer to lead the Intell batters. Rod Bennett had a single and a double and John Edwards had a double. Randy Johnstone had two singles and catcher Bill Bourette hit a single.

Landscapers Bury Dixie Lee

The Barriage Landscapers women's softball team closed out its schedule Wednesday night with a 30-5 win over Dixie Lee.

Sandra Clause pitched for the winners and led the hitters with a homer. Sharon Hannah and Joanne Dafoe took the loss for Dixie Lee.

Pat Ouellet another homer for the winners and both Palmer, Barb McCracken, and Doreen Cook hit triples for Barriage.

Sports In Brief

REGINA (CP) — Bill Cline, 24, a quarterback and defensive halfback, was cut Wednesday from the roster of Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Canadian Football League's Western Conference. Dropping of Cline, an import player, leaves Ron Lancaster and Rick Cassata as first and second-string quarterbacks.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — American Jane Clark rode her six-year-old mare, Palbania, to victory in the first International Powder Puff Derby at Pittsburg's South Park Wednesday night. In a head-to-head race, Viola Thomas, 30, of Calgary and her five-year-old gelding Singing Prince, finished second.

Atlantic Open Has Tough U.S. Invaders

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Watch out for the New Englanders when the Atlantic Open begins Friday.

Slick professionals from south of the border have been dumping homegrown golfers on Maritime courses in recent years with as much abandon as their ancestors plopped tea in Boston harbor.

And there's a quartet of New England pros, all with experience and laurels in Eastern Canada, setting their sights on the $5,000 prize money up for grabs in the initial running of the 54-hole Atlantic Open.

Jay Dolan of Worcester, Mass., has to be rated a major threat to carry off first-place cash of $1,250. He won the Atlantic open's predecessor, the Maritime open at Saint John, N.B. in 1967 and the $1,000 Dartmouth, N.S., open yesterday.

Other contending United States entries are Bruce Dobie, also of Worcester, winner of this summer's Island open at Charlottetown; Joe Carr of Worcester, another top competitor in the Dartmouth open and past Maritime tournaments; and Ron LeClair of Poland, Me.

The only prize the Americans won't be after is qualification for the championship at Woodbridge, Ont., next month that will wind up the 1968 Canadian professional golf tour. Only Canadian pros can chase that goal and the $15,000 prize money.

The Atlantic Open, ninth leg on the 10-tournament tour, will decide the final half of the 12 berths available in the championship. Six spots already have been filled.

Present qualifiers are Will Homenuik of Winnipeg, Alvie Thompson of Thornhill, Ont., Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver, Trevor Bateman of Montreal, Bill Wakeham of Victoria, and Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont.

Only Norman is entered in the Atlantic open, being played over the Moncton Golf and Country Club's 6,185-yard course. But fans joined by 50 other seasoned pros and 79 amateurs whom tournament officials expect will shatter the course par of 70 and perhaps even the competitive record of 64 set by LeClair in 1966.

Other pros to watch in the three-day open include Maritimers Lawrence (Buck) O'Brien of Dartmouth, N.S.; M. J. (Mousie) Dowling of the host club, Jack Munroe of New Glasgow, N.S., Cecil Dowling of Charlottetown and Jackie Bryant of Halifax.

Then there are the point chasers, the pros leading in the race for enough points to win a spot in the tour championship: Topping the pack are Bobby Cox, Jr., of Kelowna, B.C., with 79.75 points; Stan Homenuik, Dauphin, Man., 62; Bob Breen, Woodbridge, 55.25; John Hendrick, Montreal, 43.70; William Wright, Jr., Edmonton, 43; and Len Harvey, Regina, 40.

Of course they'll all be shooting for a win, which means automatic qualification.

Als Say It's Tough But Won't Roll Over

MONTREAL (CP) — Winless Montreal Alouettes meet the undefeated Ottawa Rough Riders tonight and Alouettes coach Kay Dalton admits it's a case of an encounter with Goliath.

"They've got the best team in the country," Dalton says. "An excellent quarterback, an experienced club with almost no green rookies, great speed with those receivers and a good defence."

Dalton, however, isn't sure his Alouettes—defeated 27-10 by Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Conference and 34-25 by Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Conference—will play David in their encounter with the EFC steamroller.

"I'll tell you this: You either put a rush on Russ Jackson and hurry him or lie back and defend against the pass."

Against Jackson, Dalton has Carroll Williams, who he says is improving as he gains confidence.

Dalton credits Williams with technical improvement, "the things that we could teach him."

"That's straightforward.

"The academic part is tough. That's what takes time. It isn't only reading the defence, it's being able to recognize a defence and then react immediately. It's understanding that each play attempted should have a decent chance of succeeding, that you must try to operate away from the opposition strength."

Ottawa coach Frank Clair feels his team has improved in morale, conditioning and speed since the Rough Riders lost the Grey Cup to Hamilton last year. His star defensive player, Vic Washington, who has also scored three touchdowns this year, went to Ogdensburg, N.Y., Monday to try to change his U.S. military draft status.

Washington wants to transfer his draft registration from Plainfield, N.J., to Ogdensburg and join the military reserves, which would leave him available to the Rough Riders for the football season.

"We think he'll clear up his draft situation," Clair says. "He has a good ease, being the sole support for his mother, who's in the hospital, and a two-year-old brother."

Asks Ellis To Wear 6

TORONTO (CP) — Right winger Ron Ellis of Toronto Maple Leafs will wear a different uniform number during the next National Hockey League season at the suggestion of former Leaf star Ace Bailey.

Bailey suggested Ellis wear No. 6—the number Bailey wore during his career. It has been used since 1933, when Bailey's career was ended because of an injury.

Bombers Shy One Import

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers may have to play one import short in Sunday's Western Football Conference game against B.C. Lions in Vancouver.

Halfback Butch Pressley and utility lineman Fred Levinsky went on the 30-day injury list Tuesday. Pressley dislocated his shoulder last Sunday against Calgary Stampeders and Levinsky has a vertebra problem at the base of his neck.

Pirates High With 19-1 Win

Hitters Take Giant Swings and Pitchers Reel in Dismay

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The whiff turned into the wham and the basepaths looked like freeways as the National League Wednesday offered the day of the hitter in this year of the pitcher.

The five winning teams banged out 93 hits and scored 64 runs in six games. Even the losing clubs managed 50 hits.

Chicago Cubs and San Francisco Giants started the barrage in the afternoon. The Cubs whipped Atlanta 5-4 and 13-5 and the Giants trounced New York Mets 13-3.

Pittsburgh climaxed the assault at night with a 19-1 walloping of Cincinnati. In between, St. Louis topped Philadelphia 8-3 and Houston ripped Los Angeles 6-1.

Pittsburgh's 19 runs were high for the majors this season. So were the Pirates 23 hits.

Matty Alou and Gene Alley both collected four hits and Manny Mota, Roberto Clemente and Bill Mazeroski three apiece for the Pirates.

Don Clendenon accounted for five Pittsburgh runs with a three-run homer and a double. Alley drove in three and Alou, Jose Pagan, Mota, Mazeroski and Clemente two each. Clemente hit solo homers his first two at-bats.

Billy Williams drove in two runs with a pair of singles in the Cubs' first-game victory and then sent home seven more in the nightcap with a two-run homer, a single, sacrifice fly and a double.

However Ernie Banks was the big blaster for the Cubs in the opener. The 31-year-old veteran hit a bases-empty homer in the first inning, and with the Cubs trailing 4-2 climaxed a three-run seventh with a two-run blast.

In the second game, the Cubs, who had trailed 3-0, went ahead to stay 7-5 on Williams' two-run single in the sixth.

Willie Mays highlighted a six-run San Francisco fifth inning with a two-run homer, his 16th of the season and 580th of his career, and Juan Marichal coasted to his 23rd victory of the season.

Phil Gagliano and Tim McCarver both singled in two runs in St. Louis' victory over Philadelphia. The Cardinals took a 4-3 lead in the fifth on run-scoring singles by Gagliano, Bob Tolan and Roger Maris.

Rusty Staub provided the big bat for Houston, whose 10 hits were the lowest total for any winning team. Staub singled home one of two runs in the third and then singled in a pair in the fifth.

Scoring Attempt Fails

New York Mets Larry Stahl is about to be tagged out by San Francisco Giants catcher Dick Dietz during first inning of Mets-Giants game Wednesday at Shea Stadium in New York. Yankee Pitcher Has Instant Sleep Malady

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Al Downing hopes Minnesota's Mayo Clinic can do as much for his sleeping habits as Minnesota's Twins have done for his pitching groove.

The little New York left-hander, plagued by chronic arm trouble since spring training, stymied Minnesota hitters for 8 1-3 innings Wednesday night and earned only his second victory of the season as the Yankees edged the Twins 2-1.

Today Downing will re-enter the Mayo Clinic, where his pitching arm passed doctors' tests two days ago, for the examination of another problem—his mysterious inclination toward instant daytime slumber.

Downing has trouble sleeping at night but can doze off at the drop of a hat in mid-day. The Mayo specialists have diagnosed his condition as narcolepsy, a controllable ailment remotely akin to sleeping sickness. They suspect there may be some relation between his sleeping pattern and arm miseries.

While Downing bolstered Yankee hopes for a first division finish, the Detroit's American League leaders moved a step closer to their first pennant since 1945 by nipping Chicago 3-2 on Jim Price's pinch homer in the 10th inning.

Second-place Baltimore nipped California 4-3 in 15 innings and remained seven games off the pace. Cleveland trimmed Boston 8-2 for Horacio Pina's first win in league victory.

Downing, who spent one month on the disabled list and another in the minors trying to regain his form, held the Twins hitless until the sixth and took a two-hit shutout into the ninth when Bob Allison's 13th homer brought Lindy McDaniel out of the bullpen to nail down the victory.

Rocky Colavito's eighth-inning homer off Jim Kaat broke a scoreless deadlock and Rich Rollins' bases-loaded error in the top of the ninth gave New York the run that proved decisive.

Price, a reserve catcher, broke a 2-2 tie at Detroit with his second homer of the year, a one-out shot off Wilbur Wood in the 10th. Mickey Stanley's eighth-inning homer had knotted it for the Tigers.

Boog Powell broke up the Orioles-Angels marathon with a run-scoring single in the 15th after Mark Belanger walked, stole second and took third on catcher Ed Kirkpatrick's wild throw.

Frank Robinson and Don Buford homered for Baltimore, staking Dave McNally to a 3-0 lead, but the Angels tied it in the fifth on a two-out walk, Rick Reichardt's triple and Bubba Morton's double.

The Indians supported Pina, a 21-year-old right-hander making his first start, with an eight-run uprising in the fifth that knocked out Boston's Jim Lonborg.

Pina gave up eight hits and struck out seven, but needed last-out relief help from Vicente Romo. Chico Salmon, Dave Nelson and Joe Azcue drove in two runs apiece in the fifth with a homer, triple and single.

Czech Invasion Worries Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The invasion of Czechoslovakia by Soviet-bloc forces has brought new worries today to the committee organizing the Mexico Olympic Games.

The games, scheduled for Mexico City Oct. 12-27, have had their share of international political problems. Now there is a threat some countries will be so upset by the Soviet action they will refuse to compete against the Russians.

Sweden, Norway and Denmark announced Wednesday in Stockholm they were cancelling their participation in various European events scheduled for this month or September in which their athletes were to complete with athletes from the Soviet Union or East Germany.

The Mexican organizing committee declined comment on whether the Soviet Union could be barred from the Games because of its invasion of Czechoslovakia. Under the rules of the International Olympic Committee, Mexico has invited every country which is a member of the IOC. The Soviet Union is a member.

Food Is the Topic

The Hon. Wm. A. Stewart, Ontario Minister of Agriculture and Food, is shown one of the displays that line the entrance to the CNE exhibit, agriscope, by Susan Ajeva of Hillier and Eleanor Wilman of Belleville. Mr. Stewart met the two pretty hostesses at the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food exhibit along with other dignatories and spectators on opening night of the Ontario Government Building.

Financial Battle Brews in England

LONDON (CP) — A surprise takeover bid for English Electric Co. Ltd., which has important holdings in Canada, is stirring predictions of a big new financial battle in Britain's electrical industry.

The prospect develops while business circles here are still sizing up the consequences of last year's bitterly-fought bid by General Electric Co. of Britain for Associated Electrical Industries Ltd., which ended in a GE victory.

In the new move, announced Wednesday, the bidder is the Plessey Co. Ltd., which—although much smaller than the object of its attentions.

Plessey, a specialist in telecommunications and electronics, has estimated assets of $300,000,000 as against $1,000,000,000 for English Electric.

The bigger firm has a 51-per-cent share in Canadian Marconi Co. of Montreal and 56 per cent of John Inglis Co. Ltd., Toronto. It also is involved in the Montreal-based Canmar Investment Co. Ltd.

Success for the bid, said to be worth about $270,000,000, would mean creation of the biggest electronics and electrical firm in Britain and the third largest in Europe.

Forecasts of a battle followed a statement by Lord Nelson of Stafford, English Electric's chairman, that "at first sight I cannot see the strength of the financial logic behind the Plessey proposal."

"The proposal would place the control and management of these very broad interests (owned by English Electric) in the hands of a company whose experience is limited to the electronics and telephone field," Nelson added.

John Clark, Plessey managing director, said that "the two companies in trouble would be in a much stronger position to compete with the major international giants."

His firm also argues that it has much to offer a merged enterprise in the way of managerial skill which has meant profits and high investment rating.

Plessey contends that Britain's electric and electronic industry continues to be "overfragmented."

Stocks Down

Grain Trade Drying Up

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's grain export trade out of Montreal could dry up within a week because of the strike of Lakehead grain handlers, national harbors board officials said Wednesday.

They said stocks in the port's elevators are down to 8,796,102 bushels, of which only 1,000,000 are earmarked for export and the rest for domestic use.

With ocean going grain ships averaging a 400,000-bushel capacity, the export stock could be cleared by three ships with space left over for the supplementary trickle still coming through to Montreal from the Great Lakes.

Officials said a closedown of grain exports from Montreal is almost inevitable even if the strike of 1,300 grain handlers at the Lakehead is resolved quickly.

But one NHB spokesman said, the four-week grain handlers strike is only one factor in an over-all bad year for grain exports. Reduced overseas grain orders, general adverse economic conditions and the four-week strike of St. Lawrence Seaway Authority workers in June and July have helped reduce grain exports from Montreal this year to a total of 20,378,632 bushels at Aug. 12 compared with 51,565,361 at the same date last year.

Total grain export out of Montreal in 1967 was 70,910,709 bushels and that was almost 20 per cent down on the 129,000,000 in 1966.

Going by figures to date, 1968 could be one of Canada's worst grain export years in recent times in terms of shipments from Montreal.

To show that the grain handlers strike and the seaway strike were not the only factors causing the bad year, a NHB official cited the figures for grain exports up to the beginning of June, when labor troubles began —7,000,000 bushels compared with 22,000,000 in June 1967.

Alternative grain movement by rail has made little difference to Montreal.

"Ninety per cent of the grain arriving here by rail comes from Ontario and that's not what's affected by the strike," he said.

W. C. McNamara, chief commissioner of the Canadian Wheat board, said Tuesday some of the 15,000,000 bushels normally held in Georgian Bay elevators for winter supplies have been moved by rail to Montreal at an additional cost to the farmer of nine cents a bushel.

The NHB spokesman said that if this were so it could not amount to much. Total rail shipments into Montreal since Jan. 1 were 419,303 bushels at July 15 and at Aug. 15 they were 328,749. At Aug. 15, 1967, the figure was 1,217,865.

Even without the strikes, grain movements to Montreal were running 45 to 47 per cent below 1967. The total received in the port at July 15 was 43,594,016 bushels compared with 82,314,453 at the same date in 1967.

Russian Consulate at Montreal and Ottawa Embassy Stoned

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadians moved into the streets in Montreal and Ottawa Wednesday to protest the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Stones were hurled through windows at the Russian consulate in Montreal. A window was smashed and paint splashed on the Russian embassy in Ottawa.

In Toronto, hurried preparations were made to assemble 200 members of the city's Czech-Canadian community for a march on Ottawa today to seek federal influence in the United Nations to ease the crisis.

In Ottawa, two policemen looked on as 30 demonstrators paraded before the Soviet Embassy with signs reading: "Russia Get Out." "Stalin Lives," and "Shame." The demonstrators said no group or organization had arranged the protest.

In Montreal, stones were hurled through windows at the Russian consulate only hours after first reports of the invasion. Later, crowds of placard-carrying demonstrators chanting anti-Soviet slogans gathered outside.

More than 200 students and members of the Quebec New Democratic Party paraded in front of the consulate, then marched to the Czech consulate to deliver a letter declaring "unconditional support" of the invaded country.

In Toronto, where an estimated 8,000 Czechoslovak-Canadians live, a spokesman said the Czech community was in "complete turmoil" over the Russian take-over.

Toronto socialists planned a protest rally in front of city hall this afternoon to criticize the intervention as "a severe blow to international socialism."

The Canadian Communist party said it would not issue a statement of the crisis until Friday.

University of Western Ontario students in London, Ont., will meet to protest the Russian take-over.

A student spokesman said the move was initiated by both faculty and students seeking active co-operation from other campus groups, including the student committee to end the war in Vietnam.

Stanfield Deplores Russian Move--in French

QUEBEC (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield is so deeply immersed in a "total immersion" French course that he would not accept an English-language newspaper, Wednesday.

A reporter seeking comment on Russia's invasion of Czechoslovakia took two newspapers to the Opposition leader's "linguistic retreat" to enable him to read the latest developments.

He accepted Le Soleil, the provincial capital's evening daily, but said his French teachers wouldn't approve of his reading the Montreal Gazette.

A language professor at the Canadian government's school for civil servants and MPs said the 'total-immersion process breaks down the instant another language slips in.

"After five minutes in English, it takes us 30 minutes to get a student back on the track," said one of the former Nova Scotia premier's teachers.

Mr. Stanfield, here for two weeks, spoke French only during a brief, between-lessons interview. His French has improved remarkably since his first political appearances in Quebec in the leadership campaign.

He said the Czech invasion is "a defeat for Russia" because world public opinion would turn against communism. Communist parties in France, Italy and elsewhere would suffer.

THE PICK OF Punch

"Try and look a bit more authentic."

Robarts Shocked

MOOSONEE, Ont. (CP) — Premier John Robarts said Wednesday he was shocked at the invasion of Czechoslovakia but expressed hope the Czech people will still have an opportunity to achieve freedom.

The premier, touring Polar Bear provincial park north of here with Tourism Minister James Auld, issued a brief statement after hearing news reports of the invasion by short-wage radio in a bush camp some 200 miles north of here.

"I am sure I speak for all of the people of Ontario when I say how shocked we all are by the events which have taken place in Czechoslovakia," he said.

"Our hearts and sympathy go out to the people of that brave country and it is our sincere hope that they will have the opportunity to achieve the freedom they have been seeking."

The statement was transmitted by short-wave to this James Bay community of 1,500.

Nixon, Wallace Will Benefit From Invasion

WASHINGTON (CP) — Under the aspect that any Communist show of repression strengthens the hand of the right wing in the United States, it is clear that any good blown by the ill wind out of Prague will benefit Richard Nixon and George Wallace.

The sudden Soviet-bloc invasion of Czechoslovakia has sent new shock waves through this already tumultuous U.S. election year and the repercussions will be felt far beyond the political arena.

It casts a pall over the Vietnam peace talks in Paris. It makes the goal of a U.S.-Soviet disarmament agreement even more distant. It brings a bolder ring to President Johnson's recent talk of "building bridges" between East and West.

The doves, spearheaded by Senator Eugene McCarthy's campaign for the Democratic party's presidential nomination on a peace platform, have suffered a shattering setback.

The back-room battle among Democrats over a Vietnam plank form, expected to be carried to the floor of the party's four-day national convention beginning in Chicago next Monday, now seems almost academic in the face of the new crisis in Europe.

Now the extreme right-wingers have been given a new lease. Their argument will be that the Reds now are showing their true color—that things haven't changed since the Soviet suppression of the Hungarian revolution of 1956.

Some see Wallace, segregationist former governor of Alabama running a strong independent "third-party" campaign, as possibly cornering much of the right-wing vote in the Nov. 5 presidential election with this line of debate.

If any generality is safe, it may be said the Republicans consistently take a much harder line toward the Communist world than do the Democrats, who already were looking to greater U.S.-Soviet contact once Vietnam was out of the way.

Banff Parley Is Disrupted

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Delegates to the conference on world affairs here discarded prepared speeches and cancelled appearances Wednesday in the wake of rapidly changing condition in eastern Europe.

George Ignatieff, Canadian ambassador to the United Nations, was unable to make a scheduled visit to the conference where he was to speak on "some cold comforts about the cold war."

The theme of the conference was relaxation of tension between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Doing Fine

Five-year-old Maria Giannaris of Hargerstown, Md. is doing fine as she recovers in the special heart transplant section of the intensive care unit at Texas Children's Hospital at Houston. Maria received the heart of an 11-year-old boy early Sunday morning and became the second child to receive a transplant. (AP Photo)

Police Seek Wire-tapping Conference

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Delegates at the Ontario Police Association convention called Wednesday for an immediate conference at federal and provincial levels to consider the question of electronic eavesdropping.

Earlier the 200 delegates, representing 12,000 Ontario policemen, passed a resolution pledging opposition to a Canadian Bar Association resolution restricting "bugging."

The bar association will meet in Vancouver Sept. 2 and will consider a resolution asking for the outlawing of all forms of eavesdropping, including wire-tapping, with the possible exception of use by police under strict judicial control.

Criticizing the bar association resolution, OPA members said the vague definition of "eavesdropping" could hamper their use of standard police radios, telephone tape recorder and burglar detection devices. Delegates said criminals now have all the advantages in the electronic war. Anyone can buy a radio to tune into police broadcasts.

Ronald Bevan of St. Catharines, president of the OPA, said police should be allowed to use sophisticated electronic equipment though they should not necessarily fix guidelines for the use of wiretaps. He said "sure and positive justification" should be provided before electronic eavesdropping is used.

In other business delegates unanimously supported the stand of Ontario Attorney-General Arthur Wishart on the use of the riot-control chemical, Mace.

Delegates agreed Mace, an incapacitating spray, should not be used until a scientific report being prepared by the attorney-general's department is complete. A number of Ontario police forces have stockpiled the chemical.

The system by which provincial Police can take over police duties in small towns was vigorously criticized.

Delegates voted to ask the Ontario government to take over the costs of policing small towns instead of disbanding the municipal forces. They pointed out that displaced policeman, especially former OPP men, find it hard to get other jobs. The OPP, delegates said, did not rehire men who quit the force.

Sgt. Bevan estimated 100 members of small-town police forces could lose their jobs in the near future.

Some Police Cars Have $1 Test Tires

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Police cars in some Ontario towns are fitted with $1 test tires which can "blow right off the rim after 20 miles", delegates to the Ontario Police Association convention charged Wednesday.

Penalties for Delaying Arbitration Urged

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Delegates at the Ontario Police Association convention meeting in Windsor said Wednesday police commissions should face penalties for delaying arbitration procedures.

Delegates claimed some commissions have ignored the Ontario Police Act time limits on arbitration.

Under the act both police association and commission must appoint their arbitration representatives within 30 days after notifying each other of their intentions.

One policeman at the meeting said commissions have delayed appointing their members for as long as three months.

A delegate from Barrie said the Barrie municipality was buying test tires in an effort to save money.

The tires are sold at nominal rates to organizations which keep records of mileage and have regular tire maintenance schemes and tire rotation. In return for the cheap test tires the tire company gets information about the tire performance.

Dennis Lattea, permanent administrator for the OPA, confirmed the Barrie delegates' statements. He said probably six police departments within a 200- to 300-mile radius of Barrie were using test tires.

The Great Are Never Solemn

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

If we poll the public on raising or lowering taxes, the majority opt for lower taxation; If we poll the public on better hospitals, the majority opt for them — but the real problem is to bring the two together so the public becomes aware of the necessary consequence of the things it wants in terms of the things it doesn't want.

Our desire for intimacy is equalled only by our fear of closeness; and much of the love-hate relationship so common between men and women is due to the fact that closeness threatens precisely what intimacy desires.

Whatever other differences they may have, there is one unfailing identifying mark among great people — they are never solemn; they may be serious, or grave, or as devout as a cathedral, but they are not solemn as others are, for they retain the gaiety and clarity of childhood that is one source of their mysterious powers.

The "religion" of the 21st Century, if we survive to that era, will be so different from anything known in the previous 20 centuries that the men of that time will call ours the "pre-religious" period when the unifying principle was used mainly to separate people from one another in the most agonizing distortion of God's word.

We must recognize that when we are made happy with a little praise, we are then vulnerable to be made morose with a little censure; and it is not worth the price, for generally praise does not please us as long as censure wounds us.

Perhaps the one maxim in the world that everyone will agree upon is that prevention is better than cure — yet 90 per cent of the world's activities are devoted to repairing the ravages that were not prevented, and seeking for cures while we pursue the same regimen that produced the diseases, like holding "peace talks" when we fail to renounce war.

Only women and fanatics are addicted to the use of the exclamation point in writing; women because they are naturally effusive, and fanatics because they are unnaturally abusive.

In a well-ordered society, most men rise to the top through their own industry and ingenuity; in a poorly-ordered one, through the foolishness and gullibility of others.

Sophistication is necessary, but dangerous; for as soon as we realize that there is something good in all evil and evil in all good, we begin hunting ardently for the good in that evil we wish to commit.

It is doubtless temperamental on both our parts, but a man who talks as much and as fast as Hubert Humphrey always arouses my suspicion that he is trying to overwhelm my thinking process rather than stimulate it.

FROG SCARES PEOPLE

The discovery of a deformed frog with 19 legs in Okinawa spread fear among residents of poisoning by radioactive materials.

Survey Asks Is It Right To Fight for Your Country

HAMILTON (CP) — Some 400 Hamilton area residents are being asked whether it is right or wrong to fight for your country.

The survey by the McMaster University sociology department is designed to find how attitudes are influenced by a person's age, sex, religion, marital status, education, travel experience and socio-economic class.

The question is one of 32 on nationalism, prejudice, immigration and human rights in a questionnaire mailed to people chosen at random from a voters' list.

All replies are confidential, said Christopher Podmore, who is conducting the survey as part of a program for the degree of doctor of philosophy.

Each questionnaire is identified by a number, but the number will only be used to check to find which people have not replied so they may be asked to reconsider, Mr. Podmore said.

He added that the original replies will be destroyed once they have been transfered to computer cards and said all replies will be treated confidentially.

Sugar in Candy Not Only Danger

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: Would you explain why sorbitol makes your sugar go up when you have diabetes? I was eating diet candy and ice creams and my sugar shot up to over 300, although I was keeping on my diet otherwise.

Then a friend went to a hospital and was told that any diet candy was as hard on you as any candy, which seemed to be true with both of us.

I quit eating the candy and my sugar dropped to 110. — V. B.

Well, the answer to your problem may be useful to other diabetics who have to learn that "diet foods" have to be handled with some discrimination.

Sorbitol is a type of sugar, and used to sweeten things. It is chemically different from the commoner sugars — glucose (dextrose) or sucrose (cane sugar). In its chemical breakdown it ends up as fructose, which does not require insulin for utilization by the body, or as a small amount of glucose.

Thus, so far as the sorbitol is concerned, it is better for a diabetic who does not produce enough insulin for his needs. Indeed, tests show that most amounts of sorbitol do not increase the blood sugar level.

But there's the joker. These so-called "diet"-candies, or cookies or other goodies, still contain other ingredients which indirectly or directly increase the sugar load in the system.

Chocolate is one such ingredient, but there are others. Read the labels carefully and you will find a relatively large amount of carbohydrate of one sort or another. Carbohydrate, of course, converts into glucose.

So you see that the sugar in sweets isn't the only ingredient that you have to watch out for. The other materials add calories, and in turn add to blood sugar. Consequently, your rise in blood sugar may not have been due to the sorbitol, but to the rest of the stuff in the candy and ice cream.

These so-called "diet" confections may be somewhat lower in calories than the regular products, but they should be used with thoughtful caution if at all by diabetics.

Dear Dr. Molner: I know of a local man who was critically burned but was able to spend his last days free of pain through the use of hypnosis. Why isn't this used more? Wouldn't it be useful for cancer cases? — J. M.

First, qualified hypnosists are not always available. Second, hypnosis, while useful when employed by people who really understand its use, is not a panacea. Some people just do not accept it.

Finally, effective drugs are available for the majority of cases. However, if an expert hypnosist is available I see no objection to trying it for control of pain if it is such that drugs are not effective.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible to become pregnant while menstruating? I am 24 and made a bad mistake with a man. He said I could not possibly be pregnant because of the time in the menstrual cycle but I am now a week overdue and scared to death. — M. C.

You cannot become pregnant while menstruating; your anxiety and remorse are probably the factor which influenced the delayed period.

The Play's the Thing, Kids!

Audience crowds close to the stage as Belleville Theatre Guild players unfold melodrama at Parkdale Community Centre last night. Fact they had to sit on the floor didn't faze the young audience. It just added to the enjoyment of a fun-filled evening.

A peak point in Belleville Theatre Guild playground presentation at Parkdale last night, as with suitable melodrama villain's victim Hugh Remmer is carried from scene by Joan Guthrie (left), Hugh Charlebois and Margaret Anderson.

Sharp Rebukes Russians

OTTAWA (CP) — Yesterday Canada's Minister of External Affairs, Mitchell Sharp, sharply rebuked the five communist countries which invaded Czechoslovakia.

"We condemn this use of force," he said. "The invasion and occupation of Czechoslavakia constitute a flagrant breach of the principle of non-intervention, to which the Soviet Union itself professes to subscribe."

Later Mr. Sharp handed a copy of the protest to senior diplomats of all of the attacking countries except East Germany, with which Canada has no diplomatic relations.

For Ivan Shpeko, the big and gruff Soviet ambassador, it was the second formal explanation of the day of his country's action. In the morning he had called on Acting Prime Minister Hellyer, who has maintained public silence on the crisis.

Mr. Shpeko, after his call on Mr. Sharp, said Soviet troops will be withdrawn when "the threat to Czech security is eliminated" and Czech leaders request their withdrawal.

He did not say which Czech leaders he meant.

The Czech embassy meanwhile said the invasion was a brutal violation of international law and the UN Charter, and that no Czech legislative body had consented to or asked for the intervention.

Asked whether Canada would admit Czech refugees as it admitted Hungarian rebels after the 1956 uprising—Mr. Sharp said:

"Canada has always had the welcome mat out to people of this kind, but we don't know now whether there will be great numbers who would want to come to Canada—or indeed, who would be permitted to come."

Theatre Guild Sparks Playground Production

It's always playtime at Belleville's outdoor recreation areas.

This week the term has taken a newer — and more boisterous — significance for the hundreds of youngsters plying the city's summer playgrounds.

Responsible for the change is the Belleville Theatre Guild which is highlighting the final days of playground activity with a production specially designed for young audiences.

Dubbed "The Lighthouse-keeper's Daughter" the little presentation is a melodrama in mime with all the stock characters, — a heroine, a villain and an upright hero.

The reaction is also stock—exactly what the venture was designed for.

In the grand old tradition, the audience participates in the stage action — booing, hissing and cheering where needed.

It's spontaneous and it's fun — at least if audience reaction is any indication.

So far the playlet has enjoyed two presentations — at East Hill playground and, last night, at Parkdale Community Centre. Sunday, at 7 p.m. it plays at Zwick's Island.

THEIR TRIUMPHS and THEIR TRAGEDIES

The triumphs and tragedies of the Kennedys during their progress from famine-stricken Ireland to seats of power in Wall Street and Washington has been one of the most amazing family epics of this era.

Now for the first time it has all been put together in one handsome hardback, lavishly illustrated book. It was produced by outstanding writers, editors and photographers of the world's largest news gathering organization—The Associated Press. This organization, of which your newspaper is a member, is the one that turned out the classic account of the assassination of President Kennedy—The Torch Is Passed—which sold nearly 4 million copies.

To reserve your copy of the new book, or of the old, you should fill out and mail the coupon at once with your check.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices picked up in light mid-morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today after a sharp drop Wednesday. Western oils led the advance. Gains outran losses 144 to 106.

Brokers said the market may have already absorbed the news of the Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia, but price levels will depend on what happens on Wall Street in New York which was closed Wednesday.

One of the busiest brokerage firms said they were handling virtually no sell orders, and expected the market to recover swiftly.

Among the most active traders, Bow Valley jumped 2 to 24¼, Canadian Goldale ¼ to 30 and Canadian Breweries ¼ to 9¼. Abitibi slipped ⅛ to 17¼.

Canadian Tire lost 1¼ to 58.

Soviet Move Renews Cold War And May Touch Off Red Crisis

An AP News Analysis
By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press Correspondent

In one swift stroke, the Soviet Union has reimposed the cold war, altered the course of politics around the globe and possibly even ignited the long fuse of a major crisis in world communism.

The sudden invasion of Czechoslovakia makes it abundantly clear that Moscow's hawks prevailed over its doves in the ruling Soviet politburo. This in itself has the elements of a future internal Soviet political crisis.

Moscow has served notice on Communist countries in its orbit that none can hope to escape from the Soviet grip.

An official statement said "the fraternal parties"—meaning the Kremlin—"will never allow anyone to drive a wedge between Socialist states, to undermine the foundations of the Socialist system."

The statement is likely to cause some alarm in Romania, whose Communist regime, while adhering to strict party rule internally, has tended to go its own way in foreign and trade affairs.

It can even cause some alarm in Yugoslavia, whose leaders along with the Romanians, supported liberal Czechoslovaks.

The invasion has severely set back, and perhaps destroyed, hopes of East-West accord in the near future to remove world tensions or to scale down the nuclear-weapons race.

It is bound to place American troops on the alert in Korea and elsewhere.

It throws into doubt Soviet plans for an international Communist conference in Moscow in November, where the U.S.S.R. had hoped to patch some of the gaping holes in the fabric of what once was considered a monolithic world movement.

It probably will have a heavy impact on the U.S. political campaign. Displays of Soviet military might tend to unify Americans, just as they tend to frighten and unify the allies of the United States.

Moscow has taken what many around the world had discounted as an unthinkably rash step.

Various analysts had expected that the Soviet Union would apply all manner of pressure against the reform regime of the Czechoslovak Communist party to halt liberalization.

But invasion had been ruled out as something which would cost the Kremlin far more than it might gain.

Once again, the Kremlin has delivered a severe jolt to Communists outside its orbit. This was a move feared by parties such as those in France and Italy. For them it represents deep crisis.

They had been making headway by representing themselves as advocates of legal progress to power. The shock of the Soviet move can be costly to them.

Communist parties have been severely set back in the past by Soviet actions, such as the invasion of Finland before the Second World War, the Nazi-Soviet pact which opened the floodgates of war, the crushing of the Hungarian revolution in 1956.

Each time the recovery process for Communist parties has been longer and more difficult.

Internally, the Soviet leadership may have to pay a price.

It seems fairly clear that there was tense debate in the Soviet politburo over what to do about Czechoslovakia, involving hawks who wanted to crush the Czechoslovak reform movement quickly and doves who preferred the more cautious policy of waiting and applying pressure.

The argument seemed to have cal leaders of the Soviet Union: left in the middle the top politi- the party's general secretary, Leonid I. Brezhnev, and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

Hard-line Stalinists appeared to want immediate surgery to remove what they regarded as a threat in Czechoslovakia to Communist parties throughout the orbit.

Eventually, this can mean a shakeup at the top of the Soviet power structure. The hawks are supported by Soviet generals preoccupied with world power politics.

The lesson will be a harsh one for those forces inside the Soviet Union itself which had hoped for reforms in the Communist political system, and for a better life.

Before Tanks Came

There Were Many Reasons Why Czechs Wanted to Remain in Communist Bloc

By PETER BUCKLEY

MOSCOW (CP) — There were so many reasons why Alexander Dubcek's new reform government in Prague should want to remain a part of the Eastern European Communist bloc that many Czechs became exasperated only a few weeks ago when the topic kept coming up in conversations with Westerners.

But that was before the Soviet paratroops and tanks moved in to crush the budding liberal movement less than three weeks after it had been given tacit recognition at the Bratislava talks.

The East as seen from Prague represented oil and natural gas, iron ore and wheat—vital nourishment for a country with almost no natural resources of its own.

The East also meant hundreds of millions of potential customers for Czech manufactured goods—with a ready-made access which Western salesmen could only envy.

But even before the Soviet invasion, there had been persistent grumblings from press and politicians in East Germany, Poland and the Soviet Union about the Czech reforms, and equally-persistent rumors about Warsaw Pact troops movements that might threaten the Dubcek regime.

The comrades abroad were upset about the new outspokenness of the Czech press. They wondered how far Prague would go in easting aside cherished aspects of Marxism-Leninism.

But through all this discontent, the Dubcek government stuck to the main lines of its internal reform while insisting tirelessly that the country was firmly bound to its Eastern allies.

Along with their occasional exasperation, the Czechs showed a sense of humor about relations with the Soviet Union and other Eastern neighbors.

A Czech acquaintance remarked amiably that the first enterprise to profit from economic reform was Czechoslovak Airlines. So many high-level Czech delegations had been flying to Moscow and other Eastern capitals that the airline's Soviet-made aircraft had never been so busy.

While the Communist countries no longer seemed to believe that Czechoslovakia would desert its allies, they apparently still feared the effects of the Czech example on their own people.

The bitter diatribes from East Germany, the continual tut-tutting from Pravda and the rest of the Moscow press, and the warnings from Warsaw all reflected a largely-internal uncertainty.

Although deposed president Antonin Novtny was, with Walter Ulbricht of East Germany, the last of the Stalin-ers leaders in Eastern Europe, his country had long been considered somewhat "unusual."

Its geographical location is distinctly central to Europe rather than eastern. Although its people are Slavic in origin and have long had a sentimental attachment to pan-Slavic ideas, they seem basically more "European" than most other East-bloc nationalities.

Alone among the Communist countries, Czechoslovakia was a Western-style democratic republic before the Second World War. The Czechs have not forgotten.

Even before Dubcek took over, a Russian might have felt ill at ease here.

Despite the ritual pledges of "undying brotherhood and eternal friendship" a Russian visitor might have found that many Czechs have no great affection for the Russians as a people.

After 20 years of Soviet influence and despite a compulsory eight years of Russian lessons in the schools, he might find that he would be better off by far—to know German than Russian for communicating with the Czechs. A cruelier blow to a Russian would be hard to imagine.

For Soviet citizens, a holiday trip to Czechoslovakia was long considered almost as eye-opening as a trip to the West, so different are the people and cities and customs.

A landlocked country bordering on West and East Germany, Poland, the Soviet Union, Hungary and Austria, Czechoslovakia has an obvious importance to the Warsaw Pact.

The most crucial aspect, however, is economic—from both sides.

Czech economists—who are the souls of frankness on other topics—accused Western observers earlier this summer of myth-making when they proclaimed that Czechoslovakia gets the worst of trade deals with the Soviet Union.

"It's not true that the Soviets have come out better in trade with us," said Jaroslav Nykryn, one of the architects of economic reform. "I think quite the opposite is true."

"You can't do sound business on the basis of brotherly feelings, and our relations with the Socialist countries have been businesslike," said Karel Cerny, another leading economist.

"This is a market with enormous possibilities and we would be foolish to step out of it," said Nykryn. "Every foreign manufacturer insists our position is excellent and would like to change places."

One Czech observer recently analysed the situation with a typical touch of irony.

"It is as our leaders say—everything will remain exactly the same in our relations with the East. Except that there will be many changes."

Shirley Temple Stays Calm

PRAGUE (AP) — Shirley Temple Black said Wednesday: "I was awakened by machine-gun fire from a deep sleep. I thought it was a practice but then someone knocked on my door and told me we were occupied."

Mrs. Black, one-time child movie star, described in an interview how she found out about the occupation of Czecroslovakia by Soviet and other Warsaw pact troops.

She is in a hotel here on a visit in connection with her work on multiple sclerosis. She was due to leave to Copenhagen Wednesday, but all commercial flights were cancelled because of the occupation.

"I plan to leave when flights resume," she said, adding she was calm and not worried.

Distillers Seek Tax Change To End 'Subsidization' of Beer

TORONTO (CP) — The Association of Canadian Distillers has recommended a new method of taxing alcoholic beverages in Ontario that would end the "subsidization" of beer drinkers by those who prefer liquor.

In a release Wednesday, the association said it has recommended a tax of $17 per gallon of absolute alcohol in its submission to the Ontario legislature's select committee on taxation.

The committee now is meeting at Muskoka resort lodge considering its findings.

The association submission said that "under the present provincial taxing system the distilled spirits' consumers are subsidizing the beer consumer on the basis of alcohol consumed.".

It said that beer, which accounts for more than 25 per cent of the absolute alcohol sold in a year, provides only 13.54 per cent of the tax revenue while distilled spirits account for 84.46 per cent of tax revenue.

Wines, which provide about two per cent of the total revenue of about $150,000,000 annually, contain 7.44 per cent of all alcohol sold.

The submission said a standard 25-ounce bottle of liquor contains 10 ounces of absolute alcohol, a bottle of wine 3.38 ounces and a case of 24 bottles of beer 12.96 ounces.

The association is a trade organization comprising 10 firms and their associates or affiliates.

Judge Says Leniency Not Answer

MONTREAL (CP) — Sessions Judge Andre Fabien Wednesday turned a deaf ear to federal Health Minister Munro's recent hints for eased sentences for young people found possessing marijuana and related drugs as he sentenced a young first offender to two months in jail and lashed out at drug users.

Judge Fabien challenged Mr. Munro's statement made earlier this week in Regina that curious youths should not be scarred with criminal records for trying a drug.

"Once these kids know they will only get a suspended sentence the first time they are caught, then there will be nothing to stop them from trying it," he said.

The judge reiterated his new court policy, saying the only way to curb the existing epidemic of drug use is to clamp down hard on first offenders.

Your birthday today: The year ahead of you is one of modest but sound growth, probably in fresh fields of effort. There is not enough learned about the trends which are beginning. Today's natives tend to be sociable and industrious, and to diversify activities with various sets of friends.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Today is alive with new interests, young people, hobbies, and creative ideas. Pause a moment, think which comes first, and which can be deferred.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Nostalgia for long ago and far away builds slowly today but runs deep. Concentrate on the here-and-now to get more results. There is plenty of help near at hand.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): The emphasis today is on your home, what your basic convictions are, and what you are doing to strengthen these elements. The mood is for expansion.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): If you will discard narrow preconceived notions, unsuspected opportunity surrounds you. However, you must do your own observing, as nobody knows what to tell you. Get busy and look!

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your point of view on many things is apt to be supported and vindicated. Earnings are favored, too. Take it all in stride, no boasting.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Today is like a pressure cooker: you must develop or shrink in the stir of celestial energies at work this weekend. Strive for the positive. And speak up!

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Current planetary patterns relate to psychic development for you, such as changing perspectives and seeing commonplace events in their relative importance. This weekend contains many unexpected beginnings in your life.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): During the next days you are apt to feel tremendous emotional or idealistic drives. Your friends may bring you great excitement.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Reach for true merit today and the status symbols will take care of themselves. This can be an important weekend in your life. Keep your eye on the ball and pay no attention to the sideshows.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your view of life becomes philosophic this weekend as incidents give you understanding of why people do many things. Today is better for listening than for talking.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Consider your financial situation, and resolve to do more about it. Add to your savings. Think in terms of phases of development in relation to changing needs.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Competition has seldom been so strongly emphasized in your experience as during this weekend. Realize that it works both ways, and strive to carry your end of the bargain.

Sidney Mocks Planners--Beavis

Sidney Action Urged

Sidney councillors owe it to the ratepayers to put controls on random development in the township.

Councillor Horace Wright of Sidney made this comment this morning on the assertion of planning director P. J. Beavis that the minister of municipal affairs should step in if the township did not place subdivision control on portions of Sidney.

"If a community won't do what is necessary, the minister has no alternative but to step in and say: 'If you won't do it, we'll do it for you'", said Dr. R. T. Potter, Quinte MPP.

Crux of the problem, as Dr. Potter sees it, is provision of water for development of outlying areas.

"The Ontario Water Resources Commission suggested to bring water from Lake Ontario to supply Belleville, Trenton, Sidney and Ameliasburg," he explained. "Got knows we need it.

"Trenton and Belleville refused the proposal, and we can't develop Sidney without it. OWRC would construct the facilities and sell us the water, just as Ontario Hydro sells us electricity now.

"With the problems we have in these communities, this is an ideal area for regional government. We're missing a glorious opportunity because of lack of planning and lack of facilities that would come with proper planning," Dr. Potter concluded.

Ontario Urged To Intervene

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Sidney township council last night was charged with irregularity in land development which could lead to the weakening of local government in the Quinte area.

The Ontario minister of municipal affairs should be asked to step in and impose subdivision control on portions of Sidney if the township continues to drag its feet in planning matters, director P. J. Beavis told the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board last night.

In a four page report the planning director also charged that:

- Sidney township council is "making a mockery of planning board and the Ontario government."
- Land owners in the township "do not recognize the most elementary principles of land development."
- Present housing developments on two lots in concession 1 of Sidney will create a public health hazard, inflict financial hardship on township residents, and lead to sub-standard housing.

"This situation would not have arisen had township council heeded the repeated advice of planning board and representatives of the department of municipal affairs and had placed the area under subdivision control," Mr. Beavis claimed.

The area in question is two parcels of land, one abuting the west boundary of the Quinte Golf Club course and lying between Highway 2 and the CPR tracks, and a second parcel east of the houses fronting on Montrose Drive, and stretching between highway 2 and the CNR tracks to the north. Montrose Drive is west of the golf course.

People Will Die

Montrealer Fears Riots

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A Montreal police captain predicted Thursday that people will be killed this fall on Montreal streets unless provincial authorities publicly state they are prepared to meet insurrection with troops.

Capt. Jean-Paul Picard, president of the Montreal Police Brotherhood, said at the annual convention of the Ontario Police Association:

"People will die unless we (the police) are backed up."

He said at least two professional leaders of student riots in France are coming to Montreal to organize rioting.

Another Montreal delegate, not identified, said the two French leaders were Daniel Cohn-Bendit, a major figure in the paris student rioting, and Jacques Sauvageot.

In Montreal, a police spokesman said Montreal police were aware that French student leaders plan to visit Canada for talks with student leaders in this country.

But, he said, "we don't expect any trouble from them and if we do get trouble we think the Montreal police could handle it."

Czech President Flies to Moscow

Strike Staged

PRAGUE (CP) — Despite tougher policing measures by occupying forces, the Czech people staged a one-hour general strike to protest the occupation and imprisonment of some of their liberal leaders.

The Czechoslovak nationalist leaders elected a new, solidly Liberal central committee in a secret meeting Thursday night in their curfew-controlled capital.

The delegates re-elected Alexander Dubcek—the man who ended 20 years of Stalinist-type rule in Czechoslovakia last January—as their leader.

They named Venek Silhan, an economist, to head the party while Dubcek and other top leaders are Soviet captives.

Broadcasts heard abroad—apparently from amateur operators within Czechoslovakia—reported Dubcek was dead. There was no confirmation.

The last report said he was taken away by Soviet forces Wednesday. Other unconfirmed reports said he had been taken to the Soviet Union.

Prague appeared quiet this morning.

There was some sporadic shooting by tanks during the early hours of the morning but no serious incidents were reported. It appeared the Russians fired the shots as a warning rather than at snipers.

Real Trouble Faces Russians

WAIDHAUS (AP) — The stubborn resistance of the Czechoslovaks to Soviet invasion threatens real trouble for the Russians in the view of numerous Westerners leaving the occupied country.

Hundreds of departing travellers passing through this West German frontier town saw close up the Czechoslovak resistance that is seldom head-on defiance.

"This may prove to be the Russians' own Vietnam," said Dr. Arnold J. Jacobius of the U.S. Library of Congress in Washington.

"The Czechs are normally docile, but this has deeply affected them."

Russia Vetoes Motion in UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — After hours of bitter Security Council debate, the Soviet Union early today vetoed an eight-power resolution condemning the Warshaw pact intervention in Czechoslovakia.

Canada immediately introduced another resolution — backed by the Western Big Three who co-sponsored the original — calling on Secretary-General U Thant to seek the release of imprisoned officials of the liberal Czechoslovak regime.

The Russian veto followed the bitterest cold war debate in recent memory, focused on harsh exchanges between Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik and George Ball of the United States.

The Russians and Bulgarians fought for hours to delay the vote on the resolution, apparently hoping a Soviet-imposed Czech regime would rush a new representative to the UN.

The original resolution, called "this paltry piece of paper" by an angry Malik, was passed by the council by a vote of 10 to 2 with three abstentions.

The Soviet Union opposed it along with Hungary. Algeria, India and Pakistan abstained.

LUDVIK SVOBODA

Russia Seeks Help of Czechs

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia and its four allies which sent troops into Czechoslovakia issued an appeal today to the Czechoslovak people to help them overthrow "counter-revolutionary forces."

The appeal, addressed to "our brothers, Czechs and Slovaks," was sent by the governments of the Soviet Union, Bulgaria, Hungary, East Germany and Poland.

It was broadcast over Moscow radio and published by the official news agency Tass shortly before the scheduled arrival of Czechoslovak President Ludvik Svoboda for talks with Soviet leaders.

'Trust In Me'

MOSCOW (Reuters) — President Ludvik Svoboda of Czechoslovakia arrived here today for talks with top Soviet leaders on ending the Czechoslovak crisis.

Svoboda was accompanied by several leading Czechoslovak officials, including Defence Minister Martin Dzur.

It was not immediately known whom he would meet to discuss the occupation of his country by Soviet and Warsaw pact troops.

But he said before leaving Prague that he wanted talks on the highest level.

In a broadcast over the free Czechoslovak radio network, Svoboda said he decided on the move after days of fruitless negotiations with Soviet occupation authorities at Prague Castle.

"Have trust in me," he said. "I expect to be back tonight."

The Czechoslovak delegation is made up of Deputy Premier Gustav Husak; Defence Minister Martin Dzur, Slovak party chief Vasil Bilak, party secretary Alois Indra, presidium member Jan Piler and Justice Minister Bedrich Kozera.

They were met at the airport by the top Kremlin triumvirate, Party Chief Leonid Brezhnev, Premier Alexei Kosygin and President Nikolai Podgorny.

Ontario Government Should Intervene Says Beavis

About 349 residential housing lots are for sale in the area.

The inspector of legal offices issued a restraining order some time ago which, in effect, prevented development of the land behind the houses on the east side of Montrose Dr.

The minister of municipal affairs refused a subdivision application for forest west of the golf course on the grounds of lack of water and sewer services and lack of official township policy on residential development. The minister also said other lakes nearer to Belleville were available and more suited for residential use.

The restraining order on the one parcel was removed in June, without explanation. With the lifting of restriction, Mr. Beavis said, about 630 lots could be developed in the future, with a probable population of 2,200 people.

No provision has been made for the 13 acres of parkland which should be created in the area, for schools containing a total of 24 classrooms.

"There is no evidence of sufficient natural water supply available from subterranean water courses," the director said.

"It is doubtful if the soil can absorb the sewage from a development of this size, said sewage will ultimately drain southwards into the Bay of Quinte.

"To have permitted this to occur, while at the same time supporting an anti-pollution drive to improve the water of the Bay of Quinte, will bring derision upon the whole Belleville area."

Mr. Beavis estimated the cost of providing water and sewer services in the area at about $4,000,000, which would have to be borne by the residents.

The director urged Belleville and Thurlow councils to use their influence to convince Sidney to "carry out development in 20th century style," and so prevent "the creation of municipal affairs from stepping in.

"The alternative, he told the board, was a take-over of the parcels in question by the minister, under recent legislation permitting him to pass zoning by-laws and place the area under subdivision control.

The board recommended that Sidney township review the matter at its next council meeting.

"With the receipt of the minutes of this meeting, the subject will automatically come up in Sidney council and just as automatically be turned down," snapped Sidney reeve and planning board member Ernest Kells.

"Why should Sidney put on controls to stop development?" he added. "We can't get subdivisions approved, we entertain of city services and we need residential building lots."

"No subdivisions have been allowed because no official plan has been prepared for the area," commented Mayor Russell Scott.

"I'm amazed you've gone in this amount of trouble to prepare this report," he told Mr. Beavis, "when, with very little more effort and in a matter of two or three months we could have had an official plan, a simple matter to prepare."

"You have propounded a complete fallacy," replied Mr. Beavis. "Till the thought that a official plan is a simple matter. No land has been designated in Sidney because no one in the township has the vaguest idea of what is to be developed or how utilities are to be provided."

"This board has to accept no responsibility for the state of affairs in Sidney", chairman G. G. Bussey remarked.

"Sidney has always been reluctant to apply subdivision controls, although the services of planning board and its staff have been offered many times.

"I commend Mr. Beavis for drawing this matter to our attention and since you, Reeve Kells, agree this undesirable development will be many years in reaching completion, I suggest you take control voluntarily now and stop it".

Scrap Yard for Hillcrest Turned Down by Planners

A potential "slap in the face" to Hillcrest residents was averted last night when Belleville and Suburban Planning Board refused its approval for a scrap yard operation in the district.

The board recommended that city council turn down the application from Gayle Kahn for re-zoning to permit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Vigodsh, to operate a scrap yard at the corner of McFarland Dr. and University Ave.

Alderman E. A. Orr expressed the board's opinion when he remarked that: "It would be a slap in the face to those residents who are trying to upgrade their properties if we allowed this application.

A special meeting was called before the regular planning board session to hear briefs from Mrs. Kahn's lawyer, Harold Ellis, and the Hillcrest Ratepayers Association, headed by vice-president Herbert Trice.

Under present zoning, scrap yards are not permitted in any part of the city. Special restrictive zoning was placed on Mrs. Kahn's property allowing the operation of the yard.

Mr. Marsakas said the operation would be a scrap yard in the accepted sense of the word, but would be used for storage of raw metals in a building, 30 by 30 feet square concealed behind an eight-foot fence.

The material had to be kept in a building to protect it from theft. The land in question was a 160 by 300 foot section of the total area owned by Mrs. Kahn. Because of lack of access roads, an north-western corner of the property, far removed from residential houses, could not be used for the scrap yard.

"What area of Belleville is more suitable?" asked Mr. Marsakas. "My client should be deprived of means of making a livelihood, which you would be doing in refusing this application".

Mr. Trice, speaking for the Hillcrest Ratepayers, told the board it would undo all the work his organization and the city had done for the area in the last few years if the scrap yard were recommended.

"We will send a letter of protest to the Ontario Municipal board if this application is allowed," he said.

The ratepayers objected to location of the business one block from a new school and a scant two blocks from a proposed park. They claimed increased truck traffic would be a hazard to the children in the area and the scrap yard would devaluate their properties by 50 per cent.

"Once we agree to re-zone, we lose control," said board chairman G. G. Bussey. "The applicant could then do anything within the fence that he pleased. I think the residents members of this board to deny recommendation of the application."

Action by Sidney Council Is Urged by Member

"What comes first, the chicken or the egg?" queried Belleville industrial commission director Gerald Joyce.

"Since the Ontario government would not accept plans submitted to it, the developer elected to go ahead on his own.

"We will be finding ourselves seriously short of building sites in the future. Belleville has many advantages with which to attract industrial and commercial development. One has been our housing accommodation, available more cheaply than in most other communities of equal size. Lots in the areas of Sidney have proved to be very attractive to buyers.

"No subdivider has to provide school sites," Mr. Joyce continued, "although the school board has to approve the subdivision plan.

"In the largest subdivision ever created in Belleville, 164 lots in the east end around Moira Secondary School, park land dedicated in 1958 has not yet been developed. Is the township of Sidney better prepared than Belleville to develop parks?"

Art Carleton, Sidney councillor, said this morning the township council met the minister of municipal affairs in Toronto July 25.

At that time, said Mr. Carleton, the minister implied that if Sidney did not impose subdivision control on the two parcels of land in question, the minister himself would have to use his power to declare the areas under subdivision control.

"However, the minister implied he would leave it up to us as a whole yet," Mr. Carleton reported.

"These things take time, and we're still working on it. We have to decide whether subdivision control or zoning is the answer. Until we have water and sewer in the area we're up against it as far as getting housing subdivision plans approved."

Mr. Carleton added that previous Belleville councils had refused to discuss provision of sewers and water for Sidney, but informal discussion had recently taken place with Mayor Russell Scott and "one or two other aldermen".

Plugged Storm Sewer Drain

Motorists driving along Sidney Street through the Belleville Fairgrounds were forced to negotiate a miniature flood following yesterday's downpour. Deputy City Engineer Joe Angelo said plugged storm sewer drains were responsible.

Air Cadet Camps End at Trenton

TRENTON — Closing ceremonies this evening will mark the completion of another air cadet summer camp at CFB Trenton.

Over 1,500 cadets have enjoyed the activities offered by the base as four camps averaging 350 cadets each spent two weeks here.

And there was never an idle moment as gliding, sailing sports and the unavoidable drill practice kept them busy.

Maj. N. D. Cairns, Commanding Officer for the camp was "pleased by the success we have had this year."

Maj. Cairns described the main aim of camp to be the teaching of discipline and happily reported that only two boys had to be sent home during the entire summer.

"These boys really learned a lot here. We'll be sorry to see them go," concluded the Major.

Ceremonies this evening will see a drill competition among the squadrons of the fourth camp which will be followed by an amateur hour in the recreation hall.

Traffic Interrupted Again On Bridge Street West

Traffic interruption on Bridge Street West is again the order of the day as the general contractor for the reconstruction and paving has commenced operations.

This week Caton Construction of Willowdale moved in equipment and is rebuilding several sanitary sewer manholes preliminary to excavating and repaving.

Earlier this year The Tatham Company installed new storm sewers along the West Bridge Street route following which the Willowdale firm was awarded the repaving job.

West Bridge Street from the Lower Bridge to the intersection with Highland Ave. at the top of Bridge Street Hill will be repaved with concrete instead of asphalt despite the fact the latter type of paving could have been used.

City council members felt concrete would have greater lasting qualities on the hill section of the street than would asphalt.

Crisis in Two Schools--Limited Space

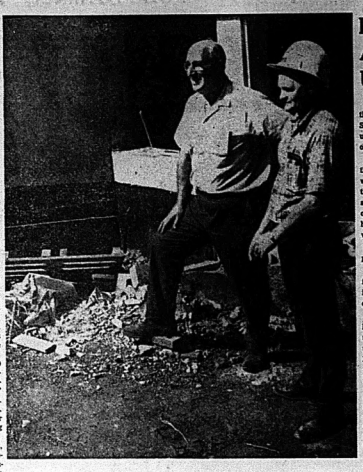
Frankford: Money Unavailable

TRENTON — Although Trenton schools are undergoing major renovations for the upcoming term a school in Frankford is experiencing barriers on the road to building extensions.

A six-room extension had been planned for the Frankford School but the $261,000 unit was labelled as a "step beyond the safe debt limit" by the Ontario's Municipal Board. This was in June.

With school soon starting, Gerald McCrory, chairman of the Frankford School Board, today said, "something must be done."

"We have 300 students in an eight-room school," he explained, "we have to use a temporary room in the basement."



Mr. McCrory said he felt the addition was justified as the main goal was to improve the school program.

"They (the municipal board) have left the door open to another route so we are still trying to expand the school," continued the board chairman.

Studying the situation is Dr. Richard Potter, MPP for Quinte. Word is still being awaited from the study.

In a previous such effort, Dr. Potter discussed the subject with the minister of education who said the situation should be held until the county board can give it full attention.

Mr. McCrory, however, believes the situation warrants immediate action. Thus Dr. Potter was asked again for assistance.

Checking the Situation

The $620,000 addition to Queen Elizabeth School will not be completed in time for the return of students in September. It is expected however that all will be in readiness by mid-October. School principal Carl P. Reid, and construction superintendent Donald Jackson study the building.

Picton: Addition Unfinished

PICTON (Staff) — Work at the Queen Elizabeth Public School addition will continue until some time in mid-October.

Carl P. Reid, principal at the school, said that students would be accommodated in the auditorium and the first stage of the original portion of the building. If necessary he said, the "great outdoors. will be put to use.

Some 373 students are expected to attend.

It is expected that the top floor of the addition will be in readiness for the opening of the school season.

That part of the addition houses the huge and revolutionary single room that is to be used for joint teaching. Nine classes can be accommodated in the room at a single time.

Ten rooms on the lower floor will not be completed. For the most part minor construction work, and the installation of utilities will be incomplete. Work began in February.

Donald Jackson, superintendent of the job for Murray Construction said the project had been delayed by a low shipment of supplies.

An electricians strike earlier in the year caused little delay, he said.

The entire cost of the project is $620,000.

Belleville Man Electrocuted Erecting A TV Antenna

A Belleville father of five died Thursday evening from electrocution while assisting in the erection of a television antenna at the home of a friend on Fox's Island south of Foxboro.

Dead is 50-year-old Freeman Fred Parks of 59 Benjamin Street, who died when the antenna pole tipped against a hydro line at the home of John Mills, 4th concession of Thurlow township.

Mr. Parks was given artificial respiration at the scene by Provincial Police Constable W. D. Ross and by City Ambulance drivers, but without avail.

Provincial police said that Mr. Parks was lifting the 21-foot high antenna pole to place it in a ground socket when it tipped against the high voltage hydro service line. The Mills family had moved to the Foxboro area only about a month ago.

Mrs. Parks and Mr. Mills were standing nearby and witnessed the accident. A post mortem was conducted this morning at Belleville General Hospital.

A native of Toronto, Mr. Parks was the son of Mrs. Margaret Parks and the late Watson Parks. He had lived in the Belleville area for the past nine years where he was employed at the Hastings Cold Storage at 380 Coleman Street. He was a member of the United Church.

He is survived by his wife, the former Beryl Stella Bentley, four sons, Bruce of Toronto, and Arnold, Donald and William and a daughter Sylvia all of Belleville.

There are six half brothers, Thomas Gratian of Baltimore, Trevor of Peterborough, Eric, Boss, Earl and Clarence Gratian, all of Havelock and six sisters, Mrs. Bruce (Rita) Rogers, Mrs. Elwood (Florence) Dowdell, Mrs. Daniel (Myrtle) McCutcheon, Miss Sharon Gratian, all of Havelock, Mrs. Frank (Olive) Urquhart of Merrickville and Madeine of Toronto.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home after Saturday noon. The funeral will be held Monday with service in the chapel at three p.m. conducted by Rev. Roy Veasey. Interment will be in Belleville Cemetery.

What A Line!

In a long letter to The Montreal Gazette — published on the day the Russians reoccupied Czechoslovakia and obviously written in advance of the invasion — the press attache of the Soviet embassy in Ottawa, Vladimir Makhotin, said in part:

"The result of the Bratislava meeting of the six communist and workers' parties of European socialist countries has not caused happiness among the enemies of socialism, who staked on a split in the socialist camp, a "crack" of the Warsaw treaty and the tearing away of Czechoslovakia from the socialist community.

"These people have nothing else to do but gnash their teeth in frustration. Following the results of the Cierna-Nad-Tisou, the Bratislava meeting served to strengthen the inviolable unity of the socialist countries and their solidarity in the struggle against imperialist subversion."

It is this point of history we doubt if Mr. Makhotin's claims of communist solidarity, phrased in the familiar manner of the Soviet propaganda machine, will cut any ice in Canada or anywhere else. Most "socialist" unity has been revealed once and for all for what it is — a system held together only by force, repression and terror.

Another Tax

It is a variation of the old axiom, "you can't win." Belleville's increased sewer rate, that is.

Almost doubled from $1.60 to $3 per month for residential units and to 40 per cent of the water bill for commercial and industrial users, the result has been an overall boost in current utility bills.

Water and hydro charges remain the same, but the overall bill is higher because of the additional amount introduced to help pay for secondary treatment of sewage. The Utilities Commission is collecting the charge for city hall.

The result, of course, is more money out of the pockets of local taxpayers. Utilities Commission manager E. L. Burnham put it succinctly when he said: "The sewer charge is actually a tax and taxes seldom go down — they always go up the other way."

Probably no one has ever summed up the meaning of inflation with such exactitude as did Mr. Burnham on this occasion.

A Memorable Career

The career of Miss Mary Rosa Wattsford, 60, an Ottawa-born nurse who died in hospital in Kingston recently, was a memorable one.

A sister of Brigadier George Wattsford of Kingston, Miss Wattsford worked throughout the London Blitz, the Allied campaigns in North Africa, Italy and Northwest Europe, the chaotic period of the partitioning of India and in the lonely reaches of Canada's far north.

In India Miss Wattsford served as an Anglican missionary and here at home staffed remote outposts from northern Manitoba to Gaspe. She was serving as a one-woman hospital staff in St. Paul's River in northern Quebec when she became ill in May of this year.

Truly a remarkable woman who served her day and generation well. There must be others in our midst although, unhappily, in these days of hippies, rebellious students and the concept of getting whatever you can for nothing, we hear little about them.

It's Slang

Along with many excellent new concepts in latter-day education there has been introduced a distressing amount of jargon. One of the words that is bandied about these days is "feedback." And it was aired again recently in an address to Loyalist College teachers by a college of education psychologist. The teacher, the audience was told, must have "feedback" from his students. Well the teachers would know what was meant, but must those who are imparting such learning resort to slang?

Flying Farmers

Private flying has many adherents — but imagine 300 small planes carrying about 1,000 United States members of one group alone, the international flying farmers — arriving at Hamilton's Mount Hope airport. That was the scene when the farmers took part in a recent fly-in. They came from the mid-west, Kentucky and Michigan for a convention and gave airport and customs officials a busy time.

Eucharistic Congress in Colombia

Pope Unlikely to Favor Revolution of the Masses

VATICAN CITY (AP) — As Pope Paul arrives at the 39th Eucharistic Congress in Bogota, government authorities and some Roman Catholics await his answer to the question: Can a Christian use revolution and violence to improve the plight of the poor?

Latin-American political and government leaders, faced with increasing pressures from priests and laymen who say yes, have let it be known through diplomatic channels that they expect the Pope to speak out clearly against violence.

Vatican informants said Monday that is what the 70-year-old pontiff will do. It is expected the Pope will strongly endorse efforts to eliminate poverty, disease and corruption and to improve economic opportunity for all in an orderly fashion.

This would permit Latin-American governments to claim papal support in speaking or moving against uprisings and disorders.

But many priests and laymen, Catholic and non-Catholic, are looking for the Pope to suggest workable means to correct the social injustices he has condemned.

"The expectation for the Pope's travel is interesting," wrote the Italian Socialist party organ Avanti. "Will he condemn the stingiest, most oppressive and profiteering capitalism that today exists in the world?"

"The reply that will come to this from Bogota will tell us many things about this pontificate," said the Italian Communist party organ L'Unita. "This trip is a crucial test for the whole Catholic world and the developments that are stirring it."

The life of Pope Paul already contains an answer to violence. As a priest in the 1930s, when Fascist squads beat Catholic priests and youths and burned Catholic effigies, he shrank away in horror.

A main target of the Fascists was the Italian Catholic University Federation—FUCI—led from 1925 to 1933 by Father Giovanni Montini, now Pope Paul.

In an effort to end FUCI's competition against the Fascist University Youth, Fascists beat many FUCI members and Father Montini's colleagues. As a result, Father Montini suspended all FUCI's public gatherings in 1932 and asked to be relieved of his office the next year. He confined his work to private meetings and to accompanying student groups to slum areas.

But he never said a word in favor of countering violence with violence.

It was his repulsion of violence and his interest in social reform that probably led him to appoint Italy's Giacomo Cardinal Lercaro as papal delegate to open the congress in Bogota.

Cardinal Lercaro, Italy's top progressive prelate, often has spoken bitterly against all kinds of violence.

Vatican sources say Pope Paul is anguished by the conflict between the dismal conditions of large segments of Latin America's masses and the dictatorial tinge of some of their governments, for whom any pronouncement from him against violence would be a boon.

Another Tax

It is a variation of the old axiom, "you can't win." Belleville's increased sewer rate, that is.

Almost doubled from $1.60 to $3 per month for residential units and to 40 per cent of the water bill for commercial and industrial users, the result has been an overall boost in current utility bills.

Water and hydro charges remain the same, but the overall bill is higher because of the additional amount introduced to help pay for secondary treatment of sewage. The Utilities Commission is collecting the charge for city hall.

The result, of course, is more money out of the pockets of local taxpayers. Utilities Commission manager E. L. Burnham put it succinctly when he said: "The sewer charge is actually a tax and taxes seldom go down — they always go up the other way."

Probably no one has ever summed up the meaning of inflation with such exactitude as did Mr. Burnham on this occasion.

A Memorable Career

The career of Miss Mary Rosa Wattsford, 60, an Ottawa-born nurse who died in hospital in Kingston recently, was a memorable one.

A sister of Brigadier George Wattsford of Kingston, Miss Wattsford worked throughout the London Blitz, the Allied campaigns in North Africa, Italy and Northwest Europe, the chaotic period of the partitioning of India and in the lonely reaches of Canada's far north.

In India Miss Wattsford served as an Anglican missionary and here at home staffed remote outposts from northern Manitoba to Gaspe. She was serving as a one-woman hospital staff in St. Paul's River in northern Quebec when she became ill in May of this year.

Truly a remarkable woman who served her day and generation well. There must be others in our midst although, unhappily, in these days of hippies, rebellious students and the concept of getting whatever you can for nothing, we hear little about them.

It's Slang

Along with many excellent new concepts in latter-day education there has been introduced a distressing amount of jargon. One of the words that is bandied about these days is "feedback." And it was aired again recently in an address to Loyalist College teachers by a college of education psychologist. The teacher, the audience was told, must have "feedback" from his students. Well the teachers would know what was meant, but must those who are imparting such learning resort to slang?

Flying Farmers

Private flying has many adherents — but imagine 300 small planes carrying about 1,000 United States members of one group alone, the international flying farmers — arriving at Hamilton's Mount Hope airport. That was the scene when the farmers took part in a recent fly-in. They came from the mid-west, Kentucky and Michigan for a convention and gave airport and customs officials a busy time.

Another European Tour For Les Feux Follets

Montreal Gazette

The diversity of the Canadian heritage has been extraordinarily enriched by imagination produced by watching "Les Feux Follets". The old, romantic themes and the bright, dramatic costumes contribute to this. But it is the young dancers themselves who really produce it.

They dance with an enthusiasm of joy which is transmitted directly to the audience. Their bounding happiness produces that rare theatrical illusion — their dances seem spontaneous, unrehearsed.

The illusion, of course, is the opposite of the truth. Only hard work and talented direction could produce the effects that they create. But to those everyday qualities they add a spirit, a sparkle all their own.

These "cultural ambassadors" are off on another European tour next month. Meantime Montrealers are given another opportunity to see and to enjoy their newest "Canadian Mosaic" at the Expo Theatre. It's a rare and happy experience.

Russia Pleads "Unity"

By BORIS BOSKOVIC

BELGRADE (AP) — The decision of the Soviet Union to occupy Czechoslovakia indicates the hard-line orthodox Communists of the Kremlin have gained the upper hand in the Soviet hierarchy.

The occupation marks a change of balance of power in the Kremlin leadership and the world now has to face a new hard-line Soviet policy.

While it is expected the leadership will adopt a tough attitude on internal Communist affairs, this does not mean they will take the same tough line towards foreign policies, unless forced to do so by the development of events following the Czechoslovak affair.

The Soviet action in Czechoslovakia was evidently prompted by the fear that Czechoslovakia, in the process of democratization and liberalization, might drift away from the Soviet Union.

The loss of Czechoslovakia would be an even greater blow for the Soviets than the loss of Communist China because it would signify a definite decline of Soviet power and influence and at the same time begin the disintegration of its East European bloc.

This the Kremlin leaders could not permit and was the major reason for their action, even though they knew it would be unpopular.

Hungary because during recent years the new Soviet leadership has given assurances of a more tolerant line in world affairs.

These assurances led President de Gaulle of France to withdraw from the military side of NATO and to establish stronger direct relations with Moscow. They also led Britain to reduce its defence commitments, and brought suggestions from the new Canadian government that its NATO commitments ought to be reviewed.

All this now may change, with the apparent resumption of the cold war.

Many Western diplomats here are still puzzled why Moscow moved at this time, particularly in view of growing sympathy for the liberal Czechoslovak regime from other Communists. One suggestion is that it feared Czechoslovakia was providing an attractive example for other Soviet allies to follow and that Soviet bloc security was being threatened.

A more obvious realization in the West is that the Soviet Union, despite all its statements about nuclear disarmament and world peace, doesn't give a fig for world opinion and that the shadow of Stalin's iron fist has not disappeared from the Kremlin.

CBC's Spending Increases

Kitchener Waterloo-Record

Last year, in what was admittedly a more costly year because of the centennial, the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. spent $145,694,627 of the taxpayers' money to provide a national broadcasting service.

This works out roughly to about $7.25 for each Canadian or $29 for an average Canadian family of four.

Undoubtedly this is a lot of money to spend on a broadcasting service for just over 20,000,000 people. The question which must be asked is whether the service is worth the expenditure.

It is a question primarily of the proportions of the bill rather than whether it should be paid at all. On this basis, most Canadians would reply because of the CBC does can be and must be done for less.

There are some, of course, who would rather have the money than the service. They are those whose only interest is entertainment, and entertainment like that provided by the U.S. networks, which is available in most of Canada's large centres of population either through cable or directly.

For the others, $29 an average family still seems large, especially when it is remembered that there are commercial radio and television programs available for no cost.

A long-range target for Prime Minister Trudeau should be a thorough-going reassessment of broadcast policy. Should a national service be expected to cover the whole spectrum of television, for instance, as the CBC does?

Would it not be better for the CBC's scope to be restricted to service of more obvious national significance, leaving the commercial type of program to the commercial networks?

But as immediate measure, the new management of the CBC is counted on to exert an economizing influence, both on administration and on employment of technical and program personnel.

The CBC has won something of a reputation for over-staffing its coverage teams to the extent of three or four times the number used by the rival independent network, CTV. For example, the CBC is sending a crew of 100 to cover the Summer Olympics in Mexico and even the most ardent sports fan will boggle at a team of that size. George Davidson, the new president, must be aware that the CBC extravagance makes it a continuing target. All the more so now that each Canadian is aware that last year he paid $7.25 for his CBC fare.

Doctors' High Earnings

Montreal Star

Can we assume that the medical lobby will be silent for at least a few weeks in view of the income statistics released by the revenue department? Those figures...for 1966, show that Canada's 15,361 doctors lead all occupations in average earnings with an income of $24,953.

We wonder how pensioners — especially those needing medical care — must feel at the opposite end of the list with average earnings of $3,333. Or teachers and professors who average $5,750, or federal government employees with $5,615.

"Average" income means, of course, that not everyone is earning that figure. But for those who are making less there are obviously others earning more. And when the same yardstick is used to measure all occupational groups, let the MDs not suggest the figure for their profession is unfair. We must remember that $24,953 the next time they complain that government medical care will reduce their incomes. It is a pain most people are not likely to experience.

Princess Patricia, daughter of the Duke of Connaught, the Governor-General, presented colors to the British Army's last privately-raised regiment—the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry—54 years ago today—in 1914. The regiment was raised with funds provided by Montreal millionaire Hamilton Gault, who offered the money within 24 hours of the declaration of war. Most of the 1,383 volunteers, veterans of the British Army or the Boer War, were the first Canadians to see action. Now part of the Canadian Forces, the PPCLI has won more decorations than any other Canadian unit.

1914—Japan declared war on Germany.

1929—The Grand Trunk Railway joined the CNR.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—Canadian and United States forces, spreading out from captured Kiska Island, seized Segula Island, 20 miles east of Kiska, and consolidated their position in the Aleutian area; Russian forces captured Kharkov as German troops were reported to be in a general retreat across South Russia.

West Likely to Boost Defences in Wake of Soviet Move

LONDON (CP) — "We were caught with our pants down," one Western diplomat here said Wednesday when he heard the news of the Soviet-bloc invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Western intelligence sources had failed to discover what must have been long and elaborate plans by the Soviet Union and its hard-line Warsaw pact allies to make a lightning thrust into Prague and the Czechoslovak countryside.

The upshot is that the Western powers will be likely to intensify a review of their defences and that military budgets will go up.

The North Atlantic Treaty Alliance is likely to be strengthened instead of watered down.

In London, the Czechoslovak crisis was considered more grave than the 1956 bloodshed in

Proctor-Silex Strike in Picton Is Not Peaceful Anymore

PICTON (Staff) — Harassment, German shepherds, severed telephone lines, and security guards. It is not a peaceful strike any more.

The Proctor Silex-IUE labor dispute, now in its 30th day, drags on. Picketers march in the hot sun, while machinery sits idle inside the plant.

Tempers have grown short, clearing the path for a bitter, and very noisy, war.

The struggle has escalated to a full time 24 hour a day proposition. Security guards at the plant and marchers on a new round the clock picket line, glare at each other from their respective sides of a chicken wire fence, throughout the long hours of the night.

The climax of the strike to date was a flare up of violence last Friday as strikers attempted to halt the removal of JRM equipment from the plant.

Both sides have reacted to the outbreak with their own brand of counter action.

In retaliation to police intervention, during which an older woman on the picket line was knocked down, charges will be laid, say union officials.

In the meantime two IUE members, Peter Fiddler, and Ronald Rowan have been remanded to trial next month. They appeared in magistrate's court Wednesday on charges of wilful damage and assaulting a police officer.

According to plant manager J. V. Findlay, members of the union cut telephone lines leading into the building, a time early Saturday morning leaving the plant without fire protection until Monday.

To prevent a re-occurrence of that incident and to protect plant property two security officers were hired.

The presence of the guards, from General Investigations of Canada, has stirred the coals to even greater heat.

Picketers claim that entering the plant the guards travel at 40 to 45 miles per hour, "seemingly caring little for the lives of anyone in the way."

One of the men arrived for the first day of work with two German shepherds in tow.

Pickets say he threatened a young girl on the line, warning her to clear the road or face the dogs.

The guard in question told The Intelligencer that the animals were personal pets, and had been brought to the plant, only as there was nowhere else to leave them.

Both factions claim harrassment. A union official stated that a foreman from the company phoned a girl at 2 a.m. telling her to get back to her job. Mr. Findlay in the meantime, points out that workers crossing the line are jeered and insulted and in some cases have been bothered by telephone calls.

Union officials charge that someone crept out from the plant during the weekend, and removed signs and aprons left behind on the picket line.

Upon calling in the police, the aprons were returned, torn up, and the signs were in ruins they said.

Fast Involvement Necessary

"I think that every corporation man must have a conscience about the social climate of the community in which he lives and works." That statement is part of the philosophy of Harry Fast, manager of the Rideau area of the Canadian National Railways.

"Being a newcomer I have always made it a point to become involved in the community."

And Mr. Fast has been a newcomer to at least 10 different countries and to 14 different locations in Canada.

"They should definitely be leaders in Civic Affairs".

He's as good as his word. Mr. Fast is a director of the Belleville Rotary Club and a director of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

He is a director of the YMCA and also serves as president. In addition he is a member of the Belleville Public School Board.

On the business side of things, Mr. Fast is a member of the American Management Association and the Railway Systems Management Association.

Harry Fast was born in Russia where he spent his early childhood. After hiding for four years following the revolution there, his family left the country legally in 1924.

He spent most of the remaining part of his childhood in Saskatchewan where his father had bought a farm. Mr. Fast received a Bachelor of Science degree in geology and mining engineering in 1940 from the University of Saskatchewan.

He received his degree late as his formal education was interrupted by work.

In 1938 until 1939 he was continental representative for the CNR in Europe. During his work there he travelled the 10 countries from Czechoslovakia north.

During this period Mr. Fast assisted in matters pertaining to industry and agriculture on behalf of the Department of Immigration.

When the war started in 1939 Mr. Fast returned to Canada where the Technical Service Council asked him to go to the Northwest Territories on a mining project on a civilian basis.

His mining career ended in 1942 when he joined the Elgin Regiment of the Royal Canadian Army. Mr. Fast failed to get overseas on medical grounds and he went back to the railroad.

He worked in the engineering department from position to position until he became assistant chief engineer for the whole CN system in 1955.

He then left engineering and joined research and development for three years to establish and co-ordinate "work study" (industrial engineering).

Mr. Fast was involved in the re-organization of the corporate structure of the railway which came into effect in 1961.

He was appointed manager in Winnipeg of the Assiniboine Area which takes in all of Manitoba and part of Saskatchewan. He was transferred to the Rideau area in 1965.

Mr. Fast is married with a wife, Edythe, a son, Jerry, who is at present doing post graduate work in economics in Winnipeg, and a daughter, Karen, who is married and residing in Vienna, Austria.

"The managers of corporations must have concern for the community," says Harry Fast and he means it.

Banks Collecting Money For Biafran Relief Fund

Aid for starving Biafrins is as close as the nearest branch of your chartered bank.

Donations for the recently formed Nigeria-Biafra Relief Fund of Canada are now being received by the bankers.

Six national bodies, the Canadian Red Cross Society, the Canadian Council of Churches, the Canadian Catholic Organization for Development and Peace, the Canadian Save the Children Fund, the Canadian, Unicef Committee and Oxfam of Canada, are participating in a month-long appeal which started Aug. 19 and continues until Sept. 19.

The money will be used to buy and ferry supplies to Biafran mothers and children, victims of the war now raging between Nigeria and the break-away nation of Biafra.

The food air-lifted to Biafra is handed over to missionaries, who supervise its distribution at relief centres set up in schools.

Goal of the relief organization is the build up of its distribution centres in the six refugee zones in Biafra.

Air-lifting of supplies has met opposition from Nigeria, which has fired on aircraft carrying food to Biafra.

The Germon Protestant Relief Organization and Caritas International, the foreign relief agency of the Roman Catholic church, recently bought two DC7's to fly from Spain to Biafra with supplies.

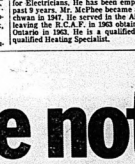
Each aircraft cost $75,000, and part of the money was contributed by the Canadian Catholic Organization for Development and Peace, formed six months ago to promote peace and development at home and abroad.

The organization raised $1,000,000 through its Share Lent campaign, and is supporting the national appeal of the Nigeria-Biafra Fund.

Chairman of the development and peace organization committee for Kingston Diocese is Mrs. Herbert Brown, Belleville.

Members of the committee are Herbert Brown and Frank Domenico of Belleville; Wilfred J. Williamson, Trenton; Mrs. Thomas Kelly, Stoco; Mrs. Fergus O'Connor and Dennis Cruchley of Kingston.

Four prominent Canadian business men are heading the Nigeria-Biafra Relief Fund of Canada.



They are S. T. Patou, Toronto, executive vice-president of the Toronto-Dominion Bank; Marcel Vincent, Montreal, chairman of the board of Bell Canada; Clarence D. Shepard, Q.C., Toronto, chairman of the board of the British American Oil Company Limited, and T. A. M. Hutchinson, F.C.A., Toronto, partner, Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co.

The Chairman of the executive committee of the relief fund is Major General Arthur E. Wrinch, national commissioner, the Canadian Red Cross Society, with T. H. G. Fletcher, executive director of OXFAM serving as vice-chairman.

Rotarians To Hear District Governor

K. A. Miller, district governor of Rotary International will be in Belleville next Monday to visit the local Rotary Club.

District Governor Kenneth A. Miller of Scarborough will be the speaker at Monday's meeting of Belleville Rotary Club.

At a club assembly on Sunday the governor will confer with club president Kenneth Wormald and members of his executive.

Belleville is one of 52 clubs in the district and the officials will discuss plans for the district's service activities as well as administrative matters.

Mr. Miller is one of 238 Rotary governors who are serving as representatives of Rotary International in districts composed of member clubs.

Rotary has more than 500,000 members in some 13,200 clubs in 142 countries.

A past president of the Rotary Club of Scarborough, Mr. Miller is president and general manager of A. H. McIntyre Ltd. He was elected to office at the Rotary convention in Mexico City in May 1968 and will serve until June 30, 1969.

Last May Mr. Miller attended an international assembly for Rotary governors at Lake Placid, N.Y. In March next year he will preside at a district conference in Toronto.

YMCA Increases Membership Fees

Membership in the Belleville YMCA is going up.

Effective this October fees are going up $2 (from $15 to $17) for boys and girls, $5 for young men and women (from $25 to $30) and $10 for senior men and family memberships (from $50 to $60 and $65 to $75).

The board of directors decided that such increases were unavoidable if services were not to be curtailed.

A release stated that the YMCA directors "were recently informed that because the United Community fund objective was not reached in 1967" the "YMCA will be receiving less contribution support than last year."

Even the increase in membership income this year is not enough to make up the difference between rapidly rising costs and gross income.

The increase in membership is the first since September of 1965.

let your fingers do the walking through the YELLOW PAGES

We're not playing hard to get.

We just can't supply as fast as you're demanding.

And because this has been going on for several weeks, you're entitled to an explanation.

Far more people than we had anticipated are getting to know Club Ale and Diamond Lager. And obviously liking them, because the demand for our good beers has reached an all-time high. Consequently, our supply has reached an all-time low.

Now because our policy is to let Formosa beer take its own sweet time while brewing, not even a crisis like this can speed things up. (You know what they say about haste making waste.)

But thank you for bearing with us. And we hope you'll be consoled by the news that in October we'll be increasing our brewing capacity for the second time this year. Then there will be enough Formosa beer to go around.

Like we said, we're not playing hard to get. You can rest assured that as soon as we have more Clubs and Diamonds, you'll have more Clubs and Diamonds.

Isn't that a fair deal?

NEW STYLE JEWELRY — Actress Elizabeth Baur seen in 20th-TV Series "Lancer" models something new in fall jewelry. The novelty jewelry shown is made from peanuts.

Novelty Costume Jewelry Adds to Fall Fashions

By REBA and BONNIE CHURCHILL

This novelty jewelry is made from peanuts and costs peanuts to make. The rough-textured finish of the shells provides the perfect answer for the fall jewelry edict of chunky, chunky accessories. Gritty necklaces, dangling bells, ding-a-ling earrings are all part of the fashion scene. For instance, splitting the pods, dipping them in all-purpose powder dye, rinsing, and adding a metal backing literally provides "earrings on the half shell". With over 30 shades of powder dye available, the colorscope is unlimited. Those worn by actress Elizabeth Baur are forest green and boast rhinestones for light-catching sparkle.

A jewelry "chain of command" is an apt description of a necklace that can grow into a belt or shrink into a bracelet. The secret is combining reed loops and peanut shells—a vivid twosome when the reed is dyed fuchsia and the shells green. Latter are tinted (liquid dye can be substituted), rinsed, and pierced at one end. When dried and sprayed in plastic, small brass rings are inserted through each opening and secured to the reed. Add more loops and you've a serpentine belt; subtract a few, and you've a wrap-around bracelet.

Other "free" items that lend themselves to jewelry-making are cantaloupe and pumpkin seeds. They are lightweight, symmetrical and take easily to a tint bath. Rinse the pods under warm running water and, while still moist, string them. A small tapestry needle and doubled nylon thread does the job. When 25 inches of seeds are assembled, all that's needed are a brass ring and clasp. The jewelry project, ideal for hobby-minded teeners, as well as Scouts and fund-raisers, is inexpensive looking when worn.

P.S.: To the many readers who've written us about a fashionable craft project, we've compiled step-by-step instructions on making the peanut shell and seed jewelry. For a fast sheet of directions and suggestions—enclose 20c and a self-addressed stamped envelope to: Reba and Bonnie Churchill, Seed 'n' Shell Jewelry, c/o The Intelligencer, Room 1310, 80 King St. W., Toronto, Ontario.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

MELROSE W.I.

The July meeting of the Melrose W.I. took place at the home of Mrs. Donald Macfarlane, the program topic of which was "public relations." Mrs. Grant McLaren, convenor, and her assistants, Mrs. Roy Badgley and Mrs. Clare Weese, developed it on Wires levels: area, provincial and international.

Mrs. Badgley, a life member of the Melrose WI, reminisced on activities and pleasures experienced during her lengthy membership. Mrs. McLaren spoke on the accomplishments of the more than 13,000 branch institutes in the province of Ontario, and the contributions they are making toward improved living in both our own country and abroad. Mrs. Weese enlarged on the work of the A.C.W.W., the largest women's organization in the world.

The 12th triennial conference will be held in September, in Lansing, Michigan. It was held in Toronto in 1953, and 10 ladies from the Melrose branch attended it. Miss Helen McKercher will represent F.W.I.C. on the panel at the A.C.W.W. conference, and will speak on "consumer education".

This part of the program concluded with singing, with the accompaniment of Mrs. Bates.

Miss Leslie Geonja, a club girl who attended session at Guelph this summer, gave a resume of what had taken place during the conference. She found it a wonderful experience, and ably presented it at the meeting, the conference theme being "a girl and her goal."

A group of junior girls sang several selections accompanied by pianist, Mrs. Charles Bates.

The five girls who had won provincial honors by successfully completing 12 4-H projects, were also honored by the W.I. The girls: Barbara Weese, Judy McLaren, Leslie Geonja, Cheyanne Pascoe and Janice Macfarlane, had been specially invited to attend the meeting and were surprised to be presented a traveller's clock, a gift from the W.I. The girls expressed appreciation for the gift.

The business conducted at this meeting dealt with the upcoming wedding dinner on September 21; the Shannonville exhibit, and as well, the report given by the president on T.V. programs suitable for children.

There will be no August meeting and no bus trip is planned for this summer. The serving of refreshments brought to a close an interesting meeting.

Anglican Women May Be Ordained as Priests

LONDON (AP) — The Lambeth Conference Thursday took a mini-step towards ordaining women as priests in Anglican churches.

But it didn't exactly throw the door wide and put out a welcome mat. Instead it agreed there seemed no valid theological reason at present for keeping them out. It set no date for letting them in.

With only a few dissenters, the bishops asked every nation and regional Anglican church or province to "give careful study" to the question of the ordination of women and to report their findings to the Anglican consultative council — a body which has not yet come into existence.

The conference asked the council when formed — probably about three years from now — to have consultations with churches which have women ministers, such as the Presbyterians and Congregationalists, and with those who do not, such as the Roman Catholics and Orthodox.

Before the final step is taken a regional or national church must seek and consider the advice of the Anglican consultative council.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, said after the meeting that the decision could be interpreted as opening the door for any Anglican church to ordain women ministers if it wanted to do so after prior consultation with the central Anglican body.

The question of ordained women ministers has been a complex problem in talks about union of the Anglican and United churches in Canada.

Sources at the conference and the United Church is believed to have about 50 ordained women. The Anglican communion has never recognized ordination of women to the priesthood.

The Experts Say

All Apparel Should Come from One Store

TORONTO (CP) — If your group is going to put on a fashion show, borrowing a few tips from the fashion professionals might help ensure a smooth show with a minimum number of ruffled feelings.

For a start, says Pearl Corcoran, try to get the clothes from a department store or a plaza that can supply everything.

"So many of them pick a store that can't supply shoes or hats or accessories. Usually someone's husband owns a dress store. Then if the girls have to supply their own, they wind up with the wrong thing."

Mrs. Corcoran is fashion co-ordinator for the Canadian National Exhibition. She supervises every detail of the Ex's 11 shows a day, through Labor Day, Sept. 2, involving about 50 people and 700 items.

For a group's show, about two hours long, she says you probably need about 120 garments and 12 to 14 models, assuming they are amateurs.

"Most groups can't afford to pay models' fees. Often the members' daughters model, and how to choose them without hurting anyone's feelings can be a problem."

Mrs. Corcoran says she has solved it occasionally by hiring one professional model to choose the girls and give them a lesson on how to model. The thing amateurs have most difficulty with is what to do with their hands. Giving them something to carry may help.

She also recommends hiring an experienced co-ordinator and commentator if it is at all possible, then letting her have full control. She knows clothes and fashion trends and will do her own script. She can plan and pace the show. She should be able to work impersonally with the members without hurting feelings.

"Especially when you're asking people to pay to see it, that's important."

When you are choosing and fitting clothes, Mrs. Corcoran says you must remember it is the show that matters.

"Don't choose clothes that the members feel would suit them best or let the store owner choose brown and black bread-and-butter items that will look like nothing on a runway. Professional models don't worry about whether they would buy a dress, but non-professionals often do want to insist on their personal taste and the store owner on what he sells most of."

She says she visualizes the whole show in colors, and recommends sitting down and planning the colors, guided by what is high fashion for the coming season.

You should plan the show in scenes and around a theme. You will need at least one rehearsal, if necessary an hour before the show. Amateur models and children need about half a minute to show each costume. They can probably manage to wear two outfits in each half-hour scene.

Professionals could show twice as many, "but amateurs get dressed each time as if they were going to a party."

You must have a runway off your stage, but you don't need to spend money on elaborate backgrounds. A local florist might help out, with a credit line on the program as part payment. A white screen trimmed with mums or sprays of tree blossoms is attractive.

A two-hour show is a long one, and as a change-of-pace intermission, Mrs. Corcoran suggests offering fashion of a different sort. Ask a cosmetic specialist to do a demonstration, or invite someone to talk about wigs.

As a final tip, she says everyone handling the clothes must be impressed with the fact that they must go back to the store in as good condition as they left it. Dress and makeup shields should be used, no alterations made, and special protection such as plastic at the bottom of a floor-length gown will keep the clothes fresh.

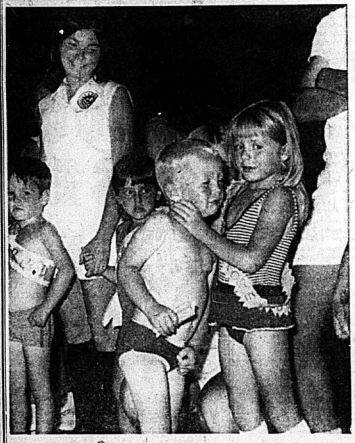
BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, AUGUST 23, 1968



It's in the Bag - - Maybe!

This moppet added her mite to the fun with a mighty pitch at the bean-bag (see arrow) contest during Penny Carnival. Event was transferred to Memorial Arena after rain washed out program at East Hill playground.

A Watery Win!

This imperturbable youngster seems unimpressed with his winning cork dip at last night's Penny Carnival. Not so the other contestants who seem as happy about the whole thing as if they'd won themselves. However, that's in the tradition the carnival which encourages participation among hundreds of youngsters at city playgrounds.

What A Big Sister's For!

When a chap gets nervous up there in front of the whole world who's he to turn to for comfort? It certainly helps if you've a big sister along, as this scene at last night's Penny Carnival title parade showed. Scott Hannah, 3, momentarily was disconcerted by all the fuss. Luckily, his five-year-old sister Janice also was competing—and reacted with sympathy.

Penny Carnival Huge Success

The year's major fun thing for the most moppets made its annual mark in Belleville last night.

And the mark of the city's Penny Carnival is a shower burst of spontaneous merriment.

Last night it filled the old Memorial Arena with hundreds of active youngsters from the city's 22 playgrounds — marking the final phase of city-sponsored outdoor recreation for 1968.

Originally scheduled for the big East Hill play centre, the carnival was switched indoors when heavy rains earlier in the day washed out all playground activities.

However, the carnival appeared to blossom better than ever indoors.

One big attraction is the fact the youngsters participate directly in the event.

Through the afternoon they worked with their playground supervisors, erecting booths, stalls, and all the decoration needed to impart a carnival environment.

The result was a penny-spending spree when the doors opened at six p.m. and the fledgling fairgoers descended on the attractions.

The booths liberally borrowed inspiration from the big time operators — with some variations.

There was an eight-year-old fortune teller who promised long life, wealth and splendid marriage prospects.

Two youngsters presented themselves as the fat man and his wife — their tender years masked by an abundance of pillows and padding.

There was even a shooting gallery — specially adapted for the occasion. Moving targets were replaced by lighted candles and the rifles by water pistols.

Then there was the grand finale — the choice of a Miss Penny Carnival and a male counterpart.

The entrants, escorted by their supervisors, stretched the length of the arena's big stage as the judging opened.

The title went to four-year-old Kim Archer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Archer, St. Paul Street. Winning boy was four-year-old Bradley Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gray, Joyce Crescent.

Runners-up and their playgrounds were: Girls — Brenda Switzer (CNR) and Cherry Travers. (Firehall). Boys — Teddy Boulter (East Hill) and Mike Scott (Avondale).

A Happy Future?

From all the reaction it looks as though the fortune teller has found a happy future in the palm of Linda Hedges, 9. But then, Sherry Holloway, 8, hadn't a bad word for all her many curious clients at last night's Penny Carnival.

Democratic Officials Force Settlement Between Two Delegations

CHICAGO (AP) — Democratic national convention officials forced a settlement today on two warring Georgia delegations in a racial political fight that may freeze Gov. Lester Maddox, a presidential candidate, out of the convention.

Gov. Richard Hughes of New Jersey, credentials committee chairman, said Georgia's convention votes will be split between the rival delegations and that it would be "a miracle" if Maddox remains a delegate.

Hughes' committee, which also required that the divided delegation pledge itself to the party's presidential nominee, holds veto power over the final make-up of the Georgia slate.

But the dispute may boil over into a bitter convention floor fight which party officials fear could rent their ranks and elect the Democrats either many Negro votes or the support of white southerners in the November election.

Hughes said the decision was made on evidence that Negroes were not able to participate fully in Georgia party affairs, and that he state's national convention delegates were named by only two men, Maddox and state party Chairman James Gray.

The struggle pitted Maddox, who once offered white customers axe handles to keep Negroes from his restaurant, against Negro legislator Julian Bond, who won his seat in the Georgia house only after a U.S. Supreme Court ruling.

Hughes declined to say whether he thought Bond would be named on the new Georgia delegation, to be composed of 21 members from each of the contesting slates plus the state's present committeeman and committeewoman.

Both sides had insisted on an all-or-nothing victory and Hughes said "there might be two dissenting reports" which would bring the battle to the floor when the national convention opens next week.

In addition to the emotional racial issue, the case also involved the political struggle between the two chief contenders for the presidential nomination, Vice-President Hubert Humphrey and Senator Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota.

McCarthy forces support Bond's challenging group, while Humphrey maintained a hands-off attitude publicly. Most of the Bond challengers are for McCarthy for the presidential nomination.

Rejfrsentative Ben Brown, Negro Georgia legislator on Bond's slate, said he did not believe the Maddox camp would accept the settlement dictated by Hughes' committee.

The governor said the ruling, by 59-to-30 vote, was made in an attempt to achieve "justice based on principle without leaving the seats vacant for Georgia."

Democrats also remained split on the party platform.

The subsidiary bearers of the once powerful mantles of the assassinated President John F. Kennedy and Senator Robert F. Kennedy served notice they will carry to the floor the convention, if necessary, a fight for the "strongest possible peace plank" on Vietnam.

Theodore Sorensen, confidante of both of the slain brothers, told reporters Thursday: "The Democratic platform must have a strong peace plank, or regardless of the nominee, we can forget about the election.

"So we will present to the convention, as a majority plank if that can be, or a minority plank, if that must be, the strongest peace plank that we can draw."

Despite his lack of status as a delegate, Sorensen's voice had an authenticity in expressing the most recent Kennedy viewpoint, substantiated earlier by Senator Edward M. Kennedy in a call for an unconditional halt in the bombing of North Vietnam.

Sorensen and most other supporters of Senator Kennedy have not, yet, found a home for the uncommitted delegates from California, New York, Indiana, Nebraska and other states where Robert Kennedy had won primaries and picked up convention support before he was assassinated in Los Angeles June 4.

Not Often They Win

Carroll Williams Pitches Als to Upset Win Over Riders

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes brought two streaks to a halt when they upset Ottawa Rough Riders 25-24 in an Eastern Football Conference game here Thursday night.

The Als broke an 11-game Canadian Football League losing streak going back to Sept. 9, 1967, and stopped Ottawa's unbeaten skein at three games before an estimated 17,000 fans.

Montreal's 1967 victory was against Winnipeg Blue Bombers and 11 straight league losses followed, including the first two games of the current season.

"I don't get a chance to talk too often as a winning coach," Kay Dalton of the Als said after the game.

"We deserved to win it and there's no question about it. They (the players) just wanted to win so bad.

"I thought the guys came back real tough. They really played as a team. We were down 17-1—and we can't afford to do that—but we bounced back."

The Als, down 17-1 early in the second quarter, came back with a pair of dazzling 69-yard touchdown passes from Carroll Williams, one to Dave Lewis in the second, and one to Andy Walton in the fourth.

John Baker climaxed the Montreal rally with a 40-yard field goal with 2:01 left in the game to put the Alouettes ahead by the single point.

Williams also hit Ed Tomlin with a 13-yard touchdown pass in the second quarter. Apart from his field goal, Baker converted the major scores by Tomlin and Walton and added a single on a missed field goal.

Lewis accounted for Montreal's other point on a 56-yard punt in the first quarter.

The Montreal victory overshadowed a fine performance by veteran quarterback Russ Jackson, who figured in all three Ottawa touchdowns.

Jackson scored a touchdown himself on a one-yard plunge early in the first quarter. He then hit Whit Tucker with a 33-yard touchdown pass in the second and combined with Margene Adkins on a 19-yard pass for a major score in the third.

Don Sutherin kicked one field goal, converted two touchdowns and added a single on a wide field goal attempt.

The EFC-leading Riders gained enough yards offensively to win two football games and by losing they did themselves out of a six-day rest.

"I told them they would get six days off if they won the game but they don't deserve it now," said coach Frank Clair.

Ottawa had a total offence of 512 yards. They gained 378 in passing as Jackson was good on 17 of 34 pass attempts. Ottawa had 32 first downs, 10 more than Montreal. The Als' total offence was 383 yards, with 200 of them coming by the air route. Williams was good on seven of 19 pass attempts.

College-Grads Face Tough Task In Years Ahead

By DONALD SOUTTER

It is going to become increasingly more difficult for graduates of Canadian colleges to find a place in Canadian professional football if Lew Hayman has his way.

The Argonaut general manager is drumming up support among his fellow lodge members for a change in the import regulations which would allow Canadian Football League clubs to employ 20 United States imports instead of the present restrictions to 14.

The former coach bolsters his argument by claiming it will mean an improved brand of football. However, he says the primary reason for the proposal is that the Canadian players are demanding wage parity with their U.S. playmates. If this is the case, he claims, why not hire the U.S. players if they are better.

From a businessman's point of view the logic is formidable. But most football fans will view the decision with shades of regret if the proposal comes to pass.

For the Canadian high school football star who decides he wants to go to a Canadian college on his way to seeking a career in professional sport it his dire consequences.

For the past two or three years most Canadian professional football clubs have embarked on a program of sending promising high school players to the football factories in the United States. At graduation they then have first call on a U.S.-trained player who bears the born-in-Canada seal of approval.

If the number of Canadians on each team is cut by six, it means the competition for the spots will get tougher. Unquestionably the U.S.-trained combat trooper will have the edge.

Maybe that's the way it should be.

But don't you think you'll wish a little bit for "the good old days" if the Russ Jacksons and Ron Stewarts are no longer around?

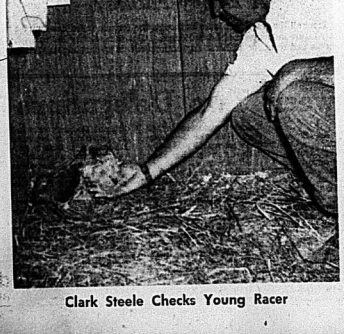
Argonaut detractors. Where art thou now?



The Toronto Argonaut destruction of the Calgary Stampeders on Wednesday has supplied a workable amount of backbone to the dyed-in-the-wool Toronto supporter.

Up to now, the Argonaut fan immediately went into his defensive shell when the question was raised over his team's performance.

Now, almost snapping with glee, and with a glint in his eye, he can march into the office in the morning, with head held high.

If the mood is upon him, he can silently gloat over his tormentors of past years or wield the needle with an incisiveness sharpened by years of despair.

It must be a glorious feeling. Long may it continue.

Pigeon Fancier Bemoans Lack of Interest in Racing

By JERRY HOFF
Staff Reporter

"Pigeon racing popularity shouldn't be declining but it is," Bob Button, secretary of the Canadian Racing Pigeon Union, Inc., said wistfully.

"It's just another victim of the increasing urbanization in this country and all over the world," the secretary, who lives at 157 College Street East, said.

"It is hard to house and train pigeons in the city. It takes a lot of time and more room than most city-dwellers have. But it's too bad. It's a great sport. I've been raising and racing pigeons since the early 50s and I've been around the sport since I was a kid.

"But it seems people are getting away from sports and recreation with animals and birds. They're losing contact with nature and that's bad. Training and working with animals gives you something you can't get any other way. It seems to increase your humanity. And there's no better way to learn self-control.

"You can't swat a good racing pigeon just because he doesn't do what you say, no you've got to learn to be patient."

Mr. Button was sitting in the home of Clark Steele, Elmwood Drive, another local pigeon fancier, Mr. Steele, who raised and raced pigeons from 1950 until 1964, is just beginning to get back into the sport.

"I don't know anyone who was ever in it who wouldn't like to get back into it," Mr. Steele said. "It's habit - forming."

Mr. Steele holds an international record in pigeon racing. In 1963, one of his racers flew from Armstrong to his home 401 (700 miles) in 14 hours, five minutes, averaging 1,443.70 yards per minute.

In pigeon racing, the speed or "velocity" is the deciding factor.

When the race is being arranged, the release station is decided upon, then the owner of a bird in the race measures the distance from his loft to the centre of the nearest street then from that point to the centre of the nearest intersection.

These distances, along with the location of the release station (measured in the same way) are sent to a chartered surveyor in England who computes to the foot the distance from the release station to each of the owners' lofts.

The pigeons are released at a pre-set time and fly home. When they arrive, they are registered, along with the elapsed time since the release, and the speed is figured by breaking the yards into one-sixtieths and dividing by the elapsed time in seconds.

Mr. Steele's international record, unchallenged for the past five years, means that his bird flew nearly 50 mph—a lot of flapping!

"In Europe pigeon racing is a big betting sport," Steele said. "The owners fly their pigeons every week, the same as we do here, but sometimes their races may mean hundreds of pounds."

Advertisements in the English pigeon racing journals list the blood lines of the birds for sale as completely as ever did any advertisement for a thoroughbred racing horse. And some state winnings as high as £7,500.

"It's as big a sport as any, over in the old country," Mr. Button said. "And we'd like it to get to be a big here. We have racers in Belleville and several bundred in the province, but the number is slowly diminishing. We're putting on several campaigns to recruit members, but it's like fighting to keep people out of the cities."

Rich Allen Unhappy But Not at Plate

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Controversial Rich Allen says he would like to be traded—but he sure isn't behaving like a man who is unhappy with his present job.

For the fifth time this season Allen slammed two homers in one game, powering Philadelphia past St. Louis' National League leaders 7-3 Thursday night.

Rich made his statement about a possible trip to the trading block after drawing fire from Phils' owner Bob Carpenter following an alleged barroom brawl. Allen, who has been charged with assault and battery, said he thought the "best thing for me to do is to get out of town."

Carpenter said that until Allen "grows up" he is likely to become involved in more incidents, adding he would prefer to have Allen doing his growing up in a Phils' uniform, but "anybody's dealable."

In the only other National League games, Cincinnati came from behind to edge Pittsburgh 7-5 and Dick Dietz singled in a pair of runs with two out in the ninth to give San Francisco a 2-1 victory over Los Angeles.

Allen, whose feud with Gene Mauch earlier this season was blamed for Mauch's ouster as Philadelphia manager, smacked his first homer in the third, a solo blast, in helping his team to a 4-2 lead. He followed with his 27th of the season in the eighth after Roberto Pena singled.

Hockey Club Seeks Additional Sponsors

Robert Temple, manager of the Belleville Mo-Hawks Senior Hockey Club, threw the fate of the area OHA entry into the hands of the public following last night's meeting of the club executive officers.

"If we see the people in the Belleville area are willing to support the team all the way then it looks as if we'll go. But we need that support.

"It's up to the people," Temple said.

The Mo-Hawk manager said last night's meeting was a thorough discussion of all matters pertaining to the club. The executive, at the meeting, also arranged for an open meeting of potential sponsors Monday night at 7.30 in the Queen's Hotel.

"We need more Belleville area supporters to come in and offer financial assistance," Temple continued. "In the past, the same dozen or so people have been carrying the thing. We need another 10 people to come forward and put up $300 each to see another hockey continued in Belleville We do it every year, now we need some support from other people.

"We've always needed financial backing. And if the base of support for the team is extended and we get more people involved, it'll be a good thing for everybody — the team, the supporters, and the fans."

Temple said the fate of the 1968 Mo-Hawks is still undecided. "We won't be able to make a real decision until we see how much actual support we have for the coming year," he said. "We hope people will be interested. If they are, they should call Gord Roblin or myself."

Temple reported that the meeting Thursday included discussion of the open coaching position and of players for 1968, but didn't comment on any decision concerning either.

"Unthinkable" for Canada

Czech Crisis Draws Talk of Olympic Boycott From U. S.

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Mexico hosts to the politically harassed 1968 Summer Olympic Games, first threatened by a Russian pullout over the South African situation, faced more rumblings today—talk of a possible United States boycott over the Czechoslovakian invasion.

A Baltimore television announcer said the U.S. Olympic Committee would meet Saturday night in Long Beach, Calif., after the diving trials to discuss the possibility of such a boycott.

Everett Barnes, executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee, said Thursday night "there might be debate" soon about the possibility of an American boycott of the Olympics.

Barnes said, however, the subject definitely won't be discussed at Saturday night's routine meeting of coaches and athletes, even though there has been talk of such a boycott.

Although it is not on the agenda of a Sept. 7-8 meeting of his committee in Chicago, Barnes said a boycott might be discussed at that time.

The whole question arose—only 30 days before the Games begin Oct. 12—after Russian troops occupied Czechoslovakia this week, promoting cries of protest throughout the world.

Russia joined a bloc of African nations last spring in a threatened pullout over any presence by South Africa, with its segregationist apartheid policy, at the Games.

That problem eventually dissolved when South Africa was banned from the Games.

But despite the denunciation of the Russian action against Czechoslovakia there seems little possibility they would be ousted from Mexico.

"I don't know of any regulation the Olympics because of the invasion," said Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, in Chicago.

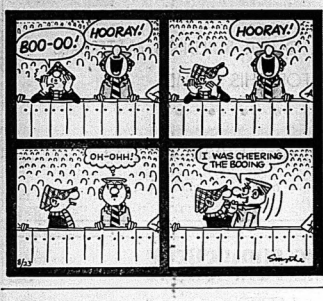
"I anticipate no developments along that line, at least, I hope there are none."

Brundage, as in the South African affair, has taken the position that the Olympics are outside of politics.

Russia participated in the 1956 Games despite its invasion of Hungary, although a bloody fight erupted in a water polo game between the Russians and Hungarians during those Games.

However, a pullout because of fighting is not without precedent. Switzerland, the Netherlands, Spain, Iraq, Lebanon, Communist China and Egypt did not compete in 1956 when fighting broke out in the Middle East.

The Czech occupation already has caused some pre-Olympic disruption. Sweden cut off all sports relations Thursday with the five powers—Russia, Hungary, Bulgaria, Poland and East Germany—which have troops in Czechoslovakia.



Sweden, Norway and Denmark have cancelled their participation in coming sports competition with Russia and East Germany.

Fishermen from Bulgaria, East Germany and Hungary have been banned from the forthcoming World Casting Championships by the International Casting Federation. The event is scheduled at a Swiss resort Aug. 26-Sept. 1.

Gordon Juckes, executive director of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Thursday that future developments in Czechoslovakia are being awaited before a decision is made on a scheduled exhibition tour of Czechoslovaks and Russia this fall by Canada's national hockey team.

However, E. Howard Radford, secretary of the Canadian Olympic Association, said it is "unthinkable" that Canada would refuse to meet Russia or her allies in athletic competition because of the Czech invasion.

Favorites Still in Jr. Golf Links

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — "I'm going to win this tournament."

The announcement came from Tom Morgan of Vancouver Thursday after he won his second-to-none into today's quarter-finals of the Canadian Junior golf championships.

Morgan, 18, is one of three pre-tournament favorites still in the running for the title after the first three rounds.

The others are Tim McCutcheon, 16, of Peterborough, Ont., the 1966 Canadian juvenile champion and low qualifier last year, and Doug Stewart, 18, of Vancouver, a perennial favorite.

McCutcheon played Rod Lalor of Brantford, Ont., in the quarter-finals at 9 a.m. today while Stewart went against Bobby Barrett of Southampton, Ont., and Morgson met Mike Richy of Calgary.

Bill Morrison of Toronto met Dave Hollinger of Kitchener, Ont., in the other quarter-final. The semi-final was scheduled for 2 p.m. with the 36-hole final set for Saturday.

Morgan had a rough time disposing of David Foster of Brantford, Ont., one up in the second round on Thursday, but came back to trounce Dave Mick of Victoria 4 and 2.

"I was hitting them well but Dave was having a terrible round," said Morgson, who went to the 1966 final before losing.

"This time I'm not going to let anyone stop me".

McCutcheon had an easy time in the second round, knocking off Andy Coulson of Toronto 4 and 3 before scoring a narrow one-up victory over Dennis Olesiuk of Saskatoon.

McCutcheon, who changed his unorthodox baseball grip to an interlocking one this season, says he is ready "to win this tournament," although he has another year of junior play remaining.

Stewart had little trouble beating Max Oxford of Lennoxville, Que., Tuesday morning and downing Dale Pallon of Toronto 2-up in the afternoon.

Hollinger reached the quarter-finals by defeating Ross Johnson of Vancouver 2 up and Chuck Hamilton of Toronto 5 and 4 while Morrison downed Byron Radtke of Kitchener 4 and 2 and Jeff Gollish of Toronto 6 and 5 in the third.

But the most interesting and exciting match over the par-72 6,532 yard, KLM Country Club layout was the Thursday afternoon struggle between Richard Dumeah of Liverpool, N.S., and Lalor.

Dumeah, who had disposed Jirka Banek of Edmundston, N.B., 5 and 4 in the morning round was four up on the six-foot-two Brantford golfer after six holes and held the lead through the seventh.

"I don't know what happened after that," he said. "My arms and legs just went to rubber."

Lalar won the eighth and 10th roles with pars and walked for the breaks over the back nine.

Dumeah began spraying his tee shots and lost the 14th and 17th holes.

"I guess I had him then," said Lalar. "I knew he was going to be stretching."

Dumeah stretched and pushed his tee shot on the 18th into the woods. He recovered to score a 5 but Lalar won the hole and the match with a par 4.

Radford Says Sport Separate...

MONTREAL (CP) — It is "unthinkable" that Canada would refuse to meet Russia or her allies in athletic competition because of the invasion of Czechoslovakia, E. Howard Radford, secretetary of the Canadian Olympic Association, said Thursday.

"While we regret the invitation of Czechslovakia, there is no place in sport for politics," he said in an interview.

Sweden, Norway and Denmark announced in Stockholm Wednesday they are withdrawing from various European events in which their athletes were to compete against athletes from Russia or East Germany.

The three countries could then refuse to compete against Russia or East Germany at the Mexican Olympic Games Oct. 12 - 27.

Asked whether Canada might consider similar action, Radford said it is "unthinkable we could do a thing like that."

"In withdrawing from the Games all you are doing is associating a sporting competition with political activity, and the two are not related in the least."

...But Nat'l Hockey Tour Waits

WINNIPEG (CP) — Future developments in Czechoslovakia are being awaited before a decision can be made on whether Canada's national hockey team will make an exhibition tour of Czechoslovakia and Russia this fall.

Gordon Juckes, executive director of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Thursday he is "not in a position to assess the situation at this time."

The national team accepted an invitation to play in a four-team tournament in Prague beginning Oct. 28, but with the occupation of Czechoslovakia by Russia and its allies, the hockey tour is up in the air.

The tournament in Prague was to include Czechoslovakia, Russia, Canada and the United States as a prelude to the world championships in the Czech capital in March.

In return for Canada's representation, it was hoped European hockey powers would attend an exhibition series in Winnipeg in January. The Czechs had agreed to this and the Russians seemed to favor the move.

Visa Extension
Mikita Helps Family

TORONTO (CP) — Stan Mikita, Czech-born hockey star with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, said Thursday he would seek a visa extension for his mother and sister, visiting in North America.

His mother, Amelia Gvozbova, and sister, Viera, have spent two months visiting between the Mikita home in Chicago and with relatives in St. Catharines.

"My sister and mother are coming down here to Chicago some time today," Mikita said in a telephone interview from Chicago.

"Tomorrow I'm taking them down to immigration to get an extension on their visa. Apparently there are rumors that I was going to ask for political asylum for them but there is no truth in that."

He said he did not want his mother, 54, or 17-year-old sister to return home during the current unrest.

"Apparently Prague is closed of and I wouldn't want them going back right now. We're going to wait until things cool off."

Mikita, 28, was raised in St. Catharines by his mother's brother, who brought him to Canada as a youngster.

Maurice Rollins Stands In Front of Award Home

Local Contractor First in Area To Win Award

A telegram received a few days ago by the Maurice H. Rollins Ltd. informed the company it had been awarded the Chatelaine award for excellence of design.

This award is one of some six awards granted nationally by the Home Planning Staff of Chatelaine magazine, and is highly coveted by national home builders.

The Rollins company puts up homes throughout the south-eastern Ontario region as well as in Europe.

And the design that won the Chatelaine award has been used by the company for the past four or five years, said Mr. Rollins.

This is the first such award won in the Quinte area since the inception of the plan.

An open house will be held at the Hillside Crescent location on Aug. 24 at which time executives of Chatelaine Magazine and other dignitaries will be in attendence to inspect the finished product.

The public is also invited to attend the open house which will be completely furnished and landscaped.

Central air-conditioning has been installed in the three bedroom home and a large family room with antique stove and a built-in bar grace the lower portion of the corner lot building.

Maurice Rollins started in the building business with a hot dog stand 20 years ago and is now one of the largest builders in Ontario.

He did not start building his own homes until 1955 when he put up 15 during the first year but jumped this to over 100 the second year.

From then on the company has constantly expanded and is now building homes in Peterborough, Campbellford, Kingston, Cobourg, Trenton, Napanee, Lindsay, and of course Belleville.

Apartment buildings as well as pre-fabricated cottages, home improvements and lumber are also part of the business.

The company guarantees all of its homes for one year and prides itself on its repeat business. It is now building upwards of 200 homes annually, as well as apartment construction.

Each year representatives of the magazine tour the various areas and choose homes which they think excel in one area.

The builder is then approached and asked if he would like to have it submitted for the award and on receiving an affirmative answer the home planning staff of Chatelaine magazine goes over each home and chooses the one it thinks is the best.

"Excellence of design in home building" won the Maurice H. Rollins Construction Ltd., a highly coveted first prize.

Scouts Enjoy Canoe Trip

NAPANEE — Six Napanee Boy Scouts and an adult recaptured all the thrill felt by Canada's first explorers when they made the trip by canoe down the Salmon River from the vicinity of Arden to the Cedar Bend Cottages on Beaver Lake. They arrived tired, wet, and hungry, but happy. They were promptly treated to hot chocolate by the proprietors.

The party entered the river in three canoes Friday afternoon at three o'clock and arrived at Beaver Lake at about 7:30 Saturday evening. Meanwhile they had paddled at least 30 miles, perhaps many more, had passed through several lakes which were widenings of the river, had portaged in one place, and had manipulated their canoes through rapids in another area. It was an uncharted course, as far as they were concerned and hence they were genuine explorers. Only two of the boys were 13. The others were 10, 11 and 12.

Frederick McConnell, 13, is a Queen's Scout, and leader of the Tiger patrol of the Second Napanee Boy Scout Troop. Only three of the seven boys in his patrol were available for the trip: John Davison, Rickey Gourlie, and Ronald French. Douglas Scott, slightly older than Frederick, is from another patrol of the same troop. Although he is not a scout leader, Frederick's father, Charles McConnell, was the adult responsible for the boys.

The boys are bubbling over with excitement at the adventure, and Mr. McConnell is both surprised and pleased at the way they stood up to the fatigue and the hardships. Friday morning there was a heavy thunderstorm about three o'clock, and everything in their shelter, including their bedding, got soaking wet. But there were no complaints.

When the dangers of canoe travelling were mentioned to one boy he said, "I feel safer in a canoe than in a row boat. You just have to know how to handle it!" They had all learned this as part of their scout training. Their scoutmaster is Stewart McConnell.

Violent Thunderstorms Sweep Southwestern Part of Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — Parts of Ontario, hit Thursday night and early today by violent thunderstorms, bracked today for more of the same.

The storms, sweeping in from Lake Erie Thursday night, flood ed roads, brought down power lines, damaged buildings, startled fires, and left a haze boy scout campsite in ruins.

Thunderstowers, accompanied by winds up to 75 miles an hour, lashed an area northwest wards from Toronto to Lake Huron, through Manitoulin Island, to the Sault Ste. Marie district.

In the Sault, where about 2½ inches of rain fell in three hours Thursday morning, one city official said flood damage could exceed $100,000.

"The front is stationary and we expect further thunderstorms in the same areas at least through today," said a weather office spokesman in Milton, about 30 miles west of Toronto, was one of the worst hit areas.

About 2,000 scouts and leaders attending the First Ontario Jamboree near the town had to evacuate their campsite as the rain wind-whipped rains ripped down almost all the tents, brought down power lines and turned the ground to mud. Nobody was injured.

The escorts, from the United States, West Indies and every province in Canada except Manitoba, were ferried by bus and truck to Milton Memorial Centre where some slept the night. Others were billeted with local families.

A militia unit from Toronto moved into Milton to guard the campsite.

In Metropolitan Toronto, dozens of small fires were touched off by lightning and thousands of homes were plunged into darkness as power lines came down in the deluge.

One police spokesman said more than 1,000 burglar alarms were touched off by the storm and a fire department spokesman said.

In the west end of the city a creek overflowed into a factory and a washout occurred on the main county road between Hamilton and Ancaster.

Heavy rains also caused a washout on the Trans Canada highway about 30 miles west of Ste. Marie, closing it to traffic for eight hours. One lane on the highway was opened early in the evening.

Many Have Strange Dreams

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Reading about a musical comedy star who has gone to Europe to study grand opera, I wondered again why so many talented persons are dissatisfied with if they have done as well and feel impelled to embark on projects beyond their powers.

The singer in question is one of the brightest stars in one of the musical stages' Her voice is beguiling, her comfortment endearing, her success full and justified. What need is there for her to compete with opera singers?

George Gershwin was a classic case of such artistic frustration. Tired of the excellent popular tunes he tossed off so easily, he went to Paris to study composition with Stravinsky. The latter was puzzled by the young man's desire to write "serious" music, and tried to dissuade him — but Gershwin remained disgruntled until his death.

Even so great a creative man as Goethe brooded plainly of his tremendous literary works, and was most concerned with his scientific labors— especially the "theory of color," he was certainly of world place him with Newton among the scientific immortals.

Yet for what I have done as a poet," he told Eckermann, "I take no pride whatever in it. Facts more excellent than I have lived before me, and others will come after. But that in my own century I am the only person who knows the truth in the difficult science of colors — of that I am proud."

Needless to say, no one today pays attention to the theory of color promulgated by the author of "Faust" — who himself was apparently unaware that his own hero, Newton, dismissed his scientific work and thought that his Biblical research would live forever.

Nor, to take lesser examples, do we read the "serious" novels of Conan Doyle, which he ranked far above Sherlock Holmes; nor listen to the "serious" music of Arthur Sullivan, which he thought would outlive the frivolous savoy operas he composed with W. S Gilbert.

Dante Rossetti, the fine minor poet, wanied also to be a painter, and once showed Whistler a picture in its early stages, which the American artist criticized. Some months later, Rossetti again showed Whistler the completed picture, this time in a beautiful frame.

"You've done nothing to it since I saw it, have you?" Whistler asked, "No," Rossetti admitted, "but I've added a sonnet on the subject." He then read the lines, which were lovely and fondled ere.

"Take out the picture," advised Whistler bluntly, "and frame the sonnet."

Fiddlers Compete

TORONTO (CP) — Ed Gyurki of Woodstock, Ont., won the old-time fiddlers' contest Thursday at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Gyurki, 20, won $200 in the open competition. Rudy Meeks of Orillia was second, winning $100.

Third prize of $50 went to Bert Mulholland of Stroud, Ont.

Canada's Ability to Assist Czechs Is Small Says Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau extended sympathies to Czechoslovakian-Canadians Thursday but said Canada's means of affecting the situation in their homeland are limited.

The prime minister returned from a shortened Spanish vacation and told a news conference Canada will use whatever diplomatic action it can to ensure fair treatment of those who oppose the Soviet-led occupation.

"But our means of acting here . . . are limited," he added.

Later, Mr. Trudeau met a group of Czechoslovakian-Canadians outside the Parliament Buildings and offered the sympathies of his government for events in their native land.

"Take courage," he told them.

The group from Toronto and Hamilton later demonstrated outside the Soviet Embassy and then went on to the Czech Embassy, where they had a warm reunion with two Czech diplomats.

Another group, representing four Canadian Slovak organizations, met earlier with External Affairs Minister Sharp and presented a brief calling for withdrawal of Soviet-bloc troops from Czechoslovakia, to be followed by free elections.

Mr. Sharp promised a "save haven" for those fleeing from occupying forces. They would be welcomed with the same warmth extended to Hungarians after the 1956 revolt.

A former Conservative defence minister, Douglas Harkness, said in an interview that Canada is unilaterally reducing its contribution to Western defence at a time when the Czech crisis showed that NATO was as essential as ever.

"The wishful thinking that the Russians had all turned into doves and that the need for NATO had disappeared has been exploded," he said.

The demonstrations were almost entirely orderly, although a scuffle developed outside the Soviet Embassy in the afternoon.

Press attache Vladimir Makotin emerged from the building and was cursed by several angry people. A blonde young man tried to punch him but was held back.

Mr. Makotin continued down the street without comment and the demonstrators shouted after him in Czech, Slovak and Russian.

The same group later warmly applauded two Czech diplomats who emerged from their Embassy to greet them.

Demonstrators noted that it was the first time in 20 years they had applauded, instead of booing, the official representatives of their homeland.

Charge d'Affairs Alois Drhlik and Second Secretary Erhard Salomon handled a series of questions on their own position and on events in Czechoslovakia, and appeared to satisfy the crowd.

One demonstrator who acted as an interpreter for reporters said the two expressed support to liberalization moves of the Czech government.

For the first time ever, these new rates mean that the maximum price for a call between any two points in Ontario and Quebec is $1.00 for three minutes, any time after 8 p.m. and all day Sunday. The After-Midnight "Night-Owl" rate, of course, is even lower—75 cents or less for three minutes.

Mushmouth Reports

Umps Learned Hard Way

By GEORGE H. CARVER
MUSHMOUTH REPORTS

Dear Ex-Boss: —

Several of the Unks were here for the annual midsummer ball-session including Mac McSnatch who hails from Aberdeen, Scotland. Unk Mac is an expert on cricket, a "golf" ; ha won several 19th hole stand-or-fall titles, but hadn't seen a baseball game until the other day.

"Tis a nice gentlemanly game," was his opinion, "with the throwers touching their caps to the hitter before every throw, and the rest of them allowing the batters to run around the field unmolested if the ball was struck out of the park."

"But what puzzled me the most" he added," was the finely appreciative gestures of the umpires. Each time the ump behind the plate, padded like a clown, occasionally stepped out to face the crowd, he'd do a Japanese wrestler with stomach cramps and make funny gestures over the ground in front of him with his pygmy-size broom."

Over their flagons of vodka-spiked eel-and-clam juice, the other unks guffawed loud and long.

My baseball Unk McSlug from Cleveland who works in the Valley during summer games came to the explanatory force.

"That howling-facing - the crowd business," he said" started back in 1936 when umpires Bill McGowan, and George Moriarty were working a game in Cleveland. A lot of Indian braves, well some 8,000 shrieking femmes were in the stands — their verbal targets the umps.

"At the end of the third inning Umpire Moriarty took his whisk broom and stepped over to dust off the plate. When he straightened up there was a bewildered look on his face. He motioned McGowan to come to the plate."

"They exchanged a few words and McGowan put on the chest protector. Moriarty shifted off the field where like Frankenstein in an effort to keep the split in the seat of his pants from showing."

"Then" grinned Unk McSlug," the southern exposure lightning struck twice. McGowan was back of the plate in a game at Yankee Stadium where the Yanks were playing Washington. Just before the game he bent to whisk off the plate and the same sickening sound reached his ears.

"His britches had split, but McGowan was a man of conscience and devotion to duty. He decided to carry on."

"He umpired like a war hero about to receive the Victoria Cross. He seemed unable to call anything but "ball Four," Man after man walked and the Senators scored five runs in the first innings more than enough to win the ball game.

"The Yankees and Yankee fans screamed about McGowan's raising himself to be retired temporarily, changed his pants and returned to the game. The Yanks demanded for a long time afterward that the breach in McGowan's buttock cost them the game.

"A few years earlier in the league's Florida League an umpire named Phony Smith heard the seam in his pants give way just as the game went into his windup. Smith was no McGowan.

"He didn't even wait to see the pitch but was off for the dugout at the crack of the pants.

"He returned a few minutes later and was told the batter had hit the pitch possible to the outfielder. He ruled the play legal and it went for an out.

"A magnificent rhubarb ensued during which the cloud burst hit the field and Phony was happy to call the whole thing off."

"And that is why" Unk McSlug told the assembled unks" the umpire now always faces the ball ground when standing off the plate. In case of sudden southern exposure he is able to back off gracefully and at safe distance from the prying eyes of the crowd, retire without embarrassment to the safety of the dugout where he can change his official pants with the extra pair most arbiters now carry with them."

Junior Kicker Win

Locals Drop Batawa

The Belleville Juniors decided a previous 1-1 tie with the Batawa Braves Thursday night as the locals travelled to Batawa to post a 4-2 win over the Braves.

The first tally of the contest was in the initial frame when team captain Joe Iacenda of Belleville drove a hard shot high into the net from 25 yards out. Doug Bain replied for the Braves but Derek Burrowes broke the tie with a last minute goal to end the half 2-1 for Belleville.

The Belleville kickers scored quickly in the second frame with a like drive by Zoltan Csasse to put it at 3-1, but Batawa came back within a minute of Csasse's tally to make it 3-2 on a goal by Wade Kennedy. His shot hit the post and rebounded into the net.

For most of the last half, the Batawa team kept Belleville trapped in their own end of the field only back defending play by Belleville's Don Lomas in the goalmouth kept the Batawa boys from scoring.

The final score for the 4-2 win was a penalty shot by Iacenda.

Tigers McAuliffe Ousts Sox Pitcher

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Detroit Tigers, fighting to win their first American League pennant in 23 years, are using both short and long distance blows to good advantage.

Al Kaline and Willie Horton provided the power with consecutive home runs and Dick McAuliffe helped with effective infighting Thursday night when the Tigers defeated the Chicago White Sox 6-2, increasing their first-place lead over idle Baltimore to 7½ games.

In other games, Mickey Mantle whacked his 534th career homer, tying him for third place with Jimmy Foxx on the all-time list, as New York Yankees dropped a 5-4 decision to Cleveland. Cleveland downed Boston 3-1 and Oakland edge California 3-2 on Dick Green's ninth-inning homer.

McAuliffe's most valuable contribution to the Tigers' cause came during a third - inning skirmish with left - hander Tommy John, Chicago's starting pitcher. The incident resulted in the ejection of both players and a shoulder-to-shoulder mix-up sideline John for three weeks.

Three innings after John's departure, Kaline and Horton tagged his successor, ex-Tiger Dennis Ribant, for their 14th and 15th homers as Detroit overcame a 2-1 deficit.

The skirmish developed after McAuliffe fell to the ground after ducking a 3-2 pitch. He charged toward John halfway between the plate and first base after an exchange of words.

McAuliffe, who is 5-foot-11, slammed into the 6-foot-6 pitcher with his body as players from both dugouts ran onto the field. The two grappled briefly on the ground, but fight was quickly broken up and there were no additional incidents.

McAuliffe was not injured.

John, who has a 10-5 record, will be lost to the ninth-place Tigers for 21 days or about three weeks with torn ligaments in his left shoulder, the Tigers' team physician said.

Detroit had scored in the first on a single by McAuliffe, Kaline and Horton. The White Sox took the lead in the fourth on a two-run homer by Carlos Colbert. The Tigers scored the game's final run in the seventh on a single by Mickey Stanley, 12-7, a passed ball and a single by Mickey Stanley.

Bogota Cheers Pope

BOGOTA (Reuters) — Pope Paul, fervently acclaimed by cheering crowds on the first papal visit to Latin America, today meets about 200,000 of the continent's vast peasantry.

The followers streamed in from all over Colombia to greet him.

The Pope, standing in a jeep, was to drive two miles through the crowds in the open fields and then address and bless them from a special platform. A glass shield will protect him from winds that sweep across the saucer-shaped plateau.

Before meeting the peasants, he spends a country radio station run by the Roman Catholic Culture Movement. It is the latest leg in a chain of stations operated by a priest, Rt. Rev. Jose Joaquin Salcedo, to teach illiterate country people to read and write.

Pope Paul received a tumultuous welcome when he arrived here Thursday after a 12-hour flight from Rome and kissed the soil of Colombia as the first pontiff to visit Latin America.

To Your Good Health

Persistent Skin Disease Is Annoying

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: For many years I have been plagued with an extremely skin disease at the corners of my mouth. The skin cracks, then crusts and forms a scab until I scratch. Then the corners crack again.

Through the years this has grown worse, until they are always with me, and the trouble has spread to both nostrils, the ear, and the corners of my eyes.

Originally a doctor told me it was chelosis, caused by Vitamin B complex deficiency. Vitamins did not help.

Later another doctor said it was chronic eczema but did not prescribe for it.

It seems that doctors pay little attention to diseases if they are not fatal, so my poor mouth gets worse. Is is painful to eat, to say nothing of my crusty nostrils and itchy ears and eyes. — I. A.

When the trouble was confined to the corners of the mouth, I too would have suspected cheilosis, which usually responds quickly to vitamins.

The spread elsewhere on the face puts it in a different light — an eczema, of course, but a general term for such skin eruptions or irritations.

Many conditions most likely comes from one of two causes: either a fungus infection which spreads slowly but is very stubborn, or a hypersensitivity — allergy — to something or other.

In that second category, one must consider such possibilities as sensitivity to dental preparations, cosmetics, nail polish, etc.

I don't know what I can do about the habit doctors have of putting greatest emphasis on the unlikely diseases. In fact, it may not be such a bad habit at all. Still and all; I sympathize with you. My suggestion is to see a dermatologist — skin specialist.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes a cold sore? I have one but the doctor did not tell me what to expect, discomfort, length of time I have before but have seen no answer.

Please answer in your column. — Mrs. W. F.

That's too much of an order to answer in a few paragraphs even in a column, but you will find your answer in my booklet, Herpial Hernia and Cold Sores: Ways to Combat It, which you can obtain by mail. Just send 30 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, envelope for the booklet, to Dr. Molner, in care of the Chicago Sun - Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill. 60118.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am married, 52, and stopped menstruating 14 months ago. Now the flow has reappeared, not flooding, just a regular menstruation.

This may be what ladies do in the menopause. I am not sure. I might also state that I have had a discharge but no other trouble. If you suggest a doctor, I will try to go. — M. V.

Such a pattern can be a normal occurrence at menopause, but as you suspected I am going to suggest that you see a doctor. The cause of that discharge should be determined by a Pap Test or other means.

One of the subtle dangers of menopause — perhaps the danger — is the tendency of women to attribute everything to menopause. Well, o t h e r things are unrelated, can go wrong at the same time.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is radiation treatment used for diseases other than cancer? — Mrs. J.

Certainly, among them bursitis, carbuncles, some types of spinal arthritis, certain skin diseases, for a few samples.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Time Is Said Running Short For Canada to Avoid Violence

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Canada has a chance to avoid widespread racial violence but time is running short, a black power advocate from Nova Scotia said Thursday.

Rocky Jones said Canada is at the same stage in race relations and black power development as the United States was 20 years ago.

"We're going through birth pains," he said. "I'm a conservative in the American movement but I'm a radical here."

Mr. Jones, a former boxer and an outspoken fighter for Negro rights in Nova Scotia, said legislation does not solve the problems which are really white problems not black problems.

Mr. Jones spoke to Canadian University Services Overseas volunteers who are completing a five-week orientation course before leaving Aug. 29 for two years in West Africa. About 140 volunteers from across Canada are enrolled and will work in Nigeria, Ghana and Sierra Leone.

Mr. Borowsky, a counsel for the Canadian Civil Liberties Commission, however, disagreed with Mr. Jones' statements.

"I hope Rocky will forgive me if my definition of white liberals is different than his," he said. "I don't happen to think all white liberals are finks."

Mr. Borowsky said Canada is moving more and more away from concern about removing discrimination to concern for obtaining equality.

"I don't agree with Rocky that this is a racist society. We're not so much racist as apathetic. Most of us are against discrimination. Most of us are for equality. But if it means any inconvenience then most of the fighters go home. . . ."

Around The Cut

Competition for the Dominion title in rinks, pairs and singles in lawn bowling open at the Leaside Bowling Club, Toronto on Monday morning and the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club will represent the province in pairs by Bruce Miller and G. B. "Jerry" Hyde, president of the Canadian Lawn Bowling Council.

Ontario will be represented in the singles by John Wheeler of Scarborough, the pairs by Miller and Hyde and the rinks by a foursome of W. C. "Pete" Wert, H. Maxwell, Dr. G. Grant and G. Whitley of the Ottawa Lawn Bowling Club.

The festivities will commence with registration at the King Edward Hotel on Sunday followed by a church service in the evening and then a reception for the visiting bowlers. On Monday morning before the games open, a parade of the participants will be held with addresses of welcome from officials.

The Belleville rink will play three games on the opening day starting with Alberta at 2.45 o'clock, British Columbia at 2.45 and Quebec at 6.45. On Tuesday the Belleville Nova Scotia and in the afternoon game meet Saskatchewan and have a bye in the evening draw. On Wednesday morning the Belleville pair meet Manitoba to complete the schedule. If there are ties, the playoff will be in the afternoon.

The Belleville pair are experienced bowlers and can take the pressure in tight games.

A rink of Ken Ashley, Bill VanTassel, Jack Avery with G. B. Hyde as skip took part in the Gold Cup tournament at Oshawa on Wednesday but failed to win any prize. There was a full draw of 64 rinks. The Belleville rink lost the first game and won the other two but did not have enough points to score.

It is not often that a player takes part in every event and comes home with a prize but that happened to G. B. "Jerry" Hyde in the recent Toronto tourney. He won a prize in the rinks, pairs and singles bowling 21 games in the process.

Sunday School Lesson

Can Tolerance Go Too Far?

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

An old story tells about a boatload of passengers ship wrecked on a lonely island. No rescue came, so they had to take up their life on the island. By the end of a year, as the story goes, they had established a Catholic church, 10 different Protestant churches, and three different synagogues.

But a new thing is happening in religious circles. People of different religious persuasions are drawing closer together. A spirit of ecumenism, of understanding and co-operation is in the air. Churches that used to attack each other now join on occasion for worship. Catholic and Protestant Christians now work together. Much of the old rigidity and animosity are gone. A new spirit of unity is making itself felt.

The problem naturally presents itself as how far can this ecumenical spirit go without compromising basic convictions? How far should a person go in co-operating with people of different convictions without weakening his witness to his own convictions?

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for August 25 is "Ezra's Program of Reform (Temperance)" Ezra 7 through 10.

People concerned about their religious convictions are being forced to ask such questions as, "when is tolerance a virtue, and when is it surrender?" "Are my convictions important enough to keep me apart from those who differ with me?" "Are not the points where we agree more important than the points where we disagree?" "Can't we disagree on some matters and still join to bear a united witness concerning our common faith in God to a faithless and fragmented world?"

One place where these questions become acute is at the point of intermarriage or interfaith marriages. Is it wise for a Protestant to marry a Catholic? a Christian a Jew? Obviously, many such marriages have been gloriously successful and happy. There are many others, however, where religious differences have been a continuing irritant. Often harmony has been achieved at the expense of faithfulness to religion. "We just don't talk about religion in our home." Or one, or both, partners in the marriage gives up all active interest in his church.

Obviously, the differences within Christianity and Judaism are not as serious as the differences between different faiths, or between religion and no religion. Paul would have seen no serious problem between a Jewish and a Gentile Christian marrying each other. He did see serious problems between a Christian marrying a complete unbeliever, and spoke out in unmistakable terms against such a union (II Cor. 6:14-18).

This was the problem faced by Ezra, the prophet. Inter-marriage with people who were idol-worshippers was weakening the witness of the Jewish people. They were becoming tolerant where Ezra felt they should not be tolerant. They were on the verge of standing forthrightly for faith in the one true God. And so Ezra took a hard stand against such marriages. He even went so far as to demand that where such marriages had taken place, the Jewish partner must give up the idol-worshipping partner (Ezra 10:3).

The problem for Ezra was not racial, it was religious. It was the weakening of faith in the one true God that concerned him. It was the weakening of the image of the Jewish people as the people of God. To exchange the convictions and moral standards of Judaism for the false gods and lack of such standards among idol-worshippers was a trade Ezra was not willing to make.

In this sense Ezra speaks to our day. It has been shown repeatedly that a shared interest in religion is one of the strongest bonds of a truly successful marriage. So much depends on it. A person's attitude toward personality, his own and that of his partner, his standards of conduct, his use of what is right and wrong derive in great measure from his religious convictions, or lack of them. A person who thinks that general agreement on such convictions is not important in marriage, or who hopes to convert an unbelieving partner after marriage is making a grave mistake, and often borrowing unhappiness for himself and the children of such a union in the days ahead.

To modern minds, Ezra's handling of the problem may seem somewhat ruthless and heavy-handed. The danger today is that in the name of tolerance, people will go too far in the other direction and tolerate anything. A doctor may tolerate other approaches to medicine than his own. He cannot tolerate disease germs, or conditions that lead to their spread. A loyal citizen may tolerate dissent. He cannot tolerate anarchy. A religious person can tolerate honest differences of opinion in religious matters. He cannot tolerate any effort to prevent the free practice of religion, or efforts to undermine the moral dignity of men.

Johnson Got Three-week Warning of Invasion

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and other top U.S. officials were advised of the probability of a Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia about three weeks before Russian troops crossed Czechoslovak frontiers Tuesday, administration officials said today.

A secret paper was given to the president and circulated among some 30 high officials early in August saying the move was probable, the sources said.

As late as Tuesday, they said, Johnson and other senior officials were notified at their weekly strategy luncheon by intelligence experts that Soviet military intervention was probable.

This was based on the experts' knowledge that Soviet leaders also met Tuesday on the Czech situation.

The claims of forewarning clashed with a previous statement by a high state department official that "we were surprised" by the invasion.

They also ran counter to information from defence department sources that, while an invasion was foreseen as a possibility, there was no intelligence forecast that it was likely to happen. These sources also said the U.S. government was surprised.

Administration officials said that at the Tuesday lunch, only hours before the invasion, there was a vigorous discussion among Johnson, State Secretary Dean Rusk, Defence Secretary Clark Clifford and others about a possible Russian move.

It was felt, the officials said, that Russia probably would have to throttle the liberal Czechoslovak regime.

Administration officials, obviously anxious to shield U.S. intelligence from charges of failure, said intelligence men were "pretty sharp in calling the shots."

They contended that the Soviet leadership did not decide itself until the day of the Moscow meeting to send Russian and satellite troops into Czechoslovakia.

The administration people acknowledged this conclusion was based on deduction rather than any direct information from agents or other sources.

The administration officials said that Aug. 12, intelligence began "to put out the flags that things were heating up again."

This was a day after Russia had announced new military manoeuvres near the Czechoslovak border and at a time when Soviet propaganda had turned bitter against the Czech regime.

About Aug. 14, nearly a week before the invasion, intelligence pointed out that the Warsaw pact countries led by Russia were, in effect, setting up the military machinery to support an invasion.

"They established a communications network, supply facilities and other arrangements which made it possible for them to move in," one official said.

These officials indicated that U.S. intelligence felt the clincher which decided the Kremlin leadership was the refusal of the Czechoslovak press to tone down its anti-Soviet criticisms.

Administration authorities said they believed the Kremlin's decision was closely held within the leadership.

If it had filtered down to lower levels of the Soviet government, these sources suggested, U.S. intelligence might have got hard information ahead of the invasion, rather than relying on deduction.

This suggested the presence of U.S. agents within the Soviet government structure, although officials would not elaborate.

Capitalism - Communism Convergence Not Near

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the greatest lessons for Western economists in the invasion of Czechoslovakia is that the convergence of capitalism and communism is a long way off.

In recent years it has become popular to believe that capitalism and communism were approaching a junction, that the so-called capitalist nations were employing more central planning and the Communists more free enterprise.

This convergence was forecast to occur by the end of the century in an article written this year by Soviet physicist Prof. Andrei Sakharov. His views were shared by many in the Western world.

New China News Agency Calls Invasion 'Crime'

HONG KONG (Reuters) — China today duplicated the West in condemning Russia and its Warsaw pact allies for invading Czechoslovakia.

The official New China news agency said Russia committed a "monstrous crime" in carrying out the attack.

But at the same time the agency, regarded as the official voice of the Peking government, attacked the Czechoslovaks for "revisionism" and accused their leader, Alexander Dubcek, of undiguisedly accelerating the restoration of capitalism and flaunting the banner of independence in foreign policy in an effort to shake off control by the Soviet Union.

The agency's attack on the Soviets said: "Acting undisguisedly like a pack of robbers, the Brezhnev-Kosygin renegade clique blatantly dispatched . . . massive armed forces to occupy savagely the whole of Czechoslovakia, thus committing a monstrous crime against the Czechoslovak people."

The report, quoting Western news agencies about events in Prague, described the Soviet news agency Tass's statement that the Russian action was "proceeding from the principles of inseparable friendship and co-operation" as "shameless" and "most hypocritical."

The Peking People's Daily said that "it reminds one of the occupation of Sudetenland, in Czechoslovakia, by Hitler."

"The Czechoslovak incident is a lesson to Czech and other revolutionaries of the world," the newspaper's commentator said.

"It has laid bare the counter-revolutionary nature of Soviet revisionism."

The article called on all people in Czechoslovakia and other East European countries to "overthrow modern revisionist rule" and seize power.

Weather Control May Bring Mass Migrations

MONTREAL (CP) — Mankind's growing ability to control the weather may one day be followed by mass relocations of populations, a Japanese weather scientist suggested here Thursday.

Dr. Takeshi Ohtake, associate professor of geophysics at he University of Alaska at Fairbanks, said in an interview he foresaw the possibility of mass migrations as weather control techniques develop and the need for certain controlled and localized weather patterns increased.

Attending a conference of adar meteorology at McGill University, Dr. Ohtake cited one example in Japan.

Here a hydro-electric company—"located to be north of Honshu island"—increased rainfall by up to 20 per cent above average by continually "seeding" clouds with chemicals to make them give up their water content.

"In winter, too, the snowfall was increased by 20 per cent above normal to achieve a kind of reservoir of water in the form of snow.

"The climate of the area has therefore become much wetter in recent years and no one has ever made the reason public.

"The company, with greater water resource resources now at its command, is, of course, making greater profits, but it has never announced what it has done to the climate."

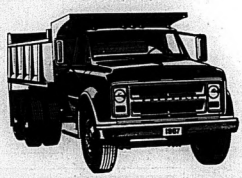
It was possible in future that in areas where it might be desirable to produce more rain than can be achieved naturally —"by increasing rainfall to 50 per cent or more beyond existing natural levels"—population centres would have to be moved.

Quasars' High Energy Proven

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian scientists, using giant radio telescopes in Britain and this country, have confirmed their earlier findings about mysterious stellar bodies called quasars.

The National Research Council said Thursday these little-understood space phenomena may be even smaller than indicated by their studies last year.

The big mystery about quasars is how such a relatively small object could give off energy as great as whole galaxies composed of millions of stars.



First measurements of their size were made last by scientists from NRC, the University of Toronto, Queen's University and the federal Energy, Mines and Resources department.

Their work suggested that quasars may be no greater than 100 light years in diameter, a staggering size to laymen but relatively small to astronomers when compared with normal galaxies of about 100,000 light years in diameter.

Landowner Says Criticism by Planning Director 'Unwarranted'

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Belleville developer John M. Parrott took strong exception this morning to planning director P. J. Beavis's charges of irresponsibility in Sidney township land development.

"His criticism is unwarranted," said Mr. Parrott, president of Hamlepeck Limited.

The development company owns two parcels of land in Sidney, one abutting the west boundary of Quinte Golf Club course and lying between highway 2 and the CNR tracks to the north.

"We understand that Sidney has been requested to put an subdivision control, which, in effect, is a freezing order because the municipal board will not approve subdivisions in Sidney," Mr. Parrott said.

"The move has not been invited and will not be welcomed by either farmers, developers or residents of Sidney.

"Sidney has done very well running its own affairs and can continue to do so in the future."

Mr. Parrott's lawyer requested the Attorney General's department to review the restraining order put on the Montrose Drive property in January, 1966.

In the opinion of R. R. Priddle, assistant inspector of legal offices, the subject land "could further be subdivided" because of discovery of a technical error in the terminology of the restraining order.

Following the lifting of the restraining order in June, the Attorney General's department recommended to Mr. Parrott a new "R plan" of subdivision, a method of subdividing land without the need for approval from the minister of municipal affairs.

"Mr. Beavis says development of these lots could lead to a probable population of 2,200 in the area", remarked Mr. Parrott.

"Even though his figures are grossly speculative, it is the Romania Next Invasion Victim?

From AP-Reuters

Romania and Yugoslavia, the only two remaining ready to defend themselves against any threat to their Independent Communist countries, warn they are independence.

Two London newspapers today reported massed mania.

In Bonn, West German Foreign Minister Willy Brandt said he could not rule out a possibility Romania might be put under Soviet military pressure.

Brandt spoke to newspaper men at a Romanian reception marking the 24th anniversary of the launching of communism in Romania.

Romanian Ambassador Constantin Oancea told Bonn officials attending the reception:

"We are armed and ready. We are calm and prepared for everything."

The London Daily Telegraph said authoritative sources reported Bulgarian troops moving toward Romania's southern border.

Yugoslav President Tito gave his warning at a meeting Friday night of the Yugoslav Communist party central committee which condemned the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia. Radio Belgrade reported today.

He said: "Everybody should be clearly notified that Yugoslavia would know how to use every means for defending and safeguarding itself if anything should arise to threaten its development."

"Hit him again!"

Ike's Heart Irregular Again

WASHINGTON (AP)— Former president Dwight D. Eisenhower suffered new attacks of irregular and rapid heart beats early today, his doctors at Walter Reed Army Hospital announced.

Return to Power Now Rumored

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovak leader Alexander Dubcek, seized by Soviet occupation forces three days ago, has joined the talks in Moscow over the future of the country he has tried to liberalize, sources said today.

The talks apparently ran beyond schedule today, suggesting a settlement while broadcasts from Czechoslovakia reported its leaders had won significant concessions.

A radio station identifying itself as Czechoslovakia. One reported President Ludvik Svoboda had concluded "an honorable agreement" with the Russians. It offered no details.

A broadcast on the wavelength of the clandestine Radio Prague said Alexander Dubcek, the Czechoslovak Communist party chief whose liberalization program prompted the Soviet bloc invasion Wednesday, "is to resume his functions in the next few days."

Both the free radio in Czechoslovakia and reliable Communist sources in Moscow reported the appearance of Dubcek, the popular Communist party leader, and Premier Oldrich Cernik.

There had been speculation about their fate since they were arrested soon after Russia and four of its satellites invaded Czechoslovakia Wednesday to crush the liberalization drive. The reports were sure to boost the morale of Czechoslovaks. Two days ago, Dubcek had been rumored killed.

The talks in Moscow opened Friday with President Ludvik Svoboda at the head of an eight-man Czechoslovak delegation. There have been signs he disagreed with the Soviets, presumably over Russian efforts to set up a puppet government in Czechoslovakia.

But as the second round of talks began today, Communist diplomatic circles reported optimism over progress. Further details were not available.

It was not announced when Svoboda would return to Prague or whether Dubcek and Cernik would be allowed to return with him. Soviet and Czechoslovak flags were being placed along the route to the Moscow airport, as indication Svoboda might leave today.

Radio Prague and Radio Nitra gave the first reports of the appearance of Cernik and Dubcek, who halted 20 years of Stalinist-type rule in Czechoslovakia in January.

They said the report came from Slovak Communist party officials who were allowed by occupation officials to talk by telephone with a member of the Czechoslovak delegation in Moscow, Gustav Husak.

They said Husak told them "please wait in Bratislava for success of the talks," apparently referring to a Slovak party congress set today to start in Bratislava today.

Prague Radio, in another broadcast monitored in London, also appealed for all Czechoslovaks to organize a plebiscite calling for the immediate departure of Soviet invasion forces. It gave no details on how such a public vote could be carried out.

The radio urged experts to mobilize to assess damage caused by the occupation troops.

The main focus of attention, however, was on reports on Moscow and Dubcek.

Travellers leaving Czechoslovakia said controls are tightening there under the estimated 200,000 occupation troops, and many persons have been arrested.

During curfew hours in Prague Friday night, heavy shooting broke out—20 minutes of sporadic firing, possibly from snipers, followed by five minutes of heavy machine-gun bursts, apparently in response.

The occupation troops' fire apparently was directed at a students' dormitory and some richocheting bullets landed in the garden of the U.S. Embassy.

It was impossible to learn whether there were any casualties from the shooting near the dormitory or from small arms fire heard near Wenceslas Square.

LBJ's Czech Policy Arouses No Critics

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson appears to have near unanimous support for his policy of relying on the twin weapons of diplomacy and world condemnation to roll back — or at least blunt — the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

The president has yet to be directly criticized by a political candidate for his handling of the Soviet-led takeover and there were no publicly dissenting voices after Johnson and top aides briefed congressional leaders of both parties Friday.

"Our country — even in the midst of a hectic presidential campaign — needs urgently to demonstrate that in times of crisis our people support our commander in chief," said Senator Thomas H. Kuchel of California, senate Republican whip.

He called the briefing of the more than 30 congressional leaders, which touched also on Vietnam and other areas, "one of the most thorough in which I ever participated."

Senate Republican leader Everett Dirksen of Illinois said the invasion should lay to rest efforts to bring home from Europe this year any of the 350,000 U.S. soldiers stationed there.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, chief sponsor of the move to cut U.S. forces on the continent, already has said such a move should be put off for the time being.

Representative George Mahon Dem.-Tex., chairman of the House of Representatives appropriations committee, said the invasion may increase pressure for bigger defence spending but that cuts made recently will stand.

Pope Calls for Latin American Reform But Opposes Violence

BOGOTA (Reuters)—Pope Paul today ends an historic three-day visit to Colombia with a policy speech to Latin American bishops in which he will lay down guidelines for the Roman Catholic Church in this restive continent.

The 70-year-old pontiff, apparently unable to catch up on lost sleep after a transatlantic flight and a busy schedule, looked tired and drawn Friday night. His voice was raspy.

Today he inaugurates the Latin American Episcopal Conference in a ceremony at the baroque cathedal in downtown Bogota.

The bishops, attending the International Eucharistic Congress, will adjourn Monday to Medellin, the second city of Colombia, to discuss how the papal guidelines should be put into practice.

The Pope flies back to Rome tonight with a brief stopover in Bermuda.

The Pope Friday denounced social injustices in Latin America, attacked the glaring gap between rich and poor, but excluded violence and revolution as a solution to these problems.

The pontiff took his stand in two important speeches—one to 150,000 peasants in the field outside Bogota, and the other at a special congress mass for employers, workers and students.

In his address to the peasants, he called on governments and the ruling classes to start a program of reforms.

Bogota was the home of Rev. Camilo Torres, a Colombian priest-sociologist who became a revolutionary and joined guerrilla bands in the mountains. Father Torres was killed in 1966, at the age of 36, in a clash with government troops.

A minority of young priests here think him a hero, and some preach armed violence as the only way of bridging the wide gaps between rich and poor in Latin America.

Pope Paul said: ". . . Some conclude that Latin America's essential problem can be solved only by violence. . . .

"We must say and reaffirm that violence is not in accord with the gospel, that it is not Christian."

The pontiff added that Christian love is the key to solving the problems of Latin America, but "charity is not enough if it remains purely theoretical, verbal and sentimental."

THE TEMPERATURES

Synopsis: Unsettled weather prevails over all of northern and central Ontario as a vigorous weather disturbance moves towards the great lakes area from Minnesota. This weather system will move eastward into Quebec on Sunday and showers will slowly taper off in the North. Some clearing is likely during the day across southern Ontario as cooler drier air moves in.

Today's Chuckle

"He's dreamy," the teenage girl told her mother. "He's tall, dark, and has push-button windows."

Damp Weekend Expected

Another damp dreary weekend is on the agenda, but at least the temperatures aren't going to be that bad.

Yesterday's high of 74 and last night's low of 55 should set the pace for both today and Sunday.

The beginning of the week will most probably see the temperatures rise between five and 10 degrees and the sun coms out.

"Mostly cloudy with scattered showers throughout the weekend," was the forecast from the duty forecaster at the Canadian Forces base in Trenton.

High temperatures over the weekend should be around 75 and the low at night 65 so although the sun won't be out nobody should freeze to death.

Scattered showers occurred throughout the Quinte area during the night but there was no serious downpour.

No precipitation at all fell in Trenton overnight.

Accident Damage Totals $1,300

TWEED — Three accidents in the Tweed area Thursday caused damage totalling $1,300.

No personal injuries were sustained in any of the mishaps.

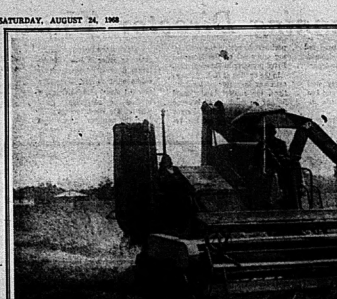
Two other minor accidents near Tweed caused about $100 damage.

A heavy downpour hit the district at the time of the accidents.



Friday morning at 2.25, cars driven by Harold Elmer Schoobel, 48, of Stevensville and Orland Glen Green, 27, 37 Mcira St. East, Belleville, were in collision two miles north of Ivanhoe on highway 62. Each car received $100 damage.

Kenneth Twiddy, Thurlow township farmer operates combine in badly flattened field of oats on his 4th concession farm north of Belleville. Oats this year are yielding up to 90 bushels per acre.

Landowner Assert's Criticism By Planner Is 'Unwarranted'

first display of optimism we have heard from him since he came to Belleville."

Replying to Mr. Beavis's charge that landowners in the township do not recognize the most elementary principles of land development, Mr. Parrott noted that his company ten years ago developed the large, subdivision in the city of Belleville in conformation with all planning board requirements.

He added that percolation tests were made by consulting engineers in the Montrose Drive area and the soil was found suitable for septic tank installation for the proposed density.

The developer claimed that no financial hardships will be inflicted on township residents for provision of water and sewer services for his land.

"Sidney council members have always remarkable judgment and sound business administration," he said. "They continue to develop their community with little or no current indebtedness and with the lowest municipal taxes in the Quinte area.

"Until the municipalities recognize the OWNC offer to supply water, we will continue with a good well. Already we have seen sewer and water brought to Loyalist College, and until services come to our area we will use septic installations."

Mr. Parrott questioned the $4,000,000 figure quoted by Mr. Beavis for installation of services in the Montrose Drive area.

"An estimate prepared by W. O. Chisholm Associates, consulting engineers, shows that water could be extended from the Belleville main for about $70,000 to $90,000," Mr. Parrott said.

In the early stages of planning the area, school boards were approached regarding the necessity for school sites.

"They indicated they had no need for more school land because the present school in the area is located on a 200 acre site with ample room for expansion," the developer remarked.

"We are willing to contribute toward any park area the township sees fit to develop."

Mr. Parrott challenged the statement by Mr. Beavis that houses in the area would be potentially substandard because of lack of services and the health hazard of soil unable to absorb effluent from septic tanks.

"If these houses are substandard, most Ontario residents will be clamoring for more", he said.

Four houses are now under construction in the area, on lots with 100-foot frontage. They range in price from $26,000 to $35,000.

Lodged Grain Is No Problem

With plenty of rain and good growing weather conducive to heavy straw growth lodged and flattened fields of grain seem to be the rule rather than the exception this year in the Quinte district.

But with modern-day harvesting equipment flattened grain doesn't pose the problem it did once when farmers did their harvesting with the now old fashioned grain binders.

With the conventional binder, lodged grain meant a mass of tangled and interconnected sheaves which defied normal handling and provoked farmers' tempers.

But today's combines take the flattened grain in their stride, cut it, thresh it, and spew out the straw.

And fortunately lodging doesn't seem to hamper harvesting or reduce grain quality.

Kenneth Twiddy, a Thurlow township farmer living just north of the city, reports a heavy crop of oats this year with yields running up to 90 bushels per acre. Barley this year is yielding up to 75 bushels per acre.

Yesterday he was at work cutting a badly lodged field of mixed oats and barley which his ten foot cut combine was taking in its stride.

In fact the whole operation was a prime example of how mechanization has cut the labor requirement in grain harvesting.

Instead of binders cutting sheaves which had to be stooked and later threshed with a crew of up to 10 or more men and several wagons involved, Mr. Twiddy was handling the whole operation himself.

His combine will cut up to two acres per hour, the thrashed grain is dumped into a waiting truck and later augured into the farm granary all without hand handling.

Wooler Amusement Park Hits Financial Snag

TRENTON — Lack of support from the local area and a recent dissociation with the Universal Travellers Club of Canada has sent Les Stephens field supervisor of the proposed Holiday Village in Wooler, looking for $100,000 to keep the project going.

"There is no chance of the operation folding," explained Mr. Stephens, "but the Travellers Club of Canada wanted too much control in the operation so we excluded them from it."

He said the club, because it paid "a lion's share of the cost wanted a lion's share of the control."

As a result no buildings will be built his year. The autumn will see the construction of a skidoo track along with the bleachers.

The unfortunate part of the delay, according to Mr. Stephens, is that the public becomes suspicious of the whole operation.

"I don't think we will have too much trouble raising the money," he added, "there are five outside investors interested already."

Head of the project is William A. Ryan. When asked when he would be down to check the situation, Mr. Stephens replied he could come any time.

It was planned to have the $2 million village finished within a year but chances of this now seem pretty slim.

Meanwhile at a Tuesday meeting of Murray township council the subject was touched on lightly.

The councillors agreed that it seemed the project had very little chance of "getting off the ground."

To this Mr. Stephens said: "There is no way this operation will fold."

Weather, Dead Fish Problems

Attendance Drops at Four Provincial Parks

PICTON (Staff) — Attendance at the four area provincial parks dropped approximately 48,000 from last year.

Officials at the parks say that a combination of factors are responsible.

Earlier-in the summer the parks were plagued with pileups of shad along the waterfront. The dead fish were raked up constantly but the damage was done as word got around said the authorities.

Based on the shad, rumors began that not only were fish dying along the coast, but that the water in the area was polluted and that the beaches were dirty and condemned.

The weather has done anything but co-operate. Rain has cut down attendance throughout the season. Saturdays and Sundays seemed particularly plagued by poor weather.

Weather-wise July was the most fortunate of the summer months.

An increase in park rates probably deterred a number of visitors as well. Rates jumped from $5 to $10 for a season permit, and from $1.50 to $2.50 for a camping permit.

The parks will officially close down Sept. 15 although the facilities will be left open to tourists. Park officials said they did not mind people using the grounds as long as garbage cans were still in the park.

The cans will probably be removed in November. In the meantime crews will repair the damages done during the season, and will get the parks in readiness for the next one.

Attendance at Outlet park this year, was the highest of the four. The 331,021 attendance however a drop from the 1967 360,017. Sandbanks dropped from 65,638 in 1967 to 50,713 this year. Lake on the Mountain dropped from 1967's 26,246 to 22,393 and North Beach from 41,530, to 40,014.

Super castles in the sand are the work of Belleville children playing at the Outlet Provincial Park. Parks officially close down September 15. Taking advantage of the last days are Ginette, Monique and Diane Chevrier.

Planners Accept New Subdivision

Plans for a new west end subdivision of 53 acres divided into 160 lots were accepted this week by Belleville and Suburban Planning Board.

The board will recommend acceptance of Gowan Brae Ltd.'s plan to the minister of municipal affairs.

The subdivision is located north of Leland Drive and around the site of Sir Mackenzie Bowell School.

The acceptance means that Belleville Public School Board will be able to acquire land for additional playground space north of the school. Extension of the playground by four acres had been held up until the developer submitted an acceptable subdivision plan.

The city's parks board will acquire land for recreational purposes north of the playground extension.

Planning Issue

Essentials of any building development are the prior provision of services, as well as the existence of adequate local government controls in the area.

Both these requirements are missing in the case of areas of Sidney township west of the Bay of Quinte Country Club currently the focus of urgent consideration by local planning authorities.

Sidney township is being urged — and rightly so — to place controls on random development in the area under its jurisdiction. Authorities here are warning against any such development without controls and provision being made for services.

A particular problem is the provision of water — not just in Sidney but in the whole Quinte region. As Dr. R. T. Potter, MPP for Quinte told the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board the other day, "We're missing a glorious opportunity because of lack of planning and lack of the facilities that would come with proper planning."

Meanwhile, Sidney is marking time on the two tracts of land west of the golf club. Envisaging their development for housing, Belleville planning officer P. J. Beavis warns of a possibility of about 200 homes being built without adequate provision being made for access routes and sewage. He says there is no evidence that there is sufficient natural water supply available from subterranean water courses to meet a flow of 210,000 gallons of sanitary sewage a day. He says further that although soil maps indicate the soil to be reasonably good, it is "extremely doubtful" that it can accommodate this quantity of sewage.

Mr. Beavis points out that an estimated 2,200 population on the land when it is developed will generate a need for 13 elementary school classrooms, eight high school classrooms and three separate school classrooms. Yet there is no evidence, he says, that provision is to be made for a school site or sites, in the vicinity. Moreover, the development will increase several hundred fold the vehicular traffic using an unprotected crossing over the Canadian Pacific Railway's main line.

"In the event that the development proceeds and does ultimately house a population of 2,200, it is certain, "the planning officer says, "that some form of community water supply and sanitary sewage disposal facilities will need to be developed."

The cost, according to Mr. Beavis, would require funds of perhaps $1 million over and above the $3 million already estimated to be necessary to extend basic services from the city limits.

These are matters of concern not only to Sidney but to the whole area, including Belleville which ultimately would have to bear much of the cost of such a development. Sidney should place the necessary controls on random development. The township is already aware of this fact, having discussed the matter with the minister of municipal affairs in Toronto last month. The alternative is the imposition of control by the government itself.

Youthful Endeavour

It is good to see the "Sing Out" group from the Canadian Forces Base at Trenton working hard to raise funds for further presentations.

Last weekend a score of teenagers took part in a sponsored swim to boost the $600 already raised toward the purchase of stage equipment and properties. No lounging around the streets for these fine young people. And no complaining on their part about lack of things to do in their community. Rather they are living examples of youthful initiative and positive endeavor. By their example they show that life can be interesting and at the same time fun, without having to resort to drugs, "kicks," running away from home and becoming a virtual derelict.

They remind one of the Ulster Girls Choir from Northern Ireland who some years ago visited Canada at their own expense. Concerts given by the choir, as in the case of others presented by them in Britain and in Europe, were in aid of local charity.

It is personal initiative that counts in the end, as Trenton's Sing Out group has shown with such youthful verve and enthusiasm.

CBC Waves Its Wand and Thousands of Dollars Vanish

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Remember those delightfully revealing paragraphs in Auditor General Maxwell Henderson's annual report to Parliament on the spending habits of the CBC?

Revealing because they did so much to clue in the taxpayers as to why the CBC this year is costing them an extra $40,340,000 for a total record $154,200,000.

Those paragraphs read:

"Early in 1967, because of an anticipated shortage of hotel accommodation in Montreal, the CBC entered into contracts with three hotels to ensure space for its personnel travelling to that city.

"Up to June 20, this accommodation had remained unoccupied 24 to 46 to 65 percent of the time.

"The contract with the hotel having the unoccupied rate of 46 percent was terminated on May 31, and a cancellation penalty of $18,900, equal to one month, was paid.

"The cost of the unoccupied accommodation from January 1 to June 30, 1967, was $104,000."

The hotel rooms were blockbooked for the comfort and convenience of CBC personnel going to Montreal for Expo.

And, as some of those CBC showman-types might put it, you ain't heard nothing yet.

For that $104,000 wasted on unoccupied rooms was for unused accommodation booked only to June 20 — and Expo still had another four of its six-month run to go.

So there are more thousands of wasted dollars to be paid — by you, of course, in your taxes — to cover the rest of the CBC bill for empty hotel rooms.

The next thrilling chapter will be unfolded in the spring, in the auditor general's new report.

Now how could even CBC goof like this?

It was easy.

One of its senior executives, airily waved a casual hand, ordering 100 Montreal hotel rooms "just to be on the safe side."

So what happened? Was anybody fired, even reprimanded?

Not in the CBC.

Instead, this very same senior executive, retiring — by his own wish, not that of the CBC — was voted a $25,000 "going-away purse." And this in addition to his generous — the best in the federal establishment — CBC pension.

The auditor general raised a little cain about that, too, but got nowhere. Parliament just didn't seem to care.

Why not?

Well, perhaps because the CBC, the cabinet, and even Parliament shrugged it off with a careless "What's $104,000?"

Well, another equally official government publication, the national revenue department's statistical "Green Book" on taxation, provides a wide choice of answers.

Among them. $104,000 just happens to be:

More than the total taxable Old Age Pension income — $96,000 — of Prince Rupert's 5,941 taxpayers.

Nearly double the total non-taxable foreign investment income — $60,000 — of Victoria's 56,744 taxpayers.

More than triple the total taxable rental income — $31,000 — of Prince George's 14,835 taxpayers.

Equal to exactly $8.05 out of the pocket of every one of Grande Prairie's 12,590 taxpayers.

Precisely double the Canadian investment income — $52,000 of St. John's, Newfoundland, 26,907 taxpayers.

More than quadruple the annuity income — $23,000 — of Sydney's 24,907 taxpayers.

Nearly 24 times the average income — $4,392 — of Saint John's 26,263 taxpayers.

Just under 193 times the average tax — $538 — paid by Belleville's 12,414 taxpayers.

Almost 21 times the average income — $4,967 — of Kitchener-Waterloo's 49,883 taxpayers.

Just about triple the total taxable annuity income — $35,000 — of Owen Sound's 4,698 taxpayers.

Not much less than the $114,000 in sales and gasoline tax paid by Stratford's 10,469 taxpayers.

More than the annuity income — $97,000 — plus the foreign investment income — $34,000 — of North Bay's 12,116 taxpayers.

Not far short of the combined farming and fishing income — $112,000 — of Fort William-Port Arthur's 36,720 taxpayers.

About $2.80 out of the pocket of every one of Sudbury's 37,008 taxpayers.

Just $21,000 short of the rental income — $125,000 — of St. Thomas' 10,814 taxpayers.

What's $104,000?

A lot of money to a lot of people.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Aug. 24, 1968 . . .

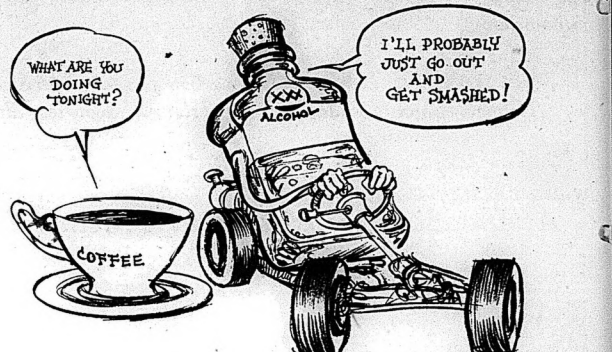
In retaliation for the burning of public buildings at York, now Toronto, British troops burned the White House in Washington, D.C., 134 years ago today—in 1814 —during the War of 1812. Earlier that month a British fleet entered Chesapeake Bay and landed an army under Gen. Robert Ross. The only opposition was about 5,000 militiamen who were routed. After an unsuccessful attempt to capture Baltimore, Md., Ross' troops attacked other points along the coast.

1887—Johns Hopkins University was incorporated in Baltimore, Md.

1954—President Eisenhower signed the Communist Control Act, outlawing the Communist party in the United States.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—British soldiers stormed the Thiepval Ridge, southeast of Albert, France, and continued steady progress in the face of enemy reinforcements; Valenciennes and Cambrai railway stations were bombed by British planes; it was announced that more than 1,500,000 American soldiers had arrived in France to date.



Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt wound up the Quebec conference and declared their full agreement on future moves in the war against the Axis, particularly Japan; German forces put six Danish cities under a state of emergency following difficulty in subduing a revolt against German occupation; Allied fighter-bombers scored hits on an Italian cruiser off the Italian coast and left it burning.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—British forces held the road from Albert to Bapaume, and captured Maricourt, Fariupuis and Le Sars as successful actions continued with 17,000 prisoners taken during the Somme advance; French planes bombed railway and assembly areas at Laon, Jussy and Pontavert.

Memories of Harrow on the Hill

Edmead Boyd in The Globe and Mail

I enjoyed seeing a picture of my old school recently. I still have fond memories of my six years at Harrow. The building shown contains the original two classrooms built in the Sixteen Hundreds. They are dark and unheated and the desks are covered with carved initials, including those of Lord Byron and Winston Churchill. They'd be condemned by a Toronto school board, but nevertheless I learned enough Greek at them to make a reasonable translation of Homer's Iliad. Does it matter that I couldn't translate a step sign in Athens now? Our Greek classes were at 7 a.m., before breakfast. I won't forget the look (official Harrow name for master), who was a bit of a swinger, arriving promptly to find us through irregular vests — still resplendent in full evening dress from the night before.

Those funny flat straw hats the boys in the picture are holding are worn tilted forward and kept on by an elastic around the back. They're terrific fun to skim, as they fly like boomerangs, but if they hit a tree on the way back, the brim gets bashed pretty badly. When you rose to be a monitor you were allowed a bicycle. This was a boon because it meant that on Saturdays you could go for rides. It was only a couple of miles to the nearest commuter station, and you could hide your bike and hat under a hedge and take the train to a movie in London. If you hurried, you could make it back in time for the evening roll-call. Once another boy and I climbed out of our house after lights-out and went to a party in the big city. A few chaps were expelled for these jaunts every year. That only added to the thrill.

Of course we played organized games three afternoons a week. Rugger in the autumn term, our own game called Harrow Football in the winter and cricket in the spring. I got so bored with cricket that I practiced swimming like mad and made the team. That was the only way I could get excused from cricket. I see that the Public Schools Commission, which has been studying the future of Harrow and the other private schools in Britain, has suggested that 50 per cent of the boarders should be paid for by the state, so as to bring about the "right social mix" in our classless Britain. I don't think that would make any difference.

Nobody at Harrow cared who anybody's father was; you either liked the fellow or you didn't. And accents were varied anyway, what with Europeans and Indians in the school. Harrovians, like any other kids, can either turn out to be snobs or not. Who's paying their fees isn't going to change that.

Liberalism Threatens Kremlin -

Beginning of the End for International Communism?

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—The wish may be father to the thought, but there is a broadly-based feeling among U.S. diplomats and intellectuals that, with the Soviet slash into Czechoslovakia, international communism may have reached its zenith.

If so, it would be a long, lingering death. Its life could be saved—or extended—by some daring transplant surgery among the Kremlin hierarchy.

Much of the speculation and interpretation that has flooded radio, television and newspaper columns since the Soviet invasion is along the lines espoused by Zbigniew Brzezinski, Columbia University professor and former state department adviser.

In the short run, the hardliners in Moscow can succeed in keeping Eastern Europe under their thumb, his theory runs, "but in the long run, it means the disintegration of international communism."

Many look for another chapter in the drama, in the form of a shakeup in the Moscow leadership.

Their theory is that the Kremlin had given every indication it could live with the new, liberal leadership in Prague, and then, suddenly, changed its mind and decided to crush it. This indicates a conflict of opinion in which the Kremlin hawks, belatedly, gained the upper hand.

How the situation stabilizes after the initial emotional world outrage, and how the West reacts in the weeks ahead, will influence this power struggle.

Several highly regarded scholars of the Soviet scene already have warned against over-reacting, stating that a massive U.S. defence budget increase and an outpouring of militant anti-Communist sentiment would strengthen the hand of the new Kremlin force. Statements so far by President Johnson and the state department, sympathetic but unemotional, indicate administration circles agree.

In other words, if the West keeps its cool while the big Communist parties outside the Soviet orbit, the neutral and the underdeveloped countries do their expressions of displeasure with the Soviet thrust, the whole adventure could be shown to have cost more than it was worth.

This would reassert the authority of the more moderate men in the Kremlin. It is possible they would contrive to "isolate" the Czechoslovak affair, in much the same way the U.S. seeks to isolate the Vietnam affair, and at the same time continue the government's recent more conciliatory tone on disarmament and the like.

But for many in the United States the cold war is on again, the Iron Curtain is firmly in place and there should be no truck with the Communists.

If this line prevails here, as it is more likely to do if Republican Richard Nixon wins the Nov. 5 U.S. presidential election, Canadian government hopes of improving relations with Communist China will run into even stiffer U.S. opposition than it has in the past.

Brodsky and her sister, Gwen, 14, look on, nine-year-old Vicki Brodsky watches a demonstration of the workings of the carpentry shop's planing horse by John R. Slan, director of the reconstruction of Sainte-Marie among the Hurons near Midland. Vicki was the 100,000 visitor to the project.

Several Factors Contributing To Catholic Split Over Pill

NEW YORK (AP)—Several unusual factors are contributing to the continuing turmoil over Pope Paul's action re-affirming Roman Catholicism's ban on contraception.

They involved, besides the specific issue, some general trends and new attitudes in the church, and they intensified questions over uses of papal authority.

With the controversy still gathering volume, more than two weeks after the decision came, some of the special conditions adding to the upheaval over it included:

—It came amid growing emphasis in the church on the rights of religious liberty and the primacy of individual conscience.

—It was issued individually by the Pope at a time when the church has been shifting from centralized monarchical rule to broader collegial or collective government.

—It came when many priests and some bishops, particularly in Europe, have been advising Roman Catholics to follow their own consciences about methods of birth control.

—It was based mainly on traditional philosophical concepts of natural law, although the recent Vatican council put new stress on the biblical basis of divine revelation.

—It conflicted with widespread opinion expressed both by theologians and lay organizations in the church, including last year's international lay congress in Rome.

—It was contrary to the majority recommendations of a papal commission of theologians, doctors and other experts which had studied the question for five years, and which said acceptable use of "mechanical or chemical means" of contraception should be allowed.

—It recognized the changed church view that sex relations serve values both of unifying couples and producing children, rather than using the old formula that children are the "primary" purpose. But, at the same time, it said each marital act must be open to reproduction without interference.

Under these varied circumstances, Pope Paul himself foresaw in his July 29 encyclical that its view would "not be readily received by all" and he repeatedly since has pleaded for its acceptance.

However, debate about it in the church, rather than easing off, has generated increasing steam.

The results "may indeed heighten the crisis in authority we are already experiencing" in the church, a leading Catholic historian, Msgr. John Tracy Ellis of the University of San Francisco, told the Catholic National Register.

A noted moral theologian, Rev. Bernard Haring, said if it acts simply a personal matter he would silently accept the teaching, "but in this case the whole credibility of the church is at stake."

While church scholars differed sharply over the encyclical's position, both criticizing and approving it, bishops generally voiced support for the Pope. But some of them said the matter needs further examination.

Canadian bishops expressed support for the Pope.

American bishops urged Catholics to receive the decision "with sincerity" and "to form their consciences in its light."

Although fears were expressed that the encyclical might cause wide defections from the church, a Dutch prelate, Bernard Cardinal Alfrink, noted that the document was not presented as infallible and requires only that Roman Catholics consider it "in forming their consciences."

"The time for schisms is over," he said. "Encyclicals can be no reason for schisms for anyone with some theological education."

The key question for millions of Roman Catholic couples is whether or not the teaching is binding, and they got varied answers. But there was no sign of episcopal crackdowns of differences about it.

In fact, John Cardinal Heenan of Westminster, England, emphasized that those practising birth control must not despair about it and "must not abstain from the sacraments" at communion.

Commented a Lutheran Rev. Dr. Martin Marty of the University of Chicago Divinity School: "Bishops are not free to go against the Pope, and theologians will just go on teaching what they think is true. There are simply too many theologians on record for birth control—three-fourths perhaps—to go back to the old position."

Hay Bay Church Holds Annual Service Sunday

An immortal segment of Canada's glorious history will be remembered once more this Sunday at Hay Bay as part of the annual pilgrimage service to Hay Bay Methodist Church.

United Empire Loyalists with their remembrance of proud ancestry will make their way to the famous church to take part in the annual service.

Guest speaker this year is Rev. E. E. Hallman B.D., assistant secretary of the United Church of Home Missions.

The service will commence Sunday at 3 p.m. This year marks the 176th anniversary of the historic building.

The original church was constructed in 1792. Its dimensions were 30 by 30 feet until about 40 years later when it was enlarged to accomodate more of the area's citizens. It remains this size now.

Hay Bay Methodist Church is one of the few links remaining with the original settlement in Ontario and the birth of Methodism west of the Maritimes.

Many of the names on the cemetery stones behind the church are the same as those of UEL descendants still living in the Hay Bay and Adolphustown area.

The church, the first Methodist building constructed west of the Maritimes, was built at a cost of 107 pounds (Halifax currency).

Director of the construction was William Lossee, the first regularly appointed itinerant Methodist preacher in Upper Canada.

United Empire Loyalists and their descendants attended the old building for 70 years before a newer place of worship was constructed.

The old building then fell into disrepair and was utilized by a farmer as a warehouse .A movement to save the church commenced in 1885, under the eye and voice of Rev. Richard Duke.

Finally in 1910 the building was purchased for the Methodist Church from the Plaite Estate for $300. The Hay Bay church was then officially opened in 1912.

Now, recognized historically throughout Canada and the United States, the building is visited annually by about 2,000 people.

A cottage nearby houses a guide to the church who show visitors the historic offerings of the building.

Hemlines Still to Hover Around the Knees

PARIS (AP) The fall and winter fashions have been presented by the Paris haute couture to world fashion markets and now Mrs. and Miss Everybody will be able to purchase line-for-line copies of adapted versions from their favorite hometown store.

The ideas produced by Paris designers and fabric manufacturers and all the related fashion industries from furs to feathers, buttons and jewelry are proof that the fashion fountain still gushes with inspiration.

Pictures released Saturday show the traditional bosoms keep their hemlines hovering around the knees. The avant-garde keep them between two to four inches above the kneecaps. This is confirmed by an order Brigitte Bardot has given her favorite dress house.

The big news is acceptance and promotion of pants by most designers. They are shown for every hour, in every fabric, and included in most every collection.

The Paris couture is split down the middle.

The avant-garde still maintains mini-skirts. They are Cardin, Courreges, Ungaro, Feraud and Esterel. The second group includes the traditional designers who glamorize a woman for evening and offer flattering styles, beautiful fabrics and lovely accessories.

There's plenty of sex and nudity in all the collections. No one winces at a gasp at a see-through effect any more.

Today black chiffon is shown over nothing, except for a stripe of opque fabric or a hula skirt of ostrich across strategic areas. Courreges has a couple of topless costumes. Chiffon see-through pants appear here and there.

Ungaro's bride wears organdie pants, strewn with flowers, and a gold hardware bra.

One bride is all in white ostrich plumes. Another at Dior's is hooded in white mink with a floor-length coat. Saint-Laurent climaxes it all with a gold brocade Ivrogois bride, with a Madonna lily stuck into the front of her braided hairdo.

Correspondent's Wife Tells of Czech Reactions

Louise Rehak, Toronto-born wife of The Associated Press correspondent in Prague, was at the Alcron Hotel with their baby daughter when Czechoslovakia was invaded. Rehak, remaining at his post, has since sent the wife and baby to safety. A Canadian citizen, Rehak was born in Bratislava, Slovakia.

By LOUISE REHAK

NUREMBERG, Germany (AP)—My daughter Annabeth loved the invasion. She is six months old and crazy about odd noises. So when the planes came over low early Wednesday morning she woke up with a bright smile expecting a new game.

I kept her up playing because a warm baby is a great comfort to me in a night of shielding terror.

Her father and I were with her first news and left to find a telex. So I knew, at first, what the brief radio announcements were.

Quiet, desperate voices were broadcasting, not knowing how long they would have to explain the unexplainable to their countrymen.

The voices begged the Czechs to be calm and not, I guess you could say, to commit suicide. I didn't think that warning would be necessary. I thought the Czechoslovaks would be as paralyzed as I was.

I thought they would sit quietly waiting for Russian loudspeakers in the streets. But it wasn't loudspeakers. It was shots. The first, I think, came about 4:30 a.m. on Wenceslas Square a block from our hotel.

It was a shock, but not a surprise. A few rifle shots, two machine gun bursts—whose rifle? But the real surprise came right after that. Cars raced by through the night with their horns blaring and you could tell they were Czech. It sounded so like suicide. That noise didn't last long.

There was no one downstairs but the radio announcers were saying and it seemed indecent just to stand looking at the suffering on the faces of those who our progress to aching slow motion.

We encountered no deliberate hindrance. The tank crews, like the shoppers, were motionless checking to see if I had my passport. At the border a Czech took it, looked, and handed it back. We were across.

Eyles though I wanted to leave with the baby. I somehow felt like a deserter.

So the wife of another newspaper man and I stayed upstairs with Annabeth.

I think we were learning the first lesson of siege: How to wait.

Annabeth's diapers had never been so thoroughly scrubbed as she had set up camp in the hotel 12 days before.

I was still expecting a reaction of quiet defiance. It was surprised at 6 a.m. at the number of people moving along the streets. Then I saw the lines beginning to form at the nearby dairy, the butcher's and the vegetable shop. I wondered how you choose which line to stand in. But they were still moving fairly quickly that morning.

The lobby was filling up with people and a few of them beginning translating information, or misinformation, from the radio. We were surprised that the telex and phones were working. I moved down to the lobby to hear the news. The baby loved that too. She likes crowds.

None of us knew what was happening, and Annabeth was the only one enjoying it.

It wasn't until afternoon that we saw something we could grasp. A truckload of young Czechs waving flags passed the hotel—then three tanks.

Then quiet. Then motorscooters with more flags. It was a long time before we found out that the kids were risking their motorscooters right in front of Soviet tanks and circling around them.

There hadn't been any real fear among the foreigners in the morning. It came later when we began to hear about Czech provocations. Then it was mixed with admiration for the youths and also with sickness at the effort for real news to break the nervous boredom.

But now people began to fear there would be shooting on our street. And there was, that night, at seven. There was suddenly a lot of machine-gun fire, but only one hole could be found in a hotel window.

Early Thursday our long wait ended. My husband called to say we could leave in the U.S. embassy convoy and we did. mostly because of the lines at food stores.

It had aken me all day before the invasion to find food for the baby, crouching with my pocket dictionary to read mysterious labels in store windows. A quaint target for a tank, I thought.

There was no time for goodbyes, there wouldn't have been much to say in any case.

There was little traffic Thursday morning in Prague. Just all those tanks on the main corners, at the bridges, in the lawns—and the endless lines outside the food shops, figures standing still with no talk.

There were professionally letered placards and banners on every other shop. "Go home, leave us alone," "Dubcek, Svoboda," "Moscow Liar," and the very professional "illegal" broadcasting continued.

Our car with its diplomatic plates drove quickly from the hotel to the embassy and we were off at 10 a.m. Wednesday for reflections. Hundreds of cars jockeyed in the narrow lanes and an occasional harvesting machine or tank reduced to a crawl.

Then the fear came. Not of the Russians, but of the Czechs. Every car was a target for a stone or dropped their eyes.

Young Czechs flashed the "V" for victory" sign at us or raised a fist. The children and teens were overwhelmingly but felt like a deserter.

most of the older people merely raised a hand or, more commonly, clasped their hands together.

For the last few miles I kept

MR. AND MRS. JAMES W. INGRAM

Ingram – Caslake

Holy Rosary Church was the scene of the August 17 double-ring ceremony when Father George Mullin united in marriage Linda Dawn Caslake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Caslake, of Belleville to James William Ingram, son of Mr. and Mrs. Asex Ingram, of Belleville. The traditional wedding music was rendered by Phillip Kirby.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor - length Chantilly lace over taffeta gown featuring lily-point sleeves and a scalloped neckline, as well as a loose cape of Chantilly lace with a two-tiered scalloped skirt. Her headpiece was of clustered roses with a four-tiered silk illusion veil completing the outfit. The bride's bouquet was of red roses, stephanotis and ivy.

The maid of honor, Miss Brenda Caslake of Montreal, wore a floor-length sleeveless berry pink gown of pure silk organza over taffeta styling with a scooped neckline and fitted waist, with a loose cape of silk illusion covering the arms. Bridesmaids, Miss Carol Caslake, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Patty Rosenplot, were both attired similarly to the maid of honor. All carried hand bouquets of daisies, sprayed to match their dresses. Flower girl was Miss Lisa Caslake, who was attired in a Capri blue floor-length gown accented with white daisies at the neckline and hemline. She carried a basket of daisies.

The best man was David Rosenplot; and the ushers were Paul Dilts, brother-in-law of the bride, and William Symons, brother-in-law of the bridegroom. Master Gordon Caslake, brother of the bride, was the ring bearer.

The wedding reception was held at Ile Club Canara, where the mother of the bride received the guests in an A-line dress with a scooped neckline, in pale turquoise. Her matching hat and white accessories were completed by a corsage of deep yellow talisman roses.

More Swedish Women Seeking Abortions

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—Sweden, where abortion laws are more liberally interpreted than in most other countries, is moving towards self-determination for pregnant women.

A special committee, formed in 1965 of jurists, medical experts and women members of Parliament, is working on the final stages of a report emphasizing a woman's right to decide the issue.

The flexibility of Swedish abortion laws has become increasingly apparent in recent years.

The number of legal abortions granted in Stockholm and other big cities soared but there is still an old guard of doctors, gynecologists and welfare officers in the provinces who keep a conservative attitude.

The committee is hoping the report—and a subsequent draft bill—will change the views of the old guard.

Dr. Eloil Oehrberg of the mental welfare board—a member of the committee—disclosed recently that 80 per cent of applications for legal abortions in Sweden last year were granted, compared with 62 per cent in 1960.

"We are now virtually as liberal as Poland, where only about two per cent of applicants are rejected," he told reporters.

"More and more Swedish women are seeking abortions at an increasingly younger age and as the vast majority are granted, illegal abortions are on the way out."

In 1960 most applicants were in the 30-to-34 age group while now most are between 20 and 24, closely followed by the 15-to 19-year-olds.

Successful Living

New Hope Given to One with Autistic Child

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I feel impelled to offer a little hope to the mother of the autistic child.

Our eldest son suffered from this condition, and at the age of three was diagnosed as mentally retarded. At four years he was unable to talk, was not toilet-trained, didn't feed himself and was completely withdrawn.

On the advice of the child guidance clinic we entered him in nursery school. Each year he was tested, and his IQ score gradually increased, and he became aware of people and things around him. At the age of six he went to kindergarten and from then on his behaviour became more normal as each year went by.

While we realize that all such children do not follow this course, a great many do. Such children are, of course, very difficult to live with, require endless patience, and practically a one-to-one relationship. I was fortunate to have this remarkable nursery school teacher to help me and best of the family live through those early years.

Truly, one has to live one day at a time with these children, and never expect too much. Also try to develop outside interests for yourself, in order to preserve your own sanity! — Happy Ending

Dear Happy Ending: I am passing on your complete letter to Distracted. It will give her new hope.

Dear Doris: I am a widow 51 years old. I was living with an unmarried man for five years. I crossed him off because he didn't take me out until late at night when it was time to go to bed.

Now I'm going with a man whose wife passed away a year ago, but I like the first one best if he would do right. — Puzzled

Dear Puzzled: "Do right?" You mean like having dates before midnight and far, far from any bed. Maybe the first one never did get to know why you crossed him off.

How about a casual invitation over for coffee, at your ideas of a reasonable hour? If he is still interested enough to come, you could catch up on what you should have explained at some point in that five-year courtship. The rest depends on just how much you care about each other.

Dear Doris: I have answered all the letters you sent on to me asking about electrolysis. Some have started to get treatments, as I did, to solve their problem of unwanted hair on the face.

My only wish is that I can prevent women from going through as much embarrassment as I did. — Good News

Dear Good News: I have passed dozens of letters on, coming in all the way from St. John's to Vancouver. Did you have to hire a secretary?

Electrolysis has become much more efficient and much less painful in recent years; experts have learned how to pinpoint the hairs and make every prick of the needle effective. Moral: Get an expert.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Tasty Wheat Germ Squares

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Please find enclosed a sample of a tasty wheat germ square. Perhaps you have a recipe similar to this one which you might send to me. — Gail S.

ANSWER: Your request seemed simple but the little sample eluded reproduction until my third test batch. It still is not as dark as your sample and I wondered if yours had molasses in it. But I could not taste any so I did not add it. Make a batch like my test recipe below and taste it. If you feel you would like it darker add two tablespoons of molasses on your second try. It would be sweeter if you used sweetened coconut but I did not think the coconut in your sample was sweetened.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

(Guests)

Orange Cocktail; Hot Cheese Scones (see Wed.); Roast Leg of Lamb; Glazed Carrots; Creamed Spinach; Relish Tray; Sauce, Chutney, Olives; Compote of Cherries over Vanilla Ice Cream (see Fri.); Iced Tea.

COCONUT WHEAT GERM SQUARES

¼ cup butter (or margarine)
¾ cup dark brown sugar
1 egg
½ cup dairy sour cream
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup fresh wheat germ
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup desiccated unsweetened coconut

In beater bowl cream together the butter or margarine and brown sugar until light then beat in egg. Beat in sour cream, vanilla and wheat germ. It is not necessary to sift the flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt for this is all mixed in the beater so add them and beat until mixed. Beat in coconut. Turn into buttered 9 x 9" pan (preferably teflon to make turning out easier) and smooth top. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 25 min. or until when touched with finger tip at centre it feels done. Turn out on cake rack to cool. Cut into squares.

Interesting note: As mentioned above I had batches of these squares leftover. My sister was having a party for a friend named Ida Bowles visiting or it from England and I wanted to make a contribution. I cut my squares into Petit Fours shapes and frosted them with pale green Petit Fours frosting. Beforehand I had gone outside and snipped tiny ivy leaves from the English ivy on our walls, washed and dried them and stuck one on the top of each Petit Four for the party in honor of Ivy.

YOUR ANTIQUES

Blue Willow China Originated About 1780

One of the commonest and best - known china patterns is Blue Willow, (although not always in red), and commonly available in green, brown and almost black. The earliest pieces appear to have come from the Caughley porcelain factory in Shropshire about 1780 and shortly thereafter the pattern was available from almost all English porcelain and earthenware factories.

The pattern is said to be an adaptation of existing Chinese export designs of the 18th Century although no genuine Oriental piece has been discovered as a prototype. Two other designs, Mandarin and Canton are similar and are sometimes mistaken for Blue Willow.

Two main styles of border exist; the earliest, Spode made by Josiah Spode and his successor, W. T. Copeland. It is claimed that he was the first to manufacture dinner sets in this pattern. His border consists of irregular geometrical ornament similar to a wall interspersed with occasional circular discs, giving rise to the name "willow" or "wheel" border. The alternate "mosquito" border is not attributed to any particular "wheel" consists of flowers and interspersed grasts.

The Blue Willow legend appeared about 70 years after the introduction of the pattern and was published in England in magazine form in The Family Friend in 1849.

The story relates that a wealthy mandarin had an only daughter, Koong-Se, who fell in love with the mandarin's secretary, Chang. The mandarin had arranged to marry his daughter to Ta-jin, a duke.

After many vicissitudes, Koong-Se escaped and married Chang. The portion of pattern illustrated shows Koong-Se, carrying her distaff, fleeing across a bridge, followed by Chang carrying a box of jewels, (the betrothal gift of Ta-jin), and pursued by the mandarin.

Ta-jin vowed vengeance and although Koong-Se and Chang were married and respected Ta-jin found them out. Chang was killed and Koong-Se set fire to her apartments and perished in the flames. The gods transformed Koong-Se and Chang into doves and they flutter eternally at the top of each willow plate. Ta-jin went to his grave, "unfriended and unpitied". The fate of the mandarin is not related.

Although the pattern is still being produced and has been copied by every major manufacturer for the best part of two hundred years, it is a collector's item. Very early cups and saucers are worth about $20. Platters are a bit more expensive and tureens and the like run as high as $100. Prices vary with quality and maker.

The earliest pieces, from Caughley, may be marked with a "C" or "Salopian" impressed, or numerals dispersed as Chinese calligraphy. The pieces most likely to increase in value, (in your grandchildren's time), are modern toy tea sets of this pattern, now available at less than $5 a set.

GRAND GESTURES

"The difference between gestures of the present and those of the past is almost completely one of degree. And what has largely determined that degree is money." Virginia Lee Warren.

While gestures of the past and present may differ by one of degree, there is one aspect which has not changed.

The grand gestures usually deal with food, travel, flowers or art.

But the old days had several other categories: jewels and buildings.

In a single gesture, Mrs. Gilbert Miller, wife of the theatrical producer combined art with jewels, when she had the jewellers, Van Cleef and Arpels copy in a pin Goya's portrait of Don Manuel Osorio de Zuniga, often called The Little Red Boy, of rubies and diamonds. One friend was so impressed she thought that Kitty Miller had the painting made from her pin.

The wealthy Andrew Mellon, when taking his son to Bermuda, one spring vacation, felt that their suite on the boat was too small, and had partitions removed so that a portion of the deck would be part of their private accommodation.

Mrs. Vincent Astor once had a hostess who had a special entrance made by cutting through a stone wall of her home and a small temporary dining room set up in a patio corner, so that Mrs. Astor, who was in mourning at the time, need not attend a dinner for 26 guests at the marble table. Eight guests sat at her small table. This grand gesture cost the hostess ten thousand dollars.

While some magnificent gestures tend to do with buildings, some were due, unfortunately to spite, as for example, when James Bennett, Jr., publisher of The New York Herald, built the Casino in Newport. He did this to spite the exclusive Reading Club of the resort, which took away a guest card he had obtained for a British cavalry officer whom he personally rode his horse up the club's very steps into its library.

Mr. Bennett made another flamboyant and extravagant gesture when annoyed by the fact that the Monte Carlo restaurant where he often lunched had turned the terrace over to a dining party for one particular day, which meant he would have to eat indoors. He decided that there is no law to the place.

Having done so, he dismissed the drinkers and lunched in peace on the terrace. Then he sought Cesar Ritz, waiter of restaurant and presented it to him.

Ciro later established him-

Husband's Fishing Trips Appear A Little "Fishy"

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Every Saturday morning for the past month my husband has been getting up at 5:30 a.m. to go fishing — he said. He always comes home the following day at noon — with beautiful fish and a report on what a great time he had. I was initially interested because the fish were cleaned and I didn't have the mess in my kitchen.

This morning I was turning his pockets inside out before I put the pants in the wash and I ran into a receipt for $6 worth of pike from a local market. The fish was purchased last Saturday.

My husband has been telling me he goes fishing with two buddies. Now I wonder if these are the guys to whom he's selling or if it just my husband and he is lying about the other two fellows. Should I check with their wives? What does this smell like to you? — AGNES

DEAR AG. — It smells fishy. But keep it in the family, please. Calling wives will not improve the aroma.

Give your husband the receipt and tell him it was not necessary for him to buy fish if his luck was bad. He'll love you for letting him off the hook — and there just might be a chance that he is not guilty.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Please print this letter for every adopted kid in the United States. I wish I had seen a letter like this when I was younger.

When I was five years old, I learned I was adopted. After that I always figured I was getting a raw deal. When my half-brother got his way I always thought, "Sure, he is their real child and they like him more than they love me. That's why I get treated so rotten."

When my mother asked me to go to the store, or babysit, or iron the dishtowels, I was sure she was taking advantage of me because I was adopted. I remember saying to myself, "That should be her job, but she is making me do it because she thinks she is my real mother." I was constantly on account of she took me in."

I realize now how wrong I was and how much time I wasted feeling sorry for myself. My parents were wonderful and they were wise to insist that I do my share of the work in the house. I have an adopted friend who is a mess because her parents bent over backwards to make me a fuss. She didn't get "imposed upon."

Please print this Ann. It would be a real favor to thousands of kids who need to see it — WISED UP AND GLAD OF IT.

DEAR WISED UP — And I'm glad, too. Thanks for an excellent letter.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My fiance has a 13-year-old son who came to live with him last year. His ex-wife has had the boy for seven years and says she can't handle him. The boy has stolen things from school lockers and recently he took a stolen things from school lockers and recently he took a teacher's purse. This boy has plenty of money (too much), which he gets from his grandparents. Why does he steal? What can be done about it? — PUZZLED MARYA.

DEAR MARYA — Many kids steal because they feel unloved. The objects they steal are substitutes for the love they need and do not get. At this point the boy needs psychiatric care in addition to some time and attention from at least one of his parents.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing an unstamped, self-addressed envelope, plus 6c for postage.

Brewers Retail Moves to New Premises

TWEED — After 20 years at the corner of Jamieson and Colborne Streets, Tweed, Brewers Retail has moved to new modern premises at Jamieson and Victoria Streets, Tweed. The new store opened Thursday, August 22nd.

Planned with an eye to structural detail and to complement the adjoining I.G.A. Supermarket, the one-storey building reflects the integrated planning that has gone into its design, construction and furnishings.

Modern materials have been employed to advantage in such items as the attractive brick exterior, aluminum framed windows, vinyl asbestos flooring and acoustic tile ceiling.

Fluorescent lighting has also been installed to accent the warmth reflected by the retail area's pleasant contrasting color scheme. The rear wall of the retail area is finished with prefinished plywood panelling and the vertiew counters are surfaced in plastic laminate.

Conveyor rails line both sides of the retail area as a convenience to customers.

Additional storage facilities beside the refrigerator box will hold approximately two weeks' reserve supply.

Mr. Burton Vance, Tweed, who has been Manager of the Brewers Retail Store in Tweed since it first opened, continues as manager of the new store.

Rotary Club Donates Shoes for Worthy Cause

NAPANEE — To aid their favorite project, the Lennox and Addington General Hospital, Napanee Rotarians walked home in their sock feet last Tuesday, following their weekly luncheon meeting. Word had reached them that the White Elephant Store could not supply the demand for men's shoes, and so the Rotarians walked into the store and donated theirs. Some went the second mile, and gave the shirts off their backs, also. All proceeds from the Rotary White Elephant Store swell the club funds for the hospital.

Mrs. Sedore, who is now in charge of the store, reported Thursday that not many of the shoes are left in the store.

Business has been good since the store re-opened in the spring, Mrs. Sedore stated. "But the more donations we have the better our sales," she added. There are many requests for furniture for summer cottages, she noted. But the White Elephant Store will accept literally anything, and, sooner or later, a buyer will come along.

Poet's Mother Visits Friends

NAPANEE — Napanee is getting its share of distinguished summer visitors. Among them was an 80-year-old mother, with her daughter, and her son and his wife, on the last leg of a holiday journey which began June 26 and has taken them into six provinces and eight states. They were guests last Friday of Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Hutchison.

Mrs. Annie McCullough, the mother, who was still fresh after more than a month of travel despite her age, lives in Navan, near Ottawa. Her daughter, Lydia who accompanied her, is a deaconess in St. James Church in Ottawa. Edward her son, is a professor of history in the George Williams College in Montreal.

But it was to reminisce about her young daughter Mary, dead many years, that Mrs. McCullough broke her journey to visit the Hutchinsons. Mary was a poetess, and her one volume, "The Sky Was My Friend," has been out of print for some time. A second edition has just been printed. Mrs. Hutchison knew the story and had reviewed the book after its first publication.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Richmond, Va., meets Wakayama, Japan, today in the title game of the Little League World Series in a match pitting the rebel spirit of the U.S. southland against "yamato damashii," the spirit of Japan.

In their first game Wednesday, a 16-2 victory over Wiesbaden, Germany, the Japanese spryred 16 hits aroused the field, only two for extra bases.

Richmond seems to have the edge in power. In the opening round Tuesday, the Virginians' John Mizelle powered two homers in a 6-2 victory over Terre Haute, Ind.

The winning pitcher in that game, Roger Miller, hit three homers in Thursday's 8-5 victory of Sherbrooke-Leannoxville, Quebec.

Second Game No Contest

Tigers, Yankees in 8-hour Marathon

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If you don't think this is the year of the pitcher you can't expect any help on your side of the argument from Detroit Tiger or New York Yankee hitters. Far from it.

They gave a dandy five-hour example of futility Friday night before a 1 a.m. curfew forced an end of activities in a 19-inning, 3-3 tie.

That marathon struggle—longest in the American League this year—came after the Yankees used Tom Tresh's two-run homer for a 2-1 victory in the opener of a doubleheader.

All told, the twin bill consumed a little more than eight hours and 34 innings—equivalent to a tripleheader plus an inning. And the second match was all for naught. It will be replayed in its entirety as part of a doubleheader Sunday.

The loss and standoff, however, didn't do a thing to the Tigers' seven-game lead in the Baltimore Orioles was a 4-3 victim of Boston Red Sox.

In other AL games, Oakland Athletics routed California Angels 9-4, Chicago White Sox slipped past Minnesota Twins 4-2 and Cleveland Indians whipped Washington Senators 6-2.

Roy White's eighth-inning homer, his 12th of the year, tied the slugfest for New York and set the stage for a brilliant spell of relief pitching.

Lindy McDaniel, who took over for the Yankees in the ninth, hurled seven perfect innings before he was lifted for a pinch hitter. Dooley Womack checked the Tigers the rest of the way.

Meanwhile, John Hiller, Toronto native, who came in for Detroit after White's homer, yielded only four hits before he was replaced by Don McMahon in the 11th.

Tresh's 11th homer of the year in the opener came after Joe Pepitone singled off loser Earl Wilson, 10-11, in the second inning.

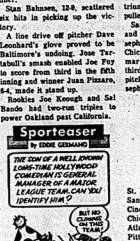
Wilson, who hit a fifth-inning homer—the 30th of his career—was forced to leave the game in the sixth when he was struck on the right shoulder by Pepitone's liner.

Stan Bahnsen, 12-9, scattered six hits in picking up the victory.

A line drive off pitcher Dave Leonhard's glove proved to be Baltimore's undoing. Jose Tartabull's smash enabled Joe Foy to score from third in the 8th inning and winner Juan Pizzaro, 6-4, made it stand up.

Rookies Joe Keough and Sal Bando had two-run triples to power Oakland past California.

Keough's hit sparked a three-run uprising in the first inning. Then Bando's three-bagger in the seventh clinched the triumph after the Angels had pulled to within 5-4.



Sandy Alomar's base running and a sacrifice fly by Duane Josephson in the eighth enabled Chicago to stop the Twins. Alomar singled, stole second, took third on Dean Chance's wild pitch and then scored on Josephson's sacrifice.

Tommy Davis singled in Pete Ward, who had doubled, for an insurance run. The Twins had tied it in the sixth on Tony Oliva's two-run homer.

Cleveland rookie Mike Paul had to rely on some strong relief pitching by Eddie Fisher for his first major league victory, after losing his first six.

Fisher came on in the seventh and tamed the Senators except for Frank Howard's 30th homer of the year in the ninth.

Leaders Prove Right To Top Spot

Campbellford's Sandy Lynch turned back a one-hit decision wrecking crew yesterday and blasted all hopes Belleville's Junior Intercon entry had of a tie for first place.

In the final game of the regular schedule Lynch scored seven goals as Campbellford posted an easy 15-3 victory, Teammate Fred Tanner also single-handedly scored more than enough goals to defeat the visiting team as he tallied five times. Rick Christie with two and Bud Brown added the others.

Belleville goals were scored by Doug Hunter, Steve Cassolman and Dennis Lane.

Final standing:

	W	L
Campbellford	8	3
Belleville	6	5
Trenton	5	5
Picton	3	8

Playoffs, Monday, Aug. 26: Trenton at Campbellford; Picton at Belleville.

Brundage Says Games to Go On

CHICAGO (AP) — Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, referred indirectly Friday to the Soviet Union's invasion of Czechoslovakia and said it is no reason to abandon the Olympic Games.

Brundage, 80, lifetime champion of amateur sports, issued a prepared statement in the wake of rumblings against participation by Russia and satellite countries in the 1968 Olympics at Mexico City, Oct. 12-27.

The statement, Brundage said, followed phone calls "from all over the world, including one from Australia which got me out of bed at six this morning."

"The world, alas, is full of injustice, aggression, violence and brutality, against which all civilized persons rebel," Brundage's prepared release said.

"But this is no reason to destroy the nucleus of international co-operation and goodwill we have in the Olympic movement."

There was no reference in the statement to the growing clamor by non-Communist countries for the cancellation of events in the Czech invasion be banned from the Mexico City Games.

Nor did the Brundage statement on a report that the U.S. Olympic Committee might discuss a withdrawal of Russia and Bulgaria, East Germany, Hungary and Poland from the Games.

Brundage stressed that "these games are contests between individuals and not between nations.

"We invite the youth of the world, who certainly are not responsible for its evils, to accept our regulations and to participate and we hope the youth of the world will accept."

Doug Ridley Fires Ace

Twelve-year-old Doug Ridley of 282 Ann street decided yesterday he might follow in his father's footsteps but would try a shortcut.

Using a five iron on the ninth hole at the Bay of Quinte Golf Club, Doug scored a hole in one. He was playing with a friend, Mike Bell.

It put the Belleville youngster a few years on his father who has been golfing for 40 years.

Point Anne eliminated Trenton in two straight games last night after posting a 7-1 Ontario Amateur Softball Association junior B win.

The game ended a four run inning in the eighth to put the game out of reach.

Five Pin Clinic to Be Available

The newly founded Bay of Quinte Bowlers Association has scheduled a general meeting for this Sunday at the Pinnacle Street Recreation Centre at 2 p.m. and has sent out an urgent appeal for five pin enthusiasts to attend.

President of the association is Ed Lugtenburg of Belleville who says association membership will provide such benefits as assistance in the forming of leagues and the preparing of schedules, standardization of rules of play and the availability of an instruction clinic which may be booked by league members at no charge.

The instruction clinic, the first of its kind in Canada, has already attracted the attention of the Master Bowlers Association of Ontario and this group plans to use the format for its own instruction clinics this season.

Honored With Night

Nervous Hank Aaron Loses Shakes at Plate

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hank Aaron, the Atlanta rough-hitter, speaks nervously and swings a big bat.

Aaron was honored before the Braves-Philadelphia game at Atlanta Friday night and was so nervous he couldn't finish his remarks.

He felt right at home with a bat in his hands, however, as he drove in four runs, three with a homer, in leading the Braves to a 6-0 victory over the Phillies.

St. Louis Cardinals nipped Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 in 11 innings. Cincinnati Reds topped New York Mets 6-2, Houston Astros edged Chicago Cubs 3-2 and San Francisco Giants trounced Los Angeles Dodgers 8-3 in other National League games.

After receiving a car, a truckload of gasoline, a truckload of soft drinks and many other gifts, Aaron thanked God for giving him the ability to play baseball and thanked those who had anything to do with or turned out for his night.

"I had a lot of other things I wanted to say, but I couldn't get them out," he said after the game. "I was really nervous. I had to take a pill this afternoon to relax."

Once the game started, Aaron proceeded to make the Phillies nervous. He drove in the only run Pat Jarvis needed with a grounder in the third inning and clinched it with a three-run homer in the fifth. It was his 32rd of the season and 504th of his career.

Orlando Cepeda's two-run homer in the sixth tied Pittsburgh for St. Louis and the league-leading Cardinals won it when Mike Shannon was hit by a pitch and Phil Gagliano tripled.

Alex Johnson's RBI single, his third hit of the game, drove in what proved to be the winning run for Cincinnati against the Mets. Mack Jones singled in the first two runs for the Reds and relief pitcher Clay Carroll singled home the final one.

A two-out single by Norm Miller with the bases loaded in the 11th gave Houston its fifth straight victory. Ron Santo clouted a solo homer for the Cubs.

Los Angeles jumped on starter Bob Bolin for three runs in the first inning but Mike McCormick came on to allow just two hits in the final 8 1-3 as San Francisco sent the Dodgers to their seventh straight loss.

Willie McCovey and Ty Cline drove in two runs apiece for San Francisco. McCovey climaxed a three-run rally in the fifth inning by singling home the tie-breaking run.

Unusual State

Argonauts and B.C. Lions Have Chance to Share First Place

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian Football League fans may be thinking they're reading the eastern and western conference standings upside down when they pick up their Monday morning papers.

Impossible as it may seem, Toronto Argonauts and British Columbia Lions, doormats in their respective divisions for the last few seasons, have a chance Sunday to grab a share of their conference leads.

All it will take is a Toronto victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders in Regina and a B.C. win over Winnipeg Blue Bombers in Vancouver.

And it isn't as impossible as it looks.

Argos will enter Taylor Field after stoning Peter Liske and his supporting cast of Calgary pass-catchers 19-7 Wednesday night.

And the Lions nipped the Bombers 18-16 in their season-opener in Winnipeg.

Argos, with four points in three games, are two points behind leading Ottawa and Lions, with four points in four games, are two behind Calgary, the western conference leader.

But Saskatchewan could settle the hopes of both clubs by dumping Toronto and moving one point ahead of Calgary.

Toronto coach Jim Cahill doesn't seem worried. Especially after his club's big win against the Stamps.

"All we needed was a big one like this to give us momentum," he said after watching his team beat Calgary at their own game —the pass.

But Saskatchewan has a more varied attack, with powerful runners like fullback George Reed to back up quarterback Ron Lancaster's throwing arm and keep opposition defences honest.

Roughies' coach Eagle Keys has beefed up his defence by cutting quarterback Bill Cline to make room for linebacker Al Miller. Miller will play in the corner slot, leaving Cliff Shaw free as a backup.

Dick Aldridge should be back in the Toronto lineup after suffering an ankle injury against Calgary as the Argos hope to complete the first sweep of a two-game western swing by an eastern club since Ottawa did it Sept. 17 and 19, 1960.

Winnipeg general manager Earl Lunsford sounds just as optimistic as Cahill.

"The Lions beat us in Winnipeg but we honestly feel that we had the run of that game and should have won it," he said Friday.

"We've had injury problems since that game but we've strengthened noticeably this week with one new player and we'll have another new one in the lineup on Sunday."

The recent acquisition is Larry Slagle, a 240-pound guard cut by Washington Redskins of the National Football League. He got his first start against Calgary Sunday and strengthened the Bomber offensive line, Lunsford said.

Getting his CFL baptism will be Walt Chaschevich, a 210-pound halfback cut this season by Green Bay Packers and Atlanta Falcons, both of the NFL.

Don Gilbert will replace the injured Butch Pressley at the other Winnipeg halfback slot.

The Lions will stick with the same lineup that out-muddled the Eskimos 12-4 Tuesday night in Edmonton.

Quarterback Pete Ohler is expected to use the pass as his most effective weapon but a running attack with Jim Evenson and Dale Brady is starting to jell.

"They're all coming," said coach Jim Champion after the Edmonton game. He said his offence hadn't improved that much but the defence was unbelievably better.

The Toronto-Saskatchewan game will be seen on the CTV network starting at 4 p.m. EDT.

Two off Pace

Balding Fades, Knudson Challenges

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The old adage that golf knows no age was never more evident as the $100,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic started its third round today with three leaders.

Jim Ferrier, 53-year-old native Australian now a U.S. citizen; Bobby Cole, a pink-cheeked 39-year-old South African, and Billy Casper, who approaches a round of golf with the same as a banker does a day's work, were deadlocked with 36-hole totals of 137, seven under par.

George Knudson of Toronto replaced Al Balding, also of Toronto, as the Canadian with the best chance of copping the tournament. Knudson shot a three-under-par 69 Friday for a 36-hole total of 139—two strokes off the pace. Balding ballooned to a 75 for a two-round total of 142. He had been second in the tournament after 18 holes.

It was no surprise to see Casper at the top or the field of 156 starters. The 37-year-old veteran has won four tournaments this year and earned $146,895. He's usually where the money is.

Ferrier and Cole, however, are longshots.

Ferrier was runner-up in the 1951 Australian Open, 17 years before Cole was born, Casper was wearing diapers.

Asked what he is doing still competing with players who could be his sons or grandsons, the greying Californian replied: "You can chase the little white ball long after you've stopped chasing everything else. You get old fast enough without looking for it. I can play in the Seniors later."

Looking fit at 6-foot-2 and 185 pounds, Ferrier shot a 34-35—69 over the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club course Friday.

Cole, who tied for second in the opening round, fired a 35-35—70 while Casper carded a 34-35—69.

They tied by a stroke over Charlie Sifford, Lahron Harris and Terry Dill.

Ferrier admitted he played old-fashioned golf.

"I chipped and pitched and putted well," he said. "That always has been the whole game of golf. That's how Julie Boros (48 years old) has been winning all that money. I see old man Boros stumbling around out there and winning money and it keeps me playing."

Cole, 1957 British Amateur champion who joined the tour last October and has yet to win, gained a part of the lead with a hot putter for the second straight day. He rolled in birdie putts of 40, 12, nine, 10 and four feet.

Casper also had a good day on the greens, dropping birdie putts of 10, 20, 10 again and 35 feet on the 17th hole when he needed it to tie for the lead.

Boros didn't make the cut. Jack Nicklaus was at 142 while U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino was at 141.

Atlantic Open

Breen, Dobie Take Lead

MONCTON (CP) — Two two co-leaders and a major contender one stroke off the pace were scheduled to tee off at noon today in the second round of the 54-hole Atlantic open golf tournament.

Bob Breen of Woodbridge, Ont., and Bruce Dobie of Worcester, Mass., tied for the lead at two-under-par 68 after Friday's opening round, were to be joined by Jay Dolan, also of Worcester, who had a 68.

Officials placed the threesome in the noon starting time to accommodate the large crowd which is expected to watch the second 18 holes of the $5,000 open, the ninth stop on this year's 10-tournament Canadian tour.

The only other competitor in the field of 121 professionals and amateurs under par Friday was Cecil Dowling of Charlottetown.

Dowling was teamed today with Kelly Burnett of Halifax and John Hendrick of Montreal, both of whom shot 70s on the Moncton Golf and Country Club course.

Two veteran amateurs from Halifax stole some of the limelight from the professionals Friday.

Charles Brace was the leading amateur heading into today's play with a one-over-par 71 and Bob Lehuray who had the clubhouse buzzing by firing a hole-in-one on the sixth hole.

It was the first ace for Lehuray, 53, in 6½ years of golfing, and for a while he didn't realize he had done it. After teeing off with a No. 3 iron on the 215-yard, par-three hole, the Halifax amateur thought he had lost the ball until someone suggested he look in the cup.

Marlene, Jocelyne In Finals

MONTREAL (CP) — Veteran Marlene Stewart Streit of Fonthill, Ont., just a wisp of a woman, and youngster Jocelyne Bourassa of Shawinigan, Que., tangle today in the final 36-hole round of the Canadian women's open golf championship at nearby Caughnawaga.

The two have survived 90 holes of match play golf—with winners decided on the basis of holes won instead of lowest scores—since Wednesday when the qualifying field was cut at 64 players out of 105.

Tee-off time is 9 a.m. EDT in forecast sunny weather over the 6,042-yard layout of the Kanawaki Golf Club.

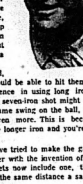
Mrs. Streit—who won her first Canadian open crown in 1951 and now is looking for her eighth—was spectacular Friday, defeating Toronto's Bonnie Legge 6 and 4 and repeating the score over Gail Harvey Hamilton of New Westminster, B.C.

Miss Bourassa—in her early 20s and a member of Quebec's inter-provincial team—knocked off Marilyn Palmer of Kamloops, B.C., on the 19th with a seven-foot birdie after defeating Gayle Borthwick of Ancaster, Ont., 2 up.

Mother of two daughters, Mrs. Streit—in her 30s—was never in trouble Friday.

Meanwhile, the Canadian Ladies Golf Association dropped a bomb after Friday's second round with, the announcement that Mrs. Streit will not play as a member of Canada's team in the world championship in Australia Oct. 2-5.

Mrs. Streit, the CLGA said, had "family commitments" and was replaced by—Mrs. Borthwick.



Others on the team selected Wednesday by the CLGA are Miss Palmer and Mrs. Moore. Team captain is Dulcie Lyle of Montreal.

KNUDSON'S WORLD OF GOLF

CHESTNUT HILL, Pa. — The Whitemarsh Valley Country Club, site of the Philadelphia Golf Classic this week, is another of the truly good courses where a golfer needs to use every club he his bag.

It's no course though, for the average golfer who thinks he can use some of his clubs better than others. It makes me chuckle, for instance, when somebody comes up to me and says: "I can handle my three-iron, but there's no way I can hit a two-iron."

If the swing is sound, of course, the golfer should be able to hit them all.

Still, there is a difference in using long irons. The errors are magnified. A seven-iron shot might stray off slightly. But, with the same swing on the ball, the longer iron will stray off even more. This is because you haven't the loft with the longer iron and you're using a longer shaft.

The manufacturers have tried to make the game easier for the average golfer with the invention of the five-wood. A lot of ladies' sets now include one, three and five-woods. It gives you the same distance a sa two-iron but with more loft.

Frankly, I think the average golfer would find it much easier to use the five-wood than the two-iron. Because of its greater loft, the five-wood makes it a lot easier to get the ball airborne.

And it also has other good uses, such as playing out of the rough or when the ground is wet with heavy dew or in rain.

Pros don't carry a five-wood, but, if your aim is to score as well as you can rather than trying to build the perfect swing, you might find that a five-wood would help.

Athans Jumps 145 Feet

TORONTO (CP) — Sixteen-year-old George Athans of Kelowna, B.C., broke his own Canadian men's jump record Friday with a leap of 145 feet at the 17th national water ski championships. Athans, who still has a year of eligibility in the boys' division, decided to move up to the men's classification last week and jumped 136 feet off a six-foot ramp at the Quebec regional championships in Montreal.

NHL Limits Stick Curvature

TORONTO (CP) — The National Hockey League's rules interpretation committee Friday passed a resolution limiting the curvature of hockey sticks for the 1963-64 season.

Representatives of 11 league clubs and senior referees and linesmen voted to restrict the curvature of the sticks from the heel of the shaft to the tip of the blade to a radius of 1½ inches.

Ron Andrews, NHL publicity director, said the committee used Chicago Black Hawks centre Stan Mikita's hooked stick as the basis for the rule change.

The committee also voted to rigidly enforce the rule which calls for a two-minute-penalty for intentionally freezing the puck along the boards. Restraining fouls, such as tripping, holding, tripping and interference, will also be called more closely next season to speed up the game.

Palmer Not Yet With Golf Rebels

NEW YORK (AP) — Arnold Palmer, perhaps the greatest name in golf, is not yet ready to commit himself in the struggle between the Professional Golfers Association and the rebellious touring players.

"I just don't think I'm in a position to comment at this stage," Palmer said Friday after a day-long meeting with PGA president Max Elbin of Washington, D.C.

The meetings, held at Palmer's home in Latrobe, Pa., were set up "to explore the whole realm of this situation," Palmer said.

The new group already has formed an independent corporation, known as the American Professional Golfers, and started plans for battling the PGA for sponsor and television money on the golf tour.

It is significant that Palmer's name has been conspicuously missing from the list of activists who have engineered the break. The latter group includes such legendary names as Jack Nicklaus, Bill Casper, Gardner Dickinson and Frank Beard.

Dickinson has been named chairman of the APG tournament committee, which will have seven touring pros and four outsiders.

Most of the touring golfers are in Philadelphia this weekend for the Philadelphia golf classic. An absentee is Palmer.

There have been growing rumors that Palmer, with a multi-million-dollar equipment business deposited largely on pro shop sales, may be disinclined to break with the PGA.

Language Woes Cloud East-West Weather Talks

MONTREAL (CP) — The international radar meteorology conference at McGill University closed Friday with bickering between scientists from the Soviet Union and other countries.

After the four days of meetings—one of the rare occasions the annual conference has been held outside the United States—the weather scientists prepared to depart for Toronto where a five-day international conference on cloud physics begins Monday.

The five-man Soviet delegation avoided the final summations Friday afternoon—choosing instead a tour of the Expo 67 site—but indicated earlier in the day through interpreter V. Troushine they had met an unexpected wall of "jargon" in the discussion and workshop sessions here.

Throughout the conference, four Soviet scientists sat in a corner of the auditorium on the McGill campus and received a whispered translation from the interpreter of the highly technical data discussed.

Dr. J. Stewart Marshall, professor of meteorology at McGill and organizer of the conference, admitted that "terminology" was a problem which arose because many scientific groups were working in relatively new fields of study and sometimes had to choose their own terms to describe their observations.

"We do, of course, need to come to some of agreement on terminology," he said.

Some scientists here said privately they were not optimistic about Russian research reports which claimed to have discovered methods to save crops from hail damage.

In one paper, Soviet scientists had described a method of shooting self-exploding artillery shells at clouds containing hail. A chemical in the shells prevented the hail from forming to a size which could damage crops when they fell.

One scientist suggested the Russian scheme would be so costly it would be impractical, "but it seems to be getting the publicity anyway."

U.S., Russia Act as If They Own World -- Douglas

PORT ELGIN, Ont. (CP) — New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas Friday accused the United States and the Soviet Union of acting as though they owned the world.

"In the name of freedom, we carry on a war against Vietnamese peasants," he told an NDP women's workship here.

"In the name of freedom, the Soviet Union and her satellites crush moderate attempts at reform in Czechoslovakia with tanks and troops.

"We speak of international law and the quality of nations, and yet in Vietnam and the Dominion Republic, in Hungary and Czechoslovakia, the two leading nations of the world feel free to act as if they think the world and all its people belong to them."

Mr. Douglas also struck out at values within Canadian society.

He cautioned against letting immediate threat because it means the heart is not keeping up the blood flowing in even supply.

"minor eccentricities" of the young obscure the justice of their stand against the present way of life.

"Don't be misled by the beards, long hair and love beads. These are merely superficial symbols of a genuine disenchantment with our modern society. . . .

"Ours is a manipulated society, a society of shabby values, a materialistic, hypocritical, fear-ridden society."

A partial text of Mr. Douglas' speech was released before delivery.

Pilotage Rules Illegal

MONTREAL (CP) — Shipping sources say the federal government has admitted that it has been administering pilotage procedures illegally for more than 20 years, and plans to introduce legislation before March 31 to correct the wrongs.

The sources, who asked to remain unidentified, said the admission was made at special closed meetings between Capt. R. Baldwin, deputy transport minister.

The meetings July 31 and Aug. 7 were attended by representatives of the transport department, the Dominion Marine Association, the Shipping Federation of Canada, the Federation of St. Lawrence River Pilots and the National Association of Canadian Marine Pilots.

The sources said the representatives were armed with a list of "irregularities" culled from the recently-completed report of the royal commission on pilotage.

The list included 33 practices described by a deputy minister as exceeding authority or as illegal and ranging from prescribing examination fees for pilots to improperly defining the coastal districts in which the pilots operate.

Mr. Baldwin was quoted as saying that the government wanted to ensure continuation of pilotage service until Parliament could deal with the commission report "in a final way."

It was agreed at the Aug. 7 meeting that no legal action would be taken involving present pilotage practices if "remedial" legislation were passed before March 31.

Nobody Helps

TORONTO (CP) — Passersby started but made no move to help Friday as Molly Wine struggled with a man who made off with the $2,700 payroll she was carrying back to a downtown office.

A man walking toward her grabbed the leather portfolio containing the payroll, but Mrs. Wine refused to let go. Finally she was thrown to the ground and the robber escaped in a waiting car.

"People on the street just stared," she said. "No one stepped in to help me."

Ike's Condition Encouraging

WASHINGTON (AP) — The word "encouraging" has slipped into a report on the condition of former president Eisenhower. But doctors stress that his condition remains critical and is likely to for some time.

"There has been no essential change" in the 77-year-old general's condition, said his doctors in a bulletin issued at 8:30 p.m. Friday.

They added that although critically ill he was resting comfortably.

Use of the word "encouraging" was made in an earlier bulletin and was the most hopeful term to appear in any report since Eisenhower suffered his seventh heart attack Aug. 16.

Since then he has been fighting against an irregular heart beat, a fluttering of the heart muscle that poses his most

Migrants Need Facts About Toronto Living

TORONTO (CP) — Prospective migrants to Toronto from other provinces should be better informed before they pull up roots and make a move.

A social planning council of Metropolitan Toronto report released Friday said the problem lies mostly with migration from the eastern provinces, who make up more than half the city's interprovincial migrants.

Among the problems identified by the report was the "windbreaker group"—single and male who stand out from other migrants because of dress and speech habits.

"The men in this group do not make an emotional investment in their work. They take casual unskilled jobs and change them frequently."

The report said that such a migrant attracts more attention from the police because of "jolly, noisy" drinking habits.

School children from the eastern provinces also have trouble adjusting to the city's educational system, the report said.

Indians Go Native

EDMONTON (CP) — About 25 families from the Hobbema Indian reserve near Red Deer got fed up with civilization and set up housekeeping in tepees 125 miles west on the Kootney plains.

Ralph Ragan, regional director of Indian affairs, said Friday the Indian affairs branch was aware the Indians had left the reserve.

"We watch closely as to their welfare but other than that we don't interfere in any way."

T. A. Turner, superintendent of the Hobbema-Edmonton district, said the migration started in mid-July, apparently because the Indians were "tired of civilization."

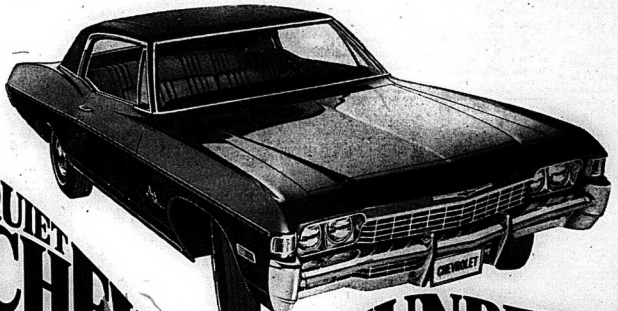
Employment News

By J. R. STAVELEY
Manpower Counsellor

The number of employment opportunities listed at the Canada Manpower Centre increased sharply during the past week with job vacancies distributed evenly between men and women workers. This local labor demand covering practically every phase of the local economy was the strongest labor requirement in recent weeks. Augmenting the local employment picture was the fact that 20 men were hired pending their medical results, by the International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd., for permanent mining work at Sudbury.

The following employment opportunities are available:

In the female division there continues to be a requirement for female factory workers, experienced waitresses, kitchen help, chambermaids and mature countergirls for jobs in the Quinte area. A number of these positions, especially for female plant workers required by Trenton Canada Manpower Centre, would be for either the day, evening or night work shift. There is still a shortage of capable housekeepers who would be willing to work on a live-in basis. A women's wear retail store is seeking a saleswoman to sell women's dresses, suits and coats. Experience is preferred but ability to handle the younger customers is equally important. Other vacant positions call for an experienced cashier to work in a fruit and vegetable retail outlet and a pharmacy clerk who would be willing to work during evening hours, 5:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. five evenings per week. In constant demand are registered nurses. A saddlery business has an urgent need for a sewing machine operator to make saddle blankets.



In the male division locally, as yet unfilled is the position calling for a chemical engineer who has a background of industrial and institutional construction experience. An industrial plant needs a Class II stationary engineer. In a neighboring town, a Class IV stationary engineer is required by a plywood manufacturing firm.

Out-of-town demands cover an urgent need for a dentist and for an electronic technician. Other labor requirements are for an experienced saddle maker, automotive parts man, a Class A automobile repair mechanic and general farm hands with self-propelled combine experience. An industrial plant has a position for a foundry foreman, which demands foundry and molding experience.

If interested in any of these positions, seeking other employment or thinking of re-entering the labor market, contact the Canada Manpower Centre at 324 Church Street, Belleville.

BULBS CUT LITTER

WINNIPEG (CP) — Putting highway litter into orbit is a success, says the Manitoba highways department. Orbits, spherical containers placed along major highways three years ago, have reduced litter found on thoroughfares, a department spokerman says. The department has increased the number of large white spheres preceded by signs saying "Orbit in 10 seconds," to 110.

Tension May Cause Hair-pulling

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: I would like to know what causes my 4-year-old to pull his hair out when he is having his nap or at bedtime.

I have tried keeping his hair short, tried gloves and hats, and even letting him take some toys to bed to keep his mind off pulling his hair.

Is there a way to break this habit, if it is a habit? — Mrs. E. M.

It falls into the same category with nail biting, nose picking, lip biting, and other quirks that children acquire — and so do adults.

Sometimes such children are hyperactive, a problem that I've discussed before. Such children are under some inner compulsion to be doing something, not necessarily constructive, all the time. This trait in children, we are learning, is far more prevalent then heretofore suspected. It would not surprise me if eventually we find that so far we have been recognizing only the extreme cases of it and not identifying the mild ones.

Where to draw the line between hyperactivity and the various nervous tensions under which a child may be laboring is a hard question. Perhaps there isn't any line. Perhaps (and I think it is a fair hypothesis) these nervous quirks seldom if ever can be ascribed to any single factor. Some of the possibilities, however, can be such things as undue pressure on the child such as the parents expecting too much or exerting too much discipline. Or there may be discord in the family which the child may not actually see but still can sense.

There may be nervousness because of a feeling of being in competition with other children in the family. Or parents may not have the knack of expressing affection and a child feels insecure as a result.

Adults have various ways of reacting to nervous pressures. They smoke too much or drink or start their weight or sulk or go on spending sprees or have sick headaches or — well, they do all sorts of pointless things.

So children have their ways of reacting, too.

Keeping a youngster's hair cut so short that he can't pull it out is important because, for one thing, sometimes youngsters swallow the hair which can form a hair ball in the stomach, and in extreme cases may have to be removed surgically.

But if you break one habit, what's to prevent some other habit from taking its place? Security, regularity of activity, affection, plenty of sleep, reasonable discipline but not tenseness assure us a child — all of these are important in letting a child grow up without tensions that he relieves by nervous quirks. So analyze the household and your youngsters environment.

And I would not think it amiss to see what your doctor has to suggest about your hyperactivity, if that happens to enter this case.

Dear Dr. Molner: Will one natural Vitamin B-12 (25 mcg) tablet per day be harmful or any help to children between the ages of 8 and 16? — Mrs. S. V.

It won't hurt them — but they ought to be getting enough meat, eggs, and dairy products in their daily diet so they don't need supplementary Vitamin B-12.

Note to Mrs. G. F.: Your confusion over the situation may well lie in the fact that the rectum is not what most people think it is. It is the technically correct term. The rectum is inside the body — it starts at the lower end of the colon, about 12 centimeters (4¾ inches) long.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Invasion Influences Markets

Wall Street's Weekly Closing Prevented Any Panic Selling

By GERALD CLARKSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Reaction to the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia dominated the wide swing on Canadian stock markets this week, but no-one foresaw the dramatic recovery on Thursday and Friday which followed the mid-week decline.

Industrials rebounded to their highest levels for just over a month.

Brokers say the impact of the Czech news at Toronto and Montreal would have been far greater if the crisis had not developed on a Tuesday night, prior to New York's regular closing day.

This meant that Wall Street had more than 24 hours to digest the events in Europe before any panic selling could develop. Canadian markets always take a more cautious and conservative view of an overseas crisis although they can never completely escape a major trend in New York.

The result was that prices dropped sharply across the board Wednesday—in sympathy with the nervous performance of most of the world's stock markets which were open—but there was no heavy selling.

Some brokers had predicted early in response to a brief spurt in the price of bullion, but traders calls have remained strongly and are only just short of their big volume was extremely light.

Before the market opened Thursday, everyone held their breath for early news of the reaction in New York. A decline seemed inevitable, although the firmer trend in Europe and overseas quotations for gold were good signs.

Brokers were fairly optimistic, and said a temporary slump on Wall Street would provide a good opportunity for buying favorite stocks. In the event, most losses were wiped out by the afternoon and the market was nicely fractionally down at the close.

The months and the surge continued Friday.

Among market leaders, west record level reached in January. Although they dropped Wednesday with the rest of the market, the group more than made up lost ground.

Dome Pete gained 3¼ to 73¼, Canadian Superior 2¼ to 43, Hudson's Bay Oil 2¾ to 42½, Charter Oil 1⅞ to 19¾, Canada Southern Pete 4⅞ cents to $3.10 and United Canso 15 cents to $5.95.

The main stimulus at the moment is the prospect of an Arctic oil discovery on Canadian territory similar to the recent U.S. find on the northern slope of Alaska, but the stocks have been rising on a general trend which dates back to mid-1960.

In the last eight years, the Toronto western oil index has gradually climbed over 164 points to 214.19, an advance of about 307 per cent. Oils took a quick plunge this spring after setting the record, but analysts say they will soon penetrate to new high ground.

Looking ahead, brokers still feel that Canadian markets are in a much stronger position than Wall Street.

Until the Czech crisis caused a temporary disturbance, all the signs pointed to increasing domestic and foreign confidence in Canadian issues. The New York market was distinctly softer, and observers say that the presidential prospects have not yet offered any positive encouragement.

An indicator in recent weeks has been the higher-than-average volume and value of shares traded at Toronto compared with the medium turnover in New York.

This, of course, may be short-lived contrast as only three months ago the speculative frenzy accompanied by record volume on Wall Street was a serious headache for the American authorities.

Domestic matters affecting Canadian share prices is still favorable, and this week short-term interest rates fell to their lowest point since the devaluation of the pound sterling in. Analysts noted that New York has never posted a Thursday gain since early June when the Wednesday closings began.

On the same day in Canada, major industrials scored their biggest rise for almost five November. Analysts expect further reductions in bank rate.

The question mark hanging over the future of Canadian Breweries and its recent link with Rothmans of Pall Mall was cleared up Thursday night with the announcement of complex reorganization proposals.

Rothmans, which jumped 1¼ after the statement by the two companies, was up ¾ to 29¾ on the week. Canadian Breweries, which has been one of the most heavily traded industrials in the last three months, picked up ½ to 9½.

The new plans will be put before shareholders at meetings this autumn, and if approved, the merger will make Rothmans' interest in the brewery to about 50 per cent from the 11 per cent which it bought from Argus Corp. in June.

All Toronto stocks are still providing the best rewards for speculators. Some of the most heavily traded issues recorded lost fractions. Revenue Properties slipped ¾ to 12¾, Consolidated Bi-Tech was off to 23.90 and Fleet Manufacturing 5 cents to $3.85.

The index at Toronto, Industrials advanced 1.23 to 169.59, golds 8.47 to 203.44, base metals 12.21 to 108.84 and western oils 3.67 to 214.19. Volume was 16,- 333,000 shares compared with 16,570,000 last week. Losses outnumbered gains 411 to 348.

On the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index rose 1.50 to 164.34. Consolidated volume was 5,697,000 compared with 6,005,000. Declines outnumbered gains 178 to 154.

Trudeau Government Reviewing Canada's Air Transport Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — Like its predecessors, the Trudeau government is reported to be reviewing Canadian air transport policy and the possibility of making Air Canada into a public shareholder-owned company.

James Richardson, new minister without portfolio with special responsibilities for transport matters, has been given the job of drafting new policy for submission to the cabinet.

The 46-year-old former head of Richardson Securities of Canada is said to have powerful support within the cabinet for the idea of having the publicly owned airline go its own way in the business world. He could not be reached for comment.

Air Canada, formerly Trans-Canada Air Lines, now is owned by Canadian National Railways, itself a Crown corporation.

Until the Diefenbaker government had its review of air policy, TCA had a monopoly on cross-Canada traffic. Canadian Pacific Airlines was then permitted to schedule limited cross-Canada service.

During its time in office, the Pearson government reviewed air policy and left the major lines pretty much as they were. It opened the way for more privately-owned feeder lines to contribute to the cross-Canada network of service.

The new Trudeau government's review is reported to start first with the future of Air Canada and then spread into wider questions of whether Canada can support two major lines or whether Air Canada and CP Airlines should be merged and put into a position of collaboration rather than competition.

The question is taken even further by some thought that Air Canada might become one of a number of Crown corporations which would be taken over by the Canadian Development Corp., if and when it is set up.

Finance Minister Benson is reported to favor establishing the CDC as a shareholder-owned corporation with Air Canada,

He Gets High Nightly at the CNE - - on Hot Air Alone

TORONTO (CP) — Stan Sheldrake, 33, father of four from Smithville, Ont., exudes adventure.

He flies a hot-air balloon.

The huge, garishly-colored Spirit of Canada is eased aloft by Mr. Sheldrake each night at the Canadian National Exhibition's grandstand show, Sea to Sea.

With passenger Robert Christie, who portrays Sir John A. Macdonald in the pageant, Mr. Sheldrake rises high above the football field in the most spectacular sequence of the show.

He says his inspiration began when he was a youngster in his father's garage "with orange-crate airplanes slung from the rafters."

Mr. Sheldrake had his first solo flight in an airplane in 1954. After obtaining a pilot's licence, he turned to sky-diving and parachuting.

"But ballooning, it's a real adventure sport," he said. "You're a cloud in the sky and the only control you have is to make the balloon go up or down.

"In effect, once you're aloft, you have an unknown destination."

Right to Choose Urged

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Association of French-speaking Teachers Friday passed a resolution asking that "parents, by priority right, be given the right to choose the kind of education their children should receive."

Adopting resolutions at the end of their three-day meeting, the teachers also asked that "French-speaking parents and teachers jointly launch a campaign of information concerning the integration of neo-Canadians.

Get Involved, Teachers Told

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The generation gap can be bridged if the teacher becomes more involved with his students, the Ontario Secondary School Headmasters' Council was told Friday.

Dr. J. R. A. Mayer, dean of arts and science at Brock University in St. Catharines, said if teachers became more personally involved students would see them as human beings and not as teaching machines.

He urged delegates to communicate values to students not by preaching them, but by living them. He suggested teachers should let students into their homes.

Teachers Balk at Increased Fees

CATCHACOMA, Ont. (CP) — Affiliates of the Ontario Teachers Federation Friday approved a $1.75 increase to $7.75 in the annual memberships fee paid by teachers in the province.

The federation directors failed to win support for an increase to $10 from the present $6. The proposed increase was defeated when the 28,000-member Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation would not support it.

Federation officials said failure to get a $10 levy would mean a 20-per-cent cut in the OTF budget estimate of $844,900 for the coming year.

Outgoing president Harvey Wilson of Peterborough told the delegates that their failure to get together was "one of the most blatant examples of discrimination on the basis of sex, grade taught, religion and language in the province."

Mr. Wilson said he also regretted a decision by the directors to reaffirm their opposition to a system of merit pay for teachers. He said he would have preferred something which endorsed the principle of merit pay as long as teacher interests were properly safeguarded.

John Rodriguez, president of the Ontario English Catholic Teachers Association, said there seemed to be little hope of a change of attitude on the part of his fellow directors in the coming year.

Other officers elected were: first vice-president, Maurice Lapointe, Ottawa; second vice-president, Hazel Farr, Simcoe; third vice-president, Karl Bohres, Sudbury. Executive members are Dr. R. L. Lamb, Toronto, and Robert P. McDonald, Richmond Hill.

Teachers Elect Officers

CATCHACOMA, Ont. (CP) — James McNabb, a Peterborough high school principal, Friday was elected president of the 90,000-member Ontario Teachers' Federation.

He succeeds Harvey Wilson, also of Peterborough.

Fleeing Pair Die in Crash

This Crash Killed Two

Tangled mass of wreckage is all that remains of two vehicles which Saturday night collided on No. 2 highway opposite the golf club. Two Belleville men died in the crash.

Mayor Wants Study

"If anyone calls, I'm busy."

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Mayor Dr. J. Russell Scott said Sunday he will ask the Belleville Police Commission to review the matter of police chases at its next meeting following Saturday night's collision in which two local men were killed.

However, the proposed review does not reflect on the actions of police officers involved in Saturday night's chase, he said.

Today, Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crosbie defended the action of Constable Robert Thomas, who initiated the chase which resulted in the death of two Belleville men and in the injury of three Trenton residents.

The chased vehicle and an eastbound Trenton car collided about four miles west of Belleville on No. 2 highway.

Killed in the accident were Thomas Edward Delino, 29, and George Bruce McFarland, 22.

In a preliminary report, Police Chief Crosbie said that Constable Thomas had attempted to make a routine check on the vehicle in which the two men later died.

He gave the following account of events:

The constable spotted the car with only one headlight at the corner of College and Gilbert Street and as he attempted to check the vehicle it sped north on Lemoine, west on Parkdale Drive to Sidney Street where it went through a construction barricade and south along Sidney Street.

The constable radioed for assistance and another police cruiser driven by Constable J. R. McLauchlan attempted to stop the car at Northern Electric.

But the speeding car avoided the second police cruiser and continued south through the Belleville Fairgrounds and west along Dundas Street.

Vietnam Division Remains

CHICAGO (AP) — Indications continued today to point toward a floor fight over the Democratic party's position on the Vietnam war, although both supporters and critics of President Johnson's war policy said they are seeking compromises.

Weary members of the Democratic national convention's platform committee struggled into the early hours without apparent success in settling the potentially divisive issue.

Platform writers favoring what they term a strong peace plank claim more than enough votes to bring a dissenting report to the convention floor. The four-day convention opens tonight.

And Vice-President Hubert Humphrey once again said Americans have the right to expect "some little sign" from North Vietnam that it would enter into meaningful discussions if bombing was stopped. There is no such sign, he stated.

Unconditional cessation of the bombing of North Vietnam is one of the points most hotly debated.

Even apart from the prospect of a Vietnam floor fight, preparation of the platform ran into delay after delay.

The scheduled Sunday night meeting of the full committee to consider a platform draft ended without completing its task and the drafting subcommittee could only hope to have a paper ready for a general session sometime later today.

A long review by the full committee could scramble convention deadlines. The presidential candidate is supposed to be picked Wednesday night.

Death Ends Chase

By ROY PEACOCK

Two Belleville men are dead and two Trenton residents are still in Belleville General Hospital following a two-car crash on Highway 2 west of Belleville Saturday night.

The rear head-on crash near the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club was the climax of a police chase which started on College Street in Belleville after a city police officer attempted to stop a car for what was said to be a routine check.

Killed in the crash, which almost completely demolished the two vehicles, were Thomas Edward Deline, 29, of Murney Street in Belleville and George Bruce McFarland, 22, of Station Street, Mr. Deline died at the scene when the Trenton car almost sliced the other vehicle in two. Mr. McFarland died four hours later in Belleville General Hospital.

Occupants of the Trenton car taken in hospital were the driver, Robert Hood, 20, of Dixon Drive, who suffered possible head injury and contusions; Paul Peddleson, 20, Queen Street, with a fractured right ankle, and contusions, and Henry Coleman, 38, of Dundas Street.

Mr. Coleman was treated for scalp lacerations at the hospital and was allowed to go home. The other two men are still in hospital.

Belleville Police Constable Robert Thomas said he had attempted to make a routine check on the Belleville car at College and Gilbert Streets.

However, the vehicle sped away through the Park Dale area, south on Sidney Street through the Belleville Fairgrounds, where a large crowd was in attendance at the Saturday night races. Then the vehicle turned west along Dundas Street and out of the city along No. 2 highway — by this time trailed by two city police cruisers.

Russia Agrees to Withdraw Troops In Exchange for Control of Press

From Reuters-AP

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Wenceslas Square shook to the thump of tank cannons and the rattle of machine-gun fire overnight as Russian troops demonstrated their firepower to defiant Prague residents.

New Russian units, moved in to replace the first wave of invasion troops, opened fire as the last stragglers headed out of the square for home 15 minutes before curfew.

Thousands of bullets whined over the rooftops cutting red tracer patterns into the night sky.

Klaxons and sirens wailed over Prague today to mark the start of a 15-minute general strike called in protest against the Warsaw pact occupation of the country.

Cars and streetcars immediately stopped in the streets.

Throughout Sunday, as talks between Czechoslovak leaders and the Russians dragged on in Moscow, Soviet troops showed a greater readiness to open fire in the streets.

The National Assembly convened to meet in emergency session under the muzzles of Russian guns. A clandestine radio said the government asked President Ludvik Svoboda to consider returning from Moscow immediately because of the deteriorating situation.

Unconfirmed reports said Russian troops shot and killed three youths and a girl found sticking up anti-Russian posters.

MOSCOW (CP) — Soviet and allied occupying troops will be withdrawn from Czechoslovakia under an agreement between Soviet and Czechoslovak leaders here, Czechoslovak diplomatic sources reported tonight.

The sources said the talks were still continuing to work out a communique, which was expected to be issued later tonight or Tuesday.

The agreement was hammered out after four days of secret talks between the leaders.

Leaders of East Germany, Poland, Hungary and Bulgaria also were reported to have taken part in the discussions, but there was no official Soviet confirmation.

The Czechoslovak delegation was headed by President Ludvik Svoboda and Alexander Dubcek, reformist Communist party chief.

The Czechoslovak diplomatic sources said the Prague leaders agreed to introduce control over the press to prevent the appearance of articles critical of the Soviet Union and other Communist countries.

All members of the Czechoslovak government and Communist party leadership many of whom have been attacked as traitors, revisionists and helpers of counter-revolutionaries here in the last few days, will be allowed to retain their posts, the sources said.

No official corroboration of the report was available from the Soviet foreign ministry or the Soviet censors.

The Soviet troops which marched into Czechoslovakia together with units from East Germany, Poland, Hungary and Bulgaria will be withdrawn when "constitutional government is consolidated," the sources added.

This could take anything from two weeks to two months, they added.

The sources said the Czechoslovak Communist party's reformist "action program" would be allowed to survive, subject to the agreement on measures to control the press.

A Czechoslovak embassy spokesman had said earlier today that President Svoboda and other leaders planned to refer to Prague today, no matter what the results of the meeting.

The talks in the Kremlin presumably were joined today by the orthodox party leaders from the four other Communist states who also sent troops into Czechoslovakia.

A Czechoslovak embassy spokesman said Sunday night that Wladyslaw Gomulka of Poland, Walter Ulbricht of East Germany, Janos Kadar of Hungary and Todor Zhivkov of Bulgaria arrived here to take part in the meeting.

'It All Began With Hockey Debacle'

* * * * * *

BONN, West Germany (Reuters) — Czechoslovaks, noted for their sardonic humor, are displaying it even during the Soviet occupation of their country.

Free Czechoslovak radio stations have treated their listeners to something to smile about in the current crisis.

Some examples:

A station reported one man told another: "It all began with the ice hockey debacle" — a reference to an unexpected Czechoslovak victory over the USSR in the Winter Olympics at Grenoble, France in February.

Another station said the South Bohemian Communist party newspaper J'Hoceska Pravda had an item in its lost-and-found column:

"Czechoslovak-Soviet friendship has been lost—forever."

Another newspaper had in its small advertisements column: "City military commandant urgently seeks temporary sub-lease."

THE WEATHER

Skies will remain mostly cloudy over Ontario today and some light showers will occur in the southern regions. Prospects for Tuesday are for mostly sunny skies across the province with some moderation in temperatures but still below season normals.

Eisenhower's Heart 'Irritable'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors reported today that former president Dwight D. Eisenhower, 77, has shown "further increase" in heart irritability since Sunday and remains in critical condition.

Doctors of the Walter Reed Army Hospital said that extra heart beats have been occurring with "increasing frequency" since Sunday.

But they added that there had been no further episodes of "rapid heart action," which constitute the more serious symptom of his condition.

At news conferences here and in Corner Brook, former Health minister John Crosbie and Clyde Wells, former minister without portfolio announced formation of the Liberal Democratic Movement.

Prepared statements issued to reporters said their intention was to seek reorganization of the party at a Liberal policy and leadership convention.

Mr. Crosbie, member of St. John's West, and Mr. Wells, representing the west coast Newfoundland riding of Humber East, crossed the floor of the legislature May 14 to sit as Independent Liberals.

Water Tank Climbed By Two Sightseers

By DON MacKENZIE
(Staff Reporter)

Did anyone notice two solitary figures outlined against the sky last night — from the top of the Belleville water tower.

Adventure is where you find it and even in Belleville the venturesome spirit of an explorer sometimes "shines" through.

Nevertheless, after conquering the Everest of the East Hill, 19-year-old Robert McKell and 22-year-old David Hawke could not make city police see their point of view.

When they climbed back down the water tower into the protective arms of city constables they were both charged with liquor offences.

"But we're explorers," said one of the surprised "mountaineers," "all we wanted to do was see Belleville at night."

"We're visitors," said the other. Both men are working on the pipeline being installed north of the city.

Visitors are not both men will appear in court.

Hospital Issue Debated

Potter Raps Abuses in Student Loan Program

Abuses of Ontario education grants would be hindered if students themselves were appointed to the board that administers the fund an Ontario MPP said Saturday.

Dr. Richard T. Potter, Conservative member for the Quinte riding told a group of 45 student Tories in Toronto, that some students lie to obtain loans.

And he produced three examples to illustrate abuses of the student loan program and added he could produce the names if necessary.

One student, he said, used an Ontario government education grant to buy a new car last year and is using another grant this year to tour Europe.

Another, he said, has received $4,100 from the government to finance his education, yet makes $1,500 a year from investments and comes from wealthy family.

Then there's the mother, proud of her daughter, he said for getting a grant from the government to buy a hi-fi at Christmas.

Dr. Potter told the Ontario Progressive Conservative Student Association he strongly supported the student loan plan, but said he believed there would be far less abuse if students were appointed to the bodies supervising the loans.

Education Minister William Davis said Sunday that student loan procedures have been tightened considerably in recent months.

"We always hear of some examples of abuse of some kind," he said.

"We hear of actual cases of abuse only by rumor. Nobody has actually given us names."

Dr. Potter later said he and other physicians "lie" in official reports in order to keep chronic patients in active treatment hospitals because that is the only way to assure proper treatment in a province lacking in chronic-care hospitals.

"And our job is to care for the patients," he said.

A quick rebuttal came from the senior doctor in the Ontario House, Health Minister Matthew Dymond.

"I don't think doctors lie," he answered, "but if they do, we'll have to ask the College of Physicians and Surgeons to look into it."

If Dr. Potter admitted lying he added, "perhaps we'll have to ask the college to look into his professional ethics."

Dr. Dymond has been threatening college action for several years in an effort to have doctors move patients out of needed hospital space more quickly.

But success has been small. He observed that the average hospital stay has increased three days, even with medical advances.

Our OWRC must no longer take the quiet approach if we are to clear up our pollution problems," he continued.

"And then we have our liquor laws. I need not remind you how badly they need updating."

"In other words," he said, "we are now in the late 19th century. We must legislate with this in mind."

...Pollution, Dutch Elms Major Problem

The outspoken conservative member for Quinte riding, Dr. Richard T. Potter, told a group of Young Progressive Conservatives in Toronto Saturday that the government has run out of time.

"We must bring about changes now," he said since "so many problems such as pollution of air and water have almost reached the point of no return."

"Fears of disturbing particular groups or individuals" must be overcome and action taken said Dr. Potter.

In the same speech the Conservative member criticized students cheating the government on education grants and the hospitalization program of the government.

Dr. Potter bombarded the young PCs with problems from all sides.

"One area in which we should be greatly concerned is the dutch elm disease infesting our province," he said.

Describing the province of the trees Dr. Potter pointed out that two birds would go down with one stone — employment would be provided and the province would be rid of infected trees.

"Many other two way projects must be possible, he finished.

If a doctor reports a patient chronically ill then he is moved out of the hospital to his home or private nursing home. Neither offers the type of care needed, said Dr. Potter, and nursing homes are not covered by medical insurance.

"I hope our government will see its way clear to provide the same type of accounting under OHSIC as it does now under OMSIP," which covers nursing home care.

"Few families can afford $8 to $15 a day for a nursing home," he said.

The government has concentrated on active-care hospitals but the need now, according to the Conservative member, is for both chronic care hospitals and rehabilitation wings.

PEMBERTON, B.C. (CP) — A four-month carpentry course is being given by the department of Indian affairs in this community 70 miles north of Vancouver for members of the Mount Currie Indian band. Members asked for the training program to be integrated with their house building program.

West of the city the car forced several other cars from the highway before it collided with the Trenton vehicle, said the Chief.

"Constable Thomas had his car completely under control and was able to maneuver his cruiser off the highway and avoid striking the wrecked cars," he continued.

Chief Crosbie said Constable Thomas was driving a clearly marked police cruiser.

Despite this and the fact that fender and roof flasher lights were operating, the driver of the car refused to stop and during the chase through Parkdale on several occasions nearly forced the cruiser off the road.

"We'll possibly never know why the car refused to stop," said the police chief.

But, based on present information, Chief Crosbie is not criticizing his officer for the action taken.

"He kept his car under control at all times and immediately radioed for assistance," he said.

However, he said, all facts would be brought out at the inquest which has been called by Coroner Dr. W. F. Bates, who attended at the scene of the accident.

ers and an Ontario Provincial Police cruiser.

Near the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club the car was in collision with the eastbound auto entering the Belleville ferries men.

Dy ambulance took the four injured men to hospital, where Mr. McFarland died about four hours following the accident.

Traffic along No. 2 highway was held up for nearly 90 minutes before the wrecked cars were towed away.

Coroner Dr. W. F. Bates said an inquest was still "tentative," depending on the outcome of investigations by himself and the city police commission.

A date would depend on the availability of witnesses injured in the fatal collision.

Dr. Bates said details surrounding the deaths of the men are "sketchy," he believed it "would be a wise thing to relate publicly" all the circumstances.

Boats Make Perfect Start

Helicopter Hovers Over Boat

Crash Boat Secures Line to Capsized Craft

A Rough Day for the Sailing Types

A Search and Rescue helicopter from CFB Trenton stood by Sunday afternoon as six Belleville teen-agers were pulled from the Bay of Quinte after their sailboats overturned.

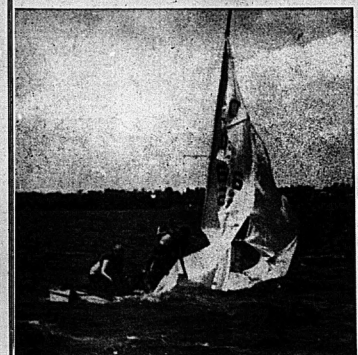
The mishaps occurred during Bay of Quinte Yacht Club course races on bay.

CFB Trenton weather forecasters reported 35-mile-an-hour winds and three to four foot high waves on the bay at the time.

First boat of the centre board racing division to swamp was a 16½ foot Day Sailor skippered by Vicki Haggis and crewed by Nancy McFarlane and Anna Douglas. It overturned in front of the government dock shortly after the race began at two p.m.

The three girls were taken aboard a power cruiser after attempts to right the yacht and tow it to harbor failed.

The boat drifted ashore at the foot of Herchimer Ave. late in the afternoon.



The second yacht, a BQYC 15½-foot Nordberg, swamped off Cow Island on the south side of the bay. Its crew, Douglas Williamson, Kevin Murray and John Petto, righted their craft and continued with the race before being hit by a series of knock-downs that turned the boat completely over.

A Rossmore resident notified Ontario Provincial Police and Search and Rescue was called in.

An Air Force Dakota and a helicopter were dispatched to the scene and hovered over the bay until the crews of the boats were pulled from the water.

The abandoned Nordberg was towed ashore when winds diminished in the evening.

Also on Sunday afternoon off Baker's Island at CFB Trenton two men were removed from a capsized canoe by a passing cruiser.

Fiancee Is Academy Award Winner

New Belleville Director Arrives in Toronto

TORONTO — Belleville Theatre Guild executives yesterday shook hands with the man expected to organize the Quinte area's most dynamic little theatre season to date.

Flying home here from London and a year-long study of English theatre, was Richard Howard, 35-year-old award-winning Canadian director.

Next Monday he arrives in Belleville to finalize plans with the Guild organizers.

The next day he launches the Guild's busiest season in its 20-year-old history with a cast-reading for the Jean Kerr comedy, Mary, Mary.

The activities program also promises a regional one-act drama festival, workshops, children's theatre, a three-act play entry in the Eastern Ontario Drama Festival at Ottawa, and two more full-scale productions.

The schedule of castings and public events tumble over each other in the Guild's projected schedule for the year — all of it hinging on the presence of director.

Retaining Mr. Howard's services through the Ontario government directors' training scheme was a scoop for the Guild.

It also has paid an unexpected publicity bonus.

Mr. Howard arrived here with his fiancee, Lila Kedrova, international stage and screen star who quit the London run of Cabaret, to return to Canada with him.

Miss Kedrova — an academy Award winner — may be in Belleville with the Guild director next week and likely will visit here regularly during his Belleville stay.

However, there is no thought that Miss Kedrova will surrender her career for housework.

"We'll get married in October — perhaps in Canada," she told a drama critic in London. "I have to hear from my agents in New York. They want me for film work."

Already, invitations have arrived from the Stratford Festival.

Miss Kedrova won a best-supporting - role Academy Award for her role in Zorba the Greek.

Indirectly, Mr. Howard's Belleville engagement triggered the engagement.

Reminded by an Ontario government official that his contract with the Guild through the provincial training scheme called for his return to Canada, Mr. Howard proposed marriage.

Miss Kedrova decided to divorce her husband, director Pierre Valde. Saturday night she took her final London bow in her much - applauded role in the musical, Cabaret.

The couple were greeted on their arrival here by Belleville Theatre Guild representatives headed by president Gordon Collins.

Mr. Howard has an impressive background in Canadian theatre. Acting since the age of nine, he has directed plays in Canada which have won a total of 55 awards — including 10 for his direction.

His 12-month study of the British stage sought to grasp the causes of theatre in that country — why it appealed on all levels to all age groups.

On his return he hoped not to "reproduce the English theatre" but "the kind of theatre that Canadians want and need."

The Belleville season will be his first opportunity to demonstrate the results.

The season planned by the Guild presents contrasting features.

After the more conventional Mary, Mary scheduled for early October at Centennial Secondary School, the Guild ventures forth a month later with Ionesco's Bald Soprano.

Ionesco, engaged with what is commonly called the theatre of the absurd, has been firing the responses of audiences for years. However, his particular style of theatre has never been attempted before by the Guild.

Other productions named for later in the season include the record musical The Fantasticks and a possible festival production of Them's A Doll House.

First major event however, casting for Mary, Mary Sept. 3 when the full Guild membership will be introduced to Mr. Howard.

Mandy To Speak At Meeting

Belleville businessmen and interested citizens will have the opportunity tomorrow to hear A. E. Mandy, manager of the Downtown Businessmen's Association in Hamilton.

Mr. Mandy will speak on the value of a good downtown organization to the community.

In addition to the guest speaker those in attendance will have the opportunity to see a presentation of the Magic Circle program by Fred Deacon and hear a report on the proposed fee structure for the merchants.

A invitation to anyone interested in the future of the downtown area to attend the seven o'clock meeting has been extended.

The Czech Tragedy

When a once independent nation like Czechoslovakia is rent asunder by a powerful neighbor the patriotism of its people is put to the test. Emotions run high and even neighbors and families may find themselves in opposite camps.

It happened in Norway — and the name "Quisling" (after the man who betrayed that country to the Nazis) is still heard today as the Soviet Union instals a similar regime in Prague. It happened in France after that country was overrun in 1940. It happened in Hungary in 1956 when the government of Imre Nagy was deposed and a puppet regime backed by Soviet tanks established.

History shows there are always those who are prepared to betray their country and their principles.

We recall a book written in the wake of the 1948 communist takeover in Czechoslovakia. Called "Journey to Dana," the book was a gripping account by a British army sergeant of efforts to trace his Czech-born wife. On the run from the Nazi troops the Briton had found refuge at the young woman's home. After the war they were married and lived for a time in Britain. Returning to Czechoslovakia alone for a visit, Dana (that was her name) was trapped by the communist takeover. Her husband journeyed to Prague in an effort to find her, finally traced her but saw her only in the company of security officials. He never saw her again.

It was a poignant tale and one that has been repeated in varying forms ever since the Soviet Union embarked on its campaign of empire building in eastern Europe. Recent newspaper pictures are eloquent of this human tragedy that once again has caught Czechoslovakia in its grip.

In one a young man is being hustled back across the border by Czech guards after trying to cross into West Germany. In another a Czech border guard is shown carrying the luggage for an elderly man who crossed into the West German border village of Waldhaus. Presumably the young are still needed in Czechoslovakia, but not the elderly.

Picton Dispute

The Proctor-Silex labor dispute in Picton, now more than a month old, has taken an ugly turn that is at odds with the community's normal quiet and friendly atmosphere.

Friction between union and management, and encounters between pickets and police as well as security guards hired by the plant, not to mention a variety of other incidents, have contributed to a tense situation that should be cooled before it gets worse.

There have been reports of harassment by both sides, of telephone calls and insults and even telephone lines being cut. The security guards are accompanied by German shepherd dogs but they say the animals are only "pets."

Two union men have been remanded on charges of wilful damage and assaulting a police officer.

No dispute is worth so much hot air. In a small community like Picton it is all the worse, both from the viewpoint of economics and of community relations. Management and union should make a fresh attempt to find a settlement.

Safer Motoring

There are more cars in Ontario than anywhere else in Canada — nearly 3,000,000 of them. Soon there will be several thousand fewer, however, as a result of Highway Minister Irwin Haskett's tough new law.

Starting November 1 all used cars will have to be certified by a garage as mechanically fit before they can be operated by a new owner. Emphasis will be placed on efficiency of the brakes and steering.

It means a lot of people are going to be without cars, because many of them will not be worth repairing. On the other hand Ontario highways should be a lot safer than they are today.

Outdoor Study

More outdoor study for primary and high school students is an admirable prospect that has been endorsed in recent days by the governors of the Ontario Teachers' Federation. The governors have urged an amendment to the Schools' Administration Act to enable school boards to buy tracts of land of 500 acres to be used for activities in all subjects. Education will take on a new and interesting dimension when the value of the outdoors is given as much recognition as the often dull routine of the classroom.

Diplomats Released

Britain Maintains Tenuous Hold on Relations With China

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Despite Peking's release of some British diplomats, Britain appears to be as puzzled as ever whether normal relations can be possible with a turbulent, unpredictable China.

When Sir Donald Hopson, British charge d'affaires, walked out of China recently, he said he hoped his release was a sign of better Sino-British relations. Some of his London colleagues said frankly they weren't sure. They seemed relieved and perhaps a little surprised that Sir Donald's request for permission to leave had been granted.

It was just a year ago that the Red Guards, stirred up by Mao Tse-tung's henchmen, sacked the British Mission, burned the embassy and heaped abuse on Hopson and his aides.

In earlier times such actions immediately would have brought a dramatic halt in diplomatic relations and perhaps even a challenge to war.

But the British lion, tired of world police duty, no longer feels capable of taking on the Chinese dragon. The British government has decided its future role must be as a European power, although Sir Donald feels it is still essential that Britain maintain a presence in Peking.

Undoubtedly this diplomatic necessity is tied to British desire for increased trade with a country that has great potential as a market once stability takes the place of internal revolution. But some British newspapers have raised the question why such diplomatic ties are necessary for trade when a number of other Western countries, including West Germany, are able to do business without diplomatic recognition.

Probably more pertinent to the British reason why it attempts to maintain an almost untenable position in Peking is the fixed British foreign-policy position that China must win a seat at the United Nations.

The foundations of the British position at the UN might collapse if Britain was forced to sever diplomatic relations as the result of unyielding abuse.

But it also seems evident that Mao doesn't give a fig for Britain's position or that of any other world power, including the Soviet Union. At 74 he remains firmly in the seat of power though his complete control over 4 vast and restless country is questionable.

The Red Guards be unleashed two years ago to crush right-wing power have been quietened but reports suggest some provinces still flagrantly challenge Mao's authority.

It appears that as long as Mao sits in Peking, the waves of turbulence will not be stilled. There may be advisers attempting to urge restraint but there is doubt in Western quarters that Mao bows to any vision but his own.

Time Zone Changes Hit Air Travellers

Montreal Gazette

A generation ago, when air travel was new, airliners were not powerful enough to fly above the weather and a trip in one of them could be rough. A common effect on the stomach was called simply "air sickness."

That early problem has long been forgotten by passengers in today's jet transports, which fly faster and farther. In one average trip, east to west, a half-dozen time zones can be covered in a few hours.

At the end of the trip, eating times and sleeping times have to be readjusted. Clock time disagrees with "stomach time," but the officials have a properly official title for the trouble. They call it "circadian rhythm desynchronization."

After considerable study of the matter, US Government doctors of the Federal Aviation Agency staff have come up with a cure which will surprise no one. They recommend what air travellers have been doing for years — resting up at the end of a trip. The longer the trip, the more time needed in bed.

The study serves to emphasize, once again, that man finds it easier to create new machines than to adapt himself to them.

In 1893, Colorado followed and then came Utah, Idaho and Washington.

Too Many Are Ignoring Rules of Water Safety

St. Catharines Standard

The juxtaposition of two news stories in the paper the other day served to highlight what it is becoming a tragically familiar story from our Ontario lakes — the death or injury of innocent swimming victims at the hands of people who don't know how to handle boats properly, or else don't care.

The first story told of the death of a Toronto man who was placidly swimming 200 feet off shore in Lake Simcoe when he was struck by a motor-boat and then slashed by the propeller blades. He bled to death. The second story recounted the injury to a 10-year-old girl and three companions when a boat towing a water skier rammed into a diving raft on Lake Couchiching, again not far from shore.

This sort of accident is becoming commonplace these summers, and the number of unreported near-misses on our holiday lakes must be vast if one can believe the personal observations of many vacationers. Unfortunately, the situation is exceedingly difficult to police; it is one in which the only answer is common sense and rigid adherence to safety rules. In too many cases, that answer isn't forthcoming.

Strikes Permitting . . . Subways Are for Relaxing

Bruce West in The Globe and Mail

Well, that's the way the subway rumbles, as they say. Here I am just beginning to love and appreciate the extended east-west underground line when the TTC employees threaten to send me back to my car by calling a strike. This is the kind of frustrating thing that always seems to be happening. Let me find a quiet nook at some country crossroads and someone will come along and build an apartment building or a shopping plaza on it. Let me find an inexpensive parking lot and the place will immediately be taken over by a new management that doubles the rates. As I mentioned here when the east-west extension of the Bloor subway was opened, I am now able to walk to the Royal York Road station. Leaving my car in the driveway not only gave me a chance to stretch my legs but to expand my mind by sitting in a subway car observing life as it was being lived by fellow passengers. You don't get much time to observe your fellow man while sitting in traffic jam. The car windows and windshields between you and him form impenetrable walls which allow only the beast in all motorists to pass through. In subway cars it is different.

Average Incomes Show Affluence Is Relative

Windsor Star

This era on this continent has been termed the affluent society. And, as reflected in standards of living, it is by comparison with previous periods of mankind.

Affluence is only relative, however, as proved by statistics from Ottawa. It shows that Alberta has the highest average income reported by personal taxpayers in 1966, with $6,135. That fortunate city is followed by Alberni and Prince Rupert, $5,946 and $5,833 respectively, and Windsor, in fourth spot, with $5,809.

These show that some small er places have their advantages with average incomes exceeding those in such large cities as Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver, Toronto is a rich city, but this is something different from saying all people there are rich.

Indeed the above figures create questions: Just how affluent is our society? Or how many people in it can correctly be called affluent?

Certainly people with incomes of $6,000 can't be considered affluent, much less those getting $5,000 or $4,000. When the high costs of living are met from such incomes there can be very little left for high living. The great majority of Canadians, though very fortunate compared with people in most parts of the world, don't live high.

She Plays A Hunch And Wins

Hamilton Spectator

A gorgeous librarian of our acquaintance saw a Monarch butterfly outside her place of work the other day and then saw a photograph of one on her desk. Moments later when she saw a butterfly in a newspaper, she reacted like the lovely gambler she is. "Is there a horse with a "monarch" in its name running at For Erie?" she asked. There was, a horse named White Monarch. So she sent $10 to the track and collected $28.50 when the horse won.

U. S. Eyes Mini Car

Ottawa Journal

Here comes Detroit with plans for a new small car to compete with the imports from West Germany, Britain, France Japan and all the rest of the "mini" builders.

The U.S. product will probably be a darn good car in its various forms but it will be current born birth by the American passion for bigness. Remember the compacts? The overseas buyers delight in keeping vehicles small and thrifty but the U.S. compacts grew longer, wider, heavier and more shiny until they were practically neck and neck, or piston and piston, with the standards.

Band Concerts Feature of An Earlier Era

Ottawa Journal

In the days of sleek horses, gleaming harnesses and fringed top surreys, the weekly band concerts were highlights of the summer season. Men planned to finish field work early, do the chores and get a bath before supper and dress up in second best suits.

As seven o'clock neared, roads leading into town were filled with fast moving rigs in surreys, democrats and buggies. All winter and spring band members had met to practise for the outdoor concerts, for Dominion Day and Civic Holiday and political rallies.

It was difficult to realize that the men in their snappy blue and red uniforms were familiar friends. To millions of men and women, boys and girls, it was thrilling to watch and listen as the conductor raised his baton, brought it down and the band sent a martial, stirring march into the quiet evening.

As dusk came on, the bandstand lamps with their silvered reflectors were lighted. The band presented a varied program: marches and waltzes, old home songs and southern melodies. After each number, appreciative applause rippled up and down the street.

When the church bell tolled nine, all knew what would come next. The band played Goodnight Ladies, and from several hundred throats the familiar, beloved words rang out in the darkness. The goodnights were said.

Red Cross Youth Meet in Belleville

For the past week over 90 members of the Red Cross youth movement have been at Albert College for their annual assembly.

Delegates were chosen from high school Red Cross clubs throughout Ontario and 47 clubs were represented at the week long assembly.

Besides being somewhat of a training centre for physical activity, the group had discussion periods where ideas for improving the Red Cross Society and its program were discussed.

The group left for their homes all over Ontario on Saturday afternoon. They had arrived at Albert College for the Red Cross sponsored assembly the previous Sunday.

Kvarda Wants To Meet Bosses

Zdenek Kvarda wants to meet his bosses.

The city businessman, a member of Belleville and Suburban Planning Board since January, was referring to the councils of Belleville, Sidney and Thurlow.

"I don't intend to sit here and accept set-backs from these councils," he told planning board members last week. He introduced a motion calling for a meeting with the three bodies to discuss planning the future of their communities.

"Without knowledge of the views and attitudes of these men (council members), I am finding it more and more difficult to deal with planning matters. There has been no initiative on the part of this board to take planning in our own hands, probably because of the attitude of these councils," he added.

"They seem unaware of what planning is and why this board is here," he charged. "I would like to find out why they don't take advantage of our services. Perhaps we can learn a lesson from why our director is leaving. If we don't take steps we will have trouble attracting a progressive new director."

Mr. Kvarda added that the planning act specifies that all members "must work for planning by whatever means are at their disposal". He felt meetings to educate and inform were one of the best means at the board's disposal.

"You don't have to do a selling job on Belleville council," countered Mayor Russell Scott. "Members of our council are more concerned and aware of planning than many members of this board. Our Council will be ready to meet with you when you have something specific to discuss."

The board decided the suggestion had merit, but a discussion meeting should be postponed until the appointment of a new planning director.

Trenton Rally Successful

TRENTON — While most people were lounging around the house trying to cool off on Sunday, members of the Trenton Motorsport Club were burning up the asphalt as they competed in a gruelling 80-mile car rally.

The club holds a major activity once a month and August was no exception.

At one o'clock cars were being checked to make sure they were in good working order. And then the vehicles were sent off in short intervals.

The idea in the driver's mind was to keep going at the right speed so the sight of a checkpoint wouldn't come as a total surprise.

The navigator's thoughts were directed on finding the right speed and the roads to use it on.

Driver Richard Woodley and navigator Mike McCarely seemed to do this pretty well as they won the event in their 1966 Volvo.

The rally lasted for three and one half hours. To some people driving in the summer heat on roads that could be the wrong ones, isn't the best way to relax.

But it really isn't like that. Rallying is catching on in Trenton and many are taking up this challenging sport.

Children Assist Firefighters In Project

Stanley Parkette and Parkdale children recently held penny carnivals to assist the Firefighters' Muscular Dystrophy Fund. It is the second year for both groups of children to put forth a great amount of work for this fund.

The firefighters are indebted to: Penny and Molly Riordan, John and Andy Reddick, Gail, John, Michael and Susan Stephenson and Matt Lacey who raised $16.54 at their Penny Carnival. At the Stanley Parkette workers Martha, Lee and Jean Fleming and Joanne Terr Haar raised $20.29.

The fund is to assist patients and research into this dreaded disease which usually strikes children.

Rollins Receives Award

A large number of Belleville residents took advantage of the weekend "open house" to inspect the East Belleville home which has won for Maurice H. Rollins Construction a Chatelaine magazine award for excellence.

The award winning home, the Lexington, is situated on Forest Hill Drive east of Farley Ave. and north of Edgehill Road.

Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Annabelle King, housing editor for Chatelaine, presented Mr. Rollins with a plaque commending the firm for excellence of the Lexington design and for sound construction practices.

The new home, constructed on a recently developed crescent was officially opened by Mayor Dr. J. Russell Scott.

Also present for the official opening ceremonies were Belleville realtors, Alderman Gerald Joyce and Frank Follwell, local electrical contractor Albert Horlock and city building inspector Grant Sickle.

McCormick Real Estate Sold to Bowes and Cocks

Sale of the W. J. McCormick Realty Ltd. to Bowes and Cocks Ltd. with head office in Peterborough, has been announced by W. J. McCormick, president of the Belleville firm.

Mr. McCormick will continue his association with the company, remaining as president and will work in a specialized phase of the realty business involving litigations. He will move his family to Toronto early in September.

Mrs. Mary Colling, agent with the local firm for some years, has been appointed the Belleville branch manager.

The addition of Belleville completed a chain of 14 branch offices for Bowes and Cocks with other offices including Oshawa, Cobourg, Campbellford, Marmora and Lindsay.

W. J. McCORMICK

The W. J. McCormick Realty has been in business for 15 years in Belleville, commencing as a combined insurance and real estate office and growing from a one-man operation to one with six salesmen and two secretary receptionists.

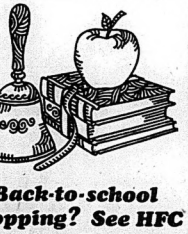
During the above period the firm has been closely associated with some of the larger housing and apartment projects in the city as well as maintaining a conventional selling program.

Other members of the sales and office staff include Cecil Ruttan, Gene Morden, Mrs. M. Chandler, Mrs. Betsy McFarlane, Mrs. D. Watson and Mrs. M. Gibson, representing approximately 35 years of selling experience in real estate.

Alterations will be made to the company offices on Station Street to convert the premises to a gallery of homes — the licensed trademark for international franchised group of realtors.

This involves specially illustrated show cases for convenient viewing of all listings.

Mr. McCormick said it was hoped in the near future to have a computer service connection in the Bowes and Cocks Toronto office. This will enable Belleville customers to state what they are looking for and the computer will produce the most suitable list from thousands of homes, as well as industrial and commercial listings.



MRS. MARY COLLING

The principals of Bowes and Cocks, John Bowes and William Cocks, are particularly interested in industrial property and in other areas have been instrumental in stimulating industrial development.

The company's complete list of industrial properties both for sale and for rent, will be prepared and circulated throughout their field of operations.

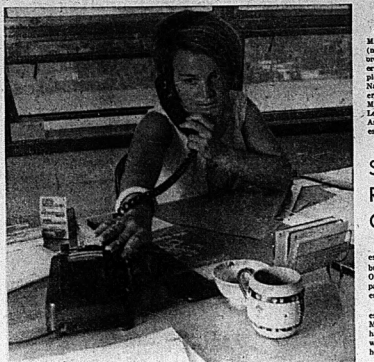
Many Colorful Jewels On Coast of Nova Scotia

KENTVILLE, N.S. CP — There's a place near here where anyone can wander along a beach and pick up jewels for a new ring or set of cuff links just for the gathering.

The place is Amethyst Cove at the far end of Cape Blomidon, jutting out into tide-swept Minas Basin. There are a few other spots around the province where amethysts, agates and other pretty if not precious stones can be found.



Blomidon is a 500-foot-high bluff overlooking beautiful dikeland country where the Fundy tides swirl highest, fastest and fiercest. It is here that Glooscap, the legendary man-god of the Micmac Indians, is said to have resided.

Modern-day residents of the area gather amethysts, agates and other stones from the beaches, cut and polish them and fashion them into a multitude of items.

Stones may be fastened to a piece of jewellery in many ways, but in nearly all types of stone settings there must be a place on which the stone rests — often a flat piece of silver or other metal.

However, Mrs. Helen R. Rhurbier of Digby has hit upon the unique idea of fastening amethysts to flat beach stones, thus ensuring the whole piece is strictly representative of Nova Scotia.

She calls the dewdrop-shaped amethyst stones Glooscap Tears.

A PRETTY DEAN — Suzanne Veit, 23, is the new dean of women at St. Patrick's College, Carleton University, Ottawa. New Dean at Carleton University Young Enough to Be A Student OTTAWA CP - The new dean of women at St. Patrick's College of Carleton University looks — and is — young enough to be a student.

Suzanne Veit, 23, graduated from St. Pat's only three years ago after taking a four-year course leading to a bachelor of arts degree in sociology.

"I keep telling the dean it's going to be a real fun job and he keeps saying 'No, no, no— you've got it all wrong'," Miss Veit said with a laugh.

It is, however, hard to imagine Miss Veit taking her job she leaves an impression of connectness as well as friendliness.

Born in Yarmouth, N.S., Miss Veit's parents brought her to Ottawa as a baby. After school and college, she joined the Canadian University Service Overseas and taught high school in a poor area of Abidjan, the 350,000-population capital city of West Africa's Ivory Coast.

"I was there for two years under CUSO's sponsorship teaching in a high school of about 400 students, all boys: I taught English as a second language for Grades 9 to 12," Miss Veit says.

"I love teaching. There was no discipline problem because only 40 per cent of the students in the Ivory Coast get to high school. So those who do want to learn. If they leave, there's a lineup of 10 people behind them waiting to get in."

Miss Veit also spent about a month in a village 400 miles from Abidjan on the Ivory Coast.

"One old, old man was so happy to find someone who could speak English to him. He had learned the language in Ghana and I don't think he had spoken it in years."

Miss Veit also took a trip with two other teachers through the Ivory Coast and Mali.

"We took a mail boat up the Niger River and landed in Timbuktu four days later. Timbuktu is really the end of the world."

Less than a year ago Miss Viet returned to Ottawa, where she worked as assistant in the executive secretary of CUSO. In April this year she took a holiday to Mexico and Guatemala, returning to the surprise offer of her present job.

"I really feel St. Pat's is a tremendous place to initiate new education and administrative methods.

"There is an ideal relationship between the faculty and students because it is a small college and communication between both groups is good.

"I'm particularly interested in foreign students — in giving Canadian students here the opportunity of getting to know these students well and profiting from their culture and experience."

Soden – Pigden

MR. AND MRS. KENNETH C. SODEN

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville was the setting on Saturday August 17, 1968 at 11 a.m., when Nancy Ann Marie Pigden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Pigden, Belleville was united in marriage to Kenneth Curtis Soden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth J. Soden, also of Belleville. Rev. T. J. Boyle of Kingston officiated at the ceremony and wedding music was rendered by Miss Dorothy Grant who also accompanied the soloist Robert Burke: .

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length A-line gown of white silk organza over peau de soie with the bodice featuring a round neckline and kapuchin sleeves which were finished in hand sewn lace appliques. The bridal veil which consisted of yards and yards of white silk organza extended down the back of the dress and was caught to a large bow headdress. She carried a bouquet of purple shasta 'mums.

The maid of honor Miss Mary-Ann Theriault of Trenton, and the bridesmaids Mrs. D. Brqyes and Mrs. E. Freeman, both sisters of the bride were similarly attired in gowns of deep purple bonded crepe. The floor length gowns were redingote styled over long pants of the same fashion. Each carried a bouquet of long stemmed white shasta 'mums. Miss Judith Jones, niece of the bride was the demure little flower girl wearing a floor-length dotted Swiss organdy gown in mauve shade. She carried a basket of white and yellow 'mums.

Kerry Soden of Toronto attended his brother, while the ushers were Lawrence Soden, brother of the bridegroom, and James O'Brien, both of Belleville.

Following the wedding a reception was held at the Belleville Shrine Club where the bride's mother welcomed the guests wearing a lime green organza dress and floral lace coat ensemble, with beige and dark brown accessories and a corsage of pink tea roses. Assisting, was mother of the bridegroom, Mrs. K. Soden who wore a peri-winkle blue bonded crepe dress with matching accessories and a corsage of white gardenias.

For the wedding trip to a resort in Northern Ontario, the bride chose an ivory suit with brown accessories and a corsage of orange tea roses.

On return the couple will reside at Guildwood Village in Scarborough.

Selling Houses Requires Lots Of Energy

OTTAWA CP - Selling houses is a fine career for women, but Mrs. J. R. Midwinter of Ottawa cautions that it is no part-time hobby and requires energy.

One of 100 women in the real estate business here, Mrs. Midwinter says women tend to have a good understanding of what people look for in a house.

"The most rewarding thing is to get repeat business from a happy client."

Mrs. Midwinter became interested in the field after her husband, who works for the trade and commerce department, was transferred back to Canada in 1964 from a three-year posting in Chile.

She was with an Ottawa firm for five months, however before selling one house. "But suddenly everything started to roll and I have been at it ever since."

Mrs. Midwinter, mother of two sons and daughter, had always known she would get into business career eventually.

"Mother ran her own stationery business for 50 years. My most vivid memories are of her rushing to cook dinner with her hat on."

A native of Vancouver, where members of her family settled in 1886, the then Sally Heard graduated from the University of British Columbia in commerce and spent her summers working at a variety of jobs, including a stint as an airline stewardess.

In 1954 she married Mr. Midwinter, a Rhodes Scholar who had just completed his master's degree at Oxford, specializing in politics, philosophy and economics.

The Midwinters were posted to Guatemala and then to India and Chile.

Now Mrs. Midwinter keeps full time help in the house, but doesn't entertain as much as she would like.

"Being a real estate salesman is hard work. You are selling most evenings, holidays and weekends. And your husband is lucky if he gets his dinner at 7 p.m."

Communications Urged

WINDSOR, Ont. CP - Miss Bernice Gerard thinks if people have something to say they should be listened to.

Miss Gerard, Pentecostal chaplain at Simon Fraser University in British Columbia told members attending a luncheon of the women's missionary council of the 26th biennial general conference of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada Saturday that parents complain because they cannot communicate with their children.

Miss Gerard said communication between different age-groups required effort.

"The people of the community must not shut out the two young people just because their hair is long. Some hippies have good things to say: they are for instance, against our materialistic society."

Miss Gerard said she had to learn to communicate with students on campus. She had to learn their psychological and philosophical jargon and parents should be prepared to learn it too if they want to communicate with their children.

Speaking of the position of the Christian women in today's society, Miss Gerard said women were missing many opportunities. She urged Christian women to communicate with women in other churches and have interchurch dialogues. She said the Pentecostals should find out what the Catholics, the Baptists and United Church members were doing.

Napanee Cubs and Scouts Attend Ontario Jamboree

NAPANEE — Two busloads of Cubs and Scouts and their leaders from the Napanee Valley district, attended the first Ontario Boy Scout Jamboree set up in the Kelso Conservation Park near Milton. The boys were from Napanee and surrounding areas, as well as from every province and from countries as far away as Australia and the West Indies.

The boys visited as many camp sites as possible, where they exchanged ideas and swapped badges. Swapping was not confined to badges, and 70 boys came home with their pockets filled with a miscellaneous collection of souvenirs.

The hobby camp was of special interest to the boys. Here they saw displays of a wide variety of hobbies from model trains and woodworking to stamp collections.

In the evening the boys were entertained by watching ten dogs trained by the Skyway Obedience Club, go through their paces. Of even greater interest to them were the authentic traditional Indian dances given by a band of Indians from north of Orillia.

Thursday evening the boys of the Jamboree were to Dave Pierre Burton camp but because of the heavy rain storm, they had to relocate in the Milton arena.

Five Questions Raise Some Doubts

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Marvin and I have been going together for over a year. We are both in our 30's and old enough to know what we are doing. Marvin was married briefly five years ago but it didn't work out.

Two weeks ago Marvin began to talk marriage. He made it clear that he was not actually proposing, just "considering it" because there were a few things he had to find out first. Tonight he asked me five questions which he had written down on a piece of paper. Here are the questions:

(1) Do you need any dental work done? (2) Do you need my surgery? (3) What kind of insurance do you carry? (4) Are you in line to inherit any money? (5) Is there any insanity in your family?

I like Marvin very much and we get along fairly well but these questions have raised some doubts in my mind. What do you think? — MISS D.

DEAR MISS — I think you don't need a nut like this for a husband. One thing is certain, it isn't necessary to ask him question number five. You already know the answer.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a 13-year-old girl. My parents were divorced last year. My mother didn't want me. Neither did my dad but he took me because there just wasn't any place for me to go.

My father is an alcoholic. He comes home from work at 4.30 p.m. and starts to hit the bottle. By 6.00 p.m. he is stoned. He won't let me turn on the lights because it hurts his eyes. I can't study without lights. We live in a one room apartment and I sleep on the couch — he has the bed that pulls out of the wall. The bathroom is down the hall. We share it with two other families. I can't study in there. Please help me. — MISERABLE GIRL.

DEAR MISERABLE — No girl should have to live like that. Talk to your clergyman about a foster home. There are aspects of this setup far worse that the light problem.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — How old are you, anyway? In a recent column you mentioned the movement. I haven't heard anyone mention that car in at least 30 years. My grandfather drove one and I'm no kid- I'll be 63 next birthday.

I've been reading your column regularly for quite some time and enjoy it. Keep up the good work. — SOWED UNDER

DEAR SOWED UNDER — Thanks for the vote of confidence. I'm glad you like the column. Sorry I referred to the Model T as a "movement."

Colavito the Villain

Tigers Have Claws Pulled As Yanks Sweep 4-Game Series

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rocky Colavito's long-term shutout is still intact but the Detroit Tigers' first place momentum isn't quite the same.

Colavito made his first pitching appearance in 10 years Sunday and earned the victory with 2 2-3 innings of shutout relief as New York Yankees clipped Detroit 6-5 in the first game of a doubleheader.

Then the Rock returned to the outfield for the second game and cracked his 372nd career homer, helping the Yankees to a 4-1 victory and a sweep of the four-game series against the American League leading Tigers.

The four losses shaved Detroit's lead to five games over Baltimore. The Orioles nipped Boston Red Sox 3-2 in 18 innings Sunday..

In other American League games, Minnesota trounced Chicago White Sox 10-2, California Angels dropped Oakland Athletics 5-1 and Washington Senators outlasted Cleveland 10-8.

Colavito pitched three scoreless innings against Detroit a decade ago when he was with Cleveland and Sunday's performance extended the blank string to 5 2-3 innings.

The slump-gripped outfielder had volunteered to pitch when the Yankees signed him as a free agent last month and when the Tigers jumped into a 5-0 lead against Steve Barber Sunday, manager Ralph Houk thinking about three doubleheaders in three days, accepted the offer.

Colavito retired Al Kaline and Willie Horton, stranding two runners in the fourth inning and then shut out the Tigers in the fifth and sixth. With two out in the bottom of the sixth, the Yanks rallied.

Horton lost Andy Kosco's fly ball in the sun and it fell for a double. Then Tom Tresh walked and Bill Robinson, who had four hits in the doubleheader, smashed a three-run homer. Bobby Cox followed with a solo shot, tying the score.

A walk and two singles gave New York the lead and Houk used regular pitchers Dooley Womack and Lindy McDaniel to preserve Colavito's victory.

In the nightcap, Colavito's third inning homer tied the score and Charlie Smith's two-run single in the fourth put New York in front.

The sweep gave the rampaging Yankees 12 victories in the last 15 games and placed them at .500 for the first time since April 30.

The Orioles wiped out an early 2-0 Boston lead with single runs in the seventh and eighth to force the game into extra innings.

Then, in the 18th, Boog Powell doubled with two out, moved to third on a wild pitch and scored the winning run on Brooks Robinson's single.

George Brunet pitched a six-hitter and Bobby Knoop drove in three runs, leading California past Oakland.

Four Chicago errors helped Minnesota to three unearned runs and the Twins pounded the White Sox as Jim Kaat went all the way for his 10th victory. He also drove in a run in Minnesota's five-run wrapup rally in the ninth.

Ken McMullen smacked two home runs, driving in four runs but it was Tim Cullen's bases-loaded pinch triple in the seventh inning that broke a tie and carried Washington past Cleveland.

Bruce Kidd One of Nine Named to Hall of Fame

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto runner Bruce Kidd was one of nine Canadian sports personalities inducted Saturday into the Canada Sports Hall of Fame and the Hockey Hall of Fame at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Others named were former hockey great Bill Cowley; the Richardson curling rink from Regina; publisher Jim Hendy; Jimmie Dunn of Winnipeg; and sports writer Elmer Ferguson of Montreal.

Kidd, 24, has retired from active competition. He set an indoor record in Boston in 1961, and won a gold medal in the six-mile event at the 1962 British Empire Games in Australia.

Bill Cowley, who played from 1935 to 1947 in the National Hockey League, is a new member of the Hockey Hall of Fame.

He scored 72 points in the first 36 games of the 1943-44 season for Boston Bruins, and in 1941 and 1942 was voted the league's most valuable player.

The Richardson curling rink from Regina is the first rink named to the hall of fame.

Consisting of skip Ernie Richardson, brother Garnet, second, cousin Arnold, third and Wes as lead, the rink won four Canadian and four world championships in the late 50s and early 60s.

Jim Hendy, a pioneer statistician, was also named to the Hockey Hall of Fame.

He was publisher of the Hockey Guide and Who's Who, the bible of hockey.

Jimmie Dunn of Winnipeg who served from 1955 to 1958 as president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, was another voted to the Sports Hall of Fame.

He is secretary-treasurer of the Manitoba Hockey Planners foundation Inc.

Elmer Ferguson, another addition to the Hockey Hall of Fame, is a columnist and sports reporter for the Montreal Star and the now defunct Montreal Herald.

Derby Review Lingers On

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky racing commission ruled Saturday that representatives of Peter Fuller may review disputed chemical testing records relating to the disqualification of Kentucky Derby winner Dancer's Image.

Fuller's colt, trained by Lou Cavalaris of Toronto, was disqualified when Churchill Downs official chemist, Kenneth W. Smith, said that traces of a prohibited pain-killer, phenylbutazone, were found in his system.

The commission ruled that Fuller can appoint one attorney and one chemist to inspect the records made by the Louisville testing laboratory, which is owned by Smith.

The ruling also allows Smith to appoint an attorney and chemist to participate in the review, which will be conducted in the commission's Frankfort, Ky., office by Sept. 20.

The commission will take up the controversy over the disqualification of Dancer's Image at a meeting scheduled for mid-October.

Breen Leads By Three Strokes In Rain-delayed Atlantic Open

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — The final round of the 54-hole Atlantic open golf tournament was to get under way at 9 a.m. today, one day late.

With Bob Breen of Woodbridge, Ont., leading with a 134 score after 36 holes, rain washed out the scheduled third draw at the Moncton Golf and Country Club Sunday. The downpour, which dumped about two inches of rain on the course in a few hours, followed two days of sunshine.

The weather man called for cloud and a bit of sun today, with the temperature in the low 70s. Showers were to end before dawn.

Breen, 29-year-old professional from Ajax, Ont., ended with his two closest opponents—Joe Carr of Worcester, Mass., at 137 and amateur Charles Brace of Halifax at 139.

The second-round leader opened up his three-stroke margin Saturday on a four-under-par 66, and, as he relaxed in his hotel Sunday he appeared confident he could make it stand up.

He's shooting for $1,250 first-place money in the $5,000 open, which this year succeeds the Maritime Open. He also seeks an automatic berth in the Canadian professional tour championships at Whodbridge Sept. 13-15. That tournament carries a $15,000 purse with $3,000 for the winner.

Cards Prove Deck Stacked Against Erring Opposition

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It might be human to err, but it doesn't pay to overdo it when you're playing St. Louis Cardinals.

Pittsburgh pitching limited National League-leading St. Louis to just four hits Sunday, but the Pirates committed four errors and the Cardinals used them for a 4-2 victory.

The Pirates pounded out eight hits, but the St. Louis defense was flawless in support of Nelson Briles, 17-8, and Joe Hoerner, who relieved and put down a Pittsburgh threat in the eighth inning.

In other National League games, Chicago Cubs blanked Houston Astros 2-0, Los Angeles Dodgers edged San Francisco Giants 5-4, Philadelphia Phillies topped Atlanta Braves 4-1 and New York Mets pounded Cincinnati Reds 7-1.

The Cardinals scored in the second inning. Orlando Cepeda walked, stole second, moved to third on a groundout and scored when shortstop Fred Patek fielded Mike Shannon's grounder and made a poor throw to first. St. Louis added a run in the fourth when Shannon reached first on third baseman Maury Wills' throwing error and scored when Julian Javier's single got past right fielder Gary Kolb for an error.

The clinching run came in the fifth when Lou Brock scored from second as first baseman Donn Clendenon missed a throw from pitcher Dock Ellis, who had fielded Bob Tolan's grounder.

Ferguson Jenkins, Chatham, Ont., native, pitched a four-hitter and drove in a run with a groundout as Chicago snapped Houston's six-game winning streak and handed Larry Dierker, his 12th loss since June 20. Dierker, who had won six in a row, now is 12-11.

Jenkins, 13-12, drove in the Cubs's first run in the second inning. Glenn Beckert's single, Billy Williams' double and Willie Smith's sacrifice fly produced the other run.

Los Angeles beat San Francisco's Juan Marichal, 23-6, on Paul Popovich's sacrifice fly in the ninth inning.

The winning rally, which snapped the Dodgers' losing streak at eight games, started when Tom Haller singled and went to third as Marichal threw low to second on Ron Fairly's bunt. After an intentional walk and a force play at the plate, Popovich delivered his sacrifice fly.

San Francisco had tied it with two runs in the seventh. Ron Hunt singled home the first one and Willie Mays' infield out brought in the other.

Larry Jackson, 12-15, scattered five hits and Johnny Callison, back in the line-up after an eight-day absence because of a pulled hamstring, homered and singled in a run in Philadelphia's triumph. Hank Aaron hit his 24th homer for Atlanta.

Tom Seaver threw a five-hitter and smacked a two-run double in leading the Mets over Cincinnati. Ed Kranepool and Art Shamsky backed Seaver, 12-9, with solo homers.

Sandra Post Ends 5th Wins $3,500

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Kathy Whitworth wrested the lead from Carol Mann on the 10th hole Sunday and went on to shoot a second straight 69 to defend successfully her Ladies World Series of Golf title by four strokes.

The 28-year-old Miss Whitworth pocketed the $10,000 first prize in the $35,000 tournament with a 36-hole total of 138.

One of the top players on the Ladies' Professional Golf Association tour, Miss Whitworth was six under par for the distance on the 6,194-yard Snyder Park Golf Course.

Miss Mann, who finished 70-72 —142, received $8,000 while Sandra Haynie picked up $6,000 for third place with a 72-71—143, five strokes off the pace.

Sue Berning, who shot 73-72—145, won $4,500 while 20-year-old rookie Sandra Post, a native of Oakville, Ont., earned $3,500 with her 73-74—147.

Finishing a surprise last was veteran Mickey Wright, who shot even par 72 after an opening 78...Her 150 total was 12 behind the leader but still worth $3,000.

Jocelyne Can't Stop Marlene

MONTREAL (CP) — Marlene Stewart Streit fought off continued pressure from Jocelyne Bourassa Saturday to win her eighth Canadian women's open golf tournament.

Mrs. Streit, who kept a jump ahead of Miss Bourassa with long drives and often-spectacular putting, said her opponent "played really well" over the 6,042-yard layout of the Kanawaki golf club.

Miss Bourassa, who lost in 33 holes to the veteran Mrs. Streit, said:

"I don't feel like a loser. It is very difficult to play against Marlene—she never lets up. She plays almost perfectly."

Stewart Top Junior

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — Doug Stewart, 18, of Vancouver played erratic golf for six holes Saturday and discovered that was wrong.

"I was lifting my putter," he said after he won the Canadian junior golf championship with a tremendous 9 and 8 victory over Bill Morrison, 17, of Toronto in the 36-hole match-play final.

"I'm usually a good putter, maybe not quite as good as I was today," he said. "But I just wasn't hitting them right on the first few holes. I discovered what was wrong on the seventh."

That was the green on which Stewart sank a five-foot birdie putt to even the match. The gallery, which swelled to 500 during the afternoon, knew it was just a matter of time after that.

Fifteen Foot Putt Worth $20,000 Prize

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It's hard to believe that eight years ago Bob Murphy didn't want to play golf.

Murphy was a pitcher with major league baseball aspirations. Shortly before he enrolled at the University of Florida, however, he suffered a shoulder separation. His baseball career was dead.

But a college coach urged him to take up golf and it's beginning to pay off for Murphy who started on the pro tour last January.

He won his first pro tournament Sunday, the $100,000 Philadelphia classic, in a sudden-death playoff with Lahron Harris.

"It's just fantastic," said the 210-pound Murphy after he dropped in a 15-foot putt on the third extra hole to earn the $20,000 first prize and boost his first-year earnings to $64,245.

George Knudson of Toronto shot a final round 69 to finish at 280 and win $2,725. Al Balding, also of Toronto, had a fourth-round 75 and a 290 total to finish out of the money.

The 25-year-old Murphy posted rounds of 69, 71, 70 for a 72-hole total of 278 to finish in a 12-under-par tie with Harris in the four-day competition on the par-72 Whitemarsh Valley Country Club course.

Harris had 71, 67, 70, 68 and watched as Murphy missed winning in regulation when a 12-foot birdie putt on the 18th green missed by about 10 inches.

Third place went to Dudley Wysong, who scored a finishing two-under-par 70 and wound up one stroke off the pace at 277.

Jack Nicklaus shot a 70 Sunday for a 72-hole total of 278, tying with Charles Coody and Frank Beard, who shot the best final round of seven-under-par 65.

Cosy Grill, West End Soccer Champions

Two 1-0 wins Saturday evening told the tale in the Belleville Minor Soccer Association Peewee and Bantam championships.

Kevin Reid and John Webster were the heroes of the weekend at Zwick's Island when Reid collected a free-kick goal to give Cosy Grill a 1-0 championship win over Crawford Metals in the Bantam title contest and Webster scored on a last-minute shot for West End to give his team the championship over Beppi's Pizzaria.

Crawford Metals came a lolly way to lose the finals. They topped the Jr. Oddfellows 3-0 and 2-0 to enter the final match. Brian Preston and Bill Leitch collected the stinging goals in the later contest and Chialaw Beaulieu, Wayne Chapman, and Kevin Parry collected the goals in the 3-0 win.

West End downed Golden Mile 5-1 and 7-2 to enter the finals against the Beppi's Kickers.

Beppi's knocked out General Bakers the week prior to the finals to earn their entry in the title contest.

Golden Mile kickers who scored in the semi-final rounds were Eddie Grills with one and Bob Thompson with two. Keith Parry led the free-scoring West Enders in their semi-finals to the finals with five goals, John Webster collected three, Willie Saulnier made two, and Joe Edwards and Scott Bronson counted one each.

The weekend playoffs were the culmination of the Belleville Minor Soccer Association's final season. "We've had a good year," said Peter Crowle, an executive officer and coach of the Parsons Penguins, Belleville's entry in the Trenton and District Soccer League.

"All those kids out there and all those parents are making assure soccer's future in Belleville And the early trailing in the kids did in the league assures us of material for future expansion and betterment of the adult leagues."

Forjar Turns on the Heat And Harness Fans React

Forjar, an eight-year-old black horse owned by La-Verne Cook, Marlbank, and trained and driven by Pete Ouelett, had the railriders on the back stretch on their feet with admiration and excitement in the fifth race Saturday night at the Fairgrounds.

The trotter left the two favorites, Mountain Way and the familiar Nida Dillard, in his wake on the back stretch in the final lap of the mile race when Ouelett pulled him out on the number two turn and let the big trotter turn it on.

With his big head high, his driver leaning in to balance the sulky, Forjar leaned into the turn on the outside and pounded his way past frontrunning Nida Dillard and moved to the inside in time to take the race in the fastest time of the night, 2:11.1.

"Beautiful, just beautiful," said track classifier Harry Burkitt of the black horse's run.

Forjar paid his backers $22.20.

Al Caughey's Willowbrook Smokey paid the highest to win Saturday with a $27 return and combined with Nida Dillard a $110.80 payoff on the Quinella. Willowbrook Smokey's win was the first on this track this season.

Bernard Hunt's Willie Jay and Phil and Janis Frost's J.J. Frost won their first heats of the season on the Belleville track with Willie Jay timed in at 2:16.1 and J.J. Frost winning in a five-way photo-finish in 2:16.

Al Cassidy drove Call Me Spud, a double-gaited, free-legged pacer, in his first race the year to win in the night's opening race. Call Me Spud won the $5,000 Inn pace in treating starts, the driver said, and qualified as a pacer in Toronto in 2:10 flat.

Dr. Fager Romps Home In Record Breaking Time

NEW YORK (CP) — Dr. Fager, carrying the heaviest impost in the event's history, sped to a smashing world record triumph Saturday in the $112,700 Washington Park Handicap at Chicago's Arlington Park.

Tartan Farm's superb four-year-old contender for horse-of-the-year-honors exploded out of the final turn and won by two lengths in 1:32 1-5, breaking the world mile mark of 1:32 3-5 set by Buckpasser in the 1966 Arlington Classic.

Dr. Fager, ridden by Braulio Baeza, went off a 1-to-5 favorite, but didn't thrill the crowd of 27,961 until he shook off Racing Room coming out of the turn for home. Racing Room took second with Info third in the field of 10.

The victory was worth $67,700 to Dr. Fager, who scored his fifth stakes triumph this year and his 19th overall. His only defeat was in the Brooklyn Handicap to his arch rival In Reality, who skipped the Washington Handicap.

Dr. Fager paid $2.60, $2.20 and $2.20. Racing Room returned $3.80 and $3.20 and Info's show price was $3.60.

At Saratoga Springs, N.Y., Steve B. Wilson's Top Knight handed Ogden Phipps' favored Reviewer his first defeat in five starts by winning the $123,300 Hopeful.

Top Knight finished 2¼ lengths in front of Reviewer, with longshot Bushido third in the field of 11 two-year-olds.

Manny Yezara brought the winner from off the pace to finish the 6½ furlongs in 1:16.

Quinte Pair Win Races

TORONTO (CP) — Jim Couts of Rochester, N.Y., broke Canadian domination of the outboard motorboat racing championships Saturday with a first in the Class C racing hydro event at the Canadian National Exhibition.

But in the other events it was the Canadian afternoon. John Webster of Toronto took two firsts, in the Class A and Class D stock hydro events. Harry Bennet of Toronto won the A-racing hydro event.

The Class B racing Hydro event was won by Doug Thompson of Wellington, Ont.

In the Class A utility competition Spike Burns of Oshawa was the winner. He also took a third in the Class A stock hydro race.

Tom Boulter of Belleville won the Class B stock hydro race, and Jim Miller of London, Ont., won the Class C race.

With The Trotters

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Blaze Pick, driven by Stan Waples, 24, Saturday tied the province's first two-minute mile this season by capturing the eighth race at Mohawk raceway in two minutes flat.

Blaze Pick, a pacer, was Canada's rookie of the year in 1966 and last year was voted sophomore of the year. The victory "Blaze Pick" has won this year in 18 outings and increased his winnings to $46,146.

Keystone Gage in the first and Scot Gay Combo in the second combined for a $31.80 daily-double and Bill Vellwood and Gaylord Grattan paid a $63.80 exactor in the sixth race.

Stinson's Even Playoff Series; Cheesemen Lose

The Saturday night edition of the Commercial Softball playoffs at Alemite Field saw a young Stinson Construction team come back after a loss to veteran City Hotel in the first game of the playoffs to take the Hotelmen 3-0 in the return bout.

Black Diamond, which lost the opening contest to league pennant winners Belvedere Hotel, had its back to the wall with a second straight loss, 2-1, at the hands of the league leaders. Black Diamond now has to take four of the five remaining games to enter the finals.

Rookie pitcher Scotty Reid hurled Stinson to its 3-0 win against City Hotel with a one - hitter. City pitchers Bob Davenport and Jim Nichols allowed Stinson seven hits.

Reid lost his no - hitter in the top of the sixth when third baseman Doug Hull tagged a double. Stinson collected its runs on a double and an error which scored Kenny Genereaux in the second. Nick Gerace led off the bottom of the fifth, then advanced on a sacrifice by catcher Lyle Thompson and scored on a fly ball by first baseman Paul Stinson. Shortstop Genereaux tallied the third and final run for the winners in the sixth when he tagged a homer to left centre.

Reid allowed no runs and two walks while striking out nine. Davenport, and Nichols relieving in the fifth, allowed one run on four hits and two walks and struck out seven.

Nichols allowed two runs on three hits and one walk in his three innings and struck out none.

Stinson hitters were Genereaux with a double, Paul Stinson and homer, Peter Fleming with a double, and Thompson, Reid, and Gerace with one singles.

In the Black Diamond game, Belvedere went all the way behind Doug Ellis who allowed the Cheesemen one run on five hits and one error. Black Diamond started with Sonny Holoway who allowed two runs on four hits and three walks in the first three frames.

Sonny Holoway relieved his brother in the fourth and allowed no runs on three hits, one walk and struck out five.

Ellis walked one and struck out 11 in the win.

Belvedere collected its first run in the second when Sonny Holoway walked catcher Cliff Hinsman, who scored on a triple by Ellis. The second Hotelmen run came in the third when Doug Rose walked, advanced on two put-outs, and scored on a single by Lyle Hannaford.

The Cheesemen collected their one run in the third when second baseman Gene Francis singled, then came home on a double by his brother Jack, playing first base.

The best of seven playoff series continues Tuesday night at the Alemite with Stinson meeting City at 7 and Black Diamond meeting Belvedere at 8.

Murray Canal Marathon Swim Remains Sulk Family Affair

TRENTON — Spectators lined the shores of the Murray Canal Sunday to see a member of the Sulk family win the three mile marathon swim and for the third successive year bring the silverware to the Sulk household.

Regina Sulk covered the distance in 52 minutes and 29 seconds to collect the Lochiel Sporting Goods trophy for overall winner. Last year her sister, Inez, led the way and the year before that Regina was first.

And 50 seconds later came Peggy Sulk in second place.

The event was sponsored by the Trenton Chamber of Commerce and with the aid of chamber president Bob Carleton and secretary-manager Jack Wilson the event was completed in record time.

"This is easily the biggest crowd we have ever had for this event," said Mr. Wilson.

He might have well added "most responsive crowd". Each swimmer, last as well as first, was greeted by enthusiastic applause. They let every finisher know how they felt about someone who could keep going for three miles.

And 20 of the 21 entrants went the three miles. Each of them was accompanied by a "walker" who followed the contestant throughout the race until they reached the finish at the Carrying Place bridge.

The race began with the swimmers diving in at 2.15 p.m. Stay afternoon and the last contestant crossed the finish line at 4 p.m.

Pat Nottingham came all the way from Ottawa to compete but got in the starting line 30 minutes late. But he swam the three miles unofficially in 58 minutes and 52 seconds.

There were trophies for the winners of the 10 classes. Of these all came from the Trenton-based Dolphin Swim Club except for two representatives from Belleville's Centennial group.

Lynn Cormack (youngest swimmer) and Leslie Cormack (Girls 10 and under) showed well for Belleville.

The day ended with parents and friends leading the contestants, wrapped in towels, to waiting cars — and then home for a bath.

To Your Good Health

Dishes should at least be rinsed promptly to rid them of food particles. If allowed to remain there particles are a dry and not come off completely when washed. Bacterial action — multiplication of any sort of germ — can occur in rather short order. There isn't any room for doubt that diarrhea as well as milder intestinal upsets are caused by carelessness about washing dishes as well as not rinsing them carefully. Of the automatic washers, of course, are designed to do an excellent job of rinsing.)

There are a couple of other matters involved in leaving the garbage in the disposal unit. A full unit can smell — and it's such a simple thing to flick the switch. Another is that a unit, piled too full, has more tendency to become jammed.

It's a funny thing, isn't it? So much thought has gone into making labor-saving devices, but there seems no way to get people to use them to best advantage.

I'm surprised that your mother didn't realize that her method is sloppy and unsanitary. I hope she reads this.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes mononucleosis, and is it true that it has to run its course? I have had all the various drugs being used today, there must be something to weaken the sickness. How long would you say the disease lasts? — Mrs. A. R.

Infectious mononucleosis is one of the very common virus diseases. The duration is unpredictable, but in time — a few week, sometimes longer — it does indeed run its course.

Why be so insistent that cure it? We still have no cure for the common cold and a good supply of tissues.

Dishes Should Be Washed Promptly

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: Will you comment on the hazards of letting dishes sit in the sink, sometimes in water, overnight? We have a garbage disposal and I think the scraps of food, etc., should be flushed away immediately, but my mother lets the garbage stand until the disposal unit is almost full.

Shouldn't one keep the kitchen sink as clean as possible and not let dishes soak in the food washed off into the water?

We have an automatic dishwasher, but mother doesn't put the dishes in it right away. I am afraid of the germs that can surge in the drain. — M. G.

I'm with you — but not as worried about the germs in the drain as the germs that don't reach the drain.

Dishes should at least be other viral diseases.

Good nutrition, good nursing and ample rest are important in helping the patient recover, but there is no specific treatment. There "must be something" to ment, except to ease such symptoms as may occur — swollen glands, etc. If you want a fuller rundown on infectious mononucleosis, write "Mononucleosis: What It Is; What To Do." Send 30 cents in coin for the booklet, self-addressed, unstamped envelope to Dr. Molner, plus 6 cents for postage and handling. Write Dr. Molner, Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., for a copy.

Dear Dr. Molner :Do shoes without laces (elastic sides) harm a child's growing foot? — C. M.

No. But naturally new shoes should be fitted as required by growth.

Dear Dr. Molner:

Good nutrition is important school, and have my monthly periods about every three weeks. I was told to buy birth control pills to see if they would take care of the timing. Is it possible that I could have a cyst? — M. N.

This 21-day cycle could be normal for you. If the flow is not excessive or disabling, I would suggest that you do not answer until the next period.

True, cysts can cause menstrual irregularities, but a pelvic examination would be necessary to determine presence of a cyst.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volumes received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Results of the Plague

Results of deadly Dutch elm disease which is changing face of Canadian landscape is starkly illustrated in this Marysburgh township scene in Prince Edward County. A complete stand of the stately old giants has fallen victim to the plague, which has spread across American continent despite attempts to discover reasonable antidote.

Lack of Floor Passes

Convention Reporters Restricted

CHICAGO (AP) — Unprecedented restrictions on reporters covering delegations on the floor of the Democratic national convention beginning today have been imposed by convention officials.

A total of 55 floor passes for correspondents of newspapers and wire services was authorized. More than 1,000 reporters will be covering the convention from the press stand. However, the floor passes govern access to the area where the delegates will be sitting and conferring.

At the Democratic convention in Atlantic City four years ago 240 floor passes were authorized and the Republican convention officials earlier this month issued 100 floor passes for their Miami Beach session.

Three television-radio networks—NBC, CBS and ABC—have been limited to one floor crew each, consisting of three camera personnel and two reporters.

Independent radio and television stations will have a total of 25 floor passes and periodicals will have five.

Convention officials cited the large number of delegates, increased this year to more than 2,600, and the need to keep the aisles as reasons for the restrictions.

The standing committee of correspondents which represent the daily press in convention arrangements, protested Sunday night in a telegram to convention officials that the restriction to 55 floor passes is "unrealistic in terms of adequate coverage for the public whose interest extends to every delegation."
The television-radio networks also are protesting the restrictions.

Sport Stars Attend

Prices Low at Hull Sale

PICTON — Burly beef in all of its varieties showed up Saturday in Picton.

Square-built heifers and bulls lost out competing for the public eye to equally solid football and hockey players.

Frank Gifford, New York
Giants' halfback, Dennis Hull, Chicago Black Hawks and Ron Murphy, formerly Black Hawk, arrived in town for the auctioning of the Bobby Hull herd.

Some 47 head were sold at th' Picton fairgrounds with buyers coming from the U.S., Saskatchewan and Quebec. Spectators at the sale came from across Prince Edward County.

The overall sale value totalled $27,000 — an average of $576 a head.

Mr. Hull said he had hoped for a $700 average and blamed the poor buying attendance because "there were more sightseers than buyers."

Only those faithful to Hull and those dedicated to livestock stuck around for the entire show. The heat, in the dank, dark cow barns was overwhelming.

Sweat poured from the faces of the auctioneers while spectators stands were a beehive of activity as makshift fans went nonstop.

The sale was a big event, a major entertainment of the year here. It will likely be repeated in 1969, perhaps with better results.

Concluding the show with a smile Hull invited buyers back, saying: "Next year, we'll have another give-away for you."

Man Injured In Accident

TWEED — A traffic mishap yesterday evening sent an Oshawa man to Belleville General Hospital.

In hospital with multiple fractures is Ralph Robinson,
22, of Oshawa. Hospital officials this morning described his condition as "fair".

The accident occurred on Highway 62, three miles south of Madoc at 6.20 p.m.

The driver of the vehicle, Osmond Lyman, 27, also of Oshawa, was uninjured in the incident.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $1,200. There was no property damage.

Czechoslovakian Debate May Be Transferred to General Assembly

UNITED NATIONS (CP) —
The possibility of transferring the debate on the Czechoslovak crisis to the General Assembly from the Security Council was being raised at the United Nations today.

Some UN diplomats said they expect moves to call the General Assembly into session to demand withdrawal of Soviet-bloc troops from Czechoslovakia should Czechoslovak President
Ludvik Svoboda be unable to get a satisfactory agreement from Moscow leaders.

Other sources said Western strategy would be to extract the last ounce of diplomatic advantage from the Security Council before considering whether to transfer debate to the assembly.

The UN sources said a number of countries are canvassing prospects for an emergency session of the assembly but said they believe it is too early for such a move.

The Soviet Union vetoed a resolution in the council Friday calling for withdrawal of the troops. The resolution was co-sponsored by Canada, The Soviet Union has indicated it will also veto a pending resolution for a UN representative to seek release of any detained Czechoslovak leaders.

This last resolution was introduced by Canada.

Foreign Minister Jiri Hajek of the Czechoslovak liberal regime told the council Saturday that the Soviet Union and its allies invaded his country last week without the invitation of the Czechoslovak leaders and without justification.

He said an end to the occupation of Czechoslovakia would be the best way to ensure that his country remains Communist.
He made no plea that the council drop the question, as sought by the Soviet Union. He said the Czech people want the Soviet

Repairing One's Own Auto Can Prove Rewarding Hobby

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes: "I am married with three children and keep a car to get my family out into the country. Recently my repair bills have been crushing and while I make a good salary it's got to the point where I must decide to do most of my own repairs or sell the car, which will be tough on the kids. I am mechanically inclined and have most of the necessary tools. My car is a 1963 Chevrolet six standard everything. Would you consider this a safe venture?"

Few Canadians are willing to learn anything about the "innards" of their cars and just a minor failure can leave them stranded. Most men are mechanically inclined and the minority who do study the mechanics of their vehicles find it an enjoyable and money saving hobby. During the depression do-it-yourself car repairs were far more prevalent. In my late teens when I purchased my first car there was a group of private garages behind my parents' and on weekends there was a lot of action in that area. Dozens of fellows were having a ball, polishing, adjusting, tuning, fixing flats, swapping manuals and passing along mechanical knowledge. As well as economics it was a matter of personal pride not having to run to the local garage with every mechanical problem. Whether it be a bicycle, motorbike or car, many Europeans make a point of gaining a good working knowledge of their own vehicles.

Before dismantling various components it is essential that you have a reasonable understanding of how they function. Master manuals are available from your dealer which provide all specifications in detail on your make of car. Night school courses are offered in most areas. Special tools can be rented from auto parts stores. A little guidance from a friendly mechanic can prove quite helpful. But, remember, a little knowledge can be dangerous and to start working blindly on a brake or steering system could prove disastrous. If in doubt leave the safety items to a professional technician. It takes four to five years to hatch a mechanic, so you can see that "know-how" on major repairs cannot be picked up over night.

Recently the owner of a two year old small V8 car, who had just spent $70.00 on a tuneup prior to making a 300 mile trip contacted me regarding poor gas mileage. After the work was completed the mechanic told him to expect about 20 miles per gallon on highway runs, but he barely averaged 16 miles per gallon. When asked how the test was conducted he told me that mileage was recorded before and after the trip, he kept track of fuel purchased and at the end of the run the gas gauge showed quarter full. Since the tank held 16 gallons he assumed that four gallons remained.

In order to conduct an accurate mileage test the first thing to remember is to ignore the gas gauge. The fact that this reader's gauge showed a quarter full after the trip was no indication of the exact number of gallons left in the tank. Modern gas gauges cannot be relied upon for that degree of accuracy. For example, with my own car with a full tank the gauge reads "full" for about 75 miles and then within a few more miles it drops to ¾. From this point down to "empty" the gauge drops gradually but even so, on one occasion when I could not find a service station I ran on the "empty" mark for 20 miles without running out of fuel, so obviously there was a gallon or two in the tank.

Before making a mileage test, be sure that the odometer is accurate. Some highways have measured miles for testing odometers. If in doubt, have it tested by a speedometer specialist. The vehicle should be accurately tuned and serviced, including tire inflation to suit the load being carried. Observe approximate wind direction and speed. Direction of smoke from chimneys or angle of trees are a good clue. Much more fuel is burned when bucking a strong head wind, whereas a following tail wind can result in excellent mileage. Jot down odometer reading and be sure the tank is completely filled before leaving, record every drop of fuel purchased during the trip and fill the tank again upon completion of the run. Depending on area, price of fuel can vary, so record gallons purchased rather than dollars spent. If in the United States, remember that a U.S. gallon is only five-sixth that of a Canadian gallon.

To establish miles per gallon, divide total miles travelled by number of gallons purchased on the trip (including last tank full). For example: If ten gallons of fuel were burned on a two hundred mile trip, then the average would be 20 miles per gallon. There are many other variables that affect gas mileage, such as number of passengers and weight of luggage, frequent stops and starts, or wind changes due to heavy traffic. Excessive high speed or constant stamping off and on the gas pedal wastes a lot of fuel. Try to maintain a fairly high speed and allow all avoid pumping the gas pedal. Actually, the average motorist gathers fuel for individual tests would give a more realistic figure of true mileage.

Lambeth Assembly Ends With Stress on Unity

LONDON (CP) — Most Rev. Howard Clark, Anglican Primate of All Canada, said Sunday some Canadians are undergoing "a crisis of conscience" on church unity and "this is a great cause for concern."

"The question of intercommunion is going to cause difficulty to a section of the Canadian church," he added in an interview as the Lambeth Conference of Anglican bishops completed the month-long meeting.

In a final message before adjourning, the 400 bishops agreed that all efforts to remedy social ills of the day "call for the establishment of great deal easier if the church is united instead of being divided.

The conference has recommended that the Anglican Church should be free to allow reciprocal acts of intercommunion under the direction of a bishop where an agreement to unite between an Anglican and other church is expressed in a covenant or other appropriate form.

Strictly Personal

Congressional Choices Vital

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In a way, it's a pity that the presidential nominations get so much attention in American politics. All the hoopla about the presidency tends to obscure the importance of the congressional elections.

Not more than two U.S. citizens in five know who their congressman is, and not more than one in a hundred knows how he has any give-a-damn issue. Yet the real power in American government is exercised at the level of congressional committees, which operate in ways too devious for the average voter to understand.

And the sad truth is that US congressional committees today are, for the most part, in the hands of antiquated, not to say prehistoric, men with no more idea of the world-reality in 1968 than's a school janitor has of the laws of thermodynamics.

A handful of old, crabbed, bigoted and barnacled congressmen can negate the best plans of the best President elected by either party. This outgoing Congress is the rottenest in my memory—and yet there is no public outcry, hardly anyone even recognizes the gross inadequacies of the men who run the most important committees in the Congress.

This is because politics is a Hollywood production in America: All the attention is paid to the star, and nothing to the script, the direction, and the production qualities.

Our modern cult of personality turns the arena of politics into a palace entertainment, as evidenced by the mobs who lunged after the late Senator Kennedy much as a previous generation clutched at Frank Sinatra. Men of Washington's gifted probity and Lincoln's gaunt homeliness would fare ill under today's cold camera ratings.

A smaller spotlight for the presidency and a much larger one for congressional candidates would do more to rectify the ills and abuses in our political system than all the party platforms strung together. If more of us were aware of the warped and ugly men who would assume chairmanships of important congressional committees if our party got elected, we might not be so blindly partisan in our voting.

As it is the voters have little real choice. In order to get a "star" they like, they are forced to accept a cheap script and most of the good parts are left on the cutting room floor of committees. It is this sense of choicelessness that makes a man like George Wallace so appealing to the simple - minded, and so dangerous to the workings of our political system.

Presidential candidates have all the glamor, but what happens to the country is decided by a gaten arthritic fossils who represent the accumulated prejudices of the 19th century and before. Who can blame our kids for being so bloody teed off about it?

Yippies and Hippies Play Street Tag With Chicago Police

CHICAGO (AP) — Nearly 1,000 Yippies, hippies and assorted purveyors of protest played traffic-snarling street tag with police over a four-mile section of Chicago's most famous streets Sunday night, climaxing a day of varied protest demonstrations.

Despite a short barrage of rocks aimed at police in Lincoln Park after midnight, there were few arrests—at least nine—for the number of people involved, at one point about 2,000.

Activity began on a serious note in the early afternoon when several youth and anti-war groups peacefully picketed the major hotels of Democratic national convention delegates.

But toward midnight, a sudden, unplanned romp developed that zig-zagged through several sections of Chicago.

Problems first began when the more than 1,000 demonstrators set up picket lines at the Conrad Hilton and the Palmer House. They were visited by the three major presidential contenders during the day and returned to Lincoln Park, a sort of informal gathering place about three miles north of the Loop, Chicago's downtown heart.

Demonstration marshals urged everyone to leave and comply with the park's 11 p.m. closing time.

Most of the overwhelmingly white crowd started to comply, but ran into a half-dozen Negro militants near the park entrance who mounted each others' shoulders to shout: "The park is free! The park is ours!"

Dozens of demonstrators took up the chant.

"Into the streets," became the rallying cry. A human wave flowed into the four broad lanes of Clark Street, promptly stopping all traffic.

"Beautiful. The park is cleared right on schedule," someone said.

Hundreds of young men and women, some in beards and beads with painted faces, some long-haired and sandaled, and some in the latest turtleneck sweater fashions, followed whoever was ahead of them in a pell-mell run south toward the Loop, 18 blocks away.

Chanting was loud but indiscriminate: "Humphrey, f-h." "Ho, Ho, Ho Chi Minh," "The street is free, the street is ours."

With two young men holding North Vietnamese flags in the front ranks, the block-long mass of people raced raggedly down both sides of Clark Street, hopping over hydrants and auto fenders, dodging telephone poles and running into each other.

"Is that a Cuban or North Vietnamese flag?" one of the youths was asked. "I don't know," he answered. "Someone handed it to me and I'm just holding it."

For all of its noise, however, the crowd showed little stomach for any police confrontation. The first sign of Chicago's blue police car lights winking at an intersection was enough to turn the leaders down the first available side street, forcing the march into a random, checkerboard pattern.

Humphrey Runs 'Kind of a Three-horse Operation'

WASHINGTON (AP) — "We run a kind of three-horse operation," explained a member of the staff of Hubert Humphrey, the overwhelming favorite to win the presidential nomination at the Democratic party national convention opening today in Chicago.

The three horses: Campaign staff, personal staff rod friends and associates.

No one appears to be the vice-president's single paramount adviser.

Following is a look at some members of the team he has put together.

—Lawrence O'Brien, the master political craftsman who helped design the campaigns of the late John F. Kennedy and President Johnson, as well as the late Robert F. Kennedy. He was the first of the big names in the Kennedy entourage who came over to Humphrey after Robert Kennedy's assassination.

—Max Kampelman, a former political science instructor at the University of Minnesota who became Humphrey's first Senate aid in 1949.

—William Connell, 42, executive assistant and chief political operative.

—Senators Fred Harris and Walter Mondale, co-chairmen of the United Democrats for Humphrey.

—Dwayne O. Andreas, Minneapolis businessman, is Humphrey's personal liaison with various fund-raisers.

Truckers Approve 40 Per Cent Raise

TORONTO (CP) — Members of Local 938, International Union of Operating Engineers, overwhelming for a new contract with trucking firms that will give them a 40.7-per-cent wage increase and substantial fringe benefits over a three-year period.

Members of the local which covers branches in Toronto, Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury, North Bay, Peterborough and Orillia, voted 1,177 to 777 in favor of the proposed contract.

The contract will increase hourly wages a total of $1.10 in stages over the next 30 months and increase fringe benefits in stages over the same period equivalent to 37 cents. It also guarantees the Teamsters wage parity with the Detroit area under the next contract.

Basic hourly wage now is $2.70 for drivers and $2.60 for dock workers.

Ratification also will be required from Teamster local 91 in Kingston, Local 141 in London, Local 880 in Windsor, and Local 879 in Hamilton before the contract becomes effective.

The contract will cover the five locals and 51 trucking firms in the province.

Geologists Angered By Russia

HALIFAX (CP) — Dr. J. P. Nowlan, Nova Scotia's deputy mines minister, returned Sunday from Czechoslovakia where the geological conference he was attending last week was disrupted by the Soviet occupation.

Dr. Nowlan said in an interview he saw no violence in Prague and the only injuries to delegates to the conference resulted from flying glass.

He said the invasion may have a backlash in Russia.

"There were 92 countries at the convention and it was unanimous in condemning the Russian move," he said. "They will carry these feelings home with them."

Pentecostal Officers Named

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Rev. W. Robert Tatinger was elected Saturday general superintendent of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada during the assembly's six-day convention.

Mr. Tatinger, 41, is pastor of the Central Tabernacle in Edmonton. He succeeds Rev. Tom Johnstone of Toronto who is retiring.

Other full-time officers elected were: Rev. C. H. Stiller, Toronto, general secretary-treasurer; Rev. Carmen Lynn, Toronto, executive overseas mission director; Rev. Donald Feltmate, Oshawa, executive director Christian education; Rev. Robert Argue, Toronto, executive director of home missions and colleges.

Three Boys Involved In Wreck

MONTREAL (CP) — Police said Sunday three young boys between the ages of nine and 13 will appear in welfare court this week in connection with the derailment last week of a CNR freight train where two persons were seriously injured.

Police said the accident apparently resulted from someone tampering with a switch and caused an estimated $1,500,000 in damages.

The train was made up of about 45 cars and was being pulled by two locomotives.

Youth Arrested On Hotel Roof Had Gun in Car

CHICAGO (AP) — Authorities seized a Milwaukee teen-ager on the roof of the Conrad Hilton Hotel Sunday and said they found a rifle with a telescopic sight in the trunk of his nearby auto.

The Hilton is serving as the headquarters for party officials at the Democratic national convention and is the hotel at which presidential contenders Hubert Humphrey and Senator Eugene McCarthy are staying.

Police charged the youth, Peter Laine, 19, with unlawful use of a weapon.

The secret Service said the weapon allegedly found in Laine's car was a .22-caliber automatic rifle.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Well, she certainly LOOKS innocent."

Russian Tank Severed Czech Woman's Legs

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Gaunt and tired, a group of Canadian tourists flew into Windsor during the weekend after being trapped in Czechoslovakia by the Russian invasion and told of seeing Czechs crushed under tanks and shot by Russian soldiers.

One woman said she was visiting relatives in eastern Slovakia at the time of the Russian takeover.

She caught a bus back to Bratislava on the Austrian border. Passing through a village the bus was stopped by two Russian tanks blocking the road and sidewalk. One tank had run over a Czech woman, severing both her legs. Later the bus passengers were told the woman had died.

Thursday, the woman said, placard-bearing students demonstrated in Bratislava, shouting "Dubcek" and "Svoboda". One student raised his camera to take a picture of a tank. A Russian soldier shot at him and killed a male bystander. The woman asked that her name not be divulged for fear of reprisals against her relatives in Czechoslovakia.

Queen Asks Protection For Prince

LONDON (AP) — The Queen has requested extra Scotland Yard guards to protect Prince Charles against Welsh nationalist extremists, reliable sources said Sunday.

The 19-year-old heir to the throne will be invested as Prince of Wales in an ancient ceremony at Caernarvon Castle next year. Underground extremists demanding home rule for Wales have threatened to disrupt the solemn rites with violence.

The Queen told Prime Minister Wilson about her fears "for my son's safety," Norman Lucas, Sunday Mirror crime correspondent reported.

Wilson was reported to have told the home office, which runs Britain's police forces, to provide the prince with a security guard even stronger than the U.S. Secret Service protection around President Johnson.

It is understood that a specially picked team will guard Prince Charles around the clock while he attends Welsh language and culture courses at Wales's Aberystwyth University prior to the July investiture, as well as a massive security force at the ceremony itself.

THE CAR BUYER'S PROBLEMS

WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN CAR DEALERS?

Since no dealer has a monopoly on the product he sells, the essential difference is in the character of the dealer himself and the way he runs his business.

We heard this expressed very well recently by a dealer acquaintance who runs a very successful business.

Speaking to a customer who had just purchased a new car from him, the dealer said: "We never forget you could have bought this car anywhere. All we have to sell you is good service, honest treatment and reliable guarantees.

"We're going to do our best to deliver those three things so that your satisfaction with this car will make you want to buy your next one here and speak well of us to your friends."

Needless to say, that dealer enjoys a repeat business from loyal customers that is nothing short of sensational. In a nutshell he had expressed the automobile dealer's very reason for existence.

Price conscious car shoppers soon come up against the fact that the dollar difference from dealer to dealer is very close competitively.

Profitability in the car business is so low over the last ten years that the number of dealers has dropped about a third while the total of car sales has increased over 60 percent.

Experience has shown that the dealers who survive make repeat customers out of first time buyers by rendering a needed service at a competitive price.

Czechs Have to Accept Russian Border Guard

Tearful Leader Outlines Terms

PRAGUE (CP)—Czechoslovakia has had to agree to the stationing of Soviet troops along the West German border as part of the agreement reached in Moscow, official Czechoslovak sources said today.

They said newspapers would appear Wednesday as before except there would be tight control over all comment about the Soviet Union and the other four occupying countries.

The Soviet troops will be withdrawn in three stages: First of all out of towns and villages; secondly into their barracks inside Czecroslovakia and thirdly back into their own countries.

But some of them will be kept inside Czechoslovakia to assist the Czechoslovak army to defend its frontiers against West Germany.

No Soviet troops will be stationed along the border with Austria.

However, President Ludvik Svoboda said today the Soviet Union and the other four countries that occupy Czechoslovakia have agreed to withdraw gradually all their troops.

"We have achieved a basic agreement on the gradual, complete withdrawal of the troops," Svoboda said in a nationwide radio address. "Until that time their presence is a political reality."

Even as he spoke, Soviet tanks began a withdrawal from strategic points in Prague they had occupied since the Russians and their Warsaw pact allies moved into the country Tuesday.

National Assembly Speaker Josef Smrkovsky says when he told deputies this morning of the compromise reached.

"It was a necessary compromise," he told a stunned and motionless assembly.

After he had finished his address to parliament, the deputies broke out with cries "We want to know the whole truth" and "long live Czechoslovakia."

Czechoslovak officials said that Alois Indra, widely regarded as one of the principal pro-Soviet hard-liners in the top party leadership, suffered a heart attack in Moscow and was in hospital there.

"This is no loss for us," Smrkovsky told the National Assembly.

Other points in the compromise agreement include the decision to permit several conservative members of the party and government to remain in office.

Nothing was said about the secret meeting of the 14th party congress which elected new leaders—all progressives—and this was one of the major issues under discussion this morning by party leaders in the Hradcany Castle.

Czechoslovak officials, who gave a briefing to Czechoslovak editors, said that Soviet army commanders and Soviet security police had promised not to interfere in the internal affairs of the country and not to carry out their own arrests.

Vietnam Plank Follows Policy Of Humphrey

CHICAGO (CP) — The U.S. Democratic party plunged into its 35th national convention with a bitter marathon opening session that lasted 7½ hours and ended suddenly early today as passionate feelings flared over seating racially-restricted state voting delegations.

A bitter floor fight over the Vietnam war issue appeared certain when the convention resumes tonight because the committee pulling together the plank the party will campaign on in the November election approved a draft that followed the line taken by Vice-President Humphrey in supporting the Johnson administration.

Even before the Vietnam issue was raised, convention delegates battled over credentials and rules, holding the initial session in the heavily-guarded International Amphitheatre until 2:40 a.m. CDT today.

Speculation continued on two other fronts—that the convention might draft Senator Edward Kennedy as the Democratic candidate for president despite his latest disclaimer and that President Johnson, who turned down a second term last March, would fly to the convention, possibly today, his 60th birthday.

But the trend of voting patterns at the first session of the four-day convention confirmed the strength of Vice - President Humphrey, who is favored to win the presidential nomination on the first ballot Wednesday night.

A party convention vote tonight on a Vietnam plank in the platform, shaped to Humphrey's liking and opposed by Senator Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, seemed likely to provide a key countdown on the nomination outcome.

The platform committee put before the convention a majority plank rejecting any unconditional

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario health department's plan to charge for laboratory services was criticized Monday night by F. E. P. Pearson of Winnipeg, president of the Canadian Diabetics Association. Mr. Pearson said the $3 fee for monthly blood-sugar tests will be a great burden to diabetics. "In Ontario, as in most provinces, diabetics are forced to pay for their own insulin," he said, estimating the cost at more than $20 a month.

Draft Kennedy Move Planned

CHICAGO (AP) — Democrats flirted with the magical lure of another Kennedy candidacy today despite a dampening disavowal by the last brother.

Backers of Senator Edward M. Kennedy said his name would be thrust before the Democratic convention as it chooses a presidential nominee Wednesday night despite his telephone call to try to block the draft movement.

The call appeared to doom the already remote chances of any success for the drive in a convention dominated to date by Vice-President Hubert Humphrey.

But it didn't deter the delegates drawn in corridor conversation to the romance of the Kennedy name.

"Nothing could stop his (Kennedy's name from being placed in nomination," said former Ohio Gov. Michael V. DiSalle, target of the Kennedy telephone call after he opened a draft headquarters in a downtown hotel.

DiSalle promised Kennedy he wouldn't nominate him. But he said someone else probably would. "I told him the draft movement has gone too far to be stopped."

A petition drive mounted by California delegates to draft Kennedy spread across the convention floor in the early hours today to Illinois, Oregon and Indiana.

California Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, head of his state's 174-vote delegation that is crucial to Kennedy's chances, said his candidacy "would provide an incalculable lift to what looks like a disastrous year for the Democrats."

"I do not regard it as conversation with Gov. DiSalle as final," Unruh said.

But the California leader made no more to swing his huge delegation behind the fledgling draft drive pending an unusual joint appearance by three declared candidates — Humphrey and Senators Eugene McCarthy and George McGovern—at a state caucus today.

Peace Groups Battle Police

CHICAGO (CP)—Surging crowds of young anti-war protesters battled police early today from behind makeshift fortifications in Chicago's Lincoln Park, 10 miles from where the Democratic national convention opened.

Police broke up the crowd, estimated by some observers at more than 3,000, with flailing clubs and tear gas. In some places, police fired shotguns in the air.

About 40 persons were injured, including 10 policemen and a television cameraman.

Twenty-nine demonstrators and two reporters were taken to hospital and scores of other persons were treated for lesser injuries.

Sixty-seven persons were arrested. Details on charges were not immediately available.

Some 14 reporters covering the protest were set on by police and beaten. Some of the news men had microphones and television cameras in their hands, and others had Democratic national convention press credentials dangling from their necks.

The convention opened for its first session surrounded by a tight ring of security and undisturbed by outside demonstrators.

Among the injured were three policemen and a news cameraman for a television network.

Several demonstrators carried Viet Cong flags during day-long marches that kept police squads moving from street to street.

Shortly before the park confrontation, more than 1,500 of the protesters, youths in the peace movement and Yippies—members of the Youth International party broke through several packets of police security and marched to the downtown Democratic headquarters.

The clash in Lincoln Park, which runs several miles along the North side lakefront, was sparked by the protesters' refusal to obey a police order to clear the park for an 11 p.m. curfew.

The group quickly erected a barricade of picnic tables and trash cans in one corner of the park against some 600 policemen massed in a parking lot opposite them, and chanted:

"Hell no, we won't go. The parks belong to the people.'

"This is the final warning," a police loudspeaker boomed.

In some places trash was ignited to form a flaming barrier. As police charged they were pelted with rocks, bottles and debris.

Then police lobbed in tear-gas canisters, and the throng streamed through the park and out into a major intersection. Many held handkerchiefs over tearing eyes when they reached the street.

'Shaken' Shirley MacLaine Has Her Handbag Searched

CHICAGO (CP) — "I'm still shaken," movie actress Shirley MacLaine said Monday night after penetrating Chicago's International Amphitheatre as a delegate to the Democratic national convention.

Miss MacLaine was "shaken" because security forces had emptied her bag to search it for weapons.

That's par for the security course in the Windy City, where an iron curtain has been dropped around the convention hall. A seven-foot-high fence topped by barbed wire surrounds three sides.

About 1,500 riot-helmeted police are on duty night and day. Police helicopters fly overhead with powerful searchlights.

Rifle-armed police patrol the roof, inside and out. A square-mile security enclave has been established around the convention hall.

The manholes on the outside have been sealed with tar and guards posted in some sewers.

Each of the more than 6,000 delegates and alternates entering the 12,000-seat hall—and everyone else outside the security army—carries a metal-coated piece of cardboard, a different one for each of the convention's four days. This supplements various passes for piercing the first perimeter.

The cardboard is inserted right side up into a small machine. If it turns green, its bearer advances.

If it turns red, the card bearer is shown the door for using a counterfeit ticket. To insure the card will be green when used for re-entry, the bearer must insert it in another machine before leaving the amphitheatre.

Brief cases, typewriters and all packages are checked.

The city has 12,000 policemen on 12-hour shifts until the convention ends, armed with pistols and Mace, the chemical crowd-control agent. In reserve are police with shotguns and tear gas.

Some 5,300 federal troops have been called up.

A special hot line has been set up to the White House and the defence department to enable quick summoning of thousands more troops than the 7,500 flown in Sunday as standby forces.

Bradley Challenges Brown In Kiwanis Walk-a-thon

The Belleville Kiwanis Club walk-a-thon next month has taken on a personal note. A private but friendly duel between two of the walkers has added a little spice to the project.

O. F. Bradley, secretary-manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, and Ray Brown, city Industrial commissioner, have challenged each other to a finish-the-walk duel.

According to Mr. Bradley the walker in their contest who fails to finish the fund-raising trek must do 20 push-ups in front of city hall when the walk takes place Sept. 14.

Mr. Bradley mentioned this morning that he has already started training.

"I walked to Point Anne yesterday," he said.

Mr. Bradley has been sponsored for $11 per mile so far by local citizens and some who have decided to make the hike are being sponsored for more than that.

He quoted figures like $13 per mile.

The walk-a-thon will cover the distance from Zwick's Island, around the Bay of Quinte to Trenton and back to the Belleville city hall.

Economicaly the target for the project is $18,000 destined to purchase and install a new heart monitoring set-up for the intensive care unit of the Belleville General Hospital.

Moira Authority Accepts Recommendation

TWEED — The members of the Executive Committee of the Moira River Conservation Authority decided at their recent meeting to accept the recommendation of the Water Control Advisory Board regarding the costs of work done on the Marlbank Creek.

The motion of G. Bell, which was carried unanimously, stated that as recommended by the Water Control Advisory Board, a report on the cost of the emergency work completed on Marlbank Creek together with the additional work and estimated cost recommended by the engineering section of the Conservation Authorities Branch to complete the necessary work on the Creek be accepted, and that Hungerford Township be requested to accept financial responsibility for 90 per cent of the Authority's share of the cost.

The committee members also allocated $5000 in the 1969 budget for the purchase of 100 acres more or less for a wildlife area, and that $300 be allocated in the 1969 budget for the bird feeding and nest boxes.

tional halt of the bombing of North Vietnam.

Following the policies laid down by Humphrey—and opposed by McCarthy—the committee recommended a declaration that cessation of the air strikes must not endanger the safety of U.S. troops and must be made only when there is evidence of a reciprocating military de-escalation by North Vietnam.

This strictly follows Johnson administration policy.

White House associates said the adoption of such a plank could be the signal for a decision by President Johnson to fly to the convention later this week to receive its plaudits, after the presidential nomination is voted.

Chicago Mayor Richard Daley told reporters he would not be surprised if Johnson arrived today.

That's the eastern look, man, smack against the stones of old Belleville. The teal blue version of the new look in men's attire was modelled this morning on Front St. by Charles Meagher. After a quick once-over, Louanne Smrke gave the feminine verdict — "neat".

Nehru Jackets Create Mod Look in Belleville

Color it red and name it after Man.

Color it any other hue of the rainbow and call it Nehru.

Convicts, Rajput emperors, British cavalry officers and London swingers all had a band in it.

Just one thing's for sure, a man has to have the figure for it before he dares appear in a Nehru jacket.

And appear he will this winter, by the dozens, even in Belleville.

City men's wear stores are stocking the eastern look in both suits and jackets, in answer to the demand from their customers.

First to stock the eastern look was Meagher's Men's Wear, whose staff has already sold a dozen jackets at $45, four suits at $75 and one suit at $110. So popular is the new style that Meagher's can't keep the item in stock.

Still waiting for his supply from the wholesalers is Joe Burke of Burke's of Belleville Men's Fashion on the plaza.

"They'll sell like hot cakes if we can get our hands on them," he said, "The demand from men in their twenties and early thirties is terrific."

Other city retailers agree that men, especially those in the young adult category, are going overboard for the eastern cut.

"Most of our customers for the Nehru will be university types," commented a Tip Top Tailors spokesman.

But the look isn't for everybody. Only very slender men look well in it — the football half-back, no matter how well built comes on paunchy in a Nehru. For the Molson muscled middle-ager, the Nehru is a disaster.

To wear the eastern look with elan, the male will have to bone up on his fashion savvy. The top button should be left undone and turtleneck shirts and demi boots are the required accessories. Trim-line cut trousers in a co-ordinated plain color are required wear with the jacket.

The jackets and suits come in brown and black, but look smartest in bright golds, blues and jades. Material is a hard-finished, light-weight, tropical wool worsted.

The Nehru look got its name from the late Prime Minister of India, who made it his trademark. The style, made up in coarse cotton, was required garb for Indian prisoners of the British Raj, and Nehru, imprisoned for advocating Indian independence, continued to wear the style after his release as a gesture of defiance.

The high-necked, long-line, convicts' uniform was fashioned after a style popular in some parts of India and originally inspired by both the Rajput shirt and British officer's tunic.

W. T. Meagher calls the new look "modified mod".

"They spruced up the London mod look, thank goodness and when it came out looking vaguely eastern, called it Nehru," he claims.

Whatever its origin, the Nehru style seems headed for a long reign over the male fashion field.

It can't miss, City merchants report it has almost more appeal to women than to men.

Potter Gets Support From Past President

Support for Dr. Richard T. Potter, conservative MP for Quinte came yesterday from the immediate past president of the Ontario Medical Association.

Dr. James Melvin of Toronto said that doctors are forced by the lack of chronic and rehabilitation hospitals to keep patients in active care hospitals longer than necessary.

Dr. Potter had said in a Toronto speech that doctors were sometimes forced to lie on reports in order to care for their patients.

Dr. Melvin also admitted that doctors were forced by the system to fudge on reports and perhaps in some minds be downright dishonest.

In Belleville, Dr. John Stock, president of the medical society agreed with need for more facilities however he did not think the doctors are lying outright.

According to Dr. Stock, he himself sometimes does not fill out the required forms completely or recommends that a patient needs further care in a chronic care hospital if available.

Encourage Youth: Rotary Governor

A challenge to Belleville Rotarians to assist and encourage young people was issued yesterday by district governor Kenneth Miller of Scarborough.

While Belleville had a fine record of service over the years, one of the areas neglected by Rotary in general, said Mr. Miller, was youth.

"We could do a lot to steer young people in the right direction, and also guide those with potential."

Mr. Miller cited the work being done among young people by Rotary - sponsored organizations such as Interact and Rotaract. Interact is composed of high school students in their last four years of school immediately before college or university. Rotaract is of more recent origin and serves the 17 to 25 age group.

The district governor said there were innumerable ways in which clubs could be of help in the sphere of international service. One way in which his own club assists needy people overseas is through the collection of old eye glasses. These are sent to the missionary optical service in Britain for distribution in Africa.

Belleville Rotary next month will welcome a group of German businessmen visiting Canada under an exchange program. On a previous occasion the club played host to a number of Australian executives.

Charter Member

Bill House, a member of the Trenton Rotary Club since its beginning over 40 years ago here with District Governor Kenneth A. Miller of Scarborough and Trenton Rotary president, Eben James.

Trenton Rotarian Honored By District Governor

TRENTON - "The Rotary Club here is something that the whole town of Trenton can be very proud of".

These were the words of Rotary District Governor, Kenneth A. Miller, as he spoke to the Rotary Club here last night.

A highlight of the evening's activities was Mr. Miller announcing that Bill House was to be made a "member at large" in the Rotary organization.

Mr. House is a charter member of Trenton club.

Mr. Miller labelled Rotary "a most amazing organization" as he praised it for its fellowship and emphasized that members are constantly taking part in community as well as international affairs.

"In choosing new members, we don't take any but the best", asserted the district governor, "and by doing this we assure the community in which we live of the best possible service."

In this area Trenton ranked highly.

"The Trenton Club has a wonderful record over the years of contributing to the betterment of the community" he stated.

One of the most important areas where Rotary aid is needed, according to Mr. Miller, is in the field of youth.

He hinted that "Youth is not getting all the attention it could from our clubs" and added that efforts should be made to set up for the youth of a community the same ideals of the Rotary Club.

In the Trenton area Mr. Miller said the club has "many exciting and productive programs for the future for youth."

"I commend them on this and look forward to viewing the results", he added.

On a broader basis he applauded the Rotary Club as being one of the few organizations taking part in international affairs.

"There are over 630,000 Rotarians taking part in thousands of international, assistance projects", Mr. Miller explained.

As an example he cited the sending of used eyeglasses overseas where they were ground and prescribed for natives who are unable to afford them.

"This operation, which was undertaken by our Scarborough club shows that international assistance is not one of expense", explained Mr. Miller.

"Participate" was the one word he used to sum up the theme of the Rotary Clubs throughout the world.

In conclusion he added, there is no better club that better exemplifies this than the Trenton group."

Belleville Bowlers Take One Game

By CLAUDE TICE

Despite a large rooting section from the Belleville Bowling Club, Bruce Miller, former Dominion doubles winner and Jerry Hyde, president of the Canadian Lawn Bowling Council, could do no better than win one game of three in the tournament being staged at the Leaside Lawn Bowling Club. The games will continue on Wednesday with the Belleville pair having a bye for the evening game.

Today they meet Manitoba in the morning game and Nova Scotia in the afternoon. At the present time the Alberta pair of Jack Justason and Ernie Monroe have three wins to their credit.

In the first game the Belleville pair met the Alberta pair from Calgary who were made favorites for the title by the railbirds. They lived up to the prediction by taking the locals 24.14. Neither Belleville player could do anything right.

The Alberta pair scored three on three ends and four in the other and, along with this, Alberta got a number of good breaks with wicks and rolls.

The second game with British Columbia was a cliff hanger with Belleville emerging victory by a 16-15 count. The score changed hands many times but the locals scored three in the last two ends to win.

The evening game with Quebec was a nightmare for the locals. They were beaten 19-12 by Bert Flook and Jim Forbes and three four enders scored by the winners were the killers. The Belleville pair never scored more than a two ender in the game.

Mr. Flook, leading for Quebec, was deadly with his draw shots. The Ontario rink won two games during the day and will be hard to beat. This rink is from Ottawa.

The greens and accommodations were excellent and the committee bent over backwards to assist the visiting curlers. It is an excellent tournament run under splendid supervision. The weather has been cool.

Accident Probe Continues

Chief Douglas Crosbie of the Belleville police department said this morning that he hoped the inquest on the double fatality on Highway 2 Saturday night would be held as soon as possible.

"There is nothing new in the case," he continued, "but we are still busy on it."

Chief Crosbie said that officers are now obtaining formal statements from the witnesses and re-investigating the accident.

The inquest date will be set by Coroner Dr. W. F. Bates and will be conducted by the Ontario Provincial police.

"The accident part of the mishap falls under the jurisdiction of the provincial police," said the chief, "since it happened in the county."

"We are offering the provincials every bit of help we can give them on the case," he concluded.

Transport Crashes on 401

Traffic on Highway 401 four miles east of Cobourg was cut off from 5.35 this morning when a transport crashed into the abutment of an overpass.

Over $50,000 damage resulted from the accident. The truck, which was carrying phtallic acid was a total write-off.

And the volatile acid covered the road and caught on fire at seven o'clock this morning.

However, fast action by the Cobourg fire department immediately extinguished the blaze.

Driving the transport was George Waine of Toronto who was travelling west on 401 when he lost control of his truck and collided with the abutment.

A set of wheels from the transport were torn off in the crash and remained at the scene. Approximately 30 feet down the highway rested the truck with damage estimated over $50,000.

Cobourg police said they hoped to have traffic back to normal by noon hour. In the meantime cars were being rerouted via Highway 2.

The Law and "Pot"

With narcotics offences in Montreal reaching what is described as "epidemic" proportions, Sessions Judge Andre Salem has begun administering jail sentences for first offences.

Time will show whether such a policy will be effective. Meanwhile, at the other end of the law enforcement scale there is a prospect of marijuana offences being regarded with greater lenience. This is a recognition of the fact that of all the drugs being taken these days, marijuana apparently is one of the least dangerous.

That is the view also in top-level government circles. Health Minister John Munro has announced with regard to marijuana that Ottawa is considering several suggestions for more lenient treatment of youthful offenders.

Noting that it did not seem worthwhile to give criminal records to several hundred curious young people, Mr. Munro told the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association convention in Regina that the teenager who tried "pot" at a party, because someone passed it around and everyone else tried it, "may be very foolish, but he isn't a criminal, at least not in the sense that I think of criminals."

Marijuana, he pointed out, is not a narcotic (although currently it "is controlled by the Narcotic Control Act), but rather a hallucinogen. Moreover it is not necessarily habit-forming.

Nobody wants to see an increase in the number of marijuana devotees. At the same time the possibility of a more tolerant view of the dangers of the drug is a sensible move.

18 Holes in 50?

Certainly it is not weight that enables a professional golfer to drive a ball farther than the average club player. Rather it is a combination of several physical as well as mental qualities — notably timing and a smooth swing — that produce that superb thing called a golf shot.

Take George Knudson. Fresh from his Canadian PGA victory, not to mention other fine wins on the U.S. tournament circuit, Knudson is now aiming at the golfing equivalent of the four-minute mile. He wants to accomplish what has never been done before in golf — a round in the low fifties.

Physically it is possible says Knudson, adding however, that its achievement is an "emotional problem." Someone to compete against he believes is the answer. Yet the pros are competing against each other, as well as against par, all the time. What then? Well Knudson regards physique as important, too, for after two more tournaments he is going to undertake a five-month fitness program to build up his weight to 175 pounds.

The thought occurs that members of the hippie fraternity, and some of our so-called swingers, could profit by following the example of our top sportsmen. Young men like Bob Murphy, who led the Westchester classic through the first three rounds and finished in second place with two others, had this to say of himself: "God gave me a good body, a good swing and a good mind. I think I can do things with them." Murphy has just given further proof of his prowess by winning the Philadelphia open.

If more of our young people had as much respect for themselves, and looked at life as positively as Murphy does this would be a better and a happier world.

Jargon Beats Them

The Russians are in the doghouse these days — but a five-man Soviet delegation to an international radar meteorology conference in Montreal last week deserved some sympathy.

The visitors were nonplussed by jargon used in the discussion and workshop sessions. They had an interpreter but it seems even he had trouble with the "gobbledegook."

It is a pity scientists cannot make themselves more literate and communicate effectively not only among themselves but with the public at large.

Like the superb exposition on the supernatural given by a Mr. Hanzer in the CBC program, Under Attack, Sunday night. Witty and erudite, Mr. Hanzer was more than a match for Pierre Berton and the student critics at York University. He was also entertaining as well as informative. The same unfortunately cannot be said for the scientific fraternity at large.

Ottawa Offbeat
Conservatives Pay Dearly for Dull, Dreary Campaign

(By Greg Connolley for Richard Jackson on holidays)

OTTAWA - It is getting close to one full year since Robert Stanfield was elected head of the federal Conservative party and in that time he came close to being prime minister and also suffered a disastrous defeat in a general election.

The political future for Mr. Stanfield now is not bright, nor, for that matter are the prospects good for the Conservative party.

The Conservative MPs met recently in Ottawa for a special caucus to discuss policy and preparations for the coming Parliamentary session.

It could have been a time for angry and frustrated party hands to turn on Mr. Stanfield and to give him a going over. Or, more in the Tory tradition, it might have been the occasion to spark some internecine warfare with Bob Stanfield as the prime target.

Yet from all accounts there were no attacks on Mr. Stanfield because of his lamentable failure in the election. No one demanded his head because he had led 95 Conservative MPs from the last Commons into electoral battle and returned with only 72.

There was an air of resignation among the Conservative, MPs — not a feeling of helplessness but rather one of "what's the use of worrying about the election, let's get on with the future."

Mr. Stanfield told newsmen that he had not been roasted by his members although he acknowledged that at various times since the election a number of Conservatives had told him of his shortcomings as a campaigner.

He said with a rueful smile that he was not too satisfied with himself either.

He spoke of the need for new communications, new policies, the requirement for building Tory strength in urban areas and among youth.

But perhaps most significant of all Mr. Stanfield said that perhaps the party needed a new "style." And he appeared to include himself in that category.

It was in the matter of "style" that the Tories were outclassed in the campaign. They fought an old - fashioned, dull election, meeting in dreary halls with tiresome speeches by Mr. Stanfield and other Conservatives. The entire effect was sad and depressing.

There was the contrast with the dramatic Mr. Trudeau whipping across the country in his big jet, the Trudeau girls and the outdoor speeches that were short and snappy.

This was one campaign where for a change the opposition were mostly on the defensive, rather than the government party.

Mr. Stanfield is well aware of all that. He knows the campaign was a flop and he realizes that he was a boot too.

He says that the party operated under some difficulties and he probably was referring to the weak Tory position in Quebec as opposed to Trudeau's solid strength.

He may have been referring also to certain strains with the party such as the enmity former leader John Diefenbaker held for national party president Dalton Camp.

Perhaps when Mr. Stanfield ponders over the things that went wrong in a campaign that seemed so promising for him at the outset, he wonders about events in the last weeks of the Pearson administration:

Perhaps he recalls the evening of February 19 when the government was defeated on a budget measure. There were the hectic days that followed, Pearson flying back from a Caribbean vacation to rally his panicky cabinet.

There was the impasse in the Commons with the Tories declaring the government had been defeated and had no right to carry on or bring business before the House.

Mr. Stanfield then may have been too decent a man. He let Mr. Pearson have 24 hours to think things over. He permitted Pearson to launch an effective campaign to gain public support for his government on a "no election" cry.

Eventually the Liberals with the aid of the Creditistes won a formal vote of confidence and restored their position. But it had been in the hands of Mr. Stanfield to refuse to deal with them at all — to force them into an election.

He could have done it and he would have caught the Grits in great disarray — Pearson retiring, the leadership convention not yet held.

In that kind of an election it might very well have been Robert Stanfield who would have won and who would be prime minister today. Maybe he was too nice a guy, perhaps he was too responsible and thinking about the good of the country more than his own and his party fortunes.

It is interesting to recall now, isn't it, how Prime Minister Pearson effectively used the cry — the people don't want an election. And just how short a time away it was that Prime Minister Trudeau pulled the plug on the 27th Parliament.

Mr. Trudeau is going to be prime minister for four years now barring some unforeseen event. If he does a reasonably good job he will probably get another election win.

Mr. Stanfield will be 60 in four years while Trudeau will be 52. That would certainly be Mr. Stanfield's last time around, if the party is even willing to go with him for another election.

Mr. Stanfield will have to be very good as opposition leader. Mr. Trudeau will have to make some serious errors and have bad luck. It will take that kind of a combination of events to make Mr. Stanfield prime minister.

Mini-Subs For Ocean Research

Cornwall Standard - Freeholder

Mini-subs are coming into their own. The director of the Halifax Fisheries Research Board sees great and practical potential in the use of miniature submarines for underwater research.

A group of researchers at Halifax recently used a mini-sub, chartered from the United States, to observe fish and sea plant life and the submarine allowed scientists to become "part of the environment of the fish being studied," says Dr. Kenneth Mann of the FRB.

It was pointed out that a diver, sending out air bubbles from his air supply, will often frighten away the objects of his study, but the mini-sub allows the researcher to "cruise around through schools of fish while making observations."

"The fish paid absolutely no attention to us at all," said the Halifax researchers after their jaunt in the mini-sub.

Over the next few months, reports of the Halifax researchers on use of the submarine will be evaluated, says Dr. Mann, but, he added immediate reaction among those who used it was one of great interest.

By putting out ground bait in the evening before a dive in an area the researchers were able to attract a great concentration of fish around the submarine for observers to see.

Power for the sub comes from an electric motor and the entire chine can dive as low as 600 feet, which is sufficient for a wide field of research. It can, however, accommodate only its pilot and one observer.

At any rate the Halifax experiment takes the mini-sub out of the near-toy class and gives it a real job to do.

The prolific writer became a literary dictator of Spain when only in his 40s, though he thought them trivial, posterity has put a high value on his plays which display a powerful imagination and a firm basis of Spanish theatre tradition.

Production Near Target

Unemployment and Prices Higher Than Was Anticipated

This is the first of a series of five articles on Canada's economic growth.

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — The Economic Council of Canada outlined a series of goals 3½ years ago which, if met, would bring Canada up to the full achievement of its potential economic performance by 1970.

How well has the country performed so far?

Production, until recently, has run very close to the council's projections, but unemployment and prices have run far higher than the council's goals.

The council issued its first annual review of the economy in January, 1965, enunciating five main objectives for Canada:

—Full employment.

—A high rate of economic growth.

—Reasonable stability of prices.

—A viable balance of payments.

—An equitable distribution of rising incomes.

The country has been wide of the council's full-employment objective, with 5½ per cent of the labor force out of work this summer. And consumer prices have risen more rapidly than the council hoped in every year since its first report was issued.

But there has been a high rate of economic growth, Canada has been able to live with its balance-of-payments difficulties and efforts are being made to see that the country's rising incomes are more equitably distributed.

The council's first review quickly became a sell-out best book for government departments, private businessmen and university lecturers. In short courses on basic economics.

It was prepared under the direction of the council's first chairman, John J. Deutsch, now principal of Queen's University.

In essence, what the council found was that in 1963 Canada's economic performance was lagging, and it would require strenuous effort to bring it up to the full level of its capability by 1970.

As one example of the slackness in the economy then, the council said that if the country had been running at the peak of its potential, 1963 tax rates would have produced 18 per cent more government revenue than they did.

While the five main objectives could only be reached by balancing conflicting tendencies delicately, there was one over-all objective set by the council—to boost the country's real output by 43 per cent between 1963 and 1970.

This means an annual rate of growth of 5.5 per cent in real terms, apart from any price rises that were bound to occur. The objective was to hold price increases to between two and two per cent a year, get 97 per cent of the labor force employed, and keep Canada competitive in world markets.

More recently, the council — particularly in its fourth annual review, released last year—has gone on to set goals for the first part of the 1970s and into the 1980s. It is calling for a 6½ per cent annual growth rate in 1970-75.

In 1963, the total value of all goods and services produced in Canada was $43,424,000,000 —the gross national product. This year, the economy is ticking over at an annual rate of $64,800,000,000, according to its first-quarter performance.

This is a gain of nearly 50 per cent in five years, but it includes a large amount of price inflation. In terms of the purchasing power of the Canadian dollar in 1963, this year's gross national product is running at about $58,500,000,000.

The council's goal for Canada was to bring the GNP to $62,500,000,000 in 1970 in terms of 1963 dollars. Actually, until this year, Canada has kept slightly ahead of the 5½-per-cent-a-year rate of increase the council cited as a target.

Democratic Convention's Tight Security Annoys TV Networks

CHICAGO (CP) — American television, having helped reshape the political convention to a prime-time viewing spectacle at night, has a fond going with the Democratic party assembled here and particularly with Mayor Richard Daley, the host. Unprecedented security is the problem.

The three major TV networks have spent about $7,000,000 on coverage of the Republican and Democratic presidential nominating conventions. A black eye for Chicago seems guaranteed.

They are broadcasting harsh things about the convention planners, about Daley and about what they regard as drastic curbs on freedom of news reporting. Chicago has been compared adversely with Prague and the ability of CBS crews to film the invading Soviet troops.

The latest anti-TV blow reported indignantly Sunday night by the National Broadcasting Co. was the halving—to two reporters each of the electronically-geared news man permitted on the convention floor.

"We gather the convention leadership does not want what is going on to be known," said David Brinkley Sunday night.

The networks have been grumbling for weeks about the Chicago situation. So have press and radio.

First and foremost is a telephone worker strike begun more than 100 days ago which has plagued the convention with inadequate communications facilities.

The networks months ago had wanted the two parties, as a money-saving device, to agree to share one city for their conventions and named Miami Beach, Fla., where the Republicans met earlier this month.

There has been a shortage of telephones for the convention, plus sabotage periodically. For example, CBC lines from Miami Beach, passing through Chicago, were cut during the Republican convention.

The strike was softened to allow installation of essential TV equipment. But the usual panoramic TV coverage is lacking elsewhere.

TV officials and newspaper TV critics have retorted that Mayor Daley, concerned about anti-war demonstrations and perhaps Negro obstruction, wants to keep the Chicago scene blacked out.

Support for that skepticism came Friday when police refused to let the TV networks park their big mobile centres outside major convention centres downtown.

Also banned were usual spottings of TV cameras at elevated vantage points—another security restriction.

Eric Sevareid, respected commentator for the Columbia Broadcasting System, reported last Friday that "the city of Chicago runs the city of Prague a close second right now as the world's least attractive tourist attraction."

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Remember! Smile and the world smiles with you"

Chicago Is Unhappy City Ready for Violence

CHICAGO (AP) — In Lincoln Park, which is only a few miles north of the hall where the Democrats hope to nominate the next president of the United States, there is a huge triangular field.

On the weekend before the Democratic national convention, a sunny hot day that used to be described as languid, adolescents were playing baseball in two corners of the field.

In the third corner, another group of adolescents sat on the grass around a chunky lady who was speaking into a hand microphone.

"Ninety per cent of hemorrhaging can be stopped with pressure," she told her audience, some of whom held babies, many of whom wore beards, tattered denim and the other symbols of adolescent disenchantment.

A bearded young man stretched out near the lecturer. "Now in artificial respiration," she said, "the thing to do is keep your cool but work fast."

They were preparing for possible violence. In this town at this time, everybody seems to be preparing for violence.

Chaos is in every convention. In many ways Chicago reflects the nation.

By the thousands, city police prowl the streets, squint from roof tops, guard the hotels and the convention hall, cluster on corners, wearing blue riot helmets, carrying big billy clubs and big black pistols.

By the thousands, billeted nearby, soldiers stand ready with armored vehicles and bayoneted rifles. By the hundreds, agents of the United States Secret Service, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Criminal Investigation Division and other federal agencies, study the crowds in the hotel lobbies, search the convention hall for explosives, question people without proper credentials, and look into handbags and packages carried into the hall.

By the dozens in the air over Chicago, where Air Lincoln was nominated with less display of force on the eve of the Civil War, helicopters circle over the convention hotels and the convention hall.

And the cab drivers are on strike and the bus drivers are on strike, and the phone installers are on strike, and the traffic jams into impossible gluts and delegates arriving at the airport frantically wave $20 bills at strangers in the hopes of catching a ride into town.

And the peace demonstrators march outside of the hotels with signs asking "Will napalm teach democracy?" and a lone eccentric carried a black bordered picture of a familiar face with the caption: "Keep the peace with Robert Kennedy," and the re-cheeked girls with a plastic straw hat are much less visible than they were in Miami.

And in the hotel rooms, Hubert H. Humphrey, who had once hoped to be the new happy warrior of politics, who now keeps one ear cocked for some encouraging word from the ranch, works unhappily trying to hold on to his convention strength. He has the delegates but not the voters, say the polls.

And in other hotel rooms, Eugene J. McCarthy, who is said to have voters but not the delegates, sharpens his lance for the last big windmill while his young evangelical workers, the ones who followed him the whole lonesome way from New Hampshire, wait almost prayerfully for victory in what they have called the Establishment's last chance.

And on billboards all over town, Mayor Richard J. Daley welcomes the delegates to his city, with a hand gaily waving a straw hat, as if this convention were being held in a happier century with torch light parades and weenie roasts.

And along the convention route, the mayor's red fences hide ugly, empty lots and his fresh flowers decorate the expressway exits and visitors would never know they were within a few miles of buildings burned out last April by race riots.

This is not a happy convention.

Land Assembly Too Difficult Says Developer of Bramalea

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — One of Ontario's leading developers said Monday the problems of purchase and assembling land are so great he would not build Bramalea, the pilot satellite city project west of Toronto, if he had to do it again.

"I simply wouldn't assemble the land," said Arthur S. Armstrong, executive vice-president of Bramalea Consolidated Developments Ltd.

He was speaking at a panel discussion on the dynamics of urban growth at the two-day annual conference of the Ontario Housing Corp. and the Ontario Association of Housing Authorities at the University of Waterloo.

Other panelists were Roy D. Cowley, chairman of the technical advisory committee of the Metropolitan Toronto area regional transportation study and George Parsons, director of urban programs, TRW Systems Inc., Calif.

Mr. Armstrong said Bramalea, which now has 13,000 residents, as constructed in an area that was completely rural and the company had to make tremendous concessions to Chinguacousy township council.

One of these involved promising the township that Bramalea would maintain a strict 60-40 industrial-to-residential assessment ratio.

"That means that for every house built, the developer promised to provide 1,000 square feet of industrial land or else pay the difference in assessment in cash to the township."

Mr. Armstrong said that in order to attract industry, Bramalea offered land at below cost and that with all the subsidies paid by the developers and transferred by the residents of Bramalea, the township is only just solvent.

"If the answer to our problems is to be with the new towns . . . then under the present rules we now work with, even when the development is paying its way, the township is still not making a profit."

Mr. Armstrong, who said cost of land is the major problem blocking development of housing that the average worker can afford, said it must be accepted that the present municipal system is outmoded.

The conference concludes today.

Newspapers Are Living Textbooks

REGINA (CP) — President Adam Thomson of the Canadian Circulation Managers' Association says newspapers, if they want to remain in competition with television, will have 'to work harder at bringing the newspaper into the school classroom.

"We have to get across the fact that we are the living textbook," the circulation manager of the Regina Leader-Post said Monday in an opening address to about 45 delegates attending the association's annual convention.

Mr. Thomson said that if newspapers do not start an educational program, they will find in time a steady increase in the number of non-subscribers. More people would turn away from newspapers to television for news.

Mr. Thomson said his newspaper has been working closely with teachers for years and the program has grown.

No Clear Air

TORONTO (CP)—There is no clean air left, and clean water exists only in the laboratory, says Prof. Horace Byers of Texas A and M University.

In an interview at the opening session Monday of the International Conference on Cloud Physics, Prof. Byers said all air is full of minute particles called atmospheric aerosols which are made of soil, salt, industrial pollutants and even dust from outer space.

Babe With New Liver Loses Fight With Cancer

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Julie Cherie Rodriguez, who lived with a transplanted liver longer than anyone known to science, died of cancer Monday night at the University of Colorado Medical Centre.

"It was a blessing," said her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Rodriguez of Pueblo, Colo. "She had suffered so much, I'm glad God came and called her up," said her father.

At 2, the pretty, wide-eyed little girl was too young to know that by surviving more than 13 months after the transplant she offered hope to uncounted victims of otherwise terminal liver ailments.

Julie's new liver had functioned well since it was implanted July 23, 1967. The donor was a child who had died of causes that left the liver undamaged.

But cancer, which destroyed Julie's own liver by the time she was a year old, appeared elsewhere in her body. Several additional operations failed to curb it, and several weeks ago, just before the first anniversary of the transplant, the parents learned there was no hope.

There were no known survivors of liver transplant operations when Julie underwent the surgery.

Thirteen have been performed here since Julie's, and five of these patients still live. Doctors say improved methods of storing donor livers until they can be implanted, and better techniques of suppressing the body's tendency to reject the new organ have contributed to the improved outlook.

Boulder Strikes Train Killing One Passenger

REVELSTOKE, B.C. (CP) — A four-ton boulder crashed into a Canadian Pacific Railway train Monday, killing a woman passenger and injuring six other passengers.

Killed was Deborah May Dupiero, 19, of Fort William.

The rock, apparently loosened from a week-long rain, crashed through the side of a day-coach in a slide area 11 miles west of this interior British Columbia city, 250 miles Northeast of Vancouver.

Six other cars were derailed, tearing up about 800 feet of track. Total damage was estimated at $350,000.

The train, the Canadian, CPR's top trans-continental express, had left Vancouver 12 hours earlier bound for Toronto.

One of the passengers injured but not detained in hospital was Archie Wilkie, 39, of Peterborough.

The rock, measuring about eight feet by four feet by four feet, hit the side of a coach.

"It seemed like there was an explosion and the coach filled with escaping steam," said Lillian Gamon, a passenger in the coach which was hit.

Showdown In Strike Is Reached

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Striking grain handlers and Lakehead companies met separately Monday amid reports that negotiations have reached the nub of the issue, but neither side would comment officially on its talks.

Separate talks were to continue today in attempts to settle the strike which began July 18.

The meeting of representatives of the 10 companies broke up in the afternoon while the handlers' meeting with federal mediator D. S. Tysoe continued into the evening.

Spokesmen for the 1,300 handlers said earlier that wages were the central issue in the dispute. The handlers' strike against 23 Lakehead terminal elevators has tied up grain shipments.

The handlers, members of the Brotherhood of Railway, Airline and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees, were seeking a $1.06 an hour pay raise.

The companies' last known offer was a 42-cent increase.

Basic wages when the strike started were $2.30 an hour and the average $2.50.

Free Tests Abolished

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario health department will begin charging Sept. 1 for laboratory tests which until now have been given free.

In a letter to doctors, Dr. R. C. Charron, deputy minister of health, said the tests can be paid for under the government's supplementary Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan (OMSIP).

A department official said the laboratory will continue to provide free of charge all basic sanitation tests on milk, water and foods. He said the tests account for about 60 per cent of laboratory's work.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and 1-out important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Nerves Ragged; Mother Dreams of Flight

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My husband's hours at construction work are so long he is seldom home. The last time he took me out was New Year's Eve. I have been sick but still no help with four children.

When it comes to shopping, and I do every bit of it, did you ever take four youngsters down town on a bus? Even the sweetest temper runs afoul.

Lately I've been having a delightful daydream of packing up and leaving everything and everyone behind and finding a job somewhere as a new and free woman. But how can I do this and still love my family? — Trapped

Dear Trapped: At least a gal can dream of staging her own strike for better working conditions! Trouble is, the minute you let home you'd begin wondering what you were doing in that never-never land of free women and cushy jobs. And no cushby faces to kiss.

Both of you work too hard; and nerves do fray and tempers shorten. Your children are being short-changed. It's time for a good long look, together, at where you are going.

Family counselling was made for people like you; and Manpower Centre might well enlighten your overworked husband about training and jobs towards more satisfying living.

Dear Doris: My family is growing up and I would like to do some kind of work after they have grown and left home. Our church is making plans to build a home for emotionally disturbed children and I would love to do this kind of work. — Fond of Children

Dear Fond: It's not the sort of knowledge you pick up overnight. Child care workers are apt to come from backgrounds of university training in psychology, sociology, social case work, teaching, and related fields.

But even the cook and the gardener in such a place need special insight into the ways of little ones. A child without a man in his life may find an understanding caretaker the one he adopts for a pal. He could become the youngster's best hold on security.

If anything in your background suggests there might just be a niche for you to serve in, with some instruction, why not talk with the minister?

Dear Doris: Thanks so much for the article about how to be "Lovelier With The Years". It has meant so much to me.

I have had considerable sickness and death in my life and could give in to a tendency to let myself go, but I have not. I am 67, and have worked up until recently.

I worked with older people and noticed that praise means a great deal. To be told they looked nice brought happiness to their old faces and I enjoyed seeing their happy reaction.

So now, you have done as much for me. — Grateful

Dear Grateful: Cheers? Who can resist sincere admiration? If somebody notices her, a woman will struggle with curlers and cosmetics till kingdom come.

On the day when an oldster lets himself or herself go, rigor mortis is apt to set in.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID E. HITCHON

Hitchon – Sunderland

Mr. William Belch officiated at the candlelight ceremony in Bethel Chapel on Friday August 23rd, when Ariel Ann Sunderland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sunderland, Belleville was united in marriage to David Eugene Hitchon, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Hitchon, west of Belleville. Organist William Connor rendered traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist Monty Parks.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a sleeveless sheath gown of Chantilly lace accented at the Empire waistline with a band of peau de soie, and featuring a high neckline. The gown was highlighted with a chiffon coat-effect extending from peau de soie bows at the shoulders in folds down to the hemline. A two-tier tulle veil was caught to a crown of three chiffon roses and she carried a cascade bouquet of yellow and white carnations with trailing ivy.

Mrs. Gail Rollins as matron of honor and the bridesmaids Mrs. Sharon Hitchon, sister-in-law of the bridegroom and Mrs. Joan Long were identically attired. All wore spirited shaded empire styled gowns with matching floral headdresses. Each carried a bouquet of white daisies.

Harry Hitchon attended his brother, while the ushers were Ted Sunderland, brother of the bride, and Ted Ellis.

The bride's mother received the guests at a reception in the Belleville Shrine Club, wearing a Paris blue lace dress over blue satin with matching short jacket, bone colored accessories and a corsage of pale pink carnations. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a petal pink two - piece shantung dress and jacket, cerise and white accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

Leaving on a wedding trip to Western Canada, the bride wore a matching dress and coat of yellow trillium, black patent accessories with a corsage of yellow carnations.

The couple will reside at 105 Water Street, Apt. 202, Guelph.

Sister-in-Law Carries Pistol in Her Purse

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Since guns are a popular topic of conversation these days this letter won't sound so foolish as it might have six months ago.

My sister-in-law Agatha has always been a kook but I was able to overlook her crazy ways until three weeks ago. Agatha came over with her boyfriend, Randy, and in the middle of a social conversation she pulled a pistol out of her purse and aimed it at me. At first I thought it was a toy, but I had to stop kidding around. She said, "This is no toy, it's the real thing" — and sure enough it was- Randy told her to cut the clowning and he pressed her hand to the floor to make her drop the pistol. It went off and now I have a big hole in my rug. I nearly fainted in the bargain.

I don't want that nut coming over here anymore with loaded pistols but I'm afraid to say anything. She says she got a permit to carry a gun when someone tried to grab her purse two years ago and now she carries it with her at all times. What can I do? — S.O.S.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR S.O.S. — Tell nutty Agatha if she wants to visit your home she'll have to check her pistol at the door. In the meantime ask to police to find out if she has a gun permit. If she doesn't you will have done your duty and taken one potentially dangerous gun out of circulation. Then there'll be only 4,999,999 to go.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I can't get that letter out of my mind — the one from the overweight 16-year-old girl who was embarrassed by her mother when they went shopping together. It seems her mother kept making hurtful remarks about her size. May I present another side of the same story.

When I married two years ago I acquired a 13-year-old stepdaughter who weighed 180 pounds. Lord knows I tried everything under the sun to get her on a diet, but no luck- If shopping was painful to her, let me assure you it-Was agony for me. A size 10 stepmother who tries to outfit a baby elephant can have a very rough time- When she became angry because the saleswoman kept bringing in matronly styles instead of cute girlish things, I could scarcely tell her they don't make teen-age styles in size 44. Finally I had to say, "Honey, I'll love you no matter how large you are, but please shop by yourself."

Get the picture, Ann? I hope so. I am tired of being called a witch. — CONNECTICUT.

DEAR CONN: Yes, I get the picture and it's not very pretty. Have you presented the picture to someone who can help this unfortunate girl with her problem? I hope so.

• • •

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing an unstamped self-addressed, envelope plus 6c for postage.

Validity of Marriage of Hypnotized Bride Is Under Study

DETROIT (AP) — Validity of marriage of a hypnotized bride is under study of the Roman Catholic archdiocese of Detroit.

Diane Podkowa thinks the only way she can get through her wedding Sept. 7 without dissolving in tears is to be hypnotized.

She cries a lot—"at the drop of a hat, about anything, happy or sad"—and says she doesn't want mascara streaking her face and her eyelashes floating away when she goes to the altar with Tom Schoenith.

Diane announced her plans Friday to be hypnotized by a professional hypnotist, under whose spell she once performed flawlessly in the play, The Unsinkable Molly Brown.

Her plans were referred to the archdiocese Saturday by Rev. Robert Witkowski, assistant pastor of our Lady Queen of Heaven Church.

He is to officiate at the marriage of the 24-year-old suburban Warren schoolteacher and 25-year-old scion of a Detroit family identified with powerboat racing, nightclub ownership and electrical contracting.

"I don't know how hypnosis would affect a person's knowledge and freedom," Father Witkowski said. "These are two of the essential components for a valid vow."

Very Rev. Albert G. Allen, head of the archdiocesan marriage tribunal, said: "I do not feel that she could go through the marriage ceremony in the actual state of hypnosis, because of my understanding that she would not be aware of what's going on at the moment.

"However," he added, "I would see no objection to her being put under hypnosis prior to the ceremony and given the suggestion that during the ceremony she will not weep."

"The final answer still is to come."

Barriage Peewees Win Title

Barriages topped Mead Johnson 20-1 Monday to make the second game of the semi-finals of the City Peewee championship, a best as they took the championship in two straight.

A. Ricketts was the star of the night as the Barriage bomber slugged five homers, including a grand slam, to pace the finalists to the win.

T. Whaley, Barriage hurler, his part too, limiting the losers to one run on three hits and two walks.

He struck out five.

Mead Johnson tried to change its luck with a relief pitcher as J. Forster took over from R. Guest, but the tide couldn't be turned as the two combined to allow 20 runs on 14 hits and 10 walks while striking out five.

Top hitters for the winners, other than Ricketts, were T. Whalen with two homers, P. Molenkl and K. Goegan with homers, to which Goegan added a triple; R. Krueger, Yuke player with a triple, D. Menard with two singles, and F. Hobbs and R. Javons with singles.

Mead Johnson stored its solitary score so tight that classes were moved to a movie theatre, and at last count 550 were enrolled. Among them is Miss Winters who returned for a refresher course.

"We did the first seminar in Paris last year," says Strasberg, "and it showed us that people were interested."

"We realized that everyone has spoken about the work except ourselves. There has been confusion. We must get to a state where at least we'll be

Frid Win City Title

H. G. Frid topped J. A. Fair 15-14 last Friday to win the Belleville Minor Baseball League bantam semi-finals in two straight games. They now meet Farrells for the city bantam championship in a best of three series.

In the win, B. Cousins pitched for Frid, allowing 14 runs on five hits. Fair went with D. Lopenette who allowed 15 runs on nine hits.

Frid top hitters were J. MacKay with a homer and a single, Cousins, M. Goegan and L. Kirby with a double and a single each, and T. Cowie with a single.

D. Lopezettie led Fair with two singles, A. Wood, B. Coughlin and Beaulieu had singles.

Trouble Spots Show Up In Convention Coverage

NEW YORK (AP)—Television coverage of the Democratic national convention started Monday night an hour before the first gavel fell. The network anchor men could have used even more time to outline possible trouble spots.

The floor reporters, too, could have used more time wriggling through crowds trying to ferret out the size and shape of the "Kennedy" for Senator Edward M. Kennedy.

After the start, NBC and CBS coverage swung almost equally between formal speeches on the podium and interviews with delegations on the floor.

ABC's "unconventional" convention coverage—the 90-minute wrap-up starting at 9:30 p.m. EDT—had trouble wrapping up anything since it ran into Senator Daniel Inouye's keynote speech, which it covered live and thus used up about half its air time.

But when the convention moved on to preliminary skirmishes over suspension of the unit rule of voting, ABC cut to some entertaining feature material.

The best was Fantastical Thebest was its anatomical a Winner Lead the Way, chosen by Hubert H. Humphrey. It's original title, in a Broadway show, was "Please Step to the Rear," but this was abandoned because of its negative attitude. The writer-lyricist himself asked permission to adapt the tune, said the show's producer, David Merrick, who four years ago presented Lyndon B. Johnson with Hello, Dolly!

But even such a simple matter as setting new, appropriate words to a song can present problems and hurt feelings. The author of the officially approved new words, actually slightly revised from the original, was the vice-president's daughter.

But a devoted Humphrey worker, Muriel Nellis, explained on camera that she believed she was the first to suggest adopting the song and that she had written some appropriate lyrics. Lack of recognition plus rejection of her words, she confessed, hurt deeply.

The regular feature of ABC's coverage—the nightly confrontation between conservative William F. Buckley Jr. and liberal Gore Vidal was, as usual, an amusing exchange of snide wit and polite invective. The subject of Monday night's wrangle was to be Senator Eugene J. McCarthy's qualifications for the highest office. But that was quickly lost as the two clever, articulate commentators began to toss barbs at each other.

The most turbulent part of the convention session covered by NBC and CBS swung around assorted challenges to rules and delegates' seats. As some moments the tension and strong feelings engendered could even be felt by the television viewers.

Lee Strasberg's Studio Moves Away From Cloister to Masses

LOS ANGELES (AP)—After 20 years behind Actors Studio's closed doors, Lee Strasberg has emerged from the cloister to spread his method to the masses.

His edict for actors: "You have the emotion. Don't try to act."

Strasberg, 67, tutor of such as Marlon Brando, Shelley Winters, Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward, is the talk of actors in Los Angeles this summer with his master class in acting at the University of California Extension.

Everyone wants to attend. Enrolment soared so high that classes were moved to a movie theatre, and at last count 550 were enrolled. Among them is Miss Winters who returned for a refresher course.

"We did the first seminar in Paris last year," says Strasberg, "and it showed us that people were interested."

"We realized that everyone has spoken about the work except ourselves. There has been confusion. We must get to a state where at least we'll be working from the same facts.

". . . We are trying to show that the method is not just something for today. It's a summation of what actors through the ages have found."

For 20 years Strasberg has taught his acting technique through workshops and private lessons at the New York studio. Myths and a mystique grew around him and the method. Brando's mumble became a symbol.

"This is the first time we are explaining, demonstrating and expounding the method," says Strasberg.

The three-hour seminars begin with a lecture followed by a few students' performances and then Strasberg's criticism. He warns them against aiming for personal knowledge of a character rather than experience.

"Remember the real things that have occurred," he instructs, "and then create real things when they are not there."

"This is the real work of an actor."

Essential to the method is one phrase: "Create your own reality for yourself, not for the audience."

"Don't worry about the effect of what you're doing," says the teacher. "Feel what you're doing.

"Think what you're doing. Know what you're doing. Do it for yourself and not for the impression you might be seeking."

Strasberg says the method's value is not limited to actors.

Seminar students include producers, directors, housewives, social workers, a psychiatrist, a real estate salesman, two topless dancers and a welder.

"I would rather think of it as training for the creative imagination," says Strasberg.

Township Surveys Approved

TWEED — Approval has been received from the ARDA Director of Ontario to conduct a survey in Hungerford and Tyrcdinaga Townships.

This survey will develop information on the number of ranches and pasture farms in the area, and will help determine the needs of the area and much special information is there is among the present owners in doing something to improve pasture conditions.

This interest developed out of the increasing demand for pasture and the fact that many of these ranches and farms are having brush and weed problems. Many of the present owners are attempting to tackle the problem, but in many cases, the type of land prohibits the use of conventional machinery.

Discussions with a number of the ranchers were carried on in the early spring and summer of this year, and, as a result, a proposal was made to the County ARDA Committee to initiate a project. Following this, stage one of the project was approved, and the survey was planned and initiated.

The committee in charge at this stage is comprised of Clayton Hall, ARDA Councellor; Grorer Smith, Weed Specialist; Bill Hearst, Soil and Crop Specialist; Wayne Martin, Associate Agricultural Representative and W. D. Tipper, Agricultural Representative.

Acting on a decision to start work immediately, (July 18 of this year) a questionnaire was developed and R. W. Phillips has undertaken to carry out the actual survey. Mr. Phillips is a teacher and head of the Science Department of Meira Secondary School, Belleville. He is also a graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College"at Guelph, Ontario

Oshawa Ousted By SACO

Belleville's SACO Bantams eliminated their Oshawa counterparts 21-5 in a two-out game of the Eastern Ontario Amateur Softball Association bantam "A" championships this weekend.

The locals had topped Oshawa 8-3 last Saturday for the first win of the best of three series.

This weekend's 21-5 win earned the locals the right to meet the zone winners from Western and Northern Ontario in their next step toward the provincial championship.

The SACO Bantams sewed up the title with 21 runs on 17 hits and four Oshawa errors.

Ted Rexchall, the Oshawa hurler, walked eight while striking out seven Belleville batters in the loss.

McWilliams Family Produces Happiness For Oldtimers at Picton Home for Aged

By DAVID LEES
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — Old age is a frightening thing at times. Perhaps it is fear that turns youth away from the old, perhaps disrespect for maturity that has become senility, or perhaps simply lack of patience for infirmity.

"You have to have a heart for old people, to understand them, or to care for them." Those words belong to Bill McWilliams superintendent at the Prince Edward County Home for the Aged.

Mr. McWilliams is 65. He, and his wife have worked at the home for 15 years. They are responsible for round the clock, 100 per cent care for their 56 charges.

Homes for the aged are not happy places. No-one wants to go to an 'old folks' home. Very few that go have any choice. With no relations left, or at least with none that are willing or able to care, the last resort is the county.

With two strikes already against the home, it is the McWilliams duty to produce some happiness. To a large extent, they, aided by the home facilities, have succeeded.

Recreation facilities at the home are extensive. Piano's play regularly at home parties, craft work takes up the slack time, bus tours are conducted throughout the area, and a pool table, television and radio are available.

Ninety per cent of the residents of the home are unable to take care of themselves said Mr. McWilliams. Old age, strokes and infirmities cripple the vast majority, but not all.

A very old, and very proud lady refused to reveal her age, just as she refused to buckle in it. Her fingers are still young, she triumphantly performs on the home piano ("You were sixteen, my village queen, down by the old millstream.")

She didn't seem ready to be old yet, and protested at being treated as such.

Others at the home, on the other hand, need complete care.

One resident has been at the home since 1914. Originally the building was a home of refuge and he was taken in blind. He is now in his advanced eighties.

The need for a new building has been long recognized by county council. Some eight years ago, tenders were called, for the construction of a new home. All the bids were considered too high and the project was shelved.

George Cunningham, Amelisburg reeve, and chairman of the county home board, says that a new residence is "definitely a possibility."

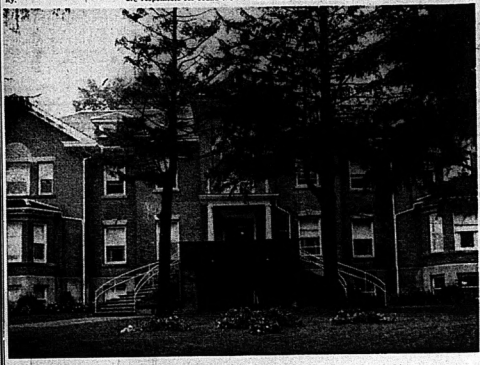
When or how is still unsettled. "All of the councillors are agreed on the need" he said, but added "when can we afford it?"

The present building, is certainly one of thy most beautiful in the county. It was originally constructed in 1905 at a cost of $15,756, and is presently valued at $500,000.

It contains 45 rooms with beds for 64. The average number of residents ranges around 56.

Partial rental at the home is paid by the provincial and federal government with 70 per cent, by the county.

All but $15 is deducted from each monthly pension cheque to help cover costs. In a few isolated cases patients can afford to pay the entire per diem cost on their own.



Earlier this month at county council, it was announced that the rate had almost doubled to $8.71 per day to cover the cost of a sanitary sewage system installed there last year.

Mr. Cunningham said that it was hoped that the rate would be dropped within a year, most likely to about $5.

Piano Expert

Recreation facilities at the County Home for the aged include two pianos. One of them is expertly played by Eva North, who refuses to admit to her age. Her fingers however don't seem to be more than 19.

Beautiful Building

The Prince Edward County Home for the aged is one of the most beautiful buildings in the county. It was constructed in 1905 at a cost of $15,756, and contains 45 rooms.

Belleville Tries Carbon Filters To Remove Odor From Water

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Are carbon filters economically feasible for the removal of objectional odors from Belleville's domestic water supply?

That is the question hoped to be decided by a current testing program under way at the city water filtration plant on Sidney Street.

The test program using pilot carbon filters has been authorized by consulting engineers Gore and Storrie who will prepare plans for the city's new filtration plant addition.

And if the carbon filter treatment proves economically feasible it will be incorporated into the design of the new plant.

E. L. Burnham says the pilot test program is to determine the effectiveness of the carbon treatment of domestic water supply.

The hope would be to reduce objectionable taste and odor to satisfactory levels.

Algae growth in the Bay of Quinte water supply apparently is the cause of most of the bad taste in Belleville water.

The Utilities Commission manager says the algae produces oils which are difficult to remove from the water. The algae can be screened out but the taste and odor resulting from decomposing algae remains.

Carbon filter treatment will remove most of the objectionable taste but it is a costly process.

Under the testing program now under way at the filtration plant water is run through different depths of carbon filter ranging all the way from one foot up to four and five feet.

Carbon is expensive and the cost would be high to install carbon filters a sufficient capacity to supply the city's daily water needs of up to seven or eight million gallons on a hot summer day.

In the meantime the testing goes on with water "sniffing" being an important phase of the operation.

In fact the filtration plant laboratory is a busy spot each day as water samples are put through tests and odor and taste counts carefully recorded.

One thing is known — tastes and odors can be completely removed from the water — but even this can have its drawbacks.

"Actually tasteless water can be objectionable to some people," said Mr. Burnham.

Water Sniffer

Murney Bradshaw, city water filtration plant employee doubles as "sniffer" in an effort to determine degree to which objectionable taste and odor has been removed.

Carbon Filter Test Program

Workers Alfred Rogers and Bill Hallam check test filters at the city's west end water filtration plant. Test program is aimed at determining whether carbon filters can be economically used to eliminate objectional taste and odor from city water.

Laboratory Checking

City water filtration plant superintendent James Scriven sets up plant laboratory for daily round of water tests aimed at improving quality of domestic water. Full time laboratory worker is expected to be hired for the job.

Nine Year Old Youth Missing Near Trenton

TRENTON — The whereabouts of a nine-year old youth who has been missing since 6.03 last night still remain unknown.

Timmy VanSlyke, of Brighton, was reported missing by his father, Harold, and has not been found yet.

The youth is three feet seven inches and has reddish-brown hair. He was last seen wearing blue jeans and a grey coat.

Timmy's bicycle was found in Colborne and police expect him to be in the area. Cruisers have been combing the vicinity with little luck.

Police Lay Charges Following Arrests

City police arrested two men last night after receiving a call to the residence of Johnson Hillier at 287 Canniffon Road.

Peter Gilbert, 33, of Jones St. in Belleville and 42 year old Daniel Joseph Murray of Tweed were placed under arrest by police.

Gilbert was charged with being drunk in a public place and Murray with carrying a concealed weapon.

Police, after searching Murray found that he was carrying a brown handled butcher's knife.

The matter is still under investigation by police.

Mo-Hawks Get Green Light

Directors Appeal to Community for Additional Support

By JERRY HOFF
Staff Reporter

The Belleville Mo-Hawks Senior "A" Hockey Club is solidly on the ice for the 1963-64 season after last night's executive meeting at the Queen's Hotel.

Despite a deficit of more than $3,000 after two seasons of operation, the 14 executive directors of the club decided at the meeting to try it one more year.

As a vote of confidence in the guidance provided the club through its past seasons, Bob Temple was again voted general manager.

Gerry O'Connor was elected president for the season.

At the opening of the meeting, Temple pointed out that the Mo-Hawks were $19,000 in the hole. Temple outlined the debt as follows: $8,500 — accounts payable; $2,100 — bank overdraft; $1,200 — bank loan, and $8,000 back loan on personal note from Temple. The 14 directors of the club for this year contributed a total of $7,000 operating capital for 1963-64.

The big question at the meeting was if the club was in too deep to risk another season which might just see them get in deeper.

At assets, Temple listed the $1,000 bond posted to guarantee the club's performance this year and the equipment, which would leave a deficit of more than $9,000.

"So, gentlemen," Temple said, "we come to a crucial decision."

The question was obviously to go or not to go. The eight directors of the club's 14 attending the meeting voted yes and 'Temple said the others would go with the majority.

All the directors present expressed dissatisfaction with the lack of financial support the community seemed to be willing to offer the team.

"We need more support," said past-president Gord Rollin. "Temple and the present directors can't do it all and the community shouldn't be willing to let them. Lots more people could help, but they were either from personal or political prejudice. This is sports, and personal or political differences have no part in it. Everyone should pitch in to help the community."

Newly-elected president Gerry O'Connor endorsed the comment. "This is a good hockey town," he said. "And someone should support it. But it's not Bob Temple's place to do it on his own as he has been. It's a shame that the men who should be counted on along with us aren't willing to help."

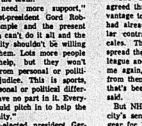
David Kerr, director, injected a bit of optimism into the proceedings when he announced that he had contacted the Toronto Maple Leafs and the New York Rangers about the possibility of an NHL team using the Belleville Seniors as a part of their farm program.

"The officials I talked to agreed that it would be of advantage to their clubs, but they had already entered into similar contracts in different locales. They did promise to spread the word throughout the league and to get in touch with me again, but I haven't heard from them since that time and that's been a week ago," Kerr said.

But NHL help or not, the city's senior hockey club is in gear for 1963-64 with the 14 directors and $7,000 in its pocket. Ontario Hockey Association president Jack Devine however opened a hopeful door to the indebted club when he suggested that it isn't too late to get more directors.

"A lot of people were doubting whether we'd even have a team this year," Devine said. "Now that we're going, I'm sure that most of the directors could approach at least one or two of their friends and talk them into backing the team. People don't want to latch on to a dying horse, but now that we're alive again for sure, it should be easier to get the support needed."

At one point in the meeting, Temple resigned his position as general manager of the team. "Whether through mismanagement, over-management, or under-management, we're now $19,000 in the hole and we need new directors. The old directors have given good response to getting the team on the ice this year despite the deficit, but we've had no response from new directors except Mr. O'Connor. If we are to go on, we need them."



Temple also took exception to an article by Donald Soutter, managing editor, which appeared in the sports section of Monday's Intelligencer.

He quoted the article as saying he — Temple — was "taking the rap for the fans' dissatisfaction with the team."

"I would find this criticism more valid if I had had some say about how the system the team operates under is organized, about the selection of players, and other things directly concerned with play, but I only handle the teams organization and fund-raising and I disagree with the criticism in Mr. Soutter's article.

"I have been associated with sports in this community for the past 16 years for the love of the game," Temple continued, "but 'Dalton Camp' Soutter isn't satisfied. I went into senior hockey not to raise money, but for love of the sport and I don't feel Mr. Soutter is qualified to criticize."

Temple and the directors at the meeting considered writing a letter to the editor of the Intelligencer on the disputed article, but decided to refrain. "The last thing we need," said Gord Rollin, "is a running feud with the newspaper."

Hockey Needs Broad Base

By DONALD SOUTTER

The Belleville Mo-Hawks are off to the hockey wars again this year after a decision by the club's board of directors to carry on for another season.

However, the financial picture was not the rosiest as outlined at last night's meeting at the Queen's Hotel. Yet, despite a deficit of $19,000, the 14 club directors have contributed an operating fund of $7,000 for the coming season and are ready to take another run at providing sports entertainment for the Quinte hockey fan.

Comment made by two of the directors last night are worthy of thought.

"We need more support," said past president Gordon Roblin and he claimed the community shouldn't allow the burden to be carried by one man or a few directors.

He also injected a note of partisan politics in the local hockey scene when he said "this more people could help, but they won't either from personal or political prejudice."

Newcomer Gerry O'Connor, who assumes the role of president, endorsed Roblin's stand by saying "this is a good hockey town but it is not Bob Temple's place to do it on his own as he has been."

Both men are entirely right and the community shouldn't place the onus on one man, even if that man is Bob Temple, who by his own admission has been associated with sports for the past 16 years "for the love of the game."

So let's call to arms has gone out. The public's response should prove an indicator to the directors as to whether their financial involvement is warranted.

Nine TDs on Passes

Tucker Has Comfortable Lead

TORONTO (CP) — Whit Tucker, a rangy flanker with Ottawa Rough Riders, leads the Eastern Football Conference—indeed, the entire Canadian Football League—scoring, with nine touchdowns. And they all came off the pass.

He had twice as many touchdowns, in games up to and including Sunday, as his two closest competitors—Dave Fleming of Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Terry Evanshen of Calgary Stampeders. Only one of Fleming's touchdowns came through the air; all Evanshen's were off passes.

Don Sutherin, Tucker's teammate, is runner-up in the EFC scoring list his 35 points—on five touchdown, 15 converts, four field goals and two singles—is well behind Tucker's 54.

Fleming is leading rusher in the East, his four touchdowns the result of 23 carries for a 6.9 yard average.

Ironically, it isn't Tucker who leads in the pass receiving, it's Bill Symons of Toronto, who has caught 22 passes to 15 for Tucker. The Ottawa player's passes have accounted for 326 yards, however, to 246 for the Toronto Interfielder.

Another Ottawa player, quarterback Russ Jackson, leads in nearly every section of the passing department—105 attempts, 66 completions, for 1,294 yards and a .628 percentage. His seven interceptions, however, make him the most-intercepted quarterback in the East.

Jackson nosed out Toronto's Wally Gabler who completed 56 of the 106 he threw for 867 yards and a .567 average. He had three intercepted.

Jackson threw 13 touchdown passes, Gabler has thrown six. to tie in that department with Carrol Williams of Montreal Alouettes.

Joe Zuger, quarterback for Hamilton Tiger-Cats, has a better kicking average than Dave Manz of Toronto—68 to 67.1— but Mann has kicked more times—37 to 30—and rolled up more punting yardage—1,743 to 1,464.

Dave Lewis, Montreal, who has kicked 24 times, has an identical yardage average to Mann's.

Vic Washington, Ottawa rookie, is the most dangerous kick-off return man in the CFL. He has carried eight times for a total of 374 yards and an average gain of 41.8. One he carried gain f 41.8. One he carried back 104 yards for a touchdown.

Jim Copeland, leads the East in punt returns, 16 for 104 yards and an average of 6.5.

Washington has run back punts only twice and averaged 59 yards.

City Lacrosse Entry Loses Opener to Picton

Wednesday night, at the Belleville Arena, the local lacrosse team will be looking for its first victory in the best of three Quinte Lacrosse League semi-finals against Picton.

Belleville dropped the first game of the series Monday night to Picton 6-2. "They had a lot of big guys on that team and we were just too confident," said a Belleville player. "But we'll get it back Wednesday."

In the Monday night game, Belleville found their only hope in Steve Casselman. The Belleville scorer notched the locals' goals with one unassisted tally in the first half and the other with the help of Joe Weymark in the third period.

One of the double scorers for Picton was Pat Bond who combined with Dennis Howard to score in the first period and with Andy Terwilliger in the second. Terwilliger scored in the first period with the help of Dave Jones and Jones came back in the second to score with the help of Rick Jones.

Fredericks and Terwilliger collected an unassisted goal apiece in the final period for Picton.

Picton will visit Belleville at 8 p.m. Wednesday. The winners of the Belleville-Picton series will meet the Campbellford-Trenton series winner for the league championship.

Bert McQuaid Golf Winner

Bert McQuaid shot the Bacovan Golf Club's course in an 82 to win the third annual CNR "Trainmen's Trek" golf tournament Monday.

McQuaid was awarded the "Gerry O'Connor Trophy".

Place-Kickers Tops in Western Scoring

TORONTO (CP) — Players wanting to bid the Western Football Conference in scoring should learn how to place-kick.

WFC statistics for games up to and including, Sunday show four place-kickers—Bill Goods of Saskatchewan Roughriders, Larry Robinson of Calgary Stampeders, Ted Gerela of British Columbia Lions and Peter Kempf of Edmonton Eskimos—leading scoring. None of the four has a touchdown.

Goods has 39 points on 13 converts, seven field goals and six singles. Robinson has 35 points, Kempf 27, and Gerela, 26.

Ironically, Terry Evanshen of Calgary leads in touchdowns with four and in pass receptions with 30, but lags in fifth place in scoring with 24 points. He has gained 503 yards through the air —most in the West.

Ken Nielsen of Winnipeg Blue Bombers has been the second most effective pass receiver with 25 receptions for three touchdowns. Herm Harrison, a team-mate of Evanshen, has 24 receptions and three touchdowns but has the best average gain—19.4 yards.

Saskatchewan, relying on a ground attack instead of passing, has the WFC's two leading rushers in Silas McKinnie and George Reed.

McKinnie has carried 86 times for 396 yards while Reed has 350 yards on 73 carries.

With targets like Evanshen and Harrison available Peter Liske of Calgary has been the most successful quarterback.

Liske has thrown the most passes, 107, and completed the most, 100.

He also leads in touchdowns thrown, with 14, and in yards gained through the air, with 1,631.

Liske and Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan unhappily lead the WFC in passes intercepted, with eight each. Lancaster is second in the West with five touchdown passes, 139 passes attempted and 879 yards gained.

Pete Ogher of British Columbia has the best completion percentage, .657.

Alan Ford of Saskatchewan is the top punter with 2,192 yards for an average of 45.7 yards. Ed Ulmer of Winnipeg is second with 2,161 yards an average of 44.1. He has the season's longest punt—80 yards.

Larry DeGraw of Saskatchewan has returned 34 punts for 333 yards to lead in both those departments. His average gain is 6.8 yards, only fourth best.

Howie Schlumm of Winnipeg has the best return average—8.4 yards on 22 yards on 81 returns.

Dave Raimey of the Blue Bombers leads in kickoff returns with 395 yards. He also has the longest return—93 yards.

Orioles Can't Push Run Home and Tigers Gain Half Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With the bases loaded in the ninth inning, Baltimore Orioles missed another chance to gain ground on Detroit Tigers Monday night.

Baltimore cut half a game off Detroit's lead when Dave McNally belted a grand slam homer and a scoreless relief job and buried a six-hit 8-2 victory over Oakland Athletics in the opener of a doubleheader.

But with three men on and one out in the ninth of the nightcap, Diego Segui pitched out of the jam to give the Athletics a 2-0 triumph.

Earl Wilson drove in two runs behind his own six-hitter for 5-0 Detroit Tigers' decision over Chicago White Sox.

As a result, Detroit increased its American League lead over the Orioles to 5½ games.

In other games, Boston Red Sox and Jim Lonborg blanked Cleveland Indians 3-0, Minnesota Twins beat Washington Senators 4-2 before losing 1-0 in 13 innings, and California Angels bombed New York Yankees 10-2 after dropping a 6-1 verdict.

McNally won his ninth consecutive game since the All-Star break for a 17-8 record and became the first Oriole to drive in five runs in one game this season.

The first slam of his career—his second homer this season—capped a seven-run explosion in the first inning after Brooks Robinson cracked his 15th homer with a man on. McNally singled home the last Baltimore run in the third as the Orioles won their fourth game in five starts.

Jim Hunter, 11-11, was working on a three-hitter entering the ninth of the second game. He had a 2-0 lead, built when Danny Cater singled home an unearned run in the seventh and reliever Pete Richert baked home a run in the eighth.

When the first two Orioles singled in the ninth, Segui came in and his one-out walk loaded the bases. But this time the Orioles left them loaded as Elrod Hendricks struck out and Dave Johnson grounded out.

Wilson, performing before a standing room crowd of 42,800 in the White Sox' last of nine games in Milwaukee—they won only one—was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded in the second inning. He singled in another run in the seventh.

Wilson evened his record at 11-11 as he ended Detroit's four-game losing streak that had cut the Tigers' lead from 7½ to five games from Friday to Monday.

Lonborg, 4-3, struck out nine for Boston in his first complete game.

Tim Cullen's one-out, run-scoring single off Ron Perranoski gave Washington its split.

Minnesota won the opener with four runs in the seventh inning, the two on Rich Reese' infield dribbler.

Pitt Peterson, 7-9, who had lost six in a row, yielded only four hits and drove in three runs with a double and a sacrifice fly for the Yankees' fifth straight victory and 13th in 16 games.

But Jim McGlothlin, 8-13, backed by a 13-hit attack, drubbed the Yankees in the nightcap with a four-hitter, one of them Bert White's homer.

New York, with a fourth doubleheader in five days scheduled today, used shortstop Gene Michael on the mound in his first major league pitching appearance. He gave up five unearned runs.

Chicago Cubs 3-0; Pittsburgh Pirates blanked Atlanta Braves 4-0 behind Steve Blass; Cincinnati Reds edged Philadelphia Phillies 6-5 and Los Angeles Dodgers shaded Houston Astros 4-3.

McAndrew outpitched southpaw Steve Carlton, 11-9 who took his fourth straight loss.

Tommie Agee led off the eighth with a single and Phil Linz sacrificed. Agee then stole third and flashed home on Jones' fly to right, giving McAndrew the nod.

Perry retired the first 19 batters he faced, gave up a single through the middle by Glenn Beckert in the seventh and then knocked off the last eight Cubs in order.

Willie Mays drove in two runs with a single and his 13th homer, assuring Perry's 13th victory in 24 decisions. Mays also doubled and scored in the ninth as the Giants won for the 12th time in their last 16 starts.

Blass scattered nine hits on the way to his 12th victory against five defeats and the Pirates capitalized on Atlanta errors to pin the loss on Milt Pappas.

Maury Wills singled in the first inning, stole second and continued to third on catcher Joe Torre's overthrow before scoring the only run Blass needed on a sacrifice fly by Matty Alou.

Jim Beauchamp slammed a two-run homer in the fourth inning and drove in the Reds' winning run with an infield single in the seventh, offsetting a grad slam homer by Philadelphia slugger Rich Allen.

Doby Named Montreal Scout

MONTREAL (CP)—Larry Doby, major league star of the 1950s, has been signed as a scout to the still unnamed Montreal National League baseball team, it was announced Monday.

Doby, 44, was the first Negro to join the American League when he signed with the Cleveland Indians in 1947.

Born at Camden, N.J., the lefthanded power hitter had a .283 lifetime average and 253 homers.

He played for Chicago White Sox and Detroit Tigers before retiring from the majors in 1959.

Doby comes to Montreal to join four other talent scouts. He will inspect National League and senior minor teams for the newly-franchised Canadian team.

Casper Still Money Leader

Carmel Peewees Win Opening Game of Series

Carmel - Thurlow's Peewee "C" team took the Thorndill Juvenile Intermediate "C" team 20-5 Saturday in the first of the best of three Ontario Baseball Association peewee quarter-finals.

The two teams will meet next Saturday, in Toronto for the second game of the series with the third game, if necessary, scheduled for Sept. 1, at Carmel. Both games will start at 2 p.m.

Paul McDonnell pitched Carmel to the win while Hugh McMillan took the loss for Thornhill.

Dale Timmon, Cal Bourcoeu, Barry Ray, and Bruce McDonnell hit two safeties apiece in thumpin, as did McDunell, the pitcher. John Masterson added a homer for the winners.

The losing pitcher, McMillan, along with Rick Harris, Gary Smith, and Ian Smith hit two base hits apiece for the losers.

Point Anne Loses Opener

The Point Anne Cementmen softball team dropped the opening game in the Ontario Amateur Softball Association's Junior "B" division playdowns to Cobourg 4-1 Monday night.

Ted Waite pitched for the locals and took the loss by allowing four runs on 15 hits while walking two and striking out six.

B. Kane pitched for Cobourg and held the Cementmen to one run on 10 hits, two walks, and struck out four.

Cobourg picked up three of its four runs in the first inning on a combination of a double, a triple, two singles and a Point Anne error.

Two doubles in the seventh put the team three runs and one game up on the Cementmen in the best of three series.

Point Anne scored its only run when Rick Rosebush reached first on a fielder's choice, then came home on D. Olsen's single and a passed ball.

Top hitters for the Cementmen were Larry Fraser, Dave Aikey, and T. MacDonald with two singles each, Eric Maher with a double, and D. Maher with a single.

P. Harrison led the Cobourg hitters with three singles and a double. The, Cementmen meet Cobourg in Cobourg Sunday for the second game of the series.

Mets Jim McAndrew Finally Wins As Teammates Get Him One Run

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Mets' Jim McAndrew, shut out in his first four major league starts and beaten 13-3 in his fifth try, finally broke the ice Monday night with a 1-0 victory over St. Louis Cardinals.

The 24-year-old right-hander completed a five-hitter against the National League leaders after the Mets broke a scoreless tie on Cleon Jones' sacrifice fly in the eighth inning.

That run gave McAndrew a total of three in his 38 1-3 innings in the majors.

Elsewhere, Gaylord Perry fired a one-hitter as San Francisco Giants trimmed Chicago Cubs 9-3 before 16,000 fans at Candlestick Park.

Willie Mays drove in two runs with a single and his 13th homer, assuring Perry's 13th victory in 24 decisions. Mays also doubled and scored in the ninth as the Giants won for the 12th time in their last 16 starts.

Blass scattered nine hits on the way to his 12th victory against five defeats and the Pirates capitalized on Atlanta errors to pin the loss on Milt Pappas.

Maury Wills singled in the first inning, stole second and continued to third on catcher Joe Torre's overthrow before scoring the only run Blass needed on a sacrifice fly by Matty Alou.

Jim Beauchamp slammed a two-run homer in the fourth inning and drove in the Reds' winning run with an infield single in the seventh, offsetting a grad slam homer by Philadelphia slugger Rich Allen.

Breen Stays Under Par To Capture Atlantic Open

MONCTON (CP) — Kristl Lyn Breen, 1 1-2 months old, should have a sparkling new toy when her father arrives home in Toronto today.

That's what Bob Breen promised her if he won $1,250 first-place money in the Atlantic open golf tournament at the Moncton Golf and Country Club.

The stocky pro from the Pine Valley course at Woodbridge, Ont., fired three rounds of subpar golf here to earn the fattest cheque in the 54-hole tournament.

Breen fired a three-under-par 67 Monday for a three-round total of 201, nine strokes below par and three ahead of his nearest opponent in the debut of the Atlantic Open, the ninth tournament on the 10-leg Canadian professional golf tour.

Beside top money, Breen automatically gained a berth in the tour championships at Woodbridge's Board of Trade club Sept. 12-15 and a crack at the $15,000 prize money at stake there.

Breen, 29, shot a two-under-par 68 Friday to grab a share of first place with Bruce Doble of Worcester, Mass., then opened a three-stroke margin with a torrid 66 Saturday.

Rain soaked the course Sunday, putting the final round over to Monday.

Despite a 67 Monday, Joe Carr of Worcester wound up with a second-place 204 and $750 of the $5,000 purse.

Behind them were Ron LeClair of Poland, Me., and Jay Dolan of Worcester, 207. Both shot 67s on the final day. They earned $540 each.

Moe Norman of Guilford, Ont., came home with a 66 Monday for the round's best card, but scores of 72 and 70 over the first 36 holes left him well off the pace at 208.

Muhammad Ali Refused Exhibition Boxing Licence

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pennsylvania state athletic commission refused Monday to licence former heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali for a one-night exhibition bout in Philadelphia.

In rejecting Ali's application, the commission said it could not grant a licence because Ali, by his own admission, had been convicted for violation of the Federal Selective Service Act in June, 1967.

The commission vote was 2 to 1.

Ali, known as Cassius Clay before turning to the Muslim religion, applied for the licence Aug. 19. He said he had been asked to appear by various Negro organizations in the Philadelphia area, including the Black Coalition and National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Commission members said Harrison Hoffman, a Philadelphia civil rights leader and director of the Black Coalition, had promised to match Ali "with someone of champion status, either a Joe Frazier or a Jimmy Ellis."

Norway First Country To Strengthen Boycott

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Norway's Olympic Committee took a decision Monday night that could lead to a boycott of the Olympic Games in Mexico City.

An announcement made after the committee meeting said that the Olympic committee fully supported the stand taken earlier Monday by the Norwegian Sports Federation to break off all sports relations with the five occupation powers in Czechoslovakia until further notice.

Norway, top nation in the Grenoble Winter Games in February, thus became the first country to threaten to stay out of the Olympics in Mexico City in October if the Soviet Union, Poland, Bulgaria, Hungary and East Germany are admitted.

County Petitions For Reconstruction

TWEED — Lennox and Addington County wants the province to reconstruct a winding 12-mile section of Highway 41, Erinsville and Kaladar.

At the county's regular meeting recently, Reeve Clair Benn of Kaladar, presented a motion to petition the Department of Highways to reconstruct the road "as soon as possible". Reeve Benn's motion described the road as having "poor alignment, inadequate sight distances and low safe speeds."

The 12-mile section is the only unimproved portion of the highway which runs from Napanee north to the Eganville area. For northbound traffic, there are 19 left-hand curves and 16 right-hand curves.

Joey Smallwood Locks Horns With Former Cabinet Minister

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Newfoundland's two most prominent Liberals—aging Premier Joseph Smallwood and a relative newcomer, ex-cabinet minister, John Crosbie—clashed bitterly Monday over which of them will gauge the future of their wounded party.

The second round of their feud, started May 14 when the 37-year-old lawyer crossed the legislature floor in dispute with the premier's leadership, shaped up as the internal Liberal power struggle that some have long predicted would accompany the premier's retirement.

Father of Newfoundland's confederation with Canada in 1949 and premier since then, Mr. Smallwood announced last month he would resign by the end of 1969. He will be 68 in December.

Monday, he unveiled plans for a meeting with 1,200 "active and loyal Liberals" Sept. 28 at Grand Falls, Nfld., to lay foundations for reconstruction of the party after an unprecedented federal election setback in this province June 25.

At the same time, Mr. Crosbie and Gordon Wells, former minister without portfolio who also crossed the floor in May, revealed formation of a movement to seek reform of the party to make it more "free and open."

Mr. Smallwood said Monday night Mr. Crosbie's advice will not be heeded while he remains outside party ranks. And, continued absence would indicate Mr. Crosbie's primary interest was "merely a greedy attempt to grab personal power," the premier said.

Mr. Smallwood, after six of seven Liberal candidates were defeated by Conservatives June 25, said in July he would direct a massive reorganization and rejuvenation of the party before he resigns.

Mr. Crosbie wants a leadership convention this year, if possible, and "no later than the early spring of 1969."

The Crosbie-Wells faction was joined Monday by Tom Burgess, Liberal member for Labrador West and harsh critic of government policy in his riding.

It was reported recently he would cross the legislature floor this month. But Mr. Burgess merely confirmed Monday his affiliation with the new reform movement.

The premier says Mr. Crosbie can return to the party after certain steps are taken. Mr. Smallwood did not reveal the steps but said Mr. Crosbie was "well aware" of them.

Mr. Crosbie said at a news conference he wanted to "make it clear" the reform movement "is not a new party." It had "quite a few members" who would be named later.

United Church Council Convenes at Kingston

KINGSTON (CP) — The General Council of the United Church of Canada begins a nine-day meeting here today that will study most aspects of church activity and elect a moderator to succeed Rt. Rev. Wilfred C. Lokhart, president of the University of Winnipeg.

There are some 420 lay and clerical delegates attending sessions in Sydenham Street United Church.

The council is the senior legislative body of the United Church which, with about 1,600,000 members, is Canada's largest Protestant denomination.

Among major topics on the agenda is union with the Anglican Church of Canada, already agreed to in principle by both churches.

Although the union question is considered important, a church spokesman says the final report of the commission on the church's mission in the 20th century will probably be the topic of greatest interest to clergy and lay people.

The spokesmen says he expects there will be debate at council on the occupation of Czechoslovakia and on Pope Paul's recent encyclical which condemned contraception by artificial means.

The new moderator will be elected this evening. Six candidates, including a layman, are seeking the post.

Enemy Must Be Absorbed

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

If every Communist government were wiped off the face of the earth in a single stroke — the remaining capitalist governments would sooner or later come to blows among themselves.

If every white person were wiped off the face of the earth in a single stroke — the remaining black people and their nations would sooner or later come to blows among themselves.

If the state of Israel were wiped off the face of the earth in a single stroke — the Arab countries would sooner or later come to blows among themselves.

If any living, breathing "enemy" were to disappear tomorrow morning, a new enemy would make its appearance the day after, or the week after, or the year after.

It is hard for contending groups to see this, but it must be seen. Otherwise, by destroying the enemy, we only create within ourselves the precondition for a new enemy.

The living, breathing enemy can only be absorbed, not conquered or destroyed, taken in, not struck down. Changed, as we ourselves change. Otherwise, the vicious circle of history will be unending — or will end when we all perish in the ultimate confrontation.

A few years ago, in a Baptist church in Atlanta, the late Peter Howard said to the Negroes what must be said to all contending groups everywhere in the world:

"Be passionate for something bigger than color. Be passionate for an answer big enough to include everybody, powerful enough to change everybody, fundamental enough to satisfy the longings for bread, work and the hope of a new world that will lie in the heart of the meanest millions of the earth."

Most of all, we must begin to learn the ancient lesson that the only true enemy is within, not without. The enemy is that part within us which makes our differences seem more important than our similarities. This is the human trap almost all of us fall into the trap that makes us act so inhumanly.

If we can mature as a species, add learn to avoid this trap then we can unite against our real and common enemies — ignorance and inequality, disease and decay, flood and famine and pestilence and all the ills that flesh is heir to.

We expend our passion on objects too small, on enemies too temporary, on goals too trivial. We must learn — as our children are beginning to recognize — to become passionate for something bigger than color or creed or geography or ideology or any other partial loyalty that has always seduced man away from largeness of soul. If we can diminish the enemy within us, the enemy outside us will begin to look more like a friend, a neighbor, a brother.

Kennedy Tries Again To Halt Draft Move

Armed Troops Face Hippies

CHICAGO (AP) — About 800 National Guard troops armed with rifles surrounded the Conrad Hilton Hotel early today as 2,500 hippies and anti-war protesters, chased from a park by tear gas, gathered to demonstrate.

The Michigan Avenue hotel, just south of the heart of downtown Chicago, is the headquarters hotel for the Democratic national convention.

Both Vice-President Hubert Humphrey and Senator Eugene McCarthy, the two main contenders for the presidential nomination, have suites there.

James Rochford, deputy Chicago police superintendent, said the guardsmen took over a large share of the hotel duty because many of his police have been on duty 15 to 17 hours and were tired.

He said the 2,500 demonstrators in Grant Park, across the street from the hotel, were breaking the law and disturbing the peace, but he had no plans to move them out in the near future.

The demonstrators, who came to Chicago to "confront the war-makers" according to their literature, had gathered earlier in Lincoln Park for what has become a nightly confrontation with police.

Both Lincoln and Grant parks close at 11 p.m., although neither is fenced and both sprawl over large areas of Chicago.

Police saturated the south end of Lincoln Park with tear gas shortly after midnight to drive an estimated 1,500 people into the streets. But the demonstrators previously had been told that if they were chased out to head for the Hilton, where a small demonstration had been going on since about 9 p.m.

The downtown closed Balbo Drive, which runs through one of Grant's parks to connect lakefront hotel with the lake shore drive, and lined up with their vehicles for at least a mile along broad, fashionable Michigan Avenue, which borders the park.

There were brief intervals of taunting police around the Hilton, although none of the rock-throwing and police car window-smashing that marked the retreat from Lincoln Park.

Mostly, the Hilton demonstrators sang peace and freedom songs, and listened to speakers and folk singers including Peter, Paul and Mary.

Several Vietnam war veterans came to say they felt the war immoral, as did several convention delegates.

Police earlier fired several shotgun rounds in the air to disperse small but angry crowds from where they had gathered after Lincoln Park, about four miles to the north, was cleared. Monday night, police sealed the Hilton's three main entrances and refused to admit anyone who could not produce a room key, or convince them that he belonged there.

The manoeuvres climaxed a day of several protest marches and rallies, including a decidedly anti-war rally in the Chicago coliseum billed as an "un-birthday party" for President Johnson, who was 60 Tuesday.

When the guardsmen began moving in, about 100 spectators including sympathetic delegates and their wives moved across the street to stand with the demonstrators.

The crowd called on hotel guests whose rooms faced the street to blink their lights if they were sympathetic, and at one point it appeared that three-fourths of the windows facing Michigan Avenue were blinking.

The hotel has 27 floors.

Czech Assembly Balks At Ratifying Agreement

PRAGUE (CP) — The Czechoslovak National Assembly today adopted a resolution demanding a firm deadline for the withdrawal of Soviet-led occupation troops and condemning the occupation as illegal.

Informants said the National Assembly also declared it could not ratify the Moscow agreement because it was reached under pressure.

There was no immediate report from a secret meeting of the Communist party central committee on its position on the Moscow accord that continues the occupation and has forced the Czechoslovak regime to halt its liberalizing programs.

But sources indicated that opposition to the terms of the settlement was hardening rapidly despite appeals Tuesday by Alexander Dubcek, the party leader, and President Ludvik Svoboda for Czechoslovak understanding while they work to end the occupation.

Dubcek was expected to address the central committee meeting at the clandestine Communist headquarters.

Reformist sources said that Dubcek has been asked to deny rumors he yielded to Soviet demands to declare the special 14th party congress illegal.

The congress met secretly last week and elected a liberal Central Committee replacing one that still included a strong conservative wing.

Informants said there was growing opinion that Dubcek should be voted out of office if he confirmed the rumor. This could result in two rival central committees with reformists holding membership in both.

Posters appeared in many parts of Prague spelling out the "ten commandments" of passive resistance against the Soviet-bloc occupation.

"We have not learned anything, we don't know anything, we don't have anything, we don't give anything, we can't do anything, we don't understand anything, we don't sell anything, we don't help, we don't betray, and — in big letters — we will not forget anything."

Wave Of Future

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Among mocking posters which adorned Prague's Wenceslas Square today was one in front of a nearby maternity hospital.

"Twelve counter-revolutionaries born here today, send tank immediately," it said.

Backers Asked To End Activity

CHICAGO (CP) — A movement to draft Senator Edward Kennedy for the Democratic presidential nomination grew today but Kennedy asked his political supporters to stop all activity in his behalf.

Kennedy, in a statement issued by his Washington office, said he is holding to his statement of a month ago to stay out of this year's race for vice-president because of personal and family reasons.

"The same decision and the same reasons apply in the case of the presidential nomination," said Kennedy.

Most political pros appeared to be taking Kennedy at his word that he does not want his name offered before the Democratic convention for either president or vice-president.

"I appreciate the confidence and the spontaneous support of my friends in various parts of the country," Kennedy said, but asked them to stop all activity in his behalf.

The senator, last of the Kennedy brothers, has been at the family compound in Hyannisport, Mass., while the convention has been in progress.

There were rumors Kennedy might come to the convention Thursday for the showing of a memorial film in honor of his slain brother, Robert.

The convention will pick its presidential nominee tonight.

Tuesday and today, new elements entered the contest ranging from professional pro-Kennedy signs to the arrival of Stephen Smith, a Kennedy brother-in-law who played a major role in the campaign of President John F. Kennedy and the abortive one of Robert.

The National Broadcasting Co. reported it is convinced that Kennedy "will accept a draft . . . a genuine and graceful draft."

Brother-in-law Smith talked Tuesday night with Senator Eugene McCarthy, Humphrey's chief opposition so far. But McCarthy aides said there was no discussion of McCarthy helping Kennedy or of a Kennedy move toward the presidential nomination.

Fresh talk of a Kennedy draft effort swirled Tuesday after a meeting by California Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh with McCarthy and candidate George M. Gevorkian, senator from North Dakota.

An Unruh aide said the session was arranged to "see whether some common front can be put together in favor of some peace candidate."

It was reported Unruh suggested the two contenders drop out and throw their weight behind Kennedy. There was no indication that they agreed. Nevertheless, California reserved in advance the right to place a name in its nomination on tonight's roll call.

It is hard to believe that at this stage supporters of the senator can fan a Kennedy boomlet into a stampede sweeping aside Vice-President Hubert Humphrey, who has maintained a solid leadership-pace lead despite growing skepticism that he can beat Republican nominee Richard Nixon Nov. 5.

The windy city.

Humphrey Nearly Gets LBJ Nod

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson, while declaring a hands-off attitude toward the work of the Democratic national convention, has moved close to an indirect endorsement of Vice-President Hubert Humphrey.

Meeting with reporters at an informal 60th birthday party here Tuesday night, Johnson said he hoped the views of the Democratic and Republican presidential candidates "will not be to divergent" so the world won't have to wait until the November election to assess the country's future course.

With Vietnam and foreign policy obviously uppermost in his mind, Johnson's statement was widely interpreted as meaning he would prefer a Humphrey nomination—though he had some kind words, too, for the vice-president's principal rivals, Senators Eugene McCarthy and George McGovern.

Republican nominee Richard Nixon is on record with Vietnam views much closer to those of Johnson and Humphrey than either McCarthy or McGovern.

The president passed up a chance to fly to Chicago for a birthday salute at the convention. But he said he might go later—after candidates have been nominated.

Medicare 'No Bargain' - - Dymond

WATERLOO (CP) — Health Minister Matthew Dymond of Ontario says the federal government should help finance provincial health programs instead of spending millions of dollars on the federal medical care plan which came into effect July 1.

"If the federal government has the best interests of all our people in mind they would assist the provinces now by paying 50 per cent of the costs we are expending on essential services for those in need," Dr. Dymond said.

A federal medical plan would provide fewer benefits than the Ontario Medical Services Insurance plan now in effect, and yet be "no bargain" financially.

Dr. Dymond was speaking to 500 delegates at the opening session of the annual two-day convention of the United Senior Citizens of Ontario at Waterloo Lutheran University.

In rejecting the federal health plan, Dr. Dymond reminded delegates that health is constitutionally a provincial matter. A federal undertaking to reimburse provinces 50 per cent of the national per capita cost might mean "43 to 45 per cent of the real cost in our province."

Air Traffic Controllers Sign Contract

OTTAWA (CP) — A contract dispute between the government and 1,000 air traffic controllers has been settled, providing for a five-per-cent wage increase in a two-year contract, it was announced today.

Agreement was announced in a joint statement by the government's treasury board and the Canadian Air Traffic Controllers Association.

It is subject only to a ratification vote by the union's membership, which is expected to be completed by Friday.

Railroad Unions Want $1 an Hour Pay Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's railroads will face a wage-increase demand of $1 an hour this fall when 16 unions begin bargaining for new contracts to replace the three-year agreements expiring at the end of 1968.

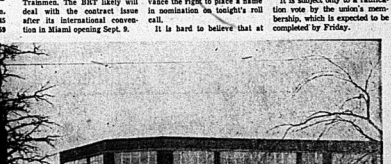
The unions, representing about 90,000 non-operating employees, said the conductors and brakemen, are scheduled to serve their contract demands on the railway companies at the end of October.

Local and regional units now are in the process of writing their demands on wages, working conditions and fringe benefits. These later will be compiled into a national package.

The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, transport and General Workers, one of the major non-operating groups, has already received proposals from its five regional conferences. The wage demands range between 90 cents and $1.50 an hour with an average of $1.15.

The so-called "non-ops" are those railway employees who do not actually run the trains. They include clerks, baggage men, sections gangs, signalmen and telegraphers. Their average wage now is $2.72 an hour.

The seven other non-op unions outside the CBRT will meet in Montreal next month to set up their demands. Negotiators for the non-CBRT unions have called a meeting at Montreal Sept. 23 to put together their requests.



Only operating union involved in this round of negotiations is the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. The BRT likely will deal with the contract issue after its international convention in Miami opening Sept. 9.

Quinte Plants to Expand

Ontario Loans Help Plants Provide Hundred New Jobs

LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

American Optical Company of Canada has been granted a $224,324 forgivable loan by the Ontario Development Corporation to expand its operations here.

The loan will be applied to the total plant extension cost of $815,000.

In making the announcement, Dr. R. T. Potter, Quinte MPP, said 30 new jobs will be created by the plant expansion, and this figure will rise to 70 within five years.

The expanded plant facilities will be used to manufacture bifocal lenses, now imported from the United States.

City officials this morning commended Dr. Potter for his efforts in securing the loan.

Fabricon Manufacturers Ltd. of Trenton also received a forgivable loan from the Ontario Development Corporation totalling $186,611.

The money will be used to help buy and install new equipment to increase production of specialized wire and cable.

Total cost of the installation of new equipment will be $700,000 and should reduce the company's dependence on defence contracts. Seventy-five per cent of the new production is expected to be exported to the United States.

The loan, granted under the equalization of industrial opportunity program, is expected to increase Fabricon's employment from 42 to 117 people.

Trenton Steelworkers Out on Strike

TRENTON — Wage parity with Toronto is the reason more than 100 steelworkers at Central Bridge here have been on strike since 3 p.m. Tuesday.

Jim Boera, picket-line president, said Toronto Ironworkers had obtained a three-year contract in the spring for a raise of 27 to 63 cents an hour.

"The ironworks and Central Bridge are the same company," said Mr. Boers. "We want a proportionate raise to what they got — but we want it spread over two years."

He emphasized the strikers did not seek the same wages as Toronto fellow workers, but only a "proportionate" raise.

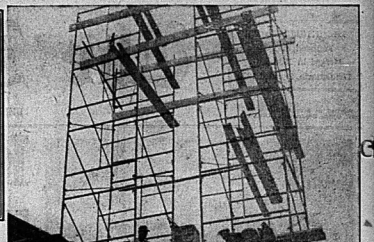
Since the walkout began, the strikers have met nine times with management but with no agreement emerging for the talks.

One striker said an offer of 16 cents over two years was made but rejected.

"We can stay out as long as they want," said Mr. Boers. "We've no intention of settling for less than Toronto."

The men, members of Local 2509, United Steelworkers of America, will receive approximately $18 a week strike pay.

A meeting is planned today between Jim Thompson, Local 2509 president, and management.



Management spokesmen were not available for comment.

Negotiations have been stirring of a settlement in the dispute for several weeks.

Union and company officials have bargained at eight separate sessions before yesterday's walkout.

Central Bridge, a major employer here, was working on a contract to build antennae for the Telstar satellite communications network.

One antenna, destined for Peru, lies in the yards only partially completed. Two others already have been shipped to Brazil and Panama.

Inquest Into Sidney Fatality

Motorcycle Mishaps Too Prevalent: Stock

Accidents involving young motorcyclists are becoming "all too prevalent," Belleville coroner Dr. John Stock warns.

The coroner made the observation last night as he reviewed inquest testimony into a mishap that killed one, youth and injured another.

"Some of the flower of our young manhood are being killed or maimed on those motorbikes every day of the year," he told the inquest jury at Hastings County court house, inquiring into the death of Ronald Geen, 20, of Stirling.

Geen was fatally injured June 5 when his motorcycle collided with a car on Sidney township's fourth concession. He died nine days later in Belleville General Hospital — the aftermath of severe leg and pelvic injuries.

Evidence showed that Geen was on the wrong side of the concession road when the mishap occurred and was struck as he tried to swerve around the oncoming automobile near the crest of a hill.

He was enroute to Belleville with two other young motorcyclists when the fatal accident took place.

Dr. Bruce Morgan said Geen told him later at Belleville General Hospital he had a choice of swerving into his companions or attempting to manoeuvre around the automobile.

He swerved around the car — and the fender caught him in the groin, hurling the motorcyclists and passenger Terry Shorey, 17, of Frankford down a steep ditch.

Shorey, still on crutches from leg injuries received in the mishap, attributed his dead companion's action with saving his (Shorey's) own life.

Otherwise, he told the inquest "we would have both been killed because the car would have hit us headon and we might have hit the other two motorcycles also."

Shorey's brother, Ricky, 18, thought the automobile was "coming extremely fast for the condition of the road" although he had little time for observation as the car broke over the hill.

The third motorcyclist, Gordon Wayne Garrison, 18, of Frankford believed the car also was travelling "extremely fast" for road conditions.

The cyclists were doing 12-20 miles-an-hour at the time and Geen would have been able to see Shorey from the automobile when it suddenly appeared over the hill.

The inquest was delayed when the coroner learned the car driver, Edward Cairns, 27, of Stirling, had mistaken the date of the hearing and was in Richmond Hill.

Dr. Stock adjourned the hearing an hour to give him time to appear, after the man was contacted by provincial police.

In his testimony, Mr. Cairns said he was travelling about 40 miles-an-hour on the gravel road — which has a speed limit of 50 miles-an-hour.

"I'm scared of gravel roads — they're skiddy," he added.

Dr. Stock said witnesses had agreed the dead youth had been on the wrong side of the road and "this probably is the crux of the whole affair."

Geen's companions had testified the automobile was travelling at an excessive speed.

But, cautioned the coroner: "In my opinion it would also be very difficult for the motorcyclists to gauge the speed of this oncoming car when they only saw it momentarily before the impact."

The jury, after weighing evidence 45 minutes, ruled no blame could be "attached the driver on the evidence presented."

It recommended improvement of the road at the scene.

Keegan Presents Brief

The Ontario Housing Corporation should be given expropriation powers — as a "last chance to guarantee reasonably-priced homes against extensive land speculation, a Belleville alderman urges.

The warning is contained in a brief presented by Ald. Arthur Keegan to the Ontario Housing Corporation convention at Waterloo.

"I suggest this would be the last chance for reasonably-priced homes in Ontario," the city councillor told the convention. "And if the government fails to act quickly and decisively that last chance will be gone also. Reasonably-priced homes for working people would be finished."

The OHC should be authorized by the legislature to expropriate land where needed by residential construction.

The Keegan brief suggests expropriation be based on prevailing market prices with an additional 10 per cent to the landholder "if necessary."

"As an example, considerable land was bought inside and outside of Belleville for $1,000 per acre," said Ald. Keegan. "This (expropriation authority) would prevent the owners from doubling or tripling the price."

Land thus expropriated could be used only for OHC development and local bylaws would be needed to prevent an misuse of authority by the corporation.

Ald. Keegan also called for an amendment to assessment legislation which would allow real assessment of vacated farmland within urban municipalities.

"In many cases land within the city is assessed as farm land, but has been purchased by developers or speculators who do not farm the land and are keeping . . . (it) for residential or industrial purposes," he said.

Assessors are hampered by lack of proper regulations.

"I can see no way to assist the assessor. . . . under the Minister steps in and orders the planning board in the area to zone the whole area for specific use. . ."

Senior government must closely confer with municipal authorities on housing locations, Ald. Keegan urged.

Lightning Damage Repaired

Bricklayers are hard at work rebuilding a 30 year old chimney at the city water filtration plant which was struck by lightning some weeks ago. Lightning split the chimney causing loose bricks to fall on the plant roof.

PUC Now Big Business Compared to Early Days

Supplying Belleville homes, stores and industry with daily electrical requirements is "big business" for this city's public utilities commission.

This year revenue in the electric department of the PUC will top the two million dollar mark — an increase of more than $152,000 over 1967 and more than 10 times what it was back in 1929 when the population was 14,589.

In the year prior to the war the electric department revenue was only $180,400. Twenty years later — in 1958 — population had increased to 28,032 while revenue had jumped to $701,274.

This year revenue will jump to over $2,000,000 and with the addition of new industries and the expansion of existing ones, the utilities commission is looking forward to continued growth in its electric department.

During the first six months of this year, the commission paid Ontario Hydro a total of $676,837 for power, an increase of about $63,000 over the same period last year. Part of this increase is the result of higher rates paid by the commission for power.

In a report to city hall covering the first six months of 1968, the PUC notes that the "all - electric" home, a rarity only a few years ago is now quite common.

As of April 30 this year the city had 216 single family homes electrically heated and an additional 208 multiple units electrically heated.

The report said that nearly all new apartment buildings being erected in the city are now electrically heated.

During the first six months of the year, the commission made good progress in its street lighting installation program. A sum of $45,000 had been budgeted for this purpose and by the end of June $27,464 of this amount had been spent, with 25 items out of 36 in the year's program having been completed.

Outstanding items left at that date were in the St. Paul Street area and reducing the light spacing on such streets as Canniffon Road, North Front Street, Dundas Street, West and Sidney Street. Completion of these items means that lights on these streets will be spaced at about 100 feet.

Also this year the PUC will install lights on the south service of the new CPR overpass. Eight 400 watt mercury vapour lamps on concrete poles with aluminum brackets will be installed at a cost of about $5,200.

Strike Talks At Standstill

Strike negotiations have come to a standstill in Picton. No date or arrangements have been made for negotiations between striking IUE members and Proctor-Silex.

The plant manager said that the next move must come from the company's main offices in Toronto.

James Donofrio, international representative of IUE, was more pessimistic. In light of the unanimous refusal accorded last week to the latest company offer the next offer will be slow to arrive.

He said that at negotiations last Wednesday company officials stated that their offer was the highest possible. "Failure to accept," they warned would result in a "long and drawn out strike".

The offer that was made was impossible to accept said Mr. Donofrio. He reaffirmed the union's stand "We are going to stay here until these people get what they need."

A. F. (Ted) Mandy was the guest speaker at last night's meeting of citizens interested in the development of downtown Belleville. Seated on his right is local president Ben Corke and Alderman Douglas Boyle.

Downtown Area Important Says Mandy

"The downtown association should carry on a love affair with the public" A. F. "Ted" Mandy told a dinner meeting of downtown merchants and interested citizens last night.

As manager of the successful Hamilton Downtown association Mr. Mandy said that the objectives of an association are "more than sales."

Poor parking, bad lighting, litter and dirty streets all have to be taken care of, according to the speaker, and it is the downtown merchants association responsibility "to promote the health and economic development of the core area as well as the growth and development of the whole city."

"With detailed programs of revitalized action" Mr. Mandy stated that a "better relationship with the public could be reached."

As for the importance of the downtown area Mr. Mandy stated that although they occupy only one per cent of a city's area they pay anywhere from 10 to 25 per cent of the taxes.

Instead of bowling the blues about this situation Mr. Mandy said merchants ought to let the people know the facts and then, he said, merchants should get on the leadership bandwagon.

Referring back to his own community, Hamilton, he pointed out that the Downtown Association was responsible for the formation of the Parking Authority as well as an Urban Renewal committee.

Promotions are important too," said the speaker, "as long as they have a theme or purpose" and are not held too often.

"You want people walking and enjoying themselves in the downtown area,"

As for membership Mr. Mandy stated it "should include everyone with an interest in downtown Belleville."

In his membership list everyone from lawyers to banks and sign companies, beer and liquor salesmen, landowners and construction firms was included.

And running the association should naturally be its members, with strong committees.

"Use the experts in your own body" he told the group of businessmen and give the organization the support it needs to succeed.

Association Needs Money Corke Tells Businessmen

The rejuvenated Downtown Businessmen's Association in Belleville were told last night by their new president, Ben Corke that "the sad part of the story is money."

"This is nonsense," he told them, "to spend $25,000 to $75,000 on our stores and then talk about $25 for the association."

"Six of us are pledged for $500," he told the group and it is going to take a lot more than that for the association to accomplish its purpose.

To raise the money, Mr. Corke said the best way was to bill the store owners on a footage basis.

On this basis, he continued, "we should get $17,000 . . . but we won't get it."

Sights were set at $2,000 and Mr. Corke said that all downtown locations would be billed on footage during the next few weeks.

"We're hoping everyone will pay his share," he said.

Christmas lights, the Santa Claus Parade, the Sidewalk Sale, administrative help, a fall promotion and other expenses were listed by the president to give an idea of where the money would be spent.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Corke pointed out money has already been spent on the Christmas lights and the sidewalk sale.

Bills will be going out for $5 a foot of frontage.

About 100 businessmen ate dinner in the Hotel Quinte's Pinnacle Room last night to hear A. F. Mandy, manager of Hamilton's Downtown Association, as well as Ben Corke and Fred Deacon talk on subjects concerning the downtown area..

Aldermen Douglas Boyle welcomed Mr. Mandy to the city on behalf of the mayor and also acknowledged leading representatives of Walker's Department Stores who had come down from Toronto for the meeting.

Magic Circle Plan Looks to Future

After 35 presentations of the "Magic Circle" program in the last year and a quarter Fred Deacon, on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce, gave Belleville downtowners a look into the future last night.

"Urban renewal is on its way," reported the head of Deacon Bros, Ltd.

And if you only believe half of what you see and none of what you hear Mr. Deacon told people to look at the Dundas St. bridge.

He also pointed out that council has passed the necessary by-laws for the application of a study to be made for the development of downtown Belleville.

Seventy-five per cent of the cost of preparing plans will be borne by the senior levels of government, stated Mr. Deacon, and the study will cost a total of $81,900.

June 21st, 1969, should see the plans ready at the town planning firm.

Mr. Deacon also commented on the necessary need for more parking and suggested that the city rebate parking lot taxes to the authority in order to allow it to expand.

Also suggested by Mr. Deacon was that the parking authority be allowed to keep the fines collected.

These two sources of extra revenue would allow the Parking Authority to expand and provide more space.

Mr. Deacon also referred to the recent problems with the planning board and Sidney township.

"Problems in Sidney must not take time from Belleville's planning," he said, and recommended that the city obtain a competent replacement for Planning Director John Beavis.

It is a loss to Belleville that Mr. Beavis has seen fit to leave his position, said Mr. Deacon.

City Schools Could Become Recreation Centres After Class

Should city schools become community centres after students leave at 4 p.m.?

About 25 people debated the question last night at a public meeting at Loyalist College. Quinte Arts Council was co-sponsor for the showing of a film on the way schools in Flint, Michigan, are utilized as centres for total community involvement in social, cultural and sports activities.

The group concluded that more communication was needed in Belleville between using facilities for leisure time activities.

Bay of Quinte District High School Board chairman James Clarke cited the branch library opposite Moira Secondary School as an example of lack of co-operation between community agencies.

"A branch library building was built opposite a school which has inadequate library facilities," he said. "Had the library board and the school board got together, the library might have been put into a school extension, with a big saving to both boards and better facilities for the community."

The recently built fair grounds recreation building was referred to several times by various members of the audience as "$100,000 of waste", whose expense might have been avoided had the parks and recreation boards worked together with school boards to utilize existing gymnasia.

An unidentified man from Napanee told the audience: "Division is one of your big problems. Make your recreation director responsible to the school board."

"What are the social, cultural and recreational needs of your community?" he asked. "Have you taken a survey?"

"Part of the educational program is filling leisure time helping people to live in a complex community," replied Mr. Clarke. "We will have to learn to plan ahead to provide leisure-time activities before people come face to face with the need and are unaware of what to do about it."

The suggestion was made that the new county - wide school board hire a recreation director to plan maximum efficiency in the use of school facilities throughout Hastings County.

JAMES CLARKE

A Corbyville man charged the public with apathy in making use of recreational facilities and existing programs.

"People would not use an open school program", Ronald Vanderveide claimed.

The meeting closed with the decision to ask the newspaper to list available activities in a regular column, and to work through present boards and organizations to promote co-ordination and co-operation in planning buildings and programs.

Student Loans

There is plenty of evidence these days that the government pays only lip service to the necessity of making economies. For all its protestations that no more personnel are being hired the government remains the nation's largest employer. Governments organizations such as the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation continue to use up huge sums of money — taxpayers' money.

At the provincial level the story is the same, as Quinte MPP Dr. Richard Potter has pointed out. Dr. Potter told student Conservatives in Toronto at the weekend that some students lie to obtain loans.

Cheating of course is an old problem among students. In exams for instance. Fortunately they are in the minority. Nevertheless, here is a disturbing new variation of the problem that not only impairs the image of students at large but costs the taxpayer more of his hard-earned dollars.

The cases cited by Dr. Potter sound incredible, but there they are — a student from a wealthy family who makes $1,500 a year from investments, yet has received a $4,100 grant from the government to finance his education; another who used an Ontario government grant to buy a new car last year and is using another grant this year to tour Europe (at least that should be educational), and a third case of a girl student whose grant went toward the purchase of a hi-fi set.

Education Minister William Davis has been quoted as saying that student loan procedures have been tightened considerably in recent months. This is all to the good but the cases cited by the Quinte member indicate that some degree of laxity remains.

Dr. Potter believes the appointment of students to the board that administers the fund would help to end such abuses. We hear more and more these days about the need for such representation, and this seems like a good place to start.

Generous Government

Speaking of loans to students, it is amazing how generous a beneficent government can be.

For instance, a University of Alberta sociologist is currently in the middle of a one-year study of the accessibility to higher education in relation to parental income. In other words he is finding out who gets into Canadian universities and why.

To carry out his task Robert Pike, 31, has had made available to him a grant of $40,000 — yes, five thousand dollars — by the federal state secretary's department. He is making the investigation for the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada.

At least, Mr. Pike has come up with some useful findings and suggestions. He says most students and parents are aware at the high school graduate and miss a big problem area, the student who drops out of high school.

Universities, he adds, show a preponderance of students with parents in the middle income levels. Many children of working class parents have dropped out before completing high school.

Certainly there is a continuing need to encourage all students to remain in school, particularly those who show ability. Possibly the greatest need is the fostering of interest in Canada and in the world at large. The quality of "awareness" is the one young people must cultivate more than any.

People Who Stare

Two young Welsh sisters visiting Hamilton apparently have been creating quite a stir with their miniskirts, which in Britain tend to be even briefer than they are on this continent.

The girls have been quoted as saying they like Canada but "people stare so." Well the girls from Wales are not the first to have observed this phenomenon. They are referring of course to the Canadian male who, women from overseas have been known to complain, do stare. But oddly enough if you look at all foreign, these women say they also get strange looks from their own sex. We have always believed it is rude to stare at people, although if a person has good looks stares are inevitable and in a sense are a compliment.

As a form of retaliation — or perhaps they are catching the bug — the sisters have taken to staring back. Catching their eye in particular are men in Bermuda shorts, something apparently they had not observed before. One of them has even found a boy friend — but he is a Scot!

De Gaulle Misjudges Kremlin

Soviets Blunt French Notion of East-West Detente

By STEPHEN BROENG

PARIS (AP) — The Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia has fallen like a hammer blow on President de Gaulle's courtship of the Soviet and their allies in the name of "detente, entente and co-operation."

Moreover, it blunts his offensive to pry the Americans out of Europe, a high-priority objective of his political strategy.

French government officials seek no effort in private to disguise this. One confided: "Our whole European policy seems to have been put in question overnight."

The starting point of de Gaulle's pursuit to unite Europe under French leadership was the notion that the Soviet Union no longer a threat to Western Europe, was willing to accept the supression of nationalism within its own security system.

The French president has preached the lesson that the Soviet Union had discarded the remnants of its Stalinist past.

"The speak today of the cold war is laughable," he declared in 1966.

Earlier that year, he told the Soviet Union during a state visit to the U.S.S.R.: "I have confidence in you. You are on the right track. Keep it up."

His critics in the West, including some in France, felt de Gaulle's confidence had been misplaced. While many shared his desire to see dissolution of the two power blocs in Europe, they faulted him for overestimating the pace of liberal evolution that had taken place in the East.

With more than a touch of regret, this criticism was implicitly acknowledged Saturday in a government communique which bore de Gaulle's imprint.

"The government of the Soviet Union until recently appeared to have committed itself, to detente," it said.

The appearance of a non-interventionist Soviet Union is essential to de Gaulle's European policy.

The more relaxed the Soviet Union shows itself, the less American presence in Europe seems needed, and the greater the prospects for Paris to profit from the loosening of the bonds uniting the Western camp.

Conversely, the Western allies —especially the West Germans, who otherwise might be tempted by de Gaulle's offer of a Paris-Bonn axis—tend to close ranks around the United States when the Soviet Union shows its teeth.

Despite what informed sources describe as "extreme disappointment" in Moscow, de Gaulle's advisers because of the Czechoslovak affair, the government proclaimed Saturday that "France is not modifying its political line."

"You cannot expect a major policy reassessment in Gaullist France," these sources said.

What is more likely they added, is that a trend toward a more conservative foreign policy, started after the uprising of the French left last May and June, will be emphasized.

One immediate consequence, they said, has been the scrapping of French plans to give some sort of de facto recognition to East Germany.

Another possible outcome, they said, would be for de Gaulle to reconsider postponing France's option to quit the North Atlantic Treaty Organization next year. De Gaulle was firmly decided, until recently, to leave the alliance, they asserted, France pulled out of NATO's integrated military command in 1966.

Aid Program Abroad Task For Pearson

Montreal Gazette

The appointment of Lester Pearson as chairman of an international commission to examine foreign aid programs under the sponsorship of the World Bank is a tribute to the reputation which the former prime minister has as one of the most accomplished diplomats of his age.

The commission which he heads will be examining solutions to what many international statesmen feel is the most pressing problem of this age — the problem of bridging the widening gap between developed and developing countries.

A Climate of Inflation

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste

We are living in a climate of inflation. If anyone thinks he can escape it, he unaffected by price increases, he is quite obviously deluding himself. He is ignoring the universality of the problem — inflation spares no sector of living.

The cost-of-living index is a barometer of this. Month after month, we hear the same refrain. The increases to be seen on the index are not fractional ones. And if it should be down in one area, it balances things out usually by climbing in another. . . .

The cost-of-living index, such as it is measured by the federal bureau of statistics, does not come close to covering all factors. It only deals with the principal, observable factors. Meanwhile, secondary influences, influences that can be detected only with difficulty, escape our attention and do not play a part in the calculations aimed at determining the cost-of-living index.

The index is necessarily approximate, and it is hard for it to be anything else. It is rather a point of departure from which we explain why our wallets are thinner. . . .

If we want to escape from that illusion mentioned above, we must not forget that if there is "a cost-of-living index" there is also another important factor which must be taken into account—our "standard of living."

It is by studying the cost-of-living index in light of our standard of living that we may understand more perfectly just what the federal statistics mean. . . .

Strikes Last Too Long

Montreal La Presse—First there was the postal strike, then walkouts in the fields of transportation and alcohol and grain handling. Tomorrow it might be the schools, the CBC or the hospitals, etc. etc.

But what is more striking than the variety of sectors affected by strikes is the length of today's work stoppages. The postal strike lasted too long to make up for the number of advantages it brought to the workers concerned. Nevertheless, postal rates will increase and everybody pays. . . .

Japs Court Strikes Blow For the Common Man

Christian Science Monitor

Buichiro Takagi of Fukuoka, Japan, has won a 20-year case from the Chikuho Bank, whose five-storey building deprived his home of sunshine, thereby causing him "much spiritual pain and suffering".

This is an admirable court decision because it takes into account something which is increasingly overlooked or disregarded in modern life. This is the human right to peace, to enjoy the tangible and intangible bounties of an all-generous Providence.

More and more, human selfishness, thoughtless disregard for the rights of others, commercial presumption and just plain overcrowding infringe upon the human right to peace, to quiet, to the unhampered enjoyment of beauty.

The invention of the transistor radio ruins the peace of many a once-quiet beach. The development of tilt-shift lenses, rather than returnable bottles, clutters the countryside. Noisy insistence upon speed-in music in stores, eating houses and even on elevators threatens to make life tenser through adding one more jarring element in the ear.

There never was a more strained nor nervous period in human history. Medicine need quiet contemplation. They need the renewal which comes from an uninhibited enjoyment of nature. They need the opportunity to draw strength and calmness from the ever - available evidence of a higher sense of existence. One of the great goals of the future will be to re-win man's right and opportunity to personal peace and quiet.

Noisy World

Owen Sound Sun-Times

It is unfortunate that so many items in modern society are noisy, do, in fact, infringe on the right of the masses to a reasonably quiet world. This is particularly true in summer resort areas where people go for rest, relaxation and general "recreation." Quite frequently the reverse is true from periods spent at such places.

There are quite reasonable laws regarding mufflers for automobiles. Others motorized equipment, motorcycles, high powered power boats, miniature car pits, sound machines of various types are allowed to make so much greater and more obnoxious noise without any recourse to the law.

As a result many resorts have been turned into noise making areas akin to the planks throughout most of the day and large part of the night.

Output Per Man-Hour Down

Unemployment Consistently Higher Than Predictions

By JAMES NELSON
(Second in a series)

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's labor force has grown faster, but its output per man-hour worked has grown less in the last five years than the Economic Council of Canada said would be needed if the country is to reach the fullness of its potential by 1970.

Unemployment has consistently run far ahead of the council's economic goal of not more than three per cent of the labor force looking for work.

While productivity rose above the council's projection at the middle of the decade, it now is not expanding as much as the council wished, and this slack is showing real concern for the future.

When the council was set up in 1963 it was asked for advice on how Canada could achieve full employment and a high rate of economic growth, along with reasonable stability of prices, a viable balance of international payments, and an equitable distribution of rising incomes.

Projecting the size of the labor force was not difficult. As a council member said at the time: "The people in the labor force in the late 1960s and 1970s are already here. Now, They are in school and they'll be graduating or leaving school to go to work as the years pass."

The population statistics and the post-war baby boom meant, even with limited immigration, the addition of over 1,000,000 persons to the labor force between 1963 and 1970. This is unprecedented, and means that Canada is moving towards one of the highest rates of labor-force expansion in its entire history.

There were 6,745,000 Canadians in the labor force in 1963, and this was expected to grow to more than 7,833,000 by 1970. According to the council's projections, the labor force this year would be 7,320,000—and in May it was 7,870,000.

It has thus already reached nearly the goal set for a date 8 months hence.

The council predicted that the largest growth in the labor force would be in the younger age group, aged 20 to 24. It was expected to increase by one-third between 1963 and 1970, and by 57 per cent for the 1960s as a whole.

This has proved to be the case, with large numbers of students leaving school this spring to become active participants in the labor force. It has also been the case that unemployment this summer was greatest among this group.

"Full employment," one of the council's key objectives is, Canada, is something that economists say can never really be established in a free market economy with no regimentation, there are always people moving from one job to another, or temporarily unemployed because of technological change.

Canada's performance has been very wide of the mark set by the council. Unemployment averaged 5.5 per cent of the labor force in 1963, and 3.6 per cent in 1966. It dipped below three per cent in August, September and October, 1966, and again in August, 1967.

But in the first three months of this year, unemployment was more than six per cent of the labor force, and on a seasonally-adjusted basis in June this year it was 5.3 per cent.

Achievement of potential productivity would require an advance in output per man-hour of three per cent a year, and in output per person employed of 2.4 per cent a year over the period from 1963 to 1970, the council said.

Engineer Says Gas Line Can't Be Completed by November

WASHINGTON (CP) — A Northern Natural Gas Co. engineer Tuesday challenged Great Lakes Gas Transmission's assurance that it could complete work on its $212,000,000 natural gas pipeline by Nov. 1.

Russell K. Penrose said that on the basis of his two-day study, by low-altitude flight over the line and on-the-ground investigations, he calculated that the line could not be completed until Dec. 4, or later.

Another Northern witness before the Federal Power Commission, Reeco LoChiano, vice-president of engineering and research, offered support for Northern's contention that it could provide an alternative source of gas to Trans-Canada Pipe Lines this winter in amounts up to 200,000,000 cubic feet a day.

Trans-Canada, joint owner of Great Lakes along with American Natural Gas Co. of Detroit, had said that even if Northern could provide such an amount it would not be sufficient to meet the needs of Eastern Canada. It says that the full 426,00 0 00 cubic feet a day of additional gas required by Canada and Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., could be provided by completing the Great Lakes line.

Penrose said his calculations included past construction progress, monthly mean rainfall and other factors.

If crews worked a seven-day week, with extra men on Section 3—a "serious bottleneck in the construction lines"—the job could be completed by Dec. 4, he estimated. Working a seven-day week utilizing only the existing work force, the date would be Jan. 17, he estimated.

A Great Lakes spokesman testified Monday that the job would be completed Nov. 1. The 337 - mile line from Farwell, Mich., to St. Clair, Mich., has been completed and the larger section between Emerson, Man., and Farwell, is under construction.

Northern, which had competed with Great Lakes for FPC permission to build the line, later went to the U.S. Court of Appeals which on June 21 ruled that the FPC should give further consideration to its award of the permit.

Northern argues that the court's decision means Great Lakes should not start construction until the issue is resolved but the court left that up to the commission.

Other witnesses Tuesday included Edward Leaudy, vice-president of Union Gas Co. of Canada, Ltd., Chatham, Ont., who said that on the basis of contracts for the supply of gas through the Great Lakes line his company approached potential customers. "If we now were to have to tell them that we could not supply them with gas this coming contract year," he said, "we would lose most of this potential load for the foreseeable future."

Adolph M. Hove, senior vice-president for Northern and Central Gas Corp. Ltd., Toronto, said his company spent about $2,000,000 in preparation for natural gas service commencing this fall in Sault Ste. Marie and "we have entered into the largest gas expansion program ever carried out in the Quebec area." He added:

"We rely entirely on Trans-Canada for our gas supply and have no alternative sources whatsoever. The situation this winter could be catastrophic for our customers and our company if Great Lakes were not permitted to complete its facilities."

LoChiano's proposal was that Great Lakes complete its line from Emerson to Duluth, Minn., where it crosses Northern's existing system. There Great Lakes would transfer daily to Northern 200,000,000 cubic feet of gas which Northern would absorb into its markets in the area.

LoChiano said that a like amount then would be moved east to Michigan Wisconsin Pipe Line Co. which, in turn, would make a similar amount available to Great Lakes at Farwell. Great Lakes would transport the gas to Trans-Canada at Sarnia, Ont.

Trans-Canada has charged that this scheme is based on the "wholly unrealistic" assumption that Northern and Michigan Wisconsin could install a major pipeline and compressor facilities which would be required, they say, to provide needed gas to Eastern Canada during the 1968-69 year.

Stock Market Boiling

Oil Shares Increase Following Discovery

TORONTO (CP) — The shares of at least 11 oil and mining companies with property in the Canadian Arctic Mackenzie delta area have shot up on the Toronto Stock Exchange following an assessment of the rich oil discovery at Prudhoe Bay, Alaska, by Atlantic Richfield of Philadelphia and Humble Oil of New York.

Although there has been no positive strike announced on Canadian territory, the stock market has been boiling in anticipation of a similar find.

The Alaska strike was known in petroleum circles for more than six months, but it only became a public sensation in the middle of July when DeGolyer and MacNaughton, a Dallas firm of oil consultants, estimated the recoverable reserves at between 5,000,000,000 and 10,000,000,000 barrels.

This compares with about 2,000,000,000 for Occidental Petroleum's Libyan desert strike last year, rated then as the largest single find made by an oil company.

A New York oil stock analyst who is also a geologist says the geological significance of the Arctic regions for both oil and metals has been mistakenly overlooked until now.

"This discovery has brought the point home, and will open the door to a vast and fabulous play stretching from Alaska cross the Canadian Arctic,"

Behind the ceaseless search for new fields are several pressures which dominate the oil industry.

Although experts estimate that the world's proven reserves would last until the year 2001, and although the amount of oil discovered all is increasing annually at a swifter rate than consumption, exploration is seldom been more active.

Analysts say the indefinite closure of the Suez Canal is the major spur at the moment, and political conditions in the Middle East—which holds almost two-thirds of known reserves—have made the discovery of new wells essential.

The giant oil companies exist competition, and industry observers say a share in the North American producing areas is becoming vital to survival.

Although Canadian Arctic results are still in the future, people have already taken a look. A hole drilled two years ago by British American Oil on Richards Island in the Mackenzie delta yielded slight indications of both oil and gas, but it was not reported as a big find.

The site is shared with Shell Canada and Imperial Oil, and the latter plans to drill two holes in the area this winter. One of these will be in the delta on the same joint-venture basis.

Dome Pete was unsuccessful several years ago in the Arctic islands, as was Imperial with an inland probe 100 miles up the Mackenzie.

On hie exchange, Dome Pete is up to $72 from a 1968 low of $45.50, Imperial to $77.25 from $58, Shell to $31.75 from $25.50 and B.A. to $45.50 from $34.25.

The profits of all four have risen steadily over recent years, and analysts are not yet predicting what a discovery would amount to in terms of dividends or share price.

However, smaller companies with northern permits could acquire entirely new dimensions.

These include Ranger, which has gained $3.10 to $6.25; French Petro, $2.60 to $4.50; Western Decalta, $2 to $4.50; Numac, $3.65 to $7.75; and Great Plains Development, 7 to $21.75.

Bow Valley has climbed $15.25 to $24.25 and Yellowknife Bear $4.25 to $7.95. Pacific Pete, Scurry-Rainbow, Alminex and Chieftain Development, have not reacted as sharply, despite Arctic interests.

Connected industries also hope to benefit from exploration. Nabors Drilling has risen to $7 from $4.20 and Kaps Transport to $12.25 from $5.25.

Some of the would-be Arctic explorers have reported declining profits. In 1967, Yellowknife Bear made $56,339 compared with four times as much the previous year and almost six times as much in 1965.

Western Decalta's earnings slipped to $566,728 in 1967 compared with $858,359 four years earlier, and French Pete's results were down to $658,399 last year from $805,055 two years before.

On the rising trend, Bow Valley's profits have crept up steadily to a peak of $1,291,548 in 1967, and Great Plains Development's rose similarly to $1,274,141.

$3,750,000 Neon Note Disclosed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Neon Products of Canada Ltd. disclosed Tuesday it had to obtain a waiver from the holder of a $3,750,000 promissory note before undertaking its current program of skimming.

The 7¼-per-cent note, renewable at $250,000 a year to 1981, was held by Prudential Life Insurance Co. of America, Neon President James A. Pattison said.

The note was mentioned in financial statements in Neon's annual report. The takeovers by voting acquisition of Overwaitea Ltd., the Northern Paint Co. Ltd. and G. J. Liebich (Canada) Ltd.

The agreement for the promissory note contained a restriction prohibiting Neon from "acquiring control of companies carrying on business dissimilar to that carried on by the company."

Other terms, now being negotiated again, require Neon and applicable subsidiaries to maintain consolidate working capital of $2,500,000 and set limits on dividends payable from April 30, 1968.

At April 30, 1968, working capital was $5,280,000. The dividend restriction, to $200,000 plus 70 per cent of consolidated earnings, did not affect $820,000 in consolidated retained earnings.

The report also showed Mr. Pattison was granted an option in April for 40,000 Neon shares at $17, then 90 per cent of market value. Neon shares most recent trades have been at $23.50.

CLC in Quebec Calls One-day Construction Workers' Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — The 200,000-member Quebec Federation of Labor Tuesday fired the latest shot in its battle with the Quebec labor relations board over a union certification vote for construction workers at Baie Comeau, Que.

The QFL, the Quebec wing of the Canadian Labor Congress, called a province-wide one-day strike of its 53,000 construction workers for Sept. 6 to protest a board decision to hold the vote, won by a union affiliated with the rival Confederation of National Trade Unions.

About 35,000 of the construction workers affiliated with the QFL work in the Montreal area.

The total construction work force in the province numbers more than 117,000 men.

QFL President Louis Laberge said Tuesday the federation's fight is with the labor relations board and not with the 250,000-member CNTU.

In the Aug. 16 vote, ordered by the labor relations board, the National Union of Hauterive Construction Workers was chosen to represent workers on the site of a $42,000,000 expansion of the Canadian British Aluminum Co. plant at Baie Comeau, 220 miles northeast of Quebec City.

The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, the QFL affiliate defeated in the vote, has asked Mr. Justice Austin W. Johnson of Quebec Superior Court to nullify the vote on the grounds that the board was not empowered to act as it did.

Mr. Laberge said at a news conference the QFL is carrying out its campaign against the labor relations board to show the public that "construction workers are citizens as honorable as anyone else and that they should have full freedom throughout Quebec."

The QFL plans to hold a demonstration in Montreal of from 10,000 to 20,000 construction workers in conjunction with the strike.

The federation plans to have between 600 and 700 union leaders present to serve as marshals and keep "agents provocateurs" from causing violence during the demonstration, a QFL statement said.

Mr. Laberge told reporters the strike and demonstration represent the "beginning of a campaign" to force the government to recognize "the right of association as an important weapon in the arsenal of the war on poverty."

He called for a complete investigation—"royal or otherwise"—of the labor relations board's actions.

He accused the board of favoritism towards the CNTU, incompetence and bad faith.

The QFL affiliate defeated in the vote has said the labor relations board illegally and arbitrarily prevented 120 workers at Baie Comeau from voting, while the board has said it has the right to decide whether a vote will take place and under what conditions it will be held.

The CNTU affiliate received 122 votes to its rival's 30. Five ballots were spoiled.

"What kind of congratulations card do you have for a friend who just lost 28 pounds?"

New Contract Ratified by Air Canada Pilots

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada maintained uninterrupted service Tuesday and early today when a threatened strike by its pilots dissolved with ratification of a new 21-month contract.

The company's 1,122 pilots—who under the terms of their former contract earn between $6,600 and $28,000 annually—voted by a "substantial majority" to accept the agreement worked out last week.

Terms of the new contract, retroactive to July 1 with a rider that the new pay scales only will be retroactive to April 1 when the former contract expired, will give the pilots a 10-per-cent increase immediately and a further seven per cent after 15 months.

The pilots originally had asked for a 21-per-cent boost.

Air Canada officials, expressing pleasure at settling the dispute without a strike, said the new contract would add $6,700,000 in wages to its existing $15,000,000 annual pay bill.

The counting of ballots here Tuesday would have been followed by a 2 a.m. strike today and had the vote not ratified the pact.

Cleve Kidd, executive vice-president of the Canadian Air Line Pilots Association, did not disclose the figures in the vote beyond announcing a "substantial majority" had expressed themselves in favor of the latest offer.

Mr. Kidd sent telegrams Tuesday night to regional union councils in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver announcing ratification and that the "agreement will be signed as soon as amendments to the contract have been completed."

The Vancouver and Toronto councils, representing a total of 570 pilots, had urged rejection of the contract. In the centres of Montreal and Winnipeg, representing together 552 pilots, ratification had been championed.

Mr. Kidd said about 1,100 of the pilots voted in the four centres, the ballot boxes being flown here for the Tuesday count.

He said he felt the pilots "have achieved a good contract."

Elevator Companies Make New Offer

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Terminal elevator companies have made a new wage offer to striking Lakehead grain handlers, a company spokesman said Tuesday.

Company counsel W. S. Neal said it would not be prudent to disclose details but that the offer would equal or exceed "percentum increases granted in connection with other disputes of national interest, such as the postal workers and the airline pilots."

He said the new proposal, first reported by Prime Minister Trudeau in Ottawa earlier in the day, was made through federal mediator D. S. Tysoe.

The 1,300 grain handlers have been on strike since July 18 in a walkout that has halted the flow of grain to and from the vast Lakehead terminals.

There was no immediate comment from union officials who, like management representatives, have been meeting separately with Mr. Tysoe in a renewed effort to end the tieup.

Woman Not Waitress But Female Waiter

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — A recent Ontario Supreme Court ruling decided that there is no difference between men and women—at least where waiters are concerned.

Mr. Justice Alexander Stark ruled that Marina Trepanier, a lounge waitress in Sault Ste. Marie hotel, was not a waitress but a female waiter and should be paid accordingly.

Previously Judge J. E. H. MacDonald had ruled that the hotel had refused her status as a female waiter when it had required her to buy her own meals during working hours rather than supplying them as part of her wages. He ordered the hotel to pay waitress' wages retroactive to the day she was hired.

Wages for waiters are $1.82 an hour and for waitresses $1.13½ a hour.

Travel Questions, Answers

BY THE ONTARIO MOTOR LEAGUE

QUESTION: We have just recently moved to Belleville from Toronto. Some friends of ours, also from Toronto, are coming to visit us. Like us, they are fond of exploring unfamiliar country. Can you suggest a good scenic drive (about two to three hours or 80 to 90 miles) that we could take them on?

ANSWER: This is quite a tall order because there are so many that could fill the bill.

However, one such drive that provides a great variety in scenery is to cross the Bay of Quinte by the Bay Bridge (Hwy. 14) to Rossmore and, from there, take the Carrying Place road west through Rednersville to the junction with Hwy. 33 at Carrying Place. About 3 miles west of Rednersville the road climbs steeply through a rock cutting up onto a bluff. From the top of the bluff there is quite a panoramic view to the north across the Bay of Quinte and looking up the Trent River valley.

From Carrying Place take Hwy 33 south. This will take you through rolling farm land, with glimpses, on your right, of Weller's Bay and Lake Ontario. At Consecon village, on your left is Lake Consecon Continue on Hwy. 33 through the villages of Hillier, Rose Hall, Wellington, and Bloomfield to Picton, where, at the east end of the Main Street shopping area, you reach the junction with Hwy. 49 which veers off to your left.

From this point, take Hwy. 49 north east. After leaving Picton and passing the Cement Plant, the highway follows the high shore of the Bay of Quinte, providing magnificent views of Picton Bay, Adolphus Reach and Hayward's Reach, with Hay Bay in the background, and on north, over the new Quinte Skyway Bridge across the Bay of Quinte, to Hwy. 401.

Carry straight on across Hwy. 401 until you come to the charming stone village of Lonsdale on the Salmon River. Cross the Bridge and turn left at the top of the hill. Follow this road through Melrose to Hwy 37 and so home.

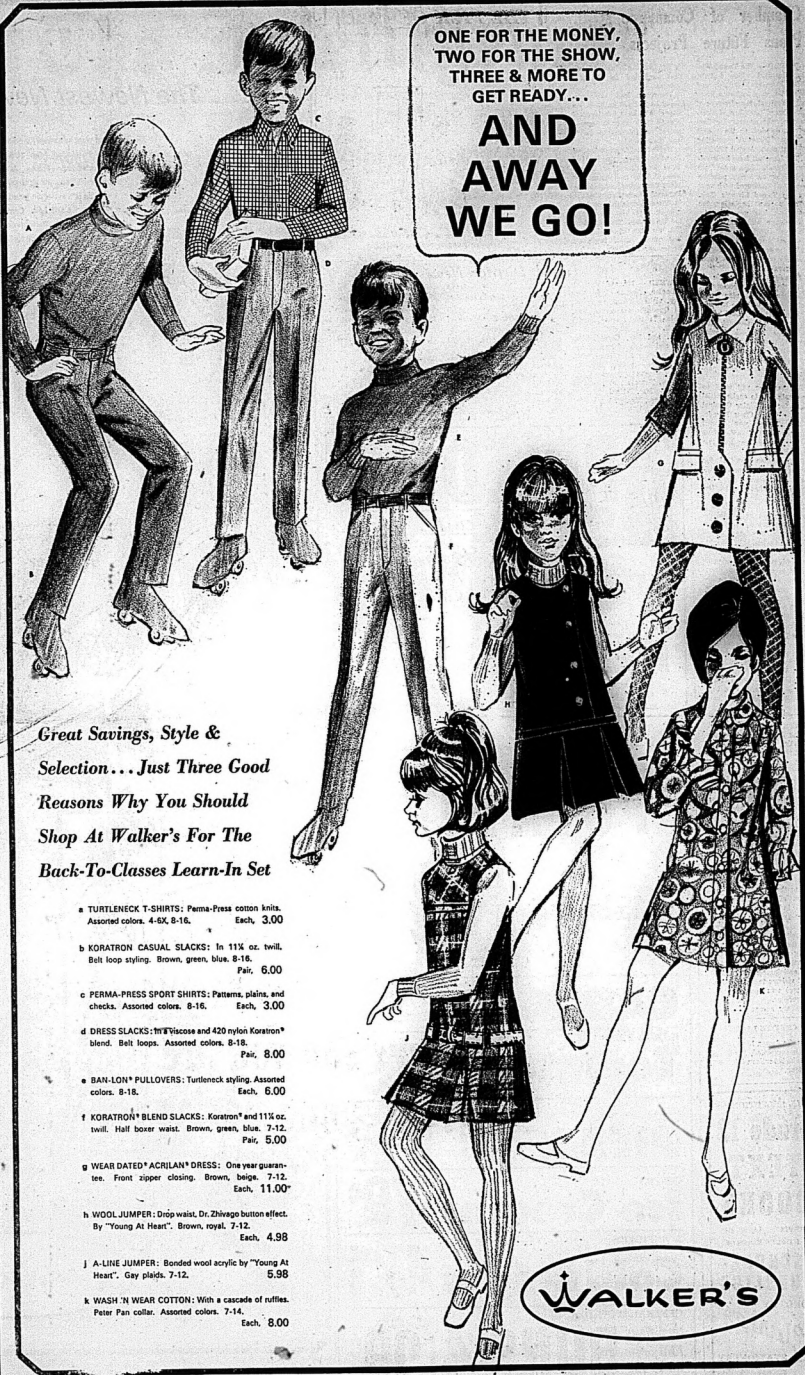
QUESTION: I am going to be in Hamilton next week and will have sometime to sightsee. Could you tell me where Dundurn Castle is and if it will be open to the public? Also is it possible to take a car into the Royal Botanical gardens?

ANSWER: Dundurn Castle is on York Street at Dundurn. Tours of the restored castle, which was begun in 1834 by Sir Allan MacNab, later Prime Minister of United Canada are offered daily, except Monday; 10 to 7.30 in July and August, 10 to 4 the rest of the year. It is also the scene of Canada's first sound and light production, "Wedding of Sophia", which is presented nightly at dusk during July and August. There is also a museum on the grounds, as well as the Dundurn Children's Cockpit Theatre with shows on Saturday and Sunday during July and August.

The Royal Botanical Gardens cover over 1,900 acres, including the city's famous Rock Garden near the western city limits, the spring garden and Coot's Paradise, a marsh and game preserve. Motorists may drive through these gardens which contain many native plants.

You might also be interested in visiting Gage Park, cut Main St. E. This is a 70-acre botanical park with famous rose gardens and Sunday evening concer's during the summer.

QUESTION: Could you tell me the difference in mileage, going to San Francisco by way of Canada and down the coast from Vancouver or going straight out across the States.



ANSWER: There are about 1200 more miles going by Canada than by the States. It is 2650 miles (via Trans Canada) to Vancouver and 972 miles down the coast. By Canada it is 4622 miles from Belleville to San Francisco. By the most direct route across the States it is 2318 miles.

Chamber of Commerce Plans Future Projects

TWEED — The Tweed Winter Carnival which will be held February 7th, 8th and 9th, 1969, may feature a Flapjack Festival, the directors of the Tweed Chamber of Commerce, who sponsor the Carnival, decided at the recent August Directors' meeting held at noon, August 19th.

The idea, put forth by President Kenneth Little, arose from the highly successful pancake breakfast sponsored each year by the Tweed Kiwanis Club. From a small beginning, the breakfast has grown to be the feature attraction of the Carnival weekend. At last February's carnival, the pancakes were all eaten before the last of the visitors could be served.

President Little made it quite clear to the directors, at this time, that his plan would not interfere with the Kiwanis Club project, but would be designed to supplement this event with flapjack flipping contest, pancake races, pancake eating contests and whatever else the committee could devise that would feature pancakes.

A committee will meet on September 4, to make initial plans for the Winter Carnival and the Santa Claus Parade. Wallis Moffat was named chairman of the Santa Claus parade committee for this coming December.

Keith Cotton reported for the membership committe, advising the meeting that the membership had passed the 50 mark.

Decorative Street Lighting was discussed at length by Reeve Barbara Allen and the Chamber of Commerce director Keith Cotton.

Under the present arrangement, where the lights are put up and taken down each year, the plan was proving to be too costly to be continued. Reeve Allen suggested the installation of permanent power lines to be paid for over a 20-year period. Mr. Cotton told the meeting that he had been in touch with a lighting company and hoped to have something definite to report at the meeting on September 9.

The secretary reported that a lighting engineer had called to see him briefly and had suggested selling the "Season's Greetings" lights and replacing these with scroll lighting that could be used for the entire year. He had referred this information to Mr. Cotton, the director in charge of the project.

Reeve Barbara Allen reported that the bylaw governing the closing of Tweed stores on Mondays from Labor Day to the following July 1st had been approved by Council. The store hours will be advertised later, Mrs. Allen told the meeting.

A report from Bob Hanna, chairman of the Tourist Information committee, was read to the meeting. The operation of the information booth in North America's Smallest Jailhouse was proceeding smoothly. Attendance was quite good, he reported, and the sale of Hastings County cheese and maple syrup was much better than ever anticipated. The number of visitors to date, (meeting time) was approximately 1,200 persons.

A banner across the street marking the information booth was suggested for the 1969 season.

Treasurer Phil Cockburn, reported $1,269.95 on hand. He expected to have a balance of around $1,000 after the operation of the information booth had been paid for.

The secretary was instructed to write George Dupuis, Ontario Department of Education, Toronto to enquire how plans were progressing for the Personal Management Class in Tweed, beginning on September 24th and continuing for ten weeks. The directors felt that the advertising of this course should begin by September 1st, 1968.

They stopped over for two days at Revelstoke, British Columbia, where they visited with Mr. Lessard's brother, Eugene and his family; they then continued their journey down through the Fraser Valley and on to the coast. The Lessards also expect to see most of the interesting places in and around Vancouver in the next few weeks.

Local Artist Displays Fine Array of Paintings at Corby Library

By LINDA GELDART
(Staff Reporter)

Who says school subjects are irrelevent, unnecessary, but most of all, unprofitable? It's not completely true. The proof: a case where one subject did pay off — and in more ways than one.

Mrs. Eva Blaind, of 128 Bridge, would be the first to agree. She is the local artist who is displaying more than 100 of her paintings at the Belleville Public Library all this week; most of which are for sale.

A self-taught artist, Mrs. Blaind has been painting for more than eight years, and, of course, she admitted "art was one of my better subjects in school."

The talent for painting is "kind of in our family," Mrs. Blaind remarked, explaining that most of its members were artistically inclined, in one way or another. Her artistry is not confined to the canvas, however, she does quilt and fancy work as well.

The current display is her first, and naturally, she is still a bit apprehensive about it all. What was her real reason for deciding on a display? Well, the truth of the matter is that she had so many paintings at home that, in her words, it began to "look like an art gallery." — a situation which called for decisive action.

Although not affiliated with any specific group or club, Mrs. Blaind said that during the eight years she has been painting, she has sold over $800 worth of paintings, none over $50.

For something that, in Mrs. Blaind's word, "started as a hobby and just kind of snowballed," one could label it all pleasant satisfaction and success.

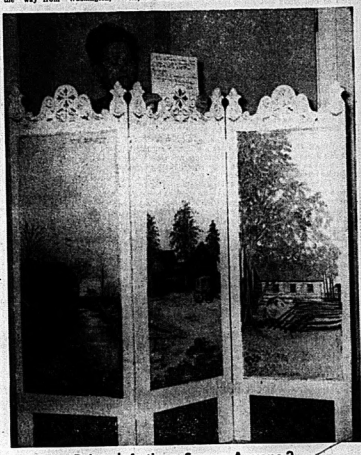
The subjects of her paintings are mainly scenes of places she has visited — all the way from Washington, D.C., and West Virginia to several locations in the Quinte area. Nature is another theme that runs constantly through her work, as do religious scenes.

Most unique is a three - panelled antique screen, inlaid with canvas on both sides, for a total of six scenes from picturesque Upper Canada Village, near Ottawa. The screen was hand carved by George S. Tickell, in the late 1800's and is a treasure in itself.

Mrs. Blaind's real work begins in the winter, however. She takes a sketch pad with her, no matter where she travels, as well as taking color slides of any particular scene which she likes. In the winter, these sketches and slides provide the basis for the tremendous number of paintings which she finishes every year.

Whenever possible, she takes her canvas and easel out into the country, where, she maintains, "you don't find many artists at work anymore."

"I used to do a great deal of church and guild work, but since my husband's retired, I've wanted to paint much more," she explained.



If she keeps up at the present rate, Belleville and area can prepare for more displays of talent by a very enthusiastic local artist.

WEDDINGS

PHILLIPS — HUFFMAN

FRANKFORD — Trinity Anglican Church was the setting for the wedding of Susan Valena Adella Huffman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Huffman of Frankford and Bruce Wesley Phillips of Yorkton, Saskatchewan, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Phillips of Toronto on Saturday, August 24 at 2 p.m. Rev. M. J. Caswell performed the ceremony.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. Lyle Bamber and soloist was Donald Pearson.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length bridal gown of silk organza over taffeta with fitted waist, set in front panel of silk lace, trimmed with seed pearls, full skirt and bow at waistline, and long lily-point sleeves. She wore a shoulder-length matching train of lace silk taffeta, attached at shoulder with small roses; also a shoulder-length silk illusion veil with pearl crown. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

Maid of honor was Miss Joyce Huffman, sister of the bride in a floor-length gown of blue chiffon over taffeta with empire waistline and matching floor-length train. Her matching headpiece was caught up with blue gardenias. She carried a bouquet of deep rose and white carnations.

Bridesmaids: Miss Cheryl Mckel of Frankford and Mrs. Paul Rowley of Toronto wore identical floor-length gowns of pink chiffon over taffeta with matching headpieces caught up with pink gardenias and carried bouquets of pink carnations.

Groomsman was Roy Phillips of Clinton. Ushers were: Brian Byrne of Trenton and Paul Rowley of Toronto.

The wedding reception was held in Trinity Parish Hall. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a street-length dress of sky blue lace over taffeta with matching lace coat, and accessories with a corsage of white gardenias. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother wearing a street-length turquoise dress with white accessories and a corsage of white gardenias.

For the wedding trip to Banff, Alberta, the bride chose a two-piece sorrento-rust balsan dress suit with matching hat, dark beige accessories and a corsage of mauve orchids.

They will reside in Yorkton, Sask.

Married Life Better Health-wise

LONDON Ont. CP - Married life may have its drawbacks but health-wise, it sure beats living alone.

"When you live alone you have nobody to share your complaints with," said Dr. James Collyer, a lecturer in the department of family medicine at the University of Western Ontario.

Dr. Collyer, reporting on the results of a six-month study in the latest issue of the Canadian Family Physician, notes among other things that people living alone have an increased incidence of illness.

"The increase is a significant one too," said Dr. Collyer in an interview Monday, commenting on his findings in the survey carried out in an Ontario community of about 9,000 residents.

The study, which involved 52 patients was aimed at pointing up the need for more medical training in dealing with people who may have both physical and emotional problems or a combination of both, sometimes referred to as a psychosomatic illness.

Dr. Collyer said the 52 patients included both single and married persons.

The study showed 17 of the 52 patients, or 32 per cent showed physical illness or symptoms where the emotions were felt to be important in the actual cause.

Another 22 were depressed and half of the total were suffering from neurotic illness.

The study which involved 25 men and 27 women showed equal split of neurotic depression between men and women.

It is important, he says, that in the future, both undergraduate and post graduate doctors, be trained in this treatment. It should include the fields of sociology, psychology, anthropology and philosophy in their pre-medical and medical education.

Wearing of Society Key Is Encouraged

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I disagree with your reply to Galatea, the girl who wondered about a gentleman who wore his Phi Beta Kappa key as a lapel piece.

I am one of many who has earned a Phi Beta Kappa key but I don't dare wear it because of all the smart aleck remarks.

Why is it that if one has earned membership in this elite society he is considered an egomaniac if he wears his key? Is there any other society whose members have to keep their identity hidden like that?

If a soldier earns a ribbon or a medal he wears it with pride and people respect him for it. But the person who wears a Phi Beta Kappa key is accused of showing off. Why? Why? Why? — KEYED UP.

DEAR KEY — That column produced a blizzard of letters. I didn't realize I had so many Phi Beta Kappas in my reading audiences. Most of the people who wrote said they'd like to wear their keys but they can't take the ribbing. I hereby encourage all members of Phi Beta Kappa to take out your keys and wear them. If any wristwatcher pops of tell him you'll take your key of if he'll put his on.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I have a friend who is fat as a cow. She says that more than anything in the world, she loves to eat and she will not give up this pleasure.

She also would like to have a nice figure, which is very hard to do considering that she is constantly stuffing herself with candy, cake, cookies, caramel corn and everything fattening you can think of.

Last week my friend told me she has hit on a system that will allow her to eat what ever she pleases and not put on weight. She packs in the rich food and then she goes to the bathroom and forces herself to throw up. She claims if the food it not in her it will not make her gain weight.

Is this true or false? — THE ASKER.

DEAR ASKER — It is false, foolish and dangerous. When your friend throws up the food she also loses the gastric juices which are essential to good health. The girl sounds cuckoo to me and I hope she will see a doctor and get on a sensible diet before she wrecks her health.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a widow in my late 40's. A few weeks ago my father-in-law died. He was not a wealthy man but he left me 50 per cent of his estate. The balance was divided between his two daughters.

I received a call from one of his daughters saying I should be a lady and sign over my share of the estate to her and her sister because the will was written while my husband was alive and now that he is dead I am not entitled to anything because I am not legally related. She promised a court fight if I refused and added, "You would surely lose, my dear, and the publicity would be dreadful."

My father-in-law was a dear man and I enjoyed having him in my home. He did not have a good relationship with his daughters or their husbands, and spent very little time with them.

I am not hard up for money but I don't want to be intimidated. Please tell me what to do. — SHADES OF BLUE.

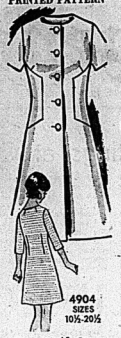
DEAR SHADES — See a lawyer and learn what your rights are. Don't discuss this with anyone and don't sign anything without legal counsel.



* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing an unstamped self-addressed envelope plus six cents for postage.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Old traditions do not prevent modern Japanese women from participating in their favorite sports — tennis, skiing and swimming — says Hiroko Kosaka, a women's champion of the Tokyo Tennis club and one of Japan's most highly-rated tennis players. Doris Lists Variety of Ideas for Bazaar

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Please send ideas for a bazaar. — Eve

Dear Eve: Working together on an all-out effort like a bazaar makes for wonderful sociability.

What to sell is limited only by the ingenuity and inventiveness of your group. Aside from the usual white elephants, baked goods, the handmade aprons, sewn and knitted garments, a bazaar has been known to include:

(1) Bean guessing contest
(2) Car raffle
(3) Tiny Tots' amusement corner
(4) Slave auction (usually with teen-agers auctioned off to do chores)
(5) Tea room complete with fortune teller (for a price!)
(6) Christmas decorations
(7) Green thumb table (plants ready to flower)
(8) Dressed dolls
(9) Kitchen gadgets

Considering the months of getting ready, a bazaar deserves all the publicity it can get. It deserves to be opened with greetings from a local celebrity, who can give a pat on the back to the moving spirits — or organization — and suggest the far-away places where some of the handcrafts and gifts may find homes.

Afterwards it rates a write-up in the community newssheet.

Dear Doris: My parents are separated and my mother works to support us. I am 15 and I have a nine-year-old sister. My older sister is 20 and she does not have a job. She finished high school two years ago and has worked only six months of that time.

At home the only work she does is the dishes and her bed. Sometimes she dusts or does the floors. My mother provides her with money for cigarettes and such.

My sister has no ambition to get a job and nothing seems to interest her. My mother is not rich and cannot support her forever. Really, I suppose my mother makes it too easy for her not to work.

Is there any way to get her interested in a job or else force her to get one? — Worried

Dear Worried: I feel a special concern for the younger sister in a family, who sees and worries about family poverty without the means to do anything about it.

Perhaps Sister Number One needs guidance into work she is fitted for; talents may need direction and training. A square peg may balk at being squeezed into a round hole. Perhaps poor health holds her back, all unknown to you.

Your job is to carry your own weight; not to dwell on something you cannot handle yourself. But how your mother this column.

* * *

Are you in doubt about the proper etiquette to use for your special occasion? Ask Doris, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for her reply.

Pork Now Plentiful

By MARY MOORE

Spareribs and pork chops were "specials" so we snapped them up. Pork seems to be in plentiful supply this month.

Today I am dealing with the spareribs which are a great favorite. One method is above or steam to cook. Pour off excess fat. Using same sauce as above dip all ribs in it. Cover barbecue grill (or Habachi) with heavy duty foil, arrange ribs on it and cook about six inches from glowing coals (no flames) for about 20 minutes, turning frequently and basting sparingly with some of the remaining sauce. Heat leftover sauce to pass when ribs are cooked.

2½ to 3 pounds meaty spareribs
Sauce:
½ can (undiluted) consomme
½ can (undiluted) tomato soup
6 tablespoons finely chopped onion
2½ tablespoons brown sugar
2½ tablespoons lemon juice
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
one-sixteenth teaspoon Tabasco (optional)

BAKED: Cut spareribs into serving size pieces — that is allow one whole rib plus meat attached for each piece. Place on shallow rack in roasting or broiler pan and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. one hour. Tip off all excess fat. Remove rack. Mix together all sauce ingredients and pour over ribs in pan. Bake one hour longer at 350 deg. Fahr. Transfer ribs to preheated platter. Pour sauce into gravy boat and pass at table.

Family Reunions

CARD CLAN

TWEED — When James E. (Josh) Card of Verona, undertook as his Centennial project the reunion of the Card Clan, his hopes of having it become an annual event were realized this year.

Members of this far-flung family, descendants of four United Empire Loyalist settlers, asked that Mr. Card organize another get-together in 1968. (This being the second such gathering).

And this year's reunion was as successful in bringing together some of the Cards that had never met each other before, that another one will be held next year (1969), with a much larger turnout expected.

"Josh" was unanimous choice as continuing chairman with his same assistants, Minor Card, of Bancroft, and Edgerton Card, of Snow Road.

The beautiful park at Tweed (Memorial) on Stoco Lake, where the excellent facilities made the 1968 occasion so enjoyable, will again be the site of the 1969 Card Clan conclave.

A LINK SEVERED

VANCOUVER (CP) — A link with the past was severed when Beatrice Furber, 87 whose father owned the famous Coldstream ranch at Vernon and gave that city its name, died in Vancouver. Mrs. Furber's daughter, Forbes Vernon, owner of one of the great Western ranches, entered the British Columbia legislature in 1875, and was B.C. agent-general in London, England until 1899.

Frankford Couple Mark Golden Anniversary

FRANKFORD — Mr. and Mrs. Charles Conley of Frankford were "At Home" to more than 100 friends and relatives who called recently at the home of their son Ronald and his wife Marie to help celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary.

The couple's four children were present for the happy occasion. Fred and his wife Dorothy, Arthur and his wife Kay of Belleville, Gladys (Mrs. Peter VanDusen) West Virginia and Ronald and wife Marie of Frankford. Most of their 15 grandchildren also were in attendance.

Mr. Conley's brothers and sisters attended including Walter of Trenton; Lawrence of Frankford; Philip of Stirling; Cecil, Peterborough; Jonah, Glen Miller; Mrs. Jasey Smith, Trenton and Mrs. Alice Bartman of Milford.

Congratulatory messages were received from Governor-General and Mrs. Roland Michener, Robert Stanfield, Leader of the Opposition; John Roberts, Premier of Ontario, and Hastings MP Lee Grills. The honored couple were the recipients of many cards, gifts and flowers.

The immediate family presented their parents with a chesterfield suite, while the brothers and sisters presented them with a coffee table and end tables.

Mr. and Mrs. Conley were married in the parsonage of Stirling United Church on August 19, 1918. Mrs. Conley (nee Day) was born in England. She came to Canada as a child and has resided in this area ever since. Mr. Conley worked for the CNR for 50 years and retired from service during the past year.

Out of town guests were present from West Virginia, Peterborough, Belleville, Milford, Stirling, Colborne, Kingston, Glen Miller, Batawa, Stockdale, Toronto, Trenton and from England.

The Experts Say

Experience Essential in Buying Antiques

EDMONTON (CP) — Nothing beats experience in buying antiques, says Mrs. Robert Laing of Edmonton.

Definite advice on what and what not to buy is almost impossible to give, she said in an interview.

"You only get to know by experience what real rosewood, for instance, looks like."

But she has some pointers:

—Keep your eyes open.

—The first place to look is underneath each item. She looks for any trademark, the standard of workmanship or signs of manufacture that indicate age.

—Take time and watch other people buying; and —Never bid more than you intended before an auction starts.

Another psychological angle in the antique game is figuring how smart the dealer is, she said.

"I remember a girl friend wanted to take me off to Saskatchewan to buy up some china.

"A lovely idea—but if we had charged in there the dealer would have known for sure he had something worth driving hundreds of miles to buy.

"The only way to get that china at a reasonable price would have been if he had thought we were from the area."

IN WRONG PLACE

Antique dealers soon learn whether they are in the wrong place for high prices, she said.

"The Edmonton dealers find out very quickly that the best prices come in Calgary.

"So they sell their ordinary stuff here to make their beard-and-butter money, then offer the really good things to the oil men in Calgary."

Where do antique dealers find their wares?

"Alberta isn't too good for antiques these days but you can still find some nice stuff in Saskatchewan," said Mrs. Laing.

"Some of the dealers go there and some of them import antiques from England and Europe."

But she was philosophical about her buying.

"Of course, mistakes are all too easy to make, but if you really like what you buy it really doesn't matter if you didn't get what you thought you did."

'Chinese People Are Just Like Ourselves' -- Authoress

"Chinese people are just like ourselves," asserted Lyrin Harrington of the Canadian Authors Association, Toronto, who with her photographer husband has made three trips to Communist China and has published three books on China.

Mrs. Harrington was speaking on the topic, "Writers Around the World," at the 6th Annual International Writers' Conference, at the Madoc - Tweed Art Centre.

In answers to questions the author admitted that the Chinese government was a different matter and recent events in Czechoslovakia gave bite to the question. About Cuba she indicated that it is communistic like China; but felt that the press was a little freer in Cuba, "except that nothing detrimental to Castro or the government could be published."

Kay Pohl, local writer and former teacher in the district spoke on drama. "Modern drama is going around in circles," she said, "and that's why there has not been a good play on Broadway in the last ten years."

Clyde Bell, editor and co-publisher of the Tweed News under the topic, "What the Editor wants," told of his various experiences as a writer and publisher.

The most market conscious person at the conference was Eleanor Marshall, from Camden, Mass., who has published over 2,000 articles in magazines such as Reader's Digest, Travel, etc. Her advice to all beginning writers was, "First study the market and then write an article that will suit that market."

Sally Saunders from Marberth, Pa., poet and teacher of poetry, gave a practical demonstration of how to create poetry by actually having the writers present produce poetry which was later read aloud.

Chairman of the Conference was Roy Cadwell, director of the centre, who spoke on "The Structural method of creating fiction that will live." He also described briefly the elements of humor in an article.

A rubber railway crossing is being installed on spur line serving Transcona, Manitoba, plant of International Harvester. Manufacturer claims that the pad, constructed of rubber, reinforced with steel, gives smoother ride than standard railway crossing. Several industrial concerns have installed rubber pads for in-plant industrial use to reduce number of breakages, especially in loads of fragile goods. (CP Photo)

Real Caouette Plans Major Expansion For Quebec Based Creditiste Party

OTTAWA (CP) — Creditiste Leader Real Caouette is laying plans to expand his Quebec-based party to a national scale, starting with addition of provincial representatives at a fall convention.

The 50-year-old leader, all alone as chief federal spokesman of Social Credit philosophy after the Social Credit party's shutout in the June election, discussed his plans in an interview Tuesday night.

He expects followers of Social Credit philosophy from all parts of the country to attend the Oct. 12-13 party convention in Sherbrooke, Que.

The board of directors may be increased to around 30 members from the present 17 to broaden the party's base, he said.

"I feel that every province will have a representative on the board after Oct. 13," he said.

He will make a 15-day tour of the Prairies and Ontario this fall to enlist support. And in the spring he will tour the Maritimes.

By the next election, he predicted, the party will be ready to run candidates in every constituency.

Mr. Caouette brushed aside a suggestion that he is taking over the organization of the national Social Credit party, led by Conservative MP Robert Thompson until his resignation last year.

"There was no organization," he said. "Some of the western candidates were helped by provincial parties but as far as federal organization was concerned, there was none."

Mr. Caouette's Creditistes increased their Commons strength to 14 members from eight in June while the four-member Social Credit party disappeared.

The Creditiste leader said a number of Social Credit organizations and individuals have asked admission to his party, including the Young Social Credit League of Ontario.

Some had offered support even before the election.

These people are "neither Thompson-ites nor Caouette-ists but Social Crediters," he said.

Mr. Caouette also quoted British Columbia's Social Credit premier, W. A. C. Bennett, as saying after the election that all Social Crediters should recognize Mr. Caouette as national leader since he alone had "succeeded."

Mr. Caouette was deputy leader of the national party when it reached its peak strength of 30 members in the 1962 election. He led a Quebec wing out of the party in 1963 after the total strength had been reduced to 24.

In the past few years there have been several tentative and unsuccessful attempts to reunite the two groups. In the same time the Creditistes have moved from pro-separatist leanings to a strong anti-separatist stance.

Mr. Caouette acknowledged that his party will not have the leverage in the coming Parliament that it has had in the past when its votes were sometimes crucial in maintaining a minority government.

But he said this will make no difference in its tactics.

"We've never been afraid of voting against a government for fear of defeating it," he said. "We'll maintain that line of action."

Unprecedented Step

United Church Moderator A Layman

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The United Church of Canada has taken an unprecedented step and elected a layman as a chief executive officer.

Dr. Robert Baird McClure of Toronto was named moderator Tuesday night as the church's general council concluded the first day of a nine-day meeting.

The 62-year-old medical missionary, on retirement leave from India, was elected on the fourth ballot to succeed Rt. Rev. Wilfred C. Lockhart of Winnipeg who had completed a two-year term.

The new moderator, the first layman to hold the post since the church came into being in 1925, told reporters he saw his election as "perhaps a tribute" to the church's laity.

He told a news conference the most important challenge of the church in the West is to meet ippoples' needs rather than just talk about them.

Dr. McClure was born in Portland, Ore., where his mother was a refugee from the Boxer Rebellion in China. He grew up in northern China where his father also was a medical missionary.

As well as working as a missionary in India, Dr. McClure was a medical missionary in China where he says he came to favor Christian unity strongly.

He said he has "some disagreement" with Pope Paul's recent encyclical banning birth control by artificial means.

Family planning programs at 212 hospitals in India were organized under his guidance and Dr. McClure said he has sterilized 2,000 men and women.

He described the population explosion as a major problem facing mankind.

Dr. McClure was chosen over Rev. M. Bruce McLeod, minister of Westdale United Church, Hamilton.

Three other candidates were eliminated in earlier ballots.

High Recovery Expected In Brien Bankruptcy

TORONTO (CP) — Creditors of Joseph Benoit Brien, former president of Prudential Finance Corp. Ltd. of Toronto, can look for substantial recovery, the estate's trustee said Tuesday.

J. L. Biddell, president of Clarkson Co. Ltd., said "prospects for full recovery look pretty good," after 11 creditors attended a meeting to consider Brien's bankruptcy.

In a financial statement, Brien listed assets of $488,187 and liabilities of $412,274.

A receiving order was filed against Brien in January. Creditors could not proceed with a meeting until Brien abandoned an appeal against the receiving order two weeks ago.

London Lawyer Disbarred By Society Committee

TORONTO (CP) — Lawyer Donald Walker Reid of London, Ont., was ordered disbarred Tuesday by the discipline committee of the Law Society of Upper Canada.

Reid was sentenced to 12 months in reformatory and fined $5,000 last year or giving $10,000 to an agent of British Mortgage and Trust Co., in 1962. His appeal to the Ontario Court of Appeal and an application for leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada were later dismissed.

Czechoslovakia Asks UN to Drop Debate on Soviet Invasion

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Czechoslovakia asked the United Nations Security Council Tuesday to drop further debate on the invasion of that country by Soviet bloc troops.

The Czechoslovak request followed an announcement in Ottawa that Canada would not press a resolution to have a United Nations representative go to Prague to see to the safety of Czechoslovak leaders.

Chief delegate Jan Mizik of Czechoslovakia said his government was making its request "in view of the agreement reached in Moscow on the substance of the question."

The agreement also figured in the Canadian decision.

External Affairs Minister Sharp said the immediate objectives of the Canadian resolution seems to have been achieved.

"The main point of this resolution was the release and safety of the Czechoslovak leaders," Sharp said in a statement.

"Inasmuch as these leaders have been in a position to negotiate with the Soviet Union and now have returned to Czechoslovakia to resume their functions under the Czechoslovak constitution, the immediate objective of the draft resolution would appear to have been achieved. . . ."

There was no immediate word from the other sponsors of the resolution—Britain, France, the United States, Denmark, Brazil, Paraguay and Senegal.

However, UN sources said that since the item was placed on the council agenda by a vote of 13 to 2 it was unlikely that body would agree to remove it.

Slowly Down The Ganges, by Eric Newby.

This is the story of a 1200-mile journey made by two Europeans down the Ganges, the holy river of India. The journey was a richly varied one, mostly by boat—but also by rail, bus, and bullock cart. The travellers met all kinds of people: villagers, boatmen, lawyers, holy men and skeptics in all kinds of places.

Back To Tristan, by Anne Falk-Ronne.

In October, 1961 on the island of Tristan de Cunha, an island in the South Atlantic, the inhabitants witnessed the birth of a new volcano. Every one on the island had to put out to sea where the Dutch ship Tjisadane picked them up carried them to Capetown, and then to England. This is the story of how, two years, later, six men from Tristan returned to their island and rebuilt the ruined and damaged houses, and in general prepared Tristan de Cunha for the return of the islanders.

Solutions Easy When Ignorant

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One important "law" that Parkinson neglected to formulate is perhaps the most important in the field of social behavior and reaction. It is this: The less we know firsthand about a situation, the firmer is our opinion about the way to handle it.

For example, the people who know least about what is going on in the nation's colleges are the most dogmatic about resolving the problem of student dissent. To them it is clear-cut and simple: punishment for rebels and restoration of the old order.

But the closer one gets to the campus scene, the less black-and-white the picture becomes. There are many kinds of student revolt, for many reasons, and each must be judged on its own merits and resolved accordingly.

Likewise, the most affluent and isolated segment of the bourgeoisie is the most sure about the way to handle riots and civil disorders in the slums. The fact that they have never spent a day in a slum, and are wholly oblivious to the dynamics of ghetto living, only makes them more cocksure about "getting tough with lawbreakers."

And the same is true for all social problems. The persons closest to them are sensitive to many factors, are aware of the immense complexity and the vast difference between one situation and another. And they have no easy, effortless prescription for solving them — knowing that such prescriptions often make things worse rather than better.

Ignorance does not breed bliss as much as it generates certainty. If you have never had a delinquent child in your family, it is easy to say exactly how he should be handled and what should be done with delinquents. But if you are confronted with the personal reality, your attitude immediately changes — and for the better.

Knowing a situation firsthand makes you think of it in terms of people rather than of problems; and of individuals more than of people in the abstract. It makes you understand how complicated are the causes of human behavior, and how difficult it is to find adequate remedies that will satisfy both the requirements of society and serve the best needs of the individual.

We all agree theoretically that "experience is the best teacher," yet most of us are willing to make bumptious judgments in the areas where we have had no experience at all — the rich tell the poor how to live, the healthy tell the sick, the white tell the black. And all the advice is as fatuous as it is futile.

The more intimately we know a problem, or a person, the less willing are we to make a flat, glib generalization. And the more positive we sound, the more negative we feel — it is the haters who have all the cheap and easy "remedies."

HILDA'S COLUMN

"Things are certainly perking up at our Loblaw store," writes Mrs. U. M. of Oakville, and she sort of sums up the general feeling of a lot of people. Prices are moving backwards and people are stepping forward to take advantage of "new look" shopping at Loblaws.

Yesterday, President Leon Weinstein read my mail, including the letters from people who asked that their words of support and encouragement be passed along to him. But he also read the other letters, too.

The next thing I knew, he was rushing into the buying office with a raft of letters and a "let's-have-a-little meeting" expression on his face.

"Tell them," he said to me, as his cigar disappeared around a corner, "that the best is yet to come—and soon."

Hilda Wilson

P.S. Even the store managers are excited these days. They are seeing "specials" . . . and customers . . . they haven't seen in years.
P.P.S. The letters are pouring in and I love it. Keep it up—please!

'Source of Rough Treatment'

Battle Over Long Hair Still Being Fought in Belleville

By BARRY GRILLS

The new ascient (at least a few years old) discussion — argument — battle — over long hair is still being waged in Belleville.

It's something about which almost everyone has an opinion and according to some of Belleville's teens the problem may have longer tentacles than it seems.

Some of the young people are complaining that their hair is the source of rough treatment, discrimination and general disgust.

A group of young adults had plenty to say about the situation downtown on Front Street.

"Some adults push you out of the way like dirt, like lower citizens of lesser intelligence," "They judge us by looks not personality."

"If they don't like what we look like why don't they ignore us," another retorted?

Some of the teens reported being elbowed in the streets. But, the main problem they say is with derogatory remarks.

"They ask 'are you a boy or a girl' when they know perfectly well what you are."

"'If I was your rather I'd have that hair cut'".

"'Why don't you buy a dog tag?'"

"'You should be locked up in cages'".

One young man reported being called a "dirty hippy".

Another of the teen-agers explained that he was a professional musician and this justified his long hair. "We don't bug them," he said.

Belleville city police chief, Douglas Crosbie says that hair does not matter.

"The way a person wears his hair is his own business," the chief said.

"It's our job to keep everyone moving. "We've concerned with people getting a good night's sleep," he said concerning youngsters in the downtown area.

What do Belleville citizens think of long hair and its effects?

One woman was very emphatic about the topic. "I think it's a disgrace. I think it's terrible."

"If they want to be girls why don't they wear girls' clothes and finish the job," she asked?

"It's a fad like everything else. You just have to ignore it."

She explained her belief that long hair would not always be around. "Girls will smarten up and take a good look at their boyfriends."

A Belleville man had a somewhat different opinion. "I think it's very acceptable as long as it's kept trim and tidy."

"I think it's a very personal thing."

Even local barbers have a point of view. A female barber said, "Some of it (long hair) is real sickening — those who just let it grow long."

"Long hair cut into a style is nice. Styling hair is coming in."

The barber admitted that male barbers take longer to cut the hair and some charge more for it — usually 75¢ — but said that it was not so with her.

"I'm used to female hair."

Why do many young men have long hair? One youth who had long hair and then got it cut thought it "looked better on me."

"I started having long hair because everyone else did. I didn't want to get it cut because it looks funny after you've had it long."

Why did he get it cut? Because his parents thought it was a good idea.

Another teenager who wears "semi-long hair" explained that he didn't like long hair on himself "like the other fellow".

"It's alright on most people. I don't mind if other people wear it."

A 13-year-old boy illustrated the viewpoint of the age-group which has not yet arrived at the "long hair stage".

"I guess it's alright if it's not too long."

IF TREE planting experiments work out Department of Lands and Forests researchers may turn clock back in Quinte area—to time when now-barren land is fertile, amply-wooded once more. Forester George Stroempl, conducting projects, checks soil temperature gauge at South Marysburg plantation site in Prince Edward County.

Department Launches Experiment To Recover Eroded Quinte Topsoil

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Suddenly, trees are time machines.

The winds of change have a more drastic significance for Quinte area conservationists.

The region has paid its share for the indiscriminate tree-felling of its early settlers and commercial operators.

Denuded of protecting timber, fertile topsoil has been eroded by the winds of a century, turning once-virgin land into tracts of barren waste, incapable of nurturing growth.

Now, the Department of Lands and Forests has launched an experiment that hopefully may turn back the clock on the situation.

If the landscape of waste ever is transformed the roots of change will go back to open-air laboratories scattered at various points in the Quinte area.

In turn, the roots are being harnessed to a new growing method — the crucial core of the entire experiment.

The new method uses wedges of peat moss to propagate the roots of the fledgling transplants. Soaked in water, the peat is buried below ground with the tree planted above. Its spongy makeup absorbs sufficient water to nurture the tree in the first critical weeks of growth.

After that, the roots may have a fighting chance of seeking out their own source of natural sustenance.

The benefits are obvious. If successful, the experiment could develop the means of successful reforestation in areas now unable to wean growth by natural means.

Eventually, with timber stabilizing the soil this could launch the process of gradual land restoration in the barren lands, not only in the Quinte area, but across Ontario.

And it's believed about 1,000,000 acres in Ontario could be recovered by such reforestation says George Stroempl, department research forester at Tweed.

As the man in charge of the project, Mr. Stroempl is on the move these days between the experiment sites — scattered between South Marysburg, in Prince Edward County and Marmora, in Hastings County. Tiny plantations also are being nurtured in the Kingston area.

Mr. Stroempl launched the experiments this spring — but patience is the watchword of research. Hence it will be at least three years before results are worthy of comment, he cautiously advises.

Even, if there are promising indications this year, the plantings must be exposed to the variations of at least two more seasons' growth before results are viewed with any certainty.

But the problem itself did not arrive overnight nor, as the statistics demonstrate, was it confined to one specific area.

However, the zones selected for the experiments epitomize the problem.

Like South Marysburg, for instance, where near the pocket-size plantations the land exists with hardly a trace of topsoil.

What's left underfoot is stones — and some clay. In fact, it's so rocky, a post-hole digger had to be used to plant the experimental trees.

"And to think at one time this was a prime barley-growing area — its products in demand even across the border," says Ed Edson, extension forester at Napanee.

Up to 12 inches of prime soil have withered away in the winds of the years, he believes, after the land lost its forests and timber stands.

Now, says the forester, he estimates such, wasteland totals up to 25,000 acres in the Garden County.

Such barren ground will not readily retain moisture

"The problem basically always has been the lack of moisture," says Mr. Stroempl.

Previous experiments using various species of trees and artificial improvement aids achieved little survival success.

"There was always the same basic (moisture) problem," says Mr. Stroempl.

Theo, last year he submitted a research information paper to the department on the peat-wedge planting method already proven in West Germany reforestation projects."

The department approved the idea and the experiments got underway.

Species being used include, Scotch, white and Austrian pine along with oak, poplar, maple ash, Norway and white spruce.

Natural selection will decide which are the trees likely to be the final choice.

Mr. Stroempl sets 65 percent as the survival minimum necessary in the project. Any species which cannot achieve the rating likely will be eliminated from the project.

Natural growth is a slow process. Meantime, the research forester is engaged in a continuous search for further information.

Other tree species under consideration as possible transplants include Austrian pines from Italy, Yugoslavia, Corsica.

As for any success to date, Mr. Stroempl, in the true tradition of research, guardedly says: "It's too early to say."

Delegates Launch Tumult

Debate on Vietnam Forces Democratic Convention to Adjourn

CHICAGO (AP) — The anticipated floor fight over a Vietnam war policy broke open with even more than expected fury in the early morning hours today and forced the Democratic National Convention into an abrupt adjournment.

After meeting for nearly seven hours, the weary delegates put to the proposed party platform, which recommends settling the Vietnam conflict along lines set by President Johnson and followed by Vice-President Hubert Humphrey, the leader for the Democratic presidential nomination.

As the issue came up, some delegates launched a tumult that finally ended when Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley's proposal for an adjournment until noon CDT today was accepted.

Fuelling the fight was a determined effort by some delegates to stop Humphrey from gaining the nomination.

A minority report calling for an unconditional bombing halt of North Vietnam is widely supported by followers of Humphrey's major opponents, Senators Eugene McCarthy and George McGovern, as well as backers of Senator Edward M. Kennedy, who says he is not a candidate.

Supporters of the minority report were elated by the sudden adjournment.

But the decision led to another third of the state's regular delegates walking out of the convention.

The convention also dealt Senator Eugene McCarthy's forces twin setbacks by rejecting McCarthy-backed attempts to unseat regular delegations from Alabama and North Carolina.

And before a sudden adjournment early today, the convention approved creation of a special subcommittee to proposed reforms in delegate selection procedures—and thus find ways to avert credentials disputes like the ones that troubled this year's convention.

The Georgia compromise, supported by Vice-President Hubert Humphrey, was adopted on a voice vote. It seated all members of the regular delegation and a slate headed by Julian Bond, a Negro state Representative, splitting the state's 43 votes evenly between the two groups by giving each delegate a fractional vote.

But about 20 of the 64 regulars refused to sit alongside Bond's slate. They pushed their way off the convention floor, with one saying: "We're going home."

A short time later, Gov. Lester Maddox said he had called upon State Democratic Chairman James Gray, his staff and the Georgia regulars "to vacate their places in the assembly."

Frank Mankiewicz, press spokesman for McGovern, stood on a chair and shouted: "We have 11 hours to get 80 votes." He claimed backers of the immediate bombing halt were short only that number of the 1,312 votes needed to carry their point.

When Chairman Hale Boggs of the platform committee began reading the majority plank he was interrupted by loud handclapping that began in the Wisconsin delegation and spread to much of the packed floor and galleries.

Boggs stopped reading and convention chairman Representative Carl Albert of Oklahoma finally restored order long enough for Boggs to move to let the debate begin without further reading. He called on Representative Phillip Burton of California, a leading proponent of the substitute plank, to speak.

Then another storm of clapping and shouting broke. Wisconsin got recognition to move for adjournment, but Albert rued the motion out of order. Boos and shouts of "let's go home" greeted the ruling. Delegates waved standards and milled in the aisles.

On the convention podium delegates argued with officials. Senator Joseph Clark of Pennsylvania told Albert and Democratic national chairman John Bailey that "this debate is so important it should be held in the waking hours of the American people."

"It is very undignified to proceed in this way and start this debate in the middle of the night."

Albert's solution was to call on Mayor Daley to move for adjournment. He said such a motion would be proper because it set a definite time for resuming the session.

The delegates roared approval and streamed out of the big hall at 1:17 a.m.

...Georgia Negroes Get More Representation

CHICAGO (AP) — The Democratic national convention has wrapped up two days of hectic and often bitter floor fights over credentials by ratifying a Georgia seating compromise giving Negroes more representation.

But the decision led to one-third of the state's regular delegates walking out of the convention.

The convention also dealt Senator Eugene McCarthy's forces twin setbacks by rejecting McCarthy-backed attempts to unseat regular delegations from Alabama and North Carolina.

And before a sudden adjournment early today, the convention approved creation of a special subcommittee to proposed reforms in delegate selection procedures—and thus find ways to avert credentials disputes like the ones that troubled this year's convention.

The Georgia compromise, supported by Vice-President Hubert Humphrey, was adopted on a voice vote. It seated all members of the regular delegation and a slate headed by Julian Bond, a Negro state Representative, splitting the state's 43 votes evenly between the two groups by giving each delegate a fractional vote.

But about 20 of the 64 regulars refused to sit alongside Bond's slate. They pushed their way off the convention floor, with one saying: "We're going home."

A short time later, Gov. Lester Maddox said he had called upon State Democratic Chairman James Gray, his staff and the Georgia regulars "to vacate their places in the assembly."

HUBERT HUMPHREY

Maddox, who with Gray had selected the regular delegates, resigned from the Georgia delegation a day earlier. But he said he still is a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Georgia cast separate votes on later roll calls—one by the Bond slate and the other by the remaining regulars.

The Alabama challenge was pressed by a group led by Huntsville dentist John Cashin Jr., who contended the state's regulars were a tool in former Alabama Gov. George Wallace's third party presidential bid.

Gov. Richard J. Hughes of New Jersey, credentials committee chairman, said Alabama's regulars had been required to sign a pledge not to support the nominee of another party. "Nobody would be happier if this certified delegation were unseated, than a man named George Wallace," he said.

The convention then turned down the Alabama challenge by a vote of 1,607 to 881½.

A lopsided voice vote disposed of the North Carolina challenge. It had been brought by a group headed by Reginald Hawkins, unsuccessful candidate for governor this year. Hawkins' group sought to add 10½ votes to the 3½ votes held by Negroes in North Carolina's 59-vote delegation.

Also ratified on voice votes were the credentials committee's rejection of challenges involving Louisiana, Tennessee, Wisconsin, Michigan and Indiana delegations.

Princess Marina Had More Than Her Share of Tribulation

LONDON (CP)—Princess Marina, whose death Tuesday from an inoperable brain tumor came as a shock to the British public who loved and admired her, had a greater share of tribulation in her life than most royal figures.

The funeral of the 61-year-old princess will be held Friday at Windsor Castle, Marina's husband, the Duke of Kent, is buried in the Castle's Albert Memorial Chapel.

The duke's death in a 1942 air crash was a crushing tragedy for the beautiful, elegant Marina who had come from Greece to marry him eight years before. Financial problems, uncommon in royal circles, soon compounded her afflictions. Her husband's death removed her from the list of royalty entitled to an allowance from the state and she had to sell their Belgravia home in London and most of its contents.

Later, finding it difficult to maintain her modest Buckinghamshire home and raise three children on the small pension allowed a widow of an air commodore—the duke's wartime RAF rank —Marina was twice compelled to sell family possessions at London salesrooms.

Despite this, she was the only member of the Royal Family ever to rank as an acknowledged fashion leader: In the 1930s her clothes were copied across the country and her sense of style remained impeccable.

She also had more intellectual tastes than most royal persons.

When McGill University of Montreal gave her an honorary degree on her Canadian tour of 1954, it added lustre to an already impressive list of accomplishments, including fluency in seven languages and practical skill as well as knowedge of the arts.

Cambridge University made her an honorary doctor of law in 1953 and she became first chancellor of the University of Kent in 1966.

The visit to Canada, during which Marina opened the Canadias National Exhibition of Toronto and a new hydroelectric power station at Niagara Falls, Ont., also introduced Canadians to the young Princess Alexandra, who has inherited her mother's easy charm and informal touch.

Princess Alexandra also visited Western and northwestern Canada last year with her husband, businessman Angus Ogilvy.

The whole Kent family gained a name for hard-working royal service, always performed with cheerfulness and flair. Marina, who commanded the Women's Royal Naval Service in the war, was associated with a wide range of charities and activities, from mental health to the lifeboat service.

Among her military honors she held the rank of colonel-in-chief of a Canadian regiment, the Essex and Kent Scottish.

A keen tennis player and president of the All-England Lawn Tennis Club, she rarely missed a day of the annual Wimbledon championships and in 1954, presenting the men's singles trophy to the Czech veteran Jaroslav Drobny, she told him: "I was holding my thumbs for you."

Patients With Bad Lungs Taught How to Breathe

MONTREAL (CP) — Patients with lungs damaged by diseases like emphysema are being taught to breathe with the unharmed parts of their lungs in oxygen-enriched atmospheres of special rooms.

A 17-per-cent higher survival rate in these patients was reported in a five-year study presented Tuesday to the fifth International congress of physical medicine by Dr. Albert Haas of New York University.

Dr. Haas, director of the cardiopulmonary laboratory at the university's Institute of Rehabilitation Medicine, said the researchers aren't sure whether the better survival picture really results from the learn-to-breath program.

Nevertheless, when compared with control groups, the participants had a better survival record.

For four to six weeks, the patient with obstructive pulmonary disease like emphysema or chronic bronchitis lives in a room where the oxygen content of the air is about double that of the outside world.

This helps break the breathing pattern of his outside life. His damaged lungs no longer gasp for air, triggering by the effort an increased need for still more air and finally putting a fatal strain on his heart.

His sense of panic goes, he takes physiotherapy and exercise in the oxygen-enriched room to learn what his damaged lungs will sustain without touching off the vicious breathing circle again.

Lung tissue damage is irreversible but man has six times more than he needs to sustain normal life "so he may be able to adapt if there's no further tissue damage."

Heart Patient Returns Home

MONTREAL (CP) — Gaetan Paris and his new heart went home from hospital Tuesday.

Mr. Paris, calm and apparently healthy after 61 days in hospital, sat beside his wife in the family car and smoked a cigarette while reporters cautiously bypassed red lights to keep the couple in sight.

Canada's only surviving heart transplant patient was going home to suburban Laval for a roast chicken dinner and a quiet convalescence in the company of his family.

He was met at his modest bungalow by a crowd of neighbors, and appeared on the front steps to wave shyly to reporters milling about on the front lawn.

Dr. Pierre Grondin, head of the surgical team which performed the June 28 operation, had said as he watched Mr. Paris leave the institute that a family atmosphere will be very important for the transplant patient's complete recovery.

Mr. Paris, who appeared beguiling in the face of a barrage of television and radio microphones, brightened somewhat when he was asked what he would like to do first with his new freedom.

"Go fishing," he replied instantly.

Dr. Grondin added quickly:

"Boating and fishing are all very well, but Mr. Paris is a convalescent, you know. He will have to take it easy for about two months."

Mr. Paris's life at home will be quiet but normal, and free from the strict immunization rules which were imposed on his 61-day term in hospital.

Dr. Grondin said he would return to the institute "about two or three times a week" for treatments.

Spleen Transplant Is Given Bleeder

MONTREAL (CP) — Frank Schnabel, chairman of the World Federation of Hemophilia, says a successful human spleen transplant was carried out on a hemophiliac patient at the University of Colorado Medical School in Denver last May.

"The operation was performed by Dr. Thomas E. Starzl," said Mr. Schnabel in an interview Tuesday.

"A healthy spleen was taken from the father of a 19-year-old hemophiliac boy and transplanted into the patient."

He did not identify the father and son.

For four days, says Mr. Schnabel, the spleen transplant brought the blood coagulation defect, characteristic of the disease, to an "almost correct level."

The spleen then ruptured and had to be removed.

The operation was performed after extensive research carried out at the medical school and by Dr. John C. Norman, assistant professor of surgery at Harvard Medical School in Boston, Mass., led to the belief that the spleen is a source of the vital missing clotting Factor VIII lacking in hemophiliac patients.

Lack of this coagulating agent causes the patient to bleed profusely at the slightest injury and many times to bleed spontaneously and internally if he even becomes emotionally upset.

Dr. Norman, whose research team at Harvard has just received a $500,000 grant from the Hartford Foundation and who has performed several successful spleen transplants on beagle dogs, was in Montreal for the fifth congress of the World Federation of Hemophilia which began here last Thursday and ends tomorrow.

He presented a paper dealing with experimental transplantation of the spleen.

The cardiac surgeon was quick to point out that the spleen is a relatively non-essential organ located near the abdominal cavity and is of no vital use to an individual.

When asked if the doctors were in fact saying that a spleen transplant might cure hemophilia, both doctors said no.

"However," added Dr. Norman, "we firmly believe that a spleen transplant will ameliorate hemophilia."

Purchases Of Beef Were Light

TORONTO (CP) — A federal agriculture department specialist told a preliminary hearing Tuesday that two persons who bought quantities of meat at a Toronto store operated by Dictor Luehmann, 34, actually were given underweight amounts of low-grade beef.

Luehmann is charged with four counts of fraud. The hearing was adjourned to Sept. 9.

One witness said he paid 45 cents a pound for a 328-pound side of beef and another witness said he paid 65 cents a pound for a 250-pound side of beef.

However, Dr. Ross C. Croucher of the agriculture department said the first received only 203 pounds of seventh-grade meat and bones, and the meat and bones bought by the second witness weighed only 196 pounds.

In both cases, after the cuts were pieced together, there was a shortage of expensive cuts and some packages labelled steak actually were cheaper cuts, Dr. Croucher said.

The two witnesses and their wives were paid by a private investigating firm to buy meat at Baldy's Beef Freezer Meats, operated by Luehmann.

Adjournment was requested by Luehmann's lawyer so that defence could question all the witnesses who handled the meat before Dr. Croucher pieced it back together and examined it.

Delegates Complain

Much Talk But No Guidance at Ontario Housing Conference

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Delegates to a two-day public housing conference subsidized by the Ontario government said Tuesday there was too much irrelevant discussion and complained they received no guidance on how to apply ideas to municipal problems.

"How can we put to any practical use any of these ideas and suggestions presented here?" asked Mrs. Wendell Brewer of the Timmins Housing Authority in Northern Ontario.

"We are not planners, we are not consulted on site, design or the needs o our communities. We are simply handed these housing units on completion and told here, this is your baby."

About 200 delegates from Ontario centres attended the meetings sponsored by the Ontario Association of Housing Authorities.

They said they discussed nearly every aspect of housing except the one that concerns them most—how public housing can best serve their communities.

"Planners are all very fine, but it doesn't come down to our local problems," Mrs. Brewer said in an interview later. "This is, after all, a conference of housing authorities and housing authorities don't plan, they get it handed to them after it is done.

"The OHC planners come in on one plane and out on another," she added.

"We don't even see them," said Mrs. Andrew Eveline of the Sudbury Housing Authority.

A. E. Humphries of Sudbury complained that "no one ever answered the question about what is a low or moderate income."

Kitchener-Waterloo Gets First 'New Town' Land Assembly Plan

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Three thousand acres of farmland in the Kitchener-Waterloo area have been chosen for a new federal-provincial land assembly plan, Stanley Randall, Ontario trade and development minister, announced Tuesday night.

Ontario Housing Corp. already controls 2,500 acres in the area and this project "is the first which truly fits the definition of a new town," he told the closing conference of the Ontario Association of Housing Authorities.

The "extremely healthy growth rate" of the area and expected expansion of Kitchener, Waterloo, Galt, Preston and Hespeler led OHC to acquire acreage in the area, he said.

Mr. Randall first announced the New Town program in May and said then the towns would be completely self-sufficient in industrial, educational and cultural facilities.

Plans now are proceeding on the Malvern and Saltfleet land assembly projects, Mr. Randall said.

Malvern, 1,062 acres in the northeast corner of the Toronto borough of Scarborough, will proceed "with all possible speed" following recent agreements with Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. and the municipality of Scarborough.

Mr. Randall said multiple-family housing is the answer to future housing problems in cities. He indicated the government prefers helping people than to explore other means of own their homes rather than mortgage financing."

He said no government, federal, provincial, could "house the multitude of people looking for homes in the $15,000 range."

He said he was referring to families with annual incomes in the $5,000 to $10,000 range, an income level "which in my opinion is the best credit risk in any society."

Mr. Randall also said private and lending institutions must get into the moderate-income housing business. If they do not, then "we'll have no alternative

Accused Rushes to Aid Heart Attack Victim in Court

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. (CP) — Jeanette Gurman, on trial on nine charges of common assault and four of assault calming bodily harm to patients in her nursing home, ran from the prisoner's dock Tuesday to aid an elderly spectator who collapsed from a heart attack.

Mrs. Gurman ripped open the shirt and propped up the feet of Archie McArthur, 73, of Collingwood, Ont., a frequent spectator at court cases, when he collapsed during her trial. He was taken to hospital in critical condition.

Earlier Virginia Smart, 17, a nurses' aide at the Cara Villa Nursing Home, testified she saw Mrs. Gurman slap a patient for soiling her pants.

Catherine Stone, an employee, said Mrs. Gurman ordered a 73-year-old patient to wash her urine-soiled diaper pad in a basin and then made the woman drink the water.

Evelyn Parrish, a registered nurse at the home, said Mrs. Gurman had not forced the woman to drink any liquid.

Although Mrs. Gurman sometimes yelled and swore at patients when angry, force was never used for discipline, she added.

Dr. Donald Paul, who cared for the patients in the home testified that it was a first-class operation in which all patients received excellent care.

The trial continues before magistrate William Kennedy.

Holoway Throws Second Commercial No-Hitter

Donny Holoway last night pitched his second no-hitter this year for Black Diamond in the Commercial Softball League as the Cheesemen topped Belvedere 6-0.

The big pitcher threw his first shutout in a 3-0 regular season win over Stinson.

And Number Two couldn't have come at a better time for the Cheesemen. Trailing league-leading Belvedere by two games in the best of seven series, the Cheesemen had their backs to the wall last night . . . and still have.

The win makes it 2-1 in games for the Hotelmen with four remaining in the best of seven playdowns.

In the opening game of last night's playdown doubleheader at the Alemite, Stinson Construction's Scotty Reid shutout last year's champs, City Hotel, 2-0 on a two-hitter by the young pitcher.

The win was Stinson's second, leaving the defending champs in the same position as Black Diamond — both must win three of the remaining four tilts to enter the finals.

In the no-hitter, Donny Holoway missed a perfect game only by handing down two walks in the first inning.

The Cheesemen picked up their six tallies with two in the third and four in the sixth. In the third, the runs scored when Belvedere's Wayne McConnell walked Brian Smith, saw Gene Francis collect a double, and Jack Francis hit a single, then watched Dwight Rathwell and Wayne McTaggart.

In the sixth, five singles and a centrefield error counted for four Black Diamond runs.

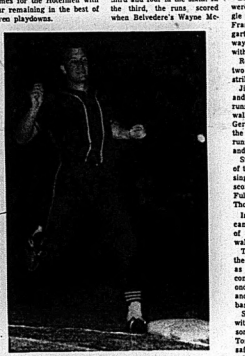
McConnell pitched six innings for the losers, allowing six runs on eight hits and three walks and striking out five. Doug Ellis came on in the six and allowed one hit and Sonny Gray finished the seventh allowing no runs, hits, or walks and fanning none.

Holloway struck out 11 in his no - hitter.

Black Diamond stickmen were Gene Francis with a single and a double, and Jack Francis, Rathwell, McTaggart, Rick Denard, Don Holoway, Smith, and Martin Walsh with singles.

Reid took his win allowing two hits and walking two and striking out nine.

Jim Nichols started for City and went six allowing three runs on seven hits and three walks and striking out two. Gerry Genereaux came on in the seventh and allowed no runs on one hit with no walks and no strike outs.



Stinson collected the first of their three in the first on a single by Rick Locke who scored on a sacrifice by Ron Fuller and a single by Lyle Thompson.

In the second, Bob Tomaso came home on a combination of his and Pete Fleming's walks and Locke's single.

The third and final run of the game came in the sixth as Reid scored on his single combined with Tomaso's second walk, Fleming's single, and an error by City's third baseman Doug Hull.

Stinson hitters were Locke with two singles and Thompson, Ken Genereaux, Reid, Tomaso, and Fleming with a safety each.

Doug Hull and Frank Murray had singles for City.

Holoway Can Hit Too

Davey Jones to Coach 1968 Mo-Hawks

By JERRY HOFF
(Staff Reporter)

It's been a good week for Davey Jones. The 33-year-old athlete won the Bay of Quinte Golf Club's Senior Men's Championship Sunday, and Tuesday was officially named player-coach of the Belleville Mo-Hawks Senior "A" Hockey Club.

"Davey impressed me with his maturity," said club president Gerry O'Connor shortly after the appointment was made. "He's got the right attitude. He's going to run the club his way, with no interference by either management or the players. And that's the way it's got to be."

DAVEY JONES

Jones started his hockey career in Belleville in the early fifties as a member of the city's Junior "B" team. He joined the Senior "B" club in the mid-fifties and stayed with the team when it made the transition to Senior "A".

He was a member of the team when it folded after the 1960-61 season. The following year, he coached and played for the Intermediate "B" team in Picton and took it to the provincial championship.

He moved from Picton to the Kingston Senior "A" club in 1962-63 and played with it until he rejoined the Belleville club in 1967.

"I've had some experience as player-coach, and I know it's going to be a chore. It's always more difficult to do something like this in your hometown. I'm a little apprehensive, but I'm still looking forward to it.

"I have some definite ideas of my own," the new coach continued, "but I'm going to need players' co-operation. I intend to make it a contending team this year. The club needs improvement, and there are a number of players in the district whom I'm going to contact personally about joining us.

"I intend to have a team with the nucleus formed from the old club and several of the district players that haven't played for Belleville, but have been with other area teams. I'll enter camp with about 35 players, and make the changes I think necessary to improve the team. I want to stay with local players because that makes for a better supporting crowd."

Jones also mentioned getting a local booster club started in order to aid the team financially and offer moral support.

"I hope to get the camp started by late September," he continued, "and that'll probably be the earliest we can. The rink won't be in shape until then, although I'd get started earlier if they could get the ice in."

"I used to think Davey's brother Paul was the hockey player of the two," said O'Connor, "but after talking to him and hearing his plans for the team, I think that I hadn't realized how much Davey has matured. He's ready to do the job, and do it well."

Finish Maker

Burkitt Keeps It Close

By JERRY HOFF
Staff Reporter

The Belleville track has one of the highest photo-finish percentages of any harness racing track in Ontario and track classifier Harry Burkitt is no cause of it.

Burkitt arranges the horses entered for each Saturday night into the eight or nine races which comprise the card.

"People don't care how fast the horses cover the mile," Burkitt said. "They just like to see them bunch together and finish close. They want to see all close races with no one able to sit in position. They want to see the drivers cutting and pulling all the time and then watch them come down the stretch in a bunch. Gives them a chance to hold those tickets tight and stand up and yell."

Burkitt has been track classifier for the Belleville Agricultural Society (formerly the Quinte Riding and Driving Club) for the past year.

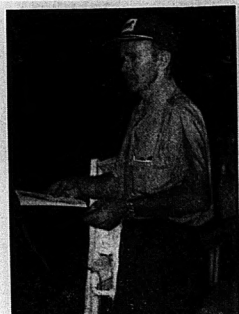
"They told me when I took the job last year that it would be having a lot of complaints and arguments, but that just hasn't been the case. These owners and drivers are the nicest bunch of people to work with you could find. I have the odd remark about maybe putting a horse in over his head, but no one actually gets mad about it."

Burkitt's job is to arrange the entries in races of seven horses each, all that the Canadian Trotting Association allows at one time on Belleville's Fairgrounds track.

"I pick up the entries Monday night (the deadline for racing the following Saturday) and start. It's sort of like putting a puzzle together," Burkitt explained.

"I try to make up nine races. This lets the people spread out their money and bet more horses and also lets me set up the horses in categories more closely arranged to their capabilities. If I only had six races, more horses would be in each race so I would have to put in both the fast and mediums. With more races and more horses, I can keep them from running out of their class.

"More races also give the drivers more chance for the first five places and the purse money.



"My biggest problem is arranging the horses so that each stable will have only one horse per race. If you have two or more qualifying as an entry bet (one ticket on a horse from a stable and the bettor wins if any horse from that stable wins) it reduces the total bet on the race.

"And that's my biggest success — to the betting increase. That means there are good races going on. Another thing I do to help is to keep the horses changed around. Not having the same horses in the same race every week. This keeps it interesting. If they run against each other every week, people are going to stop betting."

Burkitt said he uses two systems to classify the horses. He allows the horse to "race himself up." That is, as the horse collects more wins and faster times, he's moved into faster company. The other way is the condition system This means a horse is placed in a race of qualifying under a certain stated condition, such as winning less than $5,000 last year, instead of being judged by previous performances.

"I combine the two systems. Add the fact I know what most of the horses around here are capable of doing, so I put them in where I think they can go."

Judging by the track's photo-finish record, it looks like most of the entries agree with the classifier's judgment.

Youngster Plays Master To Stalemate in Open

TORONTO (CP) — A 15-year-old high school student from Rochester, N.Y., posted a stunning upset at the Canadian open chess championship Tuesday night when he played to a draw with international grand master Bent Larsen of Denmark.

Ken Rogoff was a piece up on the board when he agreed to the draw after 35 moves of his fifth-round match against the 33-year-old Dane. Playing black Rogoff had three pawns, two minor pieces and a queen.

Larsen, winner of the United States open championship at Aspen, Colo., last Friday and favorite in the 11-round Canadian event, had five pawns, a minor piece and a queen.

The draw left Orest Popovych of Brooklyn, N.Y., the leader after five rounds with a perfect score of five points. A victory counts one point, a draw half a point.

Rogoff and Larsen are tied at 4½ points each with Edward Formanek of Chicago, Lawrence Day of Ottawa and Bruce Amos and Walter Dobrich, both of Toronto.

Two Toronto players, Denis Allan and Ian Hambleton, have four points apiece.

Popovych had a relatively easy night Tuesday. He defeated D. H. Wee, a Korean student attending the University of Toronto, in 29 moves. Wee resigned.

Dobrich pulled a minor upset by defeating Zvonko Vranesic of Toronto, leading Canadian master, in 29 moves and Formanek downed Alex Panayotu of Toronto in 33 moves.

Day and Amos had their game adjourned, but both agreed to a draw.

Mailmen Drop Series To Firemen

The Post Office went out of the Departmental Softball League playoffs for the Mel Barriage trophy Tuesday night to the tune of a 16-11 defeat in their fourth game with the Fire Department.

Rump did the pitching in the elimination bout and allowed 11 runs on 17 hits and three walks while striking out one.

Wynne and Nickle pitched for the losers and allowed 16 tallies on 15 hits and four walks and struck out four.

Top hitters for the winners were Smith with a homer, triple, and a single, Lloyd with a double and a single, Parks with two doubles, Davis with two singles, Wannamaker with a homer, and Hoard with two singles. Moreton, Rump, and S. Miller each had a single.

Nickle paced the losers with two doubles and two singles, Sinfield hit a double and two singles, as did St. Louis and Johnson had two singles. Bohan, Reid, Campbell, Tebworth, and Lusk had a single each.

Bobby Bonds Looks Like Mays With Two Homers for Six Runs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bobby Bonds and Willie Mays have a lot in common. Chicago Cubs will tell you the resemblance is frightening.

Bonds, San Francisco's promising rookie outfielder, cracked a pair of homers and knocked in six runs Tuesday night as the surging Giants whipped the Cubs 8-4.

The 22-year-old speedster, recently singled out by teammate Mays as "the guy who could take my place," accounted for two runs with his fourth and fifth homers after delivering one with a bases-loaded ground out.

Bonds' slugging helped the second place Giants, who have won 14 of their last 17 starts, pick up a game on St. Louis Cardinals, the National League leaders who were beaten 2-0 by New York Mets. Cincinnati Reds blasted Philadelphia Phillies 10-0, Pittsburgh Pirates nipped Atlanta Braves 4-3 in 11 innings and Houston Astros beat Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3 in other NL games.

Bonds, who set a modern major league record by hitting a grand slam homer in his first game three months ago, gave right-hander Bob Bolin a 1-0 lead in the second inning with his bases-loaded grounder. He greeted Chicago reliever Jack Lamabe with a 400-foot homer, good for three RBI, in the fourth and connected off Bill Stoneman with one on in the sixth.

He is batting .257, with 21 RBI, in 49 games with the Giants.

Jim Hart's two-run single in the sixth capped the Giants' attack, enabling Bolin to breeze to his seventh victory in 11 decisions. Willie Smith, who made his first pitching appearance for the Cubs as a late-inning reliever, tagged Bolin for a two-run homer in the ninth.

Dick Selma scattered six hits to break a personal five-game losing streak and Tommie Agee drove in three runs with a homer and single as the Mets shut out the Cards for the second successive night.

Agee's fifth homer, a leadoff shot in the third inning, gave Selma all the support he needed and pinned the loss on Larry Jaster, 8-11, who has dropped six in a row.

Tony Cloninger blanked the Phillies on four hits, struck out 11 and clubbed a three-run double in the Reds' six-run fourth.

It was the Reds' ninth straight victory over Philadelphia and the third for Cloninger, who is 5-6 over-all with Atlanta and Cincinnati.

Fred Whitfield hit a two-run homer, Tommy Helms contributed a two-run double and Pete Rose extended his hitting streak to 17 games with a fourth inning single.

Don Clendenon reached first on a third-strike wild pitch to open the 11th at Atlanta. He took second on a sacrifice bunt and scored the winning run on Jerry May's two-out single. Mike Lum's eighth inning homer off Jim Bunning had lifted the Braves into a 3-3 tie.

Norm Miller's homer touched off a four-run third inning burst that carried the Astros past Los Angeles behind the six-hit pitching of Denny Lemaster. Run-scoring singles by Jim Wynn and Rusty Staub and a sacrifice fly by Denis Menke completed the deciding rally.

Satch's Secret May Come Out

By GEORGE H. CARVER

Some 15 or 20 years ago he sat in a well-appointed trailer near the Fair Grounds grandstand making fishing tackle out of flies and hooks.

In the diamond a team of barnstorming Negroes was playing the pick of the city and district crop.

It was the eight innings and the publicized star of the visitors had yet to put in an appearance. The crowd got fidgety and began to voice its wants, "Bring him on — bring him on."

Finally Satchel Paige, perhaps the most colorful of all time major league pitchers left the trailer and walked out to the mound.

After a few warm-up pitches he stood on the mound, fired nine of his famous "no-hit" pitches and retired the side. The game was over and Satch ambled back to his trailer and the fishing tackle.

At that time he was said to be 45 years of age. No one knows for sure the correct number of years the ageless hurler has been on this mortal coil.

It has baffled the experts. Pick a number between 45 and 65 and your guess might be right. But, hell, they said that 15 years ago.

One record book says he was born Sept. 1908. Another has it 1906. On 1953 when he signed a firm contract he was asked "How old are you?" Satch answered "forty-nine."

Experts expressed surprise at his youthfulness. To this Paige replied "I've been playing so much baseball I haven't had time to get old."

He has had an illustrious career in both the major leagues and barnstorming. He broke into the majors when most ball players are just leaving the public halls.

He was the first Negro to pitch in the American League. It was in 1948 that Bill Veech signed Paige to pitch for the Cleveland Indians. He won six while losing one and helped the Tribe capture the league pennant.

In 1949 he slackened off, winning four and losing seven. The next year he joined the St. Louis Browns winning three, losing one. He regained his form in 1948 pitching 138 innings and posting a record of 11-6.

He stayed in shape by barnstorming with the Harlem Globetrotters for two years then made his next big move. He joined the Miami Marlins of the International League.

Satch was one of their ace hurlers for three years, astounding the experts who thought he was through when he left the Browns. In 1959 his last year with the Marlins he was 12 and lost eight.

Cleveland fans loved "Ole Satch." His biggest thrill came in 1948 when the fans broke down the gates in Municipal Stadium to see him pitch. Paige obliged them by blanking the Chicago White Sox 3-0.

Charged with speeding one day in Miami, Paige was handed the oddest sentence in the court records. The judge said the 15 days but said he would knock a day off for each game he won and he also had to strike out the Easter three times.

Paige didn't win 15 games nor whiff Easter once but his college try earned him a "let-off."

How did he get the nickname "Satchel"? Paige recalls when he was a kid he used to have a satchel in which he carried bats, balls and other equipment. "I was the only kid on the street with a bat and ball and if the other kids wouldn't let me play, I packed the gear in the satchel and went home. They started calling me 'Satchel' and the name stuck."

Satchel played the outfield just once. It happened in Cuba where the playing field was bordered by a swamp. Fielding a hard-hit ball, Satch suddenly emitted a piercing shriek and dashed out of the park.

Asked what had happened Satch said "They was a snake near that ball as big as a telephone pole."

Everything comes to him who waits and the Cleveland Indians have made that come true for Paige. The other day they signed him to a contract that covers the 135 playing days necessary for Satch to cash in on the league pension plan.

Age is an important factor in pension arrangements and who knows but the baseball world will yet learn the actual age of this beloved seasoned warrior of the baseball diamond.

Give 'Em the Axiom

Ageless Satchel Paige (left) violates his own old saw by looking over his shoulder to see who's behind him. He sees Atlanta Braves President William Bartholomay (centre) and Vice President Paul Richards. The Braves have placed Paige, whose age is listed at 62 in the baseball Encyclopedia, on their active roster.

Rookie Lifts Orioles in Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Merv Rettenmund distinguished himself Tuesday night with a game-winning home run while pinch hitting for a pinch hitter.

The rookie outfielder, recently recalled from the minor leagues, slammed his first major league homer with one on and one out and lifted Baltimore Orioles to a 5-3 victory over Oakland Athletics in the opener of a twi-night doubleheader.

When the Orioles won the nightcap 7-2 and Detroit Tigers lost to Chicago White Sox 2-1, Baltimore found itself only four games behind the American League leading Tigers.

The Orioles haven't been that close to the lead since June 10 when Detroit led Cleveland Indians by only three games.

The Tigers gave the White Sox the winning run in the ninth inning on second baseman Tom Matchick's throwing error.

Off in the distance Boston Red Sox stomped Cleveland Indians 7-1 and New York Yankees stopped California Angels 2-0 before losing 2-0 in afternoon contests. At night, Minnesota Twins blasted Washington Senators 7-1 after losing 2-0 in a twi-lighter.

Curt Blefary had given the Orioles a 3-0 lead with his 11th homer in the fourth inning, but the Orioles found themselves deadlocked 3-3 after Reggie Jackson, Rick Monday and Sal Bando unloaded solo homers in the seventh for the Athletics.

Blefary singled with one out in the ninth off losing right-hander Jack Aker, 3-3, and when left-handed Elrod Hendricks was sent up to pinch hit for Larry Haney Oakland switched to left-hander Warren Hegle.

Continuing the game of platooning, Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver called on Hendricks.

The 25-year-old right-handed hitter, making his major league ance at the plate this season, responded by belting the first pitch over the left field fence. He now has a single, two doubles and a homer for a .444 batting average.

Wally Bunker, another recall from the minors this year, took care of the nightcap with a six-hitter in his first start since Aug. 7. He is 2-0.

Blefary and Don Buford, No. 13, supplied the home run power in the nightcap, both connecting off Aker in the fifth inning, and Dave Johnson stole home during a three-run fourth inning rally as the Orioles won their 17th game in 21 outings.

Buddy Bradford, who opened the ninth with a walk and was sacrificed to second, scored the winning run for Chicago when Matchick knocked down Luis Aparicio's hit behind second and threw low to first.

Aparicio's ninth inning runs as Norm Cash blasted his 20th homer for the Tigers and Tommy Davis stroked a run-scoring single for the Sox.

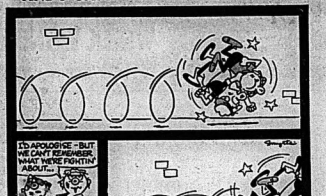
Canadian PGA Fills Berths For Tour



LUCERNE, Que. (CP) — Gordon Taylor beat his older brother Bill by one stroke to win the Canadian seniors golf championship here Tuesday.

Gordon, 58, the 1958 Canadian amateur champion, shot a six-over-par 75-76—149. Bill, 60, came in with 75-77—150. Both are from Montreal's Kanawki golf club.

George Hevenor of Toronto, carded a 78 Tuesday to finish with a 152 gross, good for a tie for third with Jim Nash of the London Hunt Club who got a 75-77.

Ottawa Rivermead's Ted Fenwick finished fourth with 156, Phil Farley of Scarborough and Ross (Sandy) Somerville of London Hunt shared fifth with 157s.

Restic Lowers the Boom

Barrow Going Back to Tackle

MONTREAL (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats will try to solve their line-backing problems with a player switch and Montreal Alouettes will go with two new players when the teams meet here tonight in an Eastern Football Conference game.

The game will be televised nationally on the CTV network starting at 8 p.m. EDT with the Montreal area blacked out.

The Ticats plan to test both John Michaluk and former Alouette Wilbur Scott at corner and middle linebacker, freeing John Barrow to return to tackle.

Michaluk, in his third year with Hamilton, started the season at linebacker but was replaced by Barrow for the last two games.

Injury and a draft notice are worrying two Hamilton tackles.

Terry Ireland will be returned to the injury reserve list for another 15 days as his knee remains troublesome.

Charlie Turner has received his marching papers but coach Joe Restic said he may be exempt because of family-support obligations.

Montreal's newcomers are Metro Gerela, a field goal kicker, and speedy back Dennis Duncan.

Gerela, brother of Ted Gerela of British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference, has booted several field goals from the 40-yard line since coming to Montreal last week.

He was cut last month after trying out with Green Bay Packers of the National Football League and was later released by Calgary Stampeders of the WFC.

Duncan was cut recently by Houston Oilers of the American Football League.

Gerela will get a crack at place kicking now handled by defensive end John Baker while Duncan may get a chance to play in Andy Walton's offensive backfield spot. Rick Egloff, another new face who played against Ottawa last Thursday, will replace injured Billy Woods at cornerback.

Offensive end Roger Murphy and defensive back George Stetar are due to come off the injury reserve list soon but Jim Greth, who underwent knee surgery last Thursday, will go back on the 30-day list and may be used to the club for the rest of the season.

A victory tonight could move the Alouettes into a three-way tie for second place in the EFC standings.

They snapped what looked like a losing streak after their first two games when they upset the previously unbeaten Ottawa Rough Riders 25-24 last week.

But the Tiger-Cats, with two wins in three starts this year, will be looking for a victory to boost them to a first place tie with the Rough Riders.

Air War Looms--Can Eskies' Kicking Offset Calgary Passing?

EDMONTON (CP) — How important is punting in professional football?

Neill Armstrong, head coach of the Western Conference Edmonton Eskimos, said Tuesday: "It can mean the difference of winning or losing a game in the Canadian Football League. . . . If a coach expects to have a championship team he needs a good punter."

Armstrong's Eskimos may need an improved brand of punting tonight when they play host to Calgary Stampeders in a key WFC contest for both clubs.

A Calgary win would move the Stampeders into sole possession of first place, while an Edmonton victory would give the Eskimos a share of the lead in the five-team conference.

Saskatchewan leads the conference with seven points, one more than Calgary and two more than Edmonton. British Columbia has four points and Winnipeg two.

For tonight's game, to be televised over the CTV western network at 8 p.m. MST with an Edmonton blackout, Armstrong expects to have injured Mike Law and Ron Forwick in uniform for a contingent of 32 players.

Law has missed several games with a separated shoulder and Forwick sat out last week's 12-4 setback on home grounds to British Columbia.

The Stampeders, also surprised 19-7 by Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Conference in a CFL clash last Wednesday in Calgary, have several "ifs" for tonight's game.

The Stampeders, 28-3 victors over the Eskimos in a July 7 exhibition game, have Ted Woods, Gerry Shaw and punter Jim Furlong as doubtful starters. Woods and Shaw are recovering from knee injuries and Furlong suffered bruises against the Argonauts.

Meanwhile, Armstrong said the punting situation in Canada is better than most fans would like to believe.

"There are a few inexperienced punters such as our own Garry Lefebvre and Ted Gerela of British Columbia, but other than that the CFL has excellent kickers."

Armstrong listed Dave Mann of Toronto and Joe Zuger of Hamilton as the best in the EFC at the present time, but failed to pick the top western punter, although Alan Ford of Saskatchewan and Ed Ulmer of Winnipeg were mentioned as "two consistent ones."

In five games for both Calgary and Edmonton, the Stampeders' combination of Furlong and Larry Robinson have an unofficial 40.7 average on 41 kicks.

Lefebvre, Edmonton's regular punter, and John McKillop, cut by the WFC club, have 37.4 average on 44 kicks.

"This is the first year Garry (Lefebvre) and Ted (Gerela) have had the responsibility of punting. Last year the Eskimos had Randy Kerbow and B.C. had Neal Beaumont.

"Do not forget that this is Gerela's second year in the conference and Lefebvre's third season. All they need is a little experience and confidence."

Armstrong said punting means so much in Canada because of the three downs, compared to four in the United States.

"If a good punter keeps the opposition into its own end of the field six excellent kicks, it certainly helps the defensive squad.

"Experience is the key to good punting. When Ford was faced with a kicking responsibility he was very inconsistent, but he has improved greatly and now is a big man for the Roughies."

Columbus Gains On Toledo

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Columbus Jets have pulled to within a game of Toledo Mud Hens in the International League race.

While Toledo was splitting a doubleheader Tuesday night with Syracuse Chiefs, the Mud Hens winning the nightcap 10-0 after dropping the opener 9-6, the Jets were beating Richmond Braves twice—4-3 and 4-1.

Rochester Red Wings fell to third place, two games off the pace, when they were beaten by Buffalo Bisons 7-4. Louisville Colonels bombed Jacksonville Mets 8-3, ending the Mets' three-game win streak.

A pair of six-hit pitching jobs and two big innings got the job done for Columbus at Richmond. Dave Roberts ran his record to 16-5 in the opener, and Dave Wickersham and Don Schneider combined in the second game.

Manny Sanguillen's lead-off homer was the first of six hits in the Jets' four-run fourth inning in the first game. Bernie Smith hammered a three-run round-tripper in the third inning of the nightcap.

Thad Tillotson, a relief specialist, made his first start for Syracuse in the first game and allowed three hits before retiring after five innings with an elbow injury. Hawk Taylor's 15th homer was all he needed.

The Mud Hens got a five-hitter from Mike Marshall in the second game. The Toledo lefthander struck out 14 in running his record to 14-9 and also contributed three of the Mud Hens' 14 hits. Mike Derrick had four hits. Bob Christian two triples and Ron Woods a pair of doubles.

Jay Walrath banged out three hits, including a triple and his seventh homer, and drove in three runs in Buffalo's victory. Dick Billings slammed a single, double and homer.

A bases-loaded single by Al Closter was the big blow as Louisville scored five runs in the third inning at Jack Neville. Al Lehrer hit his third homer for the Colonels.

Toronto Boots Its Way to 8-4 Win Over Chicago

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Toronto and Chicago markets had an unusually successful night in a North American Soccer League game Tuesday.

Iris DeBrito booted in four goals to lead Toronto to an 8-4 victory over the Mustangs. The 12 goals was the highest two-team production in the league this season, and DeBrito's four markers matched the league's individual scoring record.

In the only other game, Elija Mitz scored all three goals for Oakland as the Clippers extended their winning streak to nine with a 3-0 triumph over Los Angeles Wolves. The nine-game victory string is the longest in the league this season.

Toronto had only a 2-1 lead before a hometown crowd of 2-218 before it launched a second-half outburst. Other Falcon goals were by John Lima, with two, and Victor Jurisevic and Oscar Lopez, one each.

John Kowalik scored twice for Chicago, and Adolph Bachmeier and Peter Sulincevski each scored one.

A crowd of 3,104 in Oakland saw the Clippers boost their Pacific Division lead to 13 points over San Diego. Oakland, however, has only one more game remaining while San Diego has three left.

Goalie Mirko Stojanovic of the Clippers posted his 11th shutout of the campaign, tops in the league.

Wall Street's Biggest Firm Charged with Fraud

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission has levelled fraud charges against Wall Street's biggest securities firm on grounds that it leaked a big money secret only to certain major investors.

The regulatory agency set no date Tuesday when it announced hearings would be held on charges by its staff against the country's biggest and best known broker-dealer, Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith.

Nine officers and five salesmen of the firm, as well as 15 institutional investors—the alleged receivers of the hot tip from Merrills Lynch—also were called on the carpet.

The investors included the Madison Fund and Dreyfus Corp., two big mutual funds.

"We are convinced that none of our people acted wrongfully and you can be sure we will defend our position vigorously," Merrill Lynch said in a statement issued in New York.

John Haire, chairman of Anchor Corp., into which Investors Management Co., one of the cited firms, was consolidated recently, said:

"To the best of our knowledge, we did not receive any non-public information regarding Douglas Aircraft from Merrill Lynch which was not available to us from other sources."

The SEC said Merrill Lynch was helping Douglas Aircraft Co. prepare a bond issue when it learned the big plane builder's earnings, contrary to earlier optimistic reports, were in bad shape.

The SEC version of what followed is that this word passed through the Merrill Lynch personnel to a chosen few investors and that immediately thereafter these began to sell off their holdings in Douglas in the expectation that its value was about to drop.

Meanwhile, the regulatory agency said, other Douglas shareowners were left in the dark—indeed, Merrill Lynch continued to sell Douglas to customers who wanted to buy, the SEC said.

The dumping lasted half a week until Jan. 24, when Douglas publicly announced it might be faced with a no-profit year.

During the unloading, the SEC said, the large investors it has cited clearly their portfolios of 190,000 shares of the unwanted stock. An informed source said these shares sold for some 94,000,000 more than they would have brought if traded at the price that prevailed June 29.

To reward Merrill Lynch for keeping the information from the SEC said, the favored customers, when making subsequent large transactions with other firms, would direct that the commissions be split, part going to Merrill Lynch.

If the SEC's allegations are upheld, Merrill Lynch could face revocation of its brokerage registration (its license to do business), suspension of its registration, censure or limitation of certain portions of its business for specified periods of time.

The firm has 15 days in which to respond. The commission will appoint a hearing examiner who will later issue a decision which Merrill Lynch could appeal to the full commission. The full commission's ruling could in turn be appealed to a federal appellate court.

Quinte Mariners Recorded

A revised edition of Canvas and Steam on Quinte Waters, the popular history of nautical life in the district, appeared in local book shops this week. The first edition of Willis Metcalfe's volume became a collectors' item within weeks of publication.

Second Edition Issued Of 'Canvas and Steam'

It's back, revised expanded and indexed—the sweat, feast and selling, collectors' item in the Quinte district.

Canvas and Steam on Quinte Waters, an anthology of just about everything to do with ships and sailors on the Bay of Quinte and the eastern end of Lake Ontario appeared this week in its second edition.

The first edition, printed in 1955, sold out almost overnight and its few lucky owners found themselves besieged by reference-seekers.

Its author is Willis Metcalfe, Prince Edward County man and the inspiration behind the Mariners' Memorial Museum in South Marysburg.

Over the years he has collected fragments of the maritime history of the Quinte district — anecdotes about ships and sailors, legends about place names, lists of ships and locations of wrecks, ballads of the lake, doggerel verse, pictures of boats, lighthouses and men.

There's a story behind everything and Willis Metcalfe knows them all. The romance of the place names beside his factual accounts of life and death on Quinte waters, with their never-ending themes of fall storms, shipwrecks, courage and endurance.

Mr. Metcalfe's unemotional prose style, flavored with Quinte region turns of phrase, but minus the drama of marine disasters and local shipwrecks.

But like the good historian he is, he strips the embellishments from local legends with a ruthless hand.

Minnie Blackety light in Big Bay is popularly assumed to be named after a ship, wrecked on the shoal it guards, while running to the United States during the Civil War with a cargo of contraband guns.

The unromantic truth is that the two-masted schooner was built in 1872 and "ran aground on a rock in the Bay of Quinte near Orr Point, when coming up with a load of ashes, and the wearing of her cargo ruined her."

The book is well worth its $3.50 purchase price for the ballads and verse alone, the first collection of local folk expression ever made.

Adding greatly to the book's value is an index, compiled by staff and students of Prince Edward District Collegiate.

Printed by the Picton Gazette and sponsored by the Prince Edward Historical Society, Canvas and Steam on Quinte Waters is now on sale at most local book stores.

He Markets Unusual Product

EDMONTON (CP) — A University of Alberta chemist is running two companies to market an unusual product.

"We sell brains," says Dr. Ray Lemieux. "We have nothing else to sell."

It began in 1962 when Dr. Lemieux, a small, stocky professor of organic chemistry was approached by the United States drug firm, Bristol Myers, to do specialized work in antibiotics research. The company undertook to see that he obtained enough contracts to justify the venture.

In partnership with his brother Leo, an Edmonton businessman, Dr. Lemieux set up R and L Molecular Research. The company went into business in July, 1963, in a one-storey building with a staff of three researchers, seven technicians and a small number of support workers.

Another researcher and two more technicians have since been added, and a second company, Raylo Chemicals, has gone into operation with three researchers, five technicians and office staff.

R and L has brought in about $500,000 in research contracts a year during the five years, says Dr. Lemieux.

"Our work is in the general field of antibiotics," he says. "We have obtained several patents and have several pending."

He says Alberta is a prime area for this type of business because of work done at the University of Alberta.

"In chemistry, our graduate work is as good or better than anywhere in Canada and up to the standards of 95 per cent of the universities in the United States. We have a rapidly developing petrochemical industry and it has just started. I don't see why Edmonton couldn't become the Sarnia of the west."

Dr. Lemieux says he believes chemicals will form a major portion of any new secondary industry in Alberta and when it develops, he would like to see it backed by Canadian money.

"By and large, we are quite dependent on a chemical industry. But there is little of this kind of (sophisticated) production in Canada at the moment."

He says the vast majority of Canada can ever produce all volved in low-value bulk products.

"As a result, chemical research or end application of chemicals in Canada is heavily dependent on the United States or overseas suppliers of chemical specialties.

"It is not reasonable to think Canada can ever produce alike her own chemicals, but we should contribute a lot more to world markets."

He says Canada is big enough technically and government agencies such as the National Research Council are keenly interested in helping this kind of development.

Good Diet Means More Than Vitamins

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

There are very few valid excuses for not eating a balanced diet, and thus getting all the vitamins a person needs.

But I'd like to emphasize that a balanced diet does more than provide vitamins. Adequate protein is necessary for health and strength at any age, and you can't substitute starchy foods for protein without suffering.

The protein foods are, mainly, lean meat of all kinds, fish and other sea foods, eggs, cheese. Nuts are fairly high in protein. Milk has some. In general, fruits and vegetables, while some may have a little protein, don't have much. There is no protein in sugar or starch. So pay attention to protein as well as vitamins.

Traces of many minerals are necessary, but an average variety of food, fruits, and vegetables as well as others, will provide the needed traces. Calcium, however, is a bit different. Milk is rich in calcium, but some adults feel they do not need milk. Unless they compensate by getting enough calcium from green, leafy vegetables or other sources, they can suffer from calcium deficiency (which results in healing of wounds, sometimes weakness of bones, etc.)

As to which vitamins are most commonly lacking, that depends on the person and the diet. You can't generalize very much. The no-breakfast teen-agers are most likely to lack Vitamin C. Folks on fat-restricted diets may sometimes be short of Vitamins A and D. The B vitamins are often lacking if people don't get much meat or cereals, but try to substitute starches and corn products.

The following list, however, if followed, will provide the protein, carbohydrate, fats, minerals and vitamins that an averagely healthy person needs:

1 — Two servings a day of meat, poultry or fish (cheese or eggs may be substituted occasionally) and an egg a day.

2 — Bread and cereals.

3 — Milk or equivalent dairy products, three or four glasses a day for children, about two for adults.

4 — At least one serving a day of leafy green or yellow vegetables (salad once a day is a good idea)

5 — At least one serving of fruit a day — and the daily citrus fruit or juice or tomato juice in the morning is a very wise habit, to be sure of getting Vitamin C.

6—Potato, plus one or preferably two other vegetables per day.

7 — A little butter or margarine.

It's not at all hard to follow a balanced diet if you just use those seven essentials in your memory.

Dear Dr. Molner: I had womb, ovaries and tubes taken out because of cancer, and also had a kidney removed. I am now 19. Some friends of mine said after you have that kind of operation you will go crazy and get fat. I know it can't be true. Do you believe that? Mrs. K.

Of course it isn't true. I am constantly amazed at the ignorant stories that are told by "friends." Some friends!

Dear Dr. Molner: My mother and I have been arguing over this question for years: will washing your hair while in your menstrual period give you TB or cause any harm to your health? — S. S.

It is caused by a germ, not by washing your hair. That silly superstition about washing your hair has been passed down from mother to daughter for generations. It is high time it died out.

Note to E.S.: Neither vinegar nor lemon juice nor any of numberless other "home remedies" of that sort will do anything for arthritis.

Reluctant Hero

Two Greek Brothers Operate Only Show Business Factory

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The ancient art of puppetry—thought by some to have originated thousands of years ago with the Chinese—has been good to two brothers of Greek ancestry.

Sid and Marty Krofft operate what they call "the world's first and only show business factory."

"We are absolutely unique," said Sid, 40, who's shaggy-haired, mod-clad and vaguely resembles Mickey Rooney as he led the way about their sprawling plant.

"You as a producer walk in. We take your project and develop it entirely—costumes, props, scenery, special effects, animation, music, everything."

Krofft Enterprises Inc., employs more than 100 artisans, entertains about 36,000 people a day at shows in Georgia and Texas and will gross this year about $1,000,000. Their main customers are amusement parks, tourist attractions, advertisers and television sponsors.

Small orders are accepted, too. A side-show fat man wants "bright, flashy shirts and lose, baggy pants" to accommodate his 700 pounds and 85-inch waist. The Krofts set him an estimate.

"A man walked in the other day with 10 picture frames he wanted painted," said Marty, a native of Montreal who's 30 and slightly less shaggy and swarthy than Sid. "We sprayed them for him free."

Mostly, however, the Krofts think big. Sketches show how one developer will turn his three decks of the liner Queen Mary into a sort of glamorous Disneyland at Long Beach. A cigar-chewing Paul Bunyan gets mechanical innards that will swing his axe at terrified customers on an amusement park's thrill ride.

The brothers started as fifth-generation puppeteers. Sid was born in Athens, where in the 1700s, their great-great-grandfather Peter opened a theatre that launched the Krofts as masters of the marionette throughout Europe for 200 years.

By 1960 the brothers were doing a supporting act in Las Vegas, where bare-breasted French revues had become popular. Sid told his brother: "Let's do a puppet show like the follies."

They borrowed $25,000 to create and costume three-foot high showgirl puppets for a program they called Les Poupees de Paris (The Dolls of Paris).

The adults—only show played to 40,000 in five months in a small San Fernando Valley theatre. It moved to the Seattle world's fair, where Time magazine called it "the smash hit" to PJ's, a Hollywood nightclub, for four years, and to the New York world's fair. Road companies took it to various cities, and an "original cast album" has grossed about $12,000,000.

On television the Krofts created seven puppet characters for the Dean Martin show in 1963. One, a svelte blonde named Colette, drew 3,000 fan letters a week.

"She was fired because she became too popular," said Marty.

This summer the Krofts have 112 puppeteers at work in their family-type shows at San Antonio's HemisFair '68 and at big amusement projects called Six Flags Over Texas, Dallas, and Six Flags over Georgia, Atlanta.

Quinte Bowlers Win All Games

By CLAUDE TICE

TORONTO (Staff) — A pair of bowlers can not do any better than win all the games that are scheduled for the day. This is exactly what Bruce Miller, with Gerry Hyde as ably aid in the second day at the Leaside Lawn Bowling Club here.

The sensation of the tournament to date is young John Mathesen from Victoria, B.C. This 21 year old youngster makes the apparent impossible shots and also makes them look easy. He defeated a veteran from Quebec, John Henderson, for his fourth win today. The Belleville pair took the Nova Scotia team in the morning round. They doubled the score 26-13 on the losers and 2 five-enders helped a lot. Both Miller and Hyde had the green figured and their weight was almost perfect throughout the game.

In the afternoon their victory came easier against Bert Robinson and Robert Laplante of Saskatoon. They won the game 31-6 and from the first end were never in danger. The game of 18 ends must be played to completion and the Saskatchewan pair was ready to throw in the sponge at anytime.

The Ontario rink from Otawa has an excellent chance of winning the title for the province. They have five wins to their credit and a sixth one on Wednesday would cinch the title. They have tough opposition from Alberta. This province could win the doubles title as Harry Justason and Ernie Munroe have yet to meet defeat. This has been an excellent tournament and Jim Munroe have yet to meet defeat. This has been an excellent tournament and the council chairman, has so expressed himself on many occasions. The work of visiting bowlers have been royally entertained at luncheons receptions and tours.

Ice Water Wins 4th

TORONTO (CP) — Ice Water, champion filly in Canada for the last two years, won her fourth race in six outings this season in the featured Roseneath purse at Greenwood race track Tuesday.

The five-year-old daughter of Neartic in her first appearance in a month galloped to an easy win over Hinemoa and Speedy Sonnet in the seven-furlong allowance.

Meanwhile, Richard Grubb, leading rider in Canada last year, gained some ground on the meeting's leader Brian Swatuk of Toronto by riding three winners. Grubb now has 18 winners for the meeting, seven less than Swatuk who was blanked Tuesday.

Grubb rode Roman Sound to a $9.20 win in the fourth race and the two-year-old filly combined with runner-up Pink Passion for a $25.50 exacter.

Convention TV Coverage Has Confusing Moments

NEW YORK (AP)—The restless convention-watcher, moving from network to network looking for the most action, may have had some confusing moments Tuesday night.

At the moment when ABC's top political expert William Lawrence was predicting with firm authority the nomination of Vice-President Hubert Humphrey on a first ballot tonight, CBS's Walter Cronkite and company were excitedly tracking down reports that other candidates were in conference with Stephen Smith, brother-in-law of Senator Edward Kennedy.

What the CBS team at first interpreted as an "important break" in a Kennedy draft, ultimately appeared to be a strategy session on the controversial party planks on Vietnam.

But this flurry was icing on a rich viewing cake. From the opening gavel early Tuesday evening until the windup in the small hours this morning, there was plenty of drama, excitement, suspense and action.

Occasionally, however, it seemed to the viewer that some delegates might be doing a little stunting for the benefit of the cameras. A few slurped out of the hall in full sight of the nationwide audience and, not quite as furious as they seemed, returned quietly and unobserved later.

The camera caught a heated exchange when a couple of prospective speakers were barred by "platform men"—they refused to identify themselves to a network floor reporter—on the ground that they were carrying newspapers.

Newspapers, we were later informed, were banned from the hall lest bored delegates be caught by the cameras in the act of reading not listening to speeches. Depite all this forethought, some people inside the hall forgot the cameras so completely that they roughed up CBS's Dan Rather when he tried to find out the name of a Georgia delegate who, he said, was being "hauled out."

The incident in which Rather was struck and thrown to the floor, took place in full view of the national audience.

With The Trotters

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Mighty Hoot, a trotting colt owned by John J. Mooney, executive vice-president of The Jockey Club Ltd., won the featured sixth race Tuesday night at Mohawk Raceway.

Driven by Jimmy Holmes of Milton, the three-year-old notched his second victory of the year. Mighty Hoot trotted the mile in 2:07 4-5 and hosted his season earnings to $7,998.

The brother started as fifth-generation puppeteers. Sid was born in Athens, where in the 1700s, their great-great-grandfather Peter opened a theatre that launched the Krofts as masters of the marionette throughout Europe for 200 years.

By 1960 the brothers were doing a supporting act in Las Vegas, where bare-breasted French revues had become popular. Sid told his brother: "Let's do a puppet show like the follies."

They borrowed $25,000 to create and costume three-foot high showgirl puppets for a program

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP) — Meadow Byrd, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Roland Cote of Yamaska, Que., won the featured $1,500 eighth race at Batavia Downs Tuesday night.

Janet True and Nimble Pro combined for a $25 daily double.

Flood of Letters, Telegrams Protests Chicago Police Acts

CHICAGO (CP) — Letters and telegrams poured into the offices of Chicago officials Thursday protesting against police actions in dispersing crowds of anti-war demonstrators which have included the beating of 17 journalists.

Four newspaper men were in hospital as a result of clashes between police and demonstrators Sunday and Monday.

Yesterday messages came from the news media, press organizations and the National Council of Churches in New York.

Four city aldermen also called for an official censure of Mayor Richard J. Daley and Police Superintendent James B. Conlisk Jr. for allowing the police action.

Mayor Daley asked for the co-operation of newspaper men and police to avoid further conflict.

"We ask the men of the news media to follow the instructions of police as other citizens should," Daley said.

The most violent clashes have come when waves of helmeted police swept hippies and other protestors from Lincoln Park.

During clashes between police and crowds on two nights reporters and photographers were beaten by police despite visible identification and verbal attempts to identify themselves.

Columnist Mike Royko, in a tongue-in-cheek column in the Daily News, had this advice for Mayor Daley:

"No policeman should be permitted to take more than one newsman in one night. The least he (the mayor) can do is impose a bag limit."

Kennedy Chant Is Curbed

CHICAGO (AP) — Chants of "We Want Kennedy" and arrangements calling on the Democratic national convention to nominate Senator Edward M. Kennedy for president erupted Tuesday night from the California delegation.

The demonstration broke out in the midst of a wrangle over adoption of convention rules.

"We cannot be able to nominate any candidate" unless the business of the convention can be conducted, permanent chairman Carl Albert said in trying to gavel down the brief demonstration.

As the impromptu demonstration continued, Albert announced: "We will not tolerate any demonstrations."

It then subsided as quickly as it rose.

TV Reporter Is Beaten On Floor of Convention

CHICAGO (Reuters) — Correspondent Dan Rather of the Columbia Broadcasting System was punched in the stomach and pushed to the floor of the Democratic national convention Tuesday night while millions of viewers watched on television.

Commentator Walter Cronkite immediately exclaimed angrily over the air: "I think we've got a bunch of thugs here".

He charged that convention officials were "trying to prevent the free flow of information."

The incident occurred while Rather tried to follow a man who was being tightly escorted from the convention floor.

Rather said he believed he was attacked by security men employed by the convention.

Director Dies

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Robert Z. Leonard, 78, who came to Hollywood as a $17.50 a week actor in 1907 and later produced and directed hundreds of movies, died Tuesday of an aneurysm, failure of a blood vessel.

Films he directed included Strange Interlude, The Great Ziegfeld, Maytime, Pride and Prejudice, the French Doll, The Crowd and Her 12 Men. The last one he directed and produced was Beautiful but Dangerous in 1935.

Delegates Are Required To Give Up Newspapers

CHICAGO (AP) — Freedom to read the press suffered a setback Tuesday night in the Democratic national convention.

Delegates complained they were required by security guards to surrender their newspapers on entering the hall.

They were told it was a fire department rule.

Fire department officials said there was no such rule. Try the national committee, they said.

Committee officials said they knew of no such rule. Try the fire department.

At any rate, few delegates could be seen reading newspapers on the convention floor as a result of an edict apparently designed to improve the party's image on television.

Opposition Awaits Help in Research

OTTAWA (CP) — With the opening of Parliament a little more than two weeks off, some opposition parties still are awaiting word from the government on how much more research help they can expect.

Prime Minister Trudeau announced July 5 plans to open talks with the opposition parties on how the government could help them with staff and organization.

Since then the cabinet minister responsible, Privy Council President Donald S. Macdonald, has listened to opposition views on the question but apparently has not given the other parties any clue on what they can expect.

Conservative Leader Stanfield accused the government two weeks ago of dragging its feet on the question. Party Whip Thomas M. Bell said this week that the Conservatives have not seen "any real action" on it yet.

The New Democratic Party parliamentary leader, David Lewis, says he has discussed the proposed expansion with both Mr. Macdonald and Mr. Trudeau but does not know yet what is in store.

He said he will be content if the government produces its plan around the time of the session opening, Thursday, Sept. 12.

Manager Hurt

OTTAWA (CP) — Ken Campbell, 46, musical director of the pop singing group The Supremes, remained in satisfactory condition in hospital Tuesday after a fall on the stage at a Monday morning rehearsal.

Mr. Campbell suffered a fractured skull when he collapsed on the wooden stage in front of the grandstand at Lansdowne Park.

The Supremes are headlining the entertainment at the Central Canada Exhibition here.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For August 29

Your birthday today: In the year ahead you face complement with firm limitations. Learning to live with the minor hindrances will result in personal growth. The general tendency is not to share the joys and sorrows of your life with anybody. Today's natives tend to be studious, intellectually curious.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Today, be prepared for some minor surprises. This is no time to argue with the opposite sex — you cannot win now. Good humor will win out for you elsewhere.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Today's temptation is to select some idea or figures as correct and then argue about it. This can spoil the day.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): It's easy enough to start a friendly tussle; two words in the wrong place will do it. You can avoid irritation once you see the way this works.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Money goes through your fingers today, fast or slowly depending on your restraint — and your resistance to the demands of younger people.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your home demands attention today. There is apt to be good cause for exclamation, so invoke the services of old friends for a party.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Some routines have to be skipped and others skimped. Your friends and relatives are in a fault finding frame of mind. Give them half an ear, keep mum on with your regular duties.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Any dealing in money with the opposite sex draws fire. The consequence is misunderstanding. Minor irritations may project anger and are to be avoided.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): This is a very good day for you to get right to work. Gentle tactics are more effective in the long run. Haste can spoil everything.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Impulse is highly mobilized today. Count 10 before you act — and you'll find the other fellow is counting like-wise. Call it a day early.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Friends and money-lending do not mix. Any argument now will only produce permanent, unfavorable results. Back away from provocations. Find serious reading tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): At the moment perhaps you do not mind public exposure while pleasure — seeking; later you may regret the indiscretion of today.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Your energy is plentiful. The problem is to bring it to bear where it counts. You have two issues to settle. Meditate with good music tonight.

Blockade Costs Cuba Millions --But Western Imports Still High

HAVANA (AP) — How effective is the U.S. economic blockade of Cuba in terms of dollars and cents?

Prime Minister Fidel Castro says it is damaging and has cost his country "hundreds of millions" of dollars because of transportation charges and buying under difficult conditions.

At the same time the Cuban leader manages to bring hundreds of millions of dollars worth of products to this island every year. Last year his imports from Western countries amounted to about $320,000,000 or between 20 and 25 per cent of all Cuba's foreign imports.

Cuban imports from Canada last year totalled $42,550,000 compared with $61,800,000 in 1966. Cuba's sales to Canada rose to $6,325,000 from $5,620,400 in 1966.

Only a shortage of hard currency due to a drought-wracked sugar crop is slowing Castro down this year. Sugar normally earns four - fifths of Cuba's foreign exchange.

The Soviet Union is Cuba's main source of goods from the Communist bloc. Cuba buys about $920,000,000 worth from the Soviet Union annually, far more than it sells in return. This accounts in part for the $1,000,000 a day in non-military aid Moscow is reported to send to this island.

For some time anti-Communist Spain has been out-trading such Communist nations as East Germany, Bulgaria, North Korea, Hungary, Poland, Romania, Yugoslavia and, at times, Czechoslovakia. Imports from Spain often have approached those from Cuba's No. 2 trader, Red China.

The West's new leader this last year was France, which more than tripled its Cuban sales of 1966 and is doing almost nine times the business it did here in the 10 years before Castro came to power.

Figures available here show France's exports to Cuba totaled $70,000,000 in 1967, followed by Spain among the major western traders with $65,000,000.

Canada is listed third among the western sources, with $48,000,000 although Canada's own export statistics from Ottawa show a total of only $42,550,000.

Canadian sales to Cuba last year included $34,300,000 worth of wheat, wheat flour, and durum wheat, up sharply from $10,500,000 for the commodities in 1966. But Canadian potato sales last year fell back to $814,000 from an usually high figure of $27,960,000 a year earlier.

Cuba's 1967 sales of $6,325,000 to Canada included about $5,000,000 in sugar and just over $750,000 in cigars and cigar leaf tobacco.

Britain sold Castro's regime $36,500,000 last year, followed by Japan with $33,500,000, Italy $24,700,000, The Netherlands $15,000,000, West Germany $9,200,000, Sweden $6,200,000, Switzerland $5,600,000, Belgium $2,800,00, and Denmark $1,000,000.

The figures indicate Castro can buy and bring through the blockade most of the things he needs if he has the hard currency to pay for it.

There has been evidence lately that he also can do it on credit. Romania is giving Cuba $30,000,000 worth of oil drilling equipment on eight years' credit.

East Germany has agreed to supply $25,000,000 worth of heavy construction and hydraulic equipment, also on credit.

Near Cienfuegos on Cuba's south coast, a big fertilizer plant supplied by Simon Carves Ltd. of Britain is going up. The plant's price is $44,000,000, backed by a guarantee of the British government. Cuba has five years to pay for this.

Against the background, there are no outward signs here that Castro is interested in resuming diplomatic relations with the United States, even if an offer came from Washington.

Castro has a ready-made villain to blame for Cuba's shortages and economic difficulties: The U.S. economic blockade.

Apartment Building Activity Soars

OTTAWA (CP) — Apartment-building activity soared in Canada last month, as interest rates turned downward and there was some easing in building materials prices.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. reported Tuesday a 43-per-cent increase from a year ago in the number of new apartment units started. The number of new single detached dwellings on which construction started, however, was down 28.2 per cent.

The total number of new housing starts in urban centres last month was 15,317, up 2.4 per cent from July last year.

CMHC said the new housing starts last month represented an annual rate of new construction of 178,300 units. This was still ahead of last year, but down from the rate of 188,100 that prevailed in June.

The Economic Council of Canada has said Canada now needs an annual rate of new housing construction approaching 200,000.

CMHC also reported that the average interest rate on National Housing Act home-ownership mortgages last month was 8.77 per cent, compared with 8.82 in June. The ceiling on NHA rates was dropped on July 1 to 8¼ per cent from 9¼.

Imports Major Problem

KINGSTON (CP) — Textile imports from low-wage countries, such as Japan and Hong Kong, constitute the major problem facing the Canadian textile industry, a Montreal businessman said Tuesday.

T. R. Bell, director of marketing for Dominion Textile Co. Ltd., told the 11th International Canadian Textile Seminar that the Canadian industry is being forced to move away from high-volume, low-price products.

Humphrey Is Winner By Sweeping Margin

Battle Fought Outside Hotel

CHICAGO (AP) — Some 3,000 anti-war demonstrators and Chicago police battled beneath the windows of the Conrad Hilton Hotel, the Democratic national convention headquarters, Wednesday night as Hubert H. Humphrey was receiving the party's presidential nomination.

Early today, an Illinois National Guard formed a protective circle around the Hilton, some 600 dissident convention delegates and youths marched down Michigan Ave. They carried candles and sang softly while the anti-war protesters slept in a park across the street from the hotel.

The International Amphitheatre, site of the convention and five miles distant, remained secure behind police guards and a barbed wire fence.

Tear gas filtered throughout the largest hotel in the U.S. Wednesday night, even reaching the 25th-floor suite of Humphrey and the room of Senator Eugene McCarthy.

Police used clubs in subduing the demonstrators, most of them white youths, some of them bearded, some clean-cut.

Police arrested 267 youths. At least 200 demonstrators were injured, most of them from the policemen's clubs as the youths surged into police lines and attempted to storm the hotel.

For a short time, Hilton guests — including Mrs. McCarthy—were virtual prisoners in the hotel. They were refused permission to leave by police as trash fires were set in Michigan Ave. Just outside, police cars were stoned, and some hotel windows were broken by pressure of the crowds.

The estimated 3,000 protesters filled Michigan Ave. from sidewalk to sidewalk during the melee, blocking all traffic, taunting police with names, throwing an occasional rock or bottle, and refusing orders to disperse.

Police beat and dragged the protesting youths into police vans.

Violence even invaded the hotel's red-carpeted lobby as police pursuing fleeing demonstrators fell upon an unidentified, long-haired news man. He was beaten and dragged through the lobby door.

He was released at the insistence ofwo Columbia Broadcasting System executives.

Police Actions Protested By Indignant Delegates

CHICAGO (AP) — A bloody melee between Chicago police and youthful demonstrators in the downtown area sent a shock wave through the Democratic convention hall Wednesday night, setting off an unsuccessful attempt to halt the session and move to another city.

Some delegates, who watched televised scenes of clubs and tear gas being used on the demonstrators' live, rushed away.

Outraged police with "gestapo tactics" and roundly booed Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago.

The red-faced mayor and his fellow delegates from Illinois responded with jeers and boos of their own for the speakers who made the charges.

One of them, Senator Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut, was silenced for several minutes by shouting, fist-waving Chicagoans on the convention floor in front of the speaker's podium.

Another, Representative John Conyers of Michigan, touched off wild cheers as well as boos when he said "black people have been brutally and sadistically attacked by the Chicago police. . . . This, my friends is the politics of shame."

Ribicoff threw away a prepared nominating speech for Senator George McGovern of South Dakota and said if McGovern were president "we wouldn't have to have Gestapo tactics in the streets of Chicago."

Daley, sitting just a few feet in front of the podium, leaped to his feet at the remark and angry roars swelled up from his delegation. When the noise subsided enough for him to continue, Ribicoff said: "How hard it is to accept the truth," and the uproar was renewed.

Frank Mankiewicz, former press secretary to Robert F. Kennedy, and a McGovern aide, touched off another speech of protest from Daley and his associates when he spoke in his seconding speech of "night-sticks and tear gas and the mindless brutality we have seen on our television screens tonight and on this convention floor."

A group of delegates from several states decided to try to force an adjournment of the convention, a tactic that had succeeded on the first two nights. When the call reached Wisconsin, Don Peterson, the chairman of the delegation, formally moved for a two-week recess and a shift to another city. He was ruled out of order.

Supporters of the effort set up cries of protest at the ruling, hoping enough other delegates would join in to produce a bedlam in which no business could be executed and adjournment would follow. But after a few minutes, the noise died down and the threat subsided.

The action of the Chicago police was praised by Senator Russell Long, a Louisiana delegate. He called it "a courageous job of trying to protect law and order in one of the worst mobs I've seen."

Long said the downtown disturbances that have marked the entire convention week were inspired by Communists.

American television network reporters on the floor told their audience they were being followed everywhere by "anonymous men" who "gumshoed" their movements, listening in to their conversations with delegates and private conversations with their control booths.

FBI to Probe Police Attacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation will investigate the beating of reporters and photographers by Chicago police during civil disturbances in that convention city, it was announced Wednesday.

Attorney-General Ramsey Clark ordered the federal inquiry after reports were received that since Sunday 24 reporters and photographers in Chicago for the Democratic national convention were subjected to unprovoked attacks by police.

Establishment Gobbles Doves

CHICAGO (CP) — Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey easily won the Democratic presidential nomination on the first ballot late Wednesday night at a party convention seething with revolt and threatened with violence.

In the streets five miles from the convention site, police and anti-war protesters clashed bloodily. About 300 persons were injured as police used clubs to rout the protesters. Police arrested 267 youths since noon Wednesday.

In command all the way, Humphrey trampled the challenges of peace candidates Senators Eugene McCarthy and George McGovern to become the election opponent on Nov. 5 of Republican Richard Nixon.

The anticipated victory for the former druggist who rose up the political ladder from mayor of Minneapolis to U.S. senator and then vice-president had been guaranteed hours earlier by two events.

The Deep South threw its support to Humphrey and the man who might have given him a battle, Senator Edward Kennedy, killed off any move to draft him as a presidential candidate by refusing the candidacy in an announcement a few hours before the convention began its third session Wednesday.

For other convention stories see Page 12.

Humphrey as the choice of the party establishment rolled up 1,761½ of the 1,601 convention votes to 601 for McCarthy. Only 1,312 votes were needed to win.

McGovern polled 146½ votes, Channing Phillips of the District of Columbia, the first Negro presidential candidate for nomination, got 67½ and there were 12½ for Edward Kennedy.

Under the party set-up, fractional votes are given to some delegates because there are more members than votes allowed the state delegations.

New Party Proposed

CHICAGO (AP) — A fourth-party movement aimed at nominating a Democrat and a Republican for president and vice-president on a "new party" ticket is taking shape among delegates to the dissatisfied national convention, it was reported Wednesday night.

A Washington, D.C., radio station, WWDC, said the dissident group plans to hold its convention here Friday.

The story said Senator Eugene McCarthy is a first choice of the group for the presidential nomination. It added that Republican Mayor John Lindsay of New York had been approached about the vice-presidential nomination but had turned it down.

Dubcek Was Flown To Jail Handcuffed

PRAGUE (Reuters)—First Secretary Alexander Dubcek of the Czechoslovak Communist party was hustled out of his headquarters Aug. 21, hand-cuffed and flown in a Soviet military aircraft to a secret destination in Slovakia.

Dubcek sat on the plane's metal deck all the way.

This was disclosed in the first authentic account of Dubcek's arrest and of the Moscow negotiations, given to me Wednesday by an official of the Czechoslovak Communist party central committee.

The official said Dubcek was in his private room in central committee headquarters, speaking on the telephone, when the building was surrounded by Soviet paratroops who a few hours earlier had invaded Czechoslovakia.

A report from a Communist source who flew to Moscow last week from Prague said President Ludvik Svoboda was kept for nearly five days in isolation in Moscow except for frequent "threatening" meetings with the Soviet leadership.

This report said Leonid Brezhnev, Soviet Communist party general secretary, Premier Alexie Kosygin and Mikhail Suslov, the party's leading theoretician, had strong reservations about the occupation of Czechoslovakia at a decisive meeting of the Soviet party presidium.

But P. E. Shelest and A. N. Shelepin, two members of the ruling Soviet politburo, won a narrow majority after Defence Minister Andrei Grechko stated flatly the Soviet army considered the occupation vital for the security of Warsaw pact countries.

Reports of the highest authority said it became apparent after the first three days of the Moscow talks that the Soviets realized they had committed a political blunder of unimaginable dimensions.

They previously hoped at least half the Czechoslovak nation would rally to them and renounce Dubcek, these reports said.

Press Censors on Job in Prague

PRAGUE (CP) — Czechoslovaks today said goodbye to their short-lived press freedom and Russian troops were withdrawn from posts outside the central committee building as they surrounding it for eight days.

Meanwhile, the Slovak Communist party ousted pro-Kremlin hard-liner Vasil Bilak as its leader and installed Gustave Husak, who led the Slovak party during the 1944 uprising against the Nazis. He was later imprisoned by Stalinist leader Antonin Novotny.

The departure of troops surrounding the central committee building was believed part of a general withdrawal of troops from Prague and other major cities and towns.

In the editorial offices of Prague radio and television, the party newspaper Rude Pravo, the national news agency CTK and some other official publications, government overseers have orders to apply the new press rules.

It is only two months since a wave of liberalization swept away censorship. Under the new clamp-down, unwillingly conceded in Moscow talks after the invasion by Soviet and other Warsaw pact troops, criticism of Kremlin policies will be barred.

Another clamp-down was imposed on the country's borders, denying entry to foreign journalists and tourists. Businessmen and visitors on official trips will need visas and special certificates stating the purpose of their visit.

A series of top-level party meetings is in prospect today as Czechoslovak Communist party leader Alexander Dubcek struggles to get a skeptical nation to accept the Moscow compromise.

The status of a new 150-man central committee of the Communist party presidium, elected at a secret 14th party congress after the invading troops marched in, was thrown into the melting pot by the resignation from the committee Wednesday of Gustav Husak, a prime minister from Slovakia.

Free radio broadcasts said Husak challenged the legality of the 14th congress because most of the Slovak members were absent. He appealed to Dubcek—also a Slovak—to resign as well.

The issue could cause a serious party rift, but some observers saw Husak's resignation as opening the way for the 14th congress to be declared invalid.

This would enable Dubcek, without excessive loss of prestige, to meet Soviet insistence on the restoration of those pro-Kremlin conservatives dismissed from the committee by the secret congress.

Husak told the Slovak party congress in Bratislava that one of the five Warsaw pact powers occupying Czechoslovakia would accept the decisions of the new committee.

The Czechoslovak radio said early today Husak was elected first secretary of the Slovakian Communist party's central committee, indicating he has solid support for the stand he took.

Sidewalk Sale Termed Success

TRENTON — Trenton streets were crowded with merchandise and eager buyers as the town's first sidewalk sale began this morning.

"The response is fantastic. It will probably lead to something bigger next year," said Ian Darling, spokesman for the merchants.

Approximately 30 Trenton merchants are participating and the sale will last three days.

Mr. Darling said that some merchants have "put as much as one half of their stock on the street."

The sale is taking place along Dundas Street West, On Front Street and Murphy Street between Dundas and Elgin a miniature midway will be set up for the children.

It is expected that this event sponsored by the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, will probably become an annual affair.

A total of $175 in prize money is up for grabs during the three days of the sale.

25 Per Cent Increase

Travel Business Is Booming in City

How many Front Street merchants would care to settle for a big 25 per cent increase in business each year?

Most would claim that such success is beyond all reasonable expectation but actually it does apply to at least one line of business operation in the city.

It is the burgeoning business of the travel agent who with the advent of the jet age, inmore affluent society has seen increased leisure time and a volume increase by leaps and bounds.

And it has all happened in less than a decade.

Rolf's Travel Agency, in operation only since 1961, has enlarged its quarters at least four times and is currently again pushing back partitions to gain more space.

And the same is true for Davison and Davison, the city's oldest travel agency, which this week is moving across the street to larger quarters.

"We see an increase of from 20 to 25 percent in business every year" commented agency owner Milton Davison.

The Roluf Travel Agency has seen business increase at possibly an even faster pace.

Initially Mr. Roluf looked after the travel agency himself but in 1963 when he took over Canadian National's downtown ticket office, he hired an office manager and assistant. His travel department now employs a staff of four persons in addition to himself.

Today they are appointed agents for more than 100 airlines and can sell air tickets for almost any spot on the globe.

By far the largest percentage of today's distance travel is by air, but for the holiday crowd in search of a leisurely vacation, package cruise ship tours to the Caribbean are still popular.

Most such cruises last up to 14 days and fit in nicely with the conventional vacation time period. The long haul across the Atlantic with little to see until arrival is a discouraging factor for Mediterranean cruises, according to Mr. Roluf.

Being a travel agent has its side advantages with staff members getting in on familiarization trips at least a couple of times a year.

The idea is to make travel agents familiar with the trips they are selling.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Roluf are certified travel consultants and belong to the American Society of Travel Agents.

On such familiarization trips Mr. Roluf has been to the Caribbean Islands many times and also to Europe on several occasions.

Last year Mr. Roluf attended the ASTA convention in Greece. He will go to San Juan, Puerto Rico, this year and to Tokyo in 1969.

All staff members, Mrs. Irene Roluf, Mrs. Ida Turner, Mrs. June Walker and Miss Margaret Cooney have been to travel agents school, Mrs. Turner is multi-lingual.

But Milton Davison of Davison and Davison is by far the oldest travel agent in the city. He had been in the business since 1924 when his father took over the downtown Canadian Pacific ticket office.

Mr. Davison says that charter overseas flights are popular with such ticket sales making up a considerable part of his business.

However, winter cruises to the Caribbean Islands and to Honolulu are also popular with the holiday and vacation crowd.

With Davison and Davison space is also becoming a problem and this week the office will move to larger quarters.

For Mr. Davison it will be something like returning home. His new travel agency office across the street will be in the one time d o w ntown CPR ticket office.

Mrs. Irene Roluf (left) of Roluf's Travel Agency lists the beauties of Bermuda as a vacation spot to Mrs. Eilene Moore of Geddes Street. But this time Mrs. Moore settled for a ticket to Winnipeg.

Humphrey

cally obtained victory was greeted with mixed enthusiasm and apprehension by security-harassed delegates in this most guarded and restricted of all national conventions.

The selection of Humphrey promised to lay before the voters a choice between President Johnson's domestic and foreign policies—which the vice-president has backed solidly as a member of the administration team—and a proposed Nixon program that varies more in details than essentials.

Johnson's prompt response to Humphrey's victory, in a statement , released at his Texas ranch, was that the party had nominated "an excellent and an especially well-qualified candidate." He expressed hope that all Democrats would "rally behind him and move forward to victory in the election."

But the degree of unity remained in question. Neither McCarthy nor McGovern came before the convention in the usual custom to pledge active allegiance.

Youth Band Visits Trenton

TRENTON — The P.E.I. Concert Band performed at Centennial Park last night and were so well received that hopes were raised for a Legion band here in Trenton.

The band is made up of youths 14 to 18 and they played everything from Legion marchpasts to a medody from "The Sound of Music."

Branch 110 of the Legion in Trenton sponsored the group and from the response of the crowd the effort was well worth it.

In closing, Robert Carleton, president of the Chamber of Commerce, mentioned that the addition of a legion band to this area would "be of great benefit to the town."

He also added hopes for a bandshell in Centennial Park.

Bob Eaton Knifes Through ... Beverly Boyce in Beautiful Form ... Jim Lambi Does It Well ... Olympic Diving Form Well Illustrated

Olympic Divers Thrill Crowd at Kinsmen Swimming Pool

Approximately 250 people were on hand last night at the Kinsmen Pool for Watershow '68.

Young and old alike applauded the demonstrations, ary and comedy of the acts which made up the show.

The program, introduced by pool manager, John Seldon, began with demonstrations by the Quinte Aqua-Divers, a local scuba-diving club.

The divers demonstrated the various means of entry into the water and the chore of removing and putting on equipment under the surface.

The club members also illustrated that things below are not so drastically different than things above by drinking a bottle of pop on the bottom of the pool.

Their contribution to the show's program wound up with a demonstration of "buddy-breathing."

Peterborough had its contribution at the show for yet another year. The Peterborough Ornamental Swim Club pleased the audience with movements of grace, beauty and precision.

One of the highlights of this segment of the program was a pair of routines from Peterborough's own show, Aladdin and his Lamp.

Olympic divers made their appearance known by amazing the audience with their skill. On hand was Beverly Boyce, one metre, three metre and 10 metre Canadian girls diving champion and member of the olympic team for this year.

Bob Eaton, men's junior Canadian Champ in the ten metre plunge, also a member of the Olympic team for 1968, and Jim Lambi, 1968 Canadian champion, amazed the audience with their skill.

A younger diver from Oakville, Ted Williamson, showed that the younger set are not excluded from the halls of diving talent.

The show wrapped up with a comical note supplied by the Belleville clown divers whose antics tickled the funny bones of young and old alike.

The show, under the new pool lights, was a prelude to awards night, which will be held this Saturday evening at the pool.

Third Day

Railways Honor Strike at Central Bridge

TRENTON - The Central Bridge plant here resembled a deserted building awaiting demolition as 74 members of Local 13590 of the United Steel Workers of America entered their third day of strike action.

There is no activity in the building except for supervisory staff. The main gate and a CNR and CPR spur lines are both being picketed.

"The railway is honoring the picket", said one striker," nothing is going out or coming in."

Jim Thompson, president of the local, explained the reason for the strike as a demand for increase in wages.

"We want a two year contract with an increase of 20 cents an hour the first year and 15 cents the second year.

An original demand was made for wage parity with the Toronto ironworkers but this would have meant 97 cent wage hike over two years.

"We came down to try and get a contract established", continued Mr. Thompson, "but make no mistake about it, we are not going any lower."

He said the union will negotiate any time. All management has to do is "make a move" according to Mr. Thompson.

An offer had been made by management for a two year contract with an eight cent increase each year but this was refused.

Mr. Thompson today cleared up previously conflicting reports as to meeting between management and union since the strike began.

"There have been no meetings since we went on strike nor do I know of any", he asserted.

The union agrees it will stay out as long as need be or as one striker put it, "we can wait as long as they can."

The union feels deeply that their cause is a legitimate one. Said one picketer, "Meat and potatoes cost the same here as they do in Toronto."

The present basic wage at the plant is $1.95 an hour.

D. M. Cameron, general manager and vice-president of Central Bridge was unable to be reached for comment on the situation. His secretary reported that he had gone to Toronto for the day.

Chicago

Placing emphasis on a problem is a sure way of aggravating it. Observe the incredible security precautions at the Democratic party convention in Chicago and the truth of this premise becomes apparent.

It is as if all that barbed wire, checks and double-checks, serve only as a challenge to the militants — the Negroes and the hippies and the yippies (youth international party) to make as much trouble as possible.

The rioting that has taken place already makes it quite obvious that police and militants are locked in a personal confrontation that places the other issues in the shade. The police in Chicago have been wading in to the crowds with their night sticks, lashing out indiscriminately at all and sundry. If they had any special targets, members of the press constituted one such group. No fewer than a dozen newsmen covering a street demonstration early Wednesday were set upon and beaten.

In a country where the democratic processes are carried out in the glare of high-pressure publicity and where such activity invariably engenders a high degree of tension, the atmosphere in Chicago is that of a forest area where rain has not fallen for weeks.

Introduce into this cauldron the forces of public militancy, and the police, and an explosion is inevitable. While there can be little sympathy with the pig-headedness of demonstrators at large, the police regrettably have used methods of repression as brutal as they are ineffectual. Where Chicago is concerned, the police there might take a tip from the West Germans who use water cannons to disperse demonstrators. There is probably no better way of dampening the ardor of militants. It also has the merit of being comparatively harmless, involving little if any physical injury and at the same time relieving pressure on the hospitals.

Hospital Care

The response of the provincial minister of health, Dr. Matthew Dymond, to Dr. Richard Potter's criticism of a lack of hospitals for chronic-care patients might be described as evasive.

To the Quinte member's claim that he and other physicians "lie" in official reports to keep chronic patients in active treatment hospitals, the minister hinted at an investigation by the College of Physicians and Surgeons into the ethical men's professional ethics. But he said little or nothing with regard to the chronic-care establishments which Dr. Potter says the province lacks.

A solution to this problem might be found in a recent development in Prince Edward County. A small but modern primary school at West Lake has been extended and converted into a nursing home — the result of school systems being reorganized on a regional basis.

Could other schools, similarly affected, be converted for use as chronic-care hospitals, psychiatric units and the like?

Meanwhile if physicians are forced to lie in order to ensure that their patients remain in active treatment hospitals and thereby receive the care they need, this may be regarded as a symptom of an unhealthy situation whose remedy lies in government hands.

Princess Marina

The death of Princess Marina, 61-year-old aunt of the Queen, removes from the scene one of the Royal Family's most attractive personalities.

The princess, widow of the Duke of Kent, was a popular figure wherever she travelled in the course of a busy schedule — the kind maintained by most members of the royal family, from the Queen on down. She was honorary colonel of the Essex and Kent Scottish, an Ontario infantry regiment.

The royal family has always been keen on sport and it was tennis that claimed the attention of Princess Marina — the original Greek tiffin which she served on the death of her husband, the Duke of Kent, in an air crash some years ago. She was always on hand at Wimbledon to present the trophies of the tournament there.

Princess Marina was mother of Princess Alexandra, who has made several visits to this country and whose own charming personality owes much to her mother's upbringing; and of the present Duke of Kent.

CBC Could Use More UK and Commonwealth Programs

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA — The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation appears to be encountering a great deal of frustration as it seeks to build among Canadians a taste for its own programming.

In its annual accounting the CBC had to confess that two of the most popular programs with English-speaking Canadians are the U.S. shows of Ed Sullivan and Red Skelton.

Actually these American offerings rated well behind one Canadian product — National Hockey League games. This great sport spectacle is the favorite program of both English and French-speaking citizens.

But apart from hockey, it was Sullivan and Skelton on the English network before the first Canadian program — Front Page Challenge — could get on the ratings.

And after this CBC show came more American programs like Bonanza, Green Acres and the Carol Burnett show.

Canadians also liked the Beverly Hillbillies, Mission Impossible and Hogan's Heroes.

It must grate on the CBC to consider that citizens of this great land would rather watch a program like the Beverly Hillbillies than some of their public affairs shows.

The facts are though that the public affairs programs which the CBC deals out with a lavish hand are received with comparatively modest enthusiasm.

Such programs as The Way It Is, Newsmagazine, Public Eye and Twenty Million Questions had listening audiences of over one million but that's not much compared to over three million watching the antics of Red Skelton.

The CBC finds itself in a very difficult position. It is actually charged under parliamentary legislation with responsibility in the field of national unity.

It is the duty of the corporation to help keep Canada together, to develop a sense of nationhood and to serve as a link across this huge country.

In carrying out its many responsibilities the CBC operates under the shadow of the gigantic American radio and television resources. The corporation faces the awesome challenge of producing programming that will be acceptable to Canadians in the face of American competition.

It is evident that many Canadians would rather watch certain American programs than those produced by their own network.

An attempt is made to meet the vexing problem by giving Canadians a fair sampling of the top U.S. shows and presenting them under CBC auspices.

This is a money-saver and a face-saver for the CBC which cannot afford to produce the great variety of shows turned out south of the border.

That is why Canadians tuning into their CBC channels can get Ed Sullivan, Red Skelton, Bonanza and the like.

Money is what the CBC wants more of and that is where the great crunch comes. Last year corporation operating expenses totalled $185,000,000 with parliamentary grants providing $140,000,000.

Parliamentary critics keep a sharp eye on corporation spending and they attack moves to give the CBC even more money.

The corporation walks a tight-rope in trying to please its parliamentary masters and its Canadian viewers.

It is ironic that although designed as a major factor in building up and conserving Canadian nationhood, the CBC relies so much on American programming that saps away at any distinctive Canadian-way-of-life.

The facts are there very clearly. In an average winter week of TV viewing the CBC provides 41 hours of Canadian programs, 29 hours of U.S. programs and one hour of Commonwealth shows.

Many Canadians will wonder why, at least, there could not be much more programming from the United Kingdom.

Market for NZ Apples In Canada

Windsor Star

Soon there will be abundance of autumn apples. And they never taste better than fresh off the tree, ripened by the sun.

Modern methods of keeping apples enables them to be marketed throughout the year. They are quite edible but lack something of their original full flavor and juiciness.

The vagaries of trade always are intriguing. In a supermarket recently we glanced at the apple counter, especially noting those designated as being from New Zealand. They were fine large fruit. The counterman wasn't sure of their name but they looked something like Canadian Greenings.

Why apples should be imported all the way from New Zealand is something of a mystery. It is true we sell them in large amounts to Britain, and they travel quite a way from tree to table, but Britain doesn't have enough of her own. We in Canada grow plenty and to spare. New Zealanders have the initiative to look for far - off markets and the ability to lay them down at a competitive price.

Ship Output In Canada Lags Behind

Ship-Shore News

In the nineteenth century Canada was a world leader in its volume of shipbuilding. To day, it lags behind many countries, and under Ottawa's present diminishing subsidy policy there seems little prospect of regaining our former rank among ship-building nations.

According to Lloyd's Register Shipbuilding Returns, the latest list of the world's order book for ships (including vessels (a) under construction and (b) not commenced) shows Canada with a total of 246,197 gross tons on order. Leading her are Brazil, Denmark, Finland, France, West Germany, Italy, Japan, Sweden, U.S.A., Yugoslavia, Great Britain (including N. Ireland).

Of these countries, only Brazil (80,182 tons) and Finland (450,396 tons) show less than one million tons on their order books. Eight others have between one and two million; four have between two and four million; and Japan has more than 17 million tons on order.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Aug. 29, 1968 . . .

The Quebec Bridge, spanning the St. Lawrence River, six miles above Quebec City, collapsed 61 years ago today — in 1907 — carrying 75 workmen to their death. The bridge was started in 1900 as the world's largest cantilever bridge. After the tragedy, construction started again and by Sept. 11, 1916, both cantilever spans were completed.

When the centre span was being hoisted into position it fell into the river taking the lives of 13 workmen.

1916 — Gen. Paul von Hindenburg was appointed chief of the German Army's general staff.

1920 — The Chilean ship Iquia sank during a storm off Cipumbo, taking the lives of 301.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1943 — Danish naval ships scuttled more than one-third of Germany's small fleet in a battle with German troops and Germany claimed a military victory. Devastation on the country; four-engined bombers struck at Orte, a railway centre 40 miles north of Rome for the first time; United States heavy bombers dropped more than 19 tons of bombs on Japanese-occupied Myitkyina, in northern Burma, causing heavy damage.

June Unemployment Down

Winnipeg Free Press

Canada's employment picture continues to be reasonably encouraging. The latest DBS statistics (to mid-July) show that unemployment in the country dropped by 24,000 from mid-June. The total (371,000) is still some 90,000 above last year at the same time but represents only 4.5 per cent of the labor force. Most encouraging about the latest statistics is that they reveal a decline in unemployment well above the average for this time of year — 24,000 as compared with the five-year average of 7,000.

The soft spots in the economy (by provinces) continue to be Quebec with a jobless rate of 5.6 per cent and the Atlantic region with 5.4. Among industries, manufacturing is still having the most trouble, with jobs down 22,000 on the month and 30,000 over the year. The Prairies have been fortunate, with a jobless rate of only three per cent.

These statistics leave no room for complacency but the overall picture is not as black as the critics claim.

Economic Council's Predictions

Consumer Spending, Population and Home Construction

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — The flow of money Canadians spend on food, clothing, housing, factories and machinery constitutes by far the most important factor in measuring the health of the economy.

Even in times of the direst depression, people cannot eliminate consumer spending on goods and services, such as food, clothing and shelter, unless they are to go starved, naked and homeless.

The amount they spend on these necessities and on new industrial plants and machinery is a measure of their prosperity and willingness to create the facilities that create additional wealth.

When the Economic Council of Canada made its first review of the economy nearly five years ago, consumer spending already was running well. But there was slack in the economy, and the council set goals by hoping it up to its full potential by 1970.

It outlined real growth targets of 5.5 per cent a year in the gross national product, 5.1 per cent a year in consumer spending on goods and services, and 10 per cent a year on gross business investment in new construction, machinery and equipment.

It also analysed the population trend, and said Canada would need a higher level of new home construction, leading up to 190,000 dwelling units a year by 1970. In later reports, it revised this need with a 200,000 target for 1970.

Consumer spending amounted to $27,487,000,000 in 1963, the base year for most of the council's projections. The council said the major part of the increase in total output to 1970 would be accounted for by higher levels of consumer spending.

According to the latest available figures, personal expenditure on consumer goods and services was running, in the first three months of 1968, at an annual rate of $39,876,000,000. This is higher than the council's goal, but is in terms of the inflated 1968 dollar.

Converting to the purchasing value of the 1963 dollar, this year's consumer spending is running at $35,250,000,000 — very close to the council's projection since it, also, was based on the 1963 dollar.

Canada has not done as well in muting the housing goals set by the council.

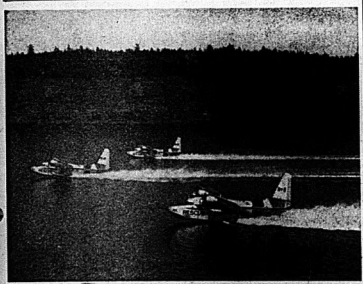
The level of residential construction had been rather low during the five years prior to the council's projections for 1965 to 1970, but the rate of family formation, and the backlog of housing need, was dig—and growing.

The same rapid increase in population and urban concentration has not been accompanied by a commensurate increase in residential construction," the council said in its first review.

In the early 1960s, family formations averaged about 60,000 a year. This figure is expected to double by the end of the decade as the babies born in the post-war baby boom come to maturity.

The council estimated that 135,000 housing units would be built in 1963, its base year, and said this should rise to 190,000 in the latter part of the 1960s. In its latest annual review, last year, it revised this figure upwards to 200,000, and said the higher levels should prevail through the late years of the decade.

Latest indications are that residential construction this year will produce 175,000 units. A figure closer to 185,000 would fit better with the council's projections.



Practical Demonstration Goes A Long Way

Chief Inspector, Robert Fair, of the Belleville Fire Prevention Bureau illustrates how a fire extinguisher is to be used. The janitors who witnessed the demonstration spent the whole day yesterday learning improved methods of janitorial work.

Janitors Attentive Audience

Inspector Paul Stevenson and Chief Inspector Robert Fair of the Belleville Fire Prevention Bureau explain types of fire extinguishers to Quinte area school janitors.

The Grumman SA-16B Albatross is used mainly for search and rescue operations and mercy flights over the Canadian mainland, the coastal waters and the Arctic archipelago. This triphibious aircraft has a cruising speed of 180 mph and will appear in the air show at the Canadian National Exhibition.

All Set for CNE Air Show

TRENTON — Planes of every shape and variety gathered at CFB Trenton yesterday as they prepared to fly to Toronto for the first practice for members of the Canadian Armed Forces in the International Air Show at the Canadian National Exhibition.

And although there was no official feedback on the results of the afternoon practice the pilots of the planes believed everything went pretty well.

Each plane left the base at a different time according to the part of the one half hour show it was to appear in. After completion of the act the pilot returned to Trenton.

There will be one more practice tomorrow and then the real thing on Friday.

The program is dramatically opened by four CF 104 Starfighters doing a high speed flypast.

Following this is a flypast of Training Command's Tutor — and next comes the single, overhead winged, Lysander of WW II vintage.

A simulated submarine bombing run is next on the hill as Maritime's Argus and Tracker aircraft take after simulated subs.

Various ATC planes will then do a flypast.

An Albatross, Dakota and a Labrador helicopter, along with a crash boat will execute a search and rescue display.

Three men will parastroop into the water and will then be picked up by boat and helicopter.

Acrobatics will take the form of the "Red Knight," Captain Dave Curran. Finally to close out the show a CF 100 Voodoo aircraft will do a high speed flypast and climb.

It was quite a show yesterday and as this was only the first practice, near perfection should be the order of the day by the time Friday rolls around.

Handling the announcing for the show will be Capt. G. J. Carscadden.

Fall Fairs Slated

This is fall fair time and the upcoming Labor Day weekend will see no less than three such events held in the Bay of Quinte district.

On Saturday, August 31, the annual Stirling, fall fair will be held in the village agricultural grounds, while on the same day Denbigh, in the north end of Lennox and Addington county on No. 41 highway, will hold its fair.

Then on Monday, Labor Day, the Marmora Fair will be held.

Also, next week, Napanee will hold its fair on September 2-3-4, while Picton will hold its three day fair on September 5-6-7.

Modern Trend

Caretakers Go Back to School

Everybody is getting into the education act.

Now even school caretakers have to go back to school.

Wednesday, 69 of them attended a caretakers' Improvement Day at Centennial Secondary School, sponsored by the Bay of Quinte District High School Board.

And in keeping with modern trends, one of the key lectures dealt with public relations, and how caretakers could project a good image of their schools and themselves.

Donald Stirling, superintendent of the Bay of Quinte Board broke the news gently that schools would be used more by the general public and the caretakers would have to brace themselves for the onslaught of adults after school hours.

"You, and the school system, are judged on the appearance of your school, inside and out, and on what it costs to keep it that way," Mr. Stirling said.

The coming union of all school boards in the county into one administrative body was reflected in the attendance at the day - long sessions.

In addition to 35 caretakers from the Bay of Quinte District schools, 20 were present from Trenton, two from Bancroft, five from Centre Hastings and seven from OSD. Only county board not represented was Belleville Public Schools.

Fire Extinguisher Course Presented

Inspectors from the Belleville Fire Prevention Bureau switched occupations yesterday.

Chief inspector, Robert Fair, and inspector Paul Stevenson were on hand yesterday morning to "teach" the care, maintenance and use of fire extinguishers to school janitors from throughout the Quinte area.

The lesson was one segment of a whole day's program for 69 janitors designed for janitorial improvement.

The "students" took part in a lecture given by Mr. Fair and then went outside Centennial secondary school to witness a demonstration of different types of fires and corresponding extinguishers.

During the lecture Mr. Fair stressed the importance of notification of the fire department before using extinguishers whether the fire be large or small.

Mr. Fair cautioned the janitors to give consideration to the nature of the contents of a fire extinguisher.

"Certain extinguishers give off toxic poisons when applied to certain materials," he said. "Labels must be read and understood."

The inspectors then lit fires behind Centennial and applied the contents of various types of extinguishers.

School Site In Location For Reunion

SAANICH, B.C. CP - Contrary to an often-seen television commercial, this was one school reunion where all the ladies had to look older.

Theoretically the youngest age possible was 65, for the South Saanich school was closed in 1953.

Yet 92 persons — former teachers, ex students and guests — gathered for the reunion on the site where the school was built in 1869.

The site now is vacant, but for the reunion the Central Saanich school board cleared the weeds and debris.

Four one-time South Saanich school teachers attended the gathering: Mrs. Helen Dawson, 58, Mrs. Mildred Ibbotson, Mrs. Ethel McElvy and Mrs. Hollie Harding, 97.

Mrs. Dawson said she enjoyed meeting one of her former pupils, now an alderman here.

"He was quiet as a boy but evidently he's full of fun and mischief now."

Dr. R. M. MacKenzie said he was "about as young as you can be and still have gone to that school."

"The thing that flattens you out though is to see trees over 65 feet tall where we used to play rounders.

"It amazed me—there were no trees there then."

Dinner for Labor Day

BY MARY MOORE

To give you a last fling at loafing on the beach or in the garden in the sun on Labor Day here is an oven dinner My daughter-in-law Margaret and I prepared it in the cool of the morning. Later at spasmodic intervals we strolled up from the beach, put the cabbage rolls in the oven and gave the finishing touches to the vinagrette pudding.

CABBAGE ROLLS (serves 6)

Mix together in a large bowl

1¼ lbs. ground chuck beef
2 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon thyme
one-sixteenth teaspoon pepper
1¼ cups cooked rice (½ cup raw rice, 1¼ cups boiling water)
2 large onions chopped
1 egg

Have ready a large saucepanful of boiling water. Cut core from 1 large cabbage.

Carefully separate all leaves, retaining their shape. Shave off thick part of centre ribs in larger leaves. Parboil cabbage leaves, covered, or 5 minutes, until they will bend and have a leathery texture but will not break. Drain. Spoon a heaping tablespoonful of meat mixture on to base of each cabbage leaf. Fold in sides and roll up to enclose meat mixture. Arrange rolls in rows, open end down, in large baking dish. You will have two layers. Pour over

1 cup tomato juice and
3 ato cubes dissolved in
1 cup boiling water
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Cover and bake at 300 deg. Fahr. 2½ hours. (See below for baking period along with rhubarb pudding.)

RHUBARB PUDDING (serves 6)

Into a large casserole measure 4 or 5 cups tender raw (or fresh frozen) rhubarb, cut up, 1 cup sugar, grated rind ½ lemon

Stir them together. One hour before mealtime make batter topping by beating together in beater bowl 2 eggs, 1 cup sugar, ¼ cup soft butter or margarine. Add two-thirds cup unsifted all-purpose flour 2 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt. Beat well and spread over rhubarb. For dinner at 6 p.m. put pudding in oven at 5 p.m. But raise heat to 375 deg. F. and remove cabbage rolls. Bake for ½ hour. Return cabbage rolls to oven and bake both at 300 deg. F. 30 minutes longer.

the dairy farmer has a family to support too

Dairy farmers who supply the fluid milk market received their last price increase in May 1967. Since then, and especially during the past six months they have absorbed rising costs brought about by increases in supplies, farm labour, machinery and property taxes. They cannot continue to do so.

Even the more successful dairy farmers do not make a great deal of money for their efforts. Last year, dairy farmers earned about the same as a good secretary, for all their investment of labour, management and capital.

So reluctantly, the dairy farmer must ask more for the milk he supplies to the dairies. Some dairies may absorb part of this additional cost but in no case does the farm price increase call for more than an extra 2¢ per quart at retail —depending upon the size of container you buy.

The dairy farmer has a family to support too.

Sister Is Blamed For Wife's Illness

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My brother wrote me a nasty letter two years ago and said I was responsible for his wife's nervous breakdown. I admit I never cared for her, but Emma and I did needle her a little, but I refuse to accept responsibility for her nervous breakdown.

ANN LANDERS

This morning I received a phone call from my brother. He said, "I just wanted you to know that Emma is going to be operated on for varicose veins tomorrow and it's your fault."

I asked him how he figured I was to blame for Emma's varicose veins and he replied, "The doctor said depression affects the capillaries and there is no doubt that the unhappiness you have caused Emma has brought on this varicose condition."

Emma has had five children in six years and I think this is what caused her varicose veins.

Check with your medical authorities and let me know if I am right — NOT GUILTY

DEAR NOT — A woman who has five children in six years is a fairly good candidate for varicose veins even if she has a sister-in-law who is crazy about her. Ignore your brother's accusations and send Emma a bouquet of flowers. This type of surgery is no fun.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Will you please stop ruining people's lives? If you tell one more girl to give up her out-of-wedlock child I'm going to the owner of the paper and get your column thrown out.

How can you be so cruel? Don't you know that often the baby is the only thing the girl has left to live for? I know what I am talking about because I was the victim of the same lousy advice, only mine came from a social worker.

This miserable, hard-hearted woman talked me into giving up my child 10 years ago and I have cried myself to sleep every night since. Every time I see a dark-haired little girl on the street I wonder if she is mine.

My relatives don't want to have anything to do with me and my life is lonely and empty. If I had kept my little girl I would have been a happy woman with something to look forward to after work instead of four walls — BITTER.

DEAR BITTER — The social worker's advice was good. To raise a fatherless child is extremely difficult — even for a person who has emotional stability. A woman who has cried herself to sleep every night for 10 years would probably have raised a child with a zillion problems.

I hope it will be of some comfort to you to know that the child is better off in a home where she can have the love of both a mother and a father.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Please help me. My cousin Charlotte is coming from Oklahoma. She is a nice girl but Charlotte is bigger than any of the boys in our crowd and I'm going to have a terrible time getting her dates. All the guys want to see a picture. I have a snapshot of Charlotte standing beside a Volkswagen and, honestly, she is bigger than the car.

Any suggestions? — GLOOMSVILLE.

DEAR GLOOM — If there's oil in the family it won't hurt to mention it. In the meantime, don't try for the groovi-est guy in the crowd. Forget about Charlotte's size and pick one of the less popular birds who would appreciate being asked.

* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Successful Living

Teenager Asks Question "Are Social Workers Cold?"

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I want to know more about being a social worker. Someone told me you have to be cold and unfeeling or else you couldn't stand to work with people who are in so much trouble.

Is this true? — Sixteen, Grade Eleven.

Dear Sixteen: Bless you, no. I'd steer clear of any worker who met my need with a cold shoulder. A person like that wouldn't even last interested in a helping profession like social work in the first place (I hope).

The thing is, you learn not to break down and weep with people. You are more likely to help them pull up their socks. Successful Living style.

This summer seven teenage girls have been working as volunteers for a Canadian Children's Aid Society, just to get a taste of the work. They take certain little boys and girls to playground; and the insight shown in one early report is worth quoting:

"I had two small victories in one day: Billie voluntarily said 'please' when he wanted help with tying his shoes. And for the first time since we met Dot looked me straight in the eye instead of speaking to the wall beside me."

Dear Doris: I was never interested in boys when I went to school. I fell in love with a married man (twice my age) when I was 20 — my first love! Boy, I was so innocent. Although we never did anything wrong I had great guilt feelings plus the fact that I had worked very hard for my degree, I had a nervous breakdown and spent nearly three years in and out of a mental hospital.

I am still under a psychiatrist's care. I find it very difficult to talk to him, or anyone, about myself except by writing, as I'm doing now. He is a great friend and we go for walks together. I like to think of him as my boy friend or husband sometimes because there's no one else.

I want so much to be loved by a fellow. I long to have children and settle down, but I'm too scared. I don't know how to act when taken out because I haven't had the experience, and here I am 29! I think I would be sick at my stomach if someone asked me out. — Scared To Live.

Dear Scared: There should be lengthy jail sentences for married males who usurp the affections of gullible inexperienced girls. Doubtless that First Love Gloss kept you out of the market while the single fellows were looking around for girls like you.

But the continuing friendship of a psychiatrist who is your doctor is not the answer. Later on he will not be in your life at all.

You would be less normal if you did not crave love, but how will you get it if you cringe from being where people are? Teen-agers tackle this problem all the time and emerge from their cocoons as sociable, poised butterflies.

You are just a little late, that's all. Get going. Scared. Activities like sports or hobbies or discussion groups can lead you into new friendships. Be brave and take the plunge.

* * *

Confidential to Canora: Your story of the selfless laborer puts the Christian approach in a nutshell. Funny thing is, it works. There is deep down joy to be had when one gets the knack of putting the other fellow first.

This doesn't imply knuckling under like a spineless Milquetoast; but it does mean deliberately standing up and being counted when it comes to unbearded (almost) under dog promotion.

Bride-elect Honored At Shower

MINTO — Approximately 50 relatives and friends of Miss Janet Johnston, bride-elect, gathered at the Community Hall on Wednesday evening to honor her with a miscellaneous shower.

She was given a decorated chair on the platform along side of her mother and the mother of the groom. Mrs. Frank McGee and Mrs. Mc-Adam conducted the program, welcoming everyone and expressing best wishes to the bride on behalf of all present.

Mrs. Garry Mason presented Miss Johnston with a corsage. Mrs. Harold Holden gave a reading, and Mrs. Goldie McInroy gave two solos accompanied by Mrs. Peg Haggerty.

Games and contests were enjoyed following which Mrs. Ross Kim read the address. Miss Johnston was then presented with many varied gifts for which she most gratefully thanked all present, including hostesses, Mrs. Orval Jackson, Mrs. Frank McGee and Mrs. Ross Kim. The evening ended with the serving of dainty refreshments.

Talk of Permanent Speaker May Be Premature

TRUDY

OTTAWA (CP) — Talk about creation of a "permanent" speaker for the House of Commons may be premature.

Independent MP Lucien Lamoureux, former Liberal, is expected to be re-elected Speaker by the Commons Sept. 12, a few hours before the official opening of the new Parliament.

Mr. Lamoureux, 68, ran as an independent in the June 25 general election in the Ontario riding of Stormont-Dundas after the Conservatives as well as the Liberals stepped aside with the understanding that he would continue as Speaker in the new Parliament.

Politically, the situation may remain that way until the next election is held, which may not be until 1972 or 1973.

The Conservatives of Stormont-Dundas agreed to stand aside for one election only. Some Liberals in the riding disapproved of Mr. Lamoureux running as an independent. He easily defeated a New Democrat after the NDP let the local constituency association decide whether the seat should be contested.

There has been talk of creation of a special riding—such as Parliament Hill—for a permanent Speaker.

This would require an amendment to the British North American Act, Canada's constitution, which says the Speaker must be an elected MP chosen by the Commons.

Some argue that the Speaker, if designated or appointed instead of elected like other MPs, would become another Ottawa bureaucrat.

There also is this problem: How would the Commons get rid of a "permanent" Speaker who turned out to be a poor one?

What appears most likely is a Canadian adaptation of the British practice of a "continuing" Speaker who serves for some 10 years in that role but is an MP who contests elections.

Some constituents of Stormont-Dundas appear to have the notion that an MP who is Speaker cannot get much done for them. Actually, a Speaker is probably in a better position than any other MP to get things done for his constituency.

Mr. Lamoureux, a native of Ottawa and a lawyer, was first elected to the Commons in 1962. He became Deputy Speaker in 1963 and Speaker in 1965.

The defeat of Liberal MP Herman Batten, 59, in the Newfoundland riding of Humbert-St. George's-St. Barbe has created a problem for the government, which nominates the Speaker and Deputy Speaker. Mr. Batten was Deputy Speaker in the last Parliament.

Depending upon success at the polls, the deputy speakership has often been a stepping stone to the Speaker's chair in the past. General practice has been to elect a new Speaker for each new Parliament, which can last up to five years, and alternate the post between English- and French-speaking MPs.

Also in line with past practice, with the French-speaking Mr. Lamoureux continuing as Speaker, the new Deputy Speaker would have to be English-speaking, preferably with ability in French, and have Commons experience.

Hence the loss of Mr. Batten's experience will be felt.

There was a suggestion that the post might be filled by Conservative Gerald Baldwin of Peace River, especially in view of the Conservatives, with drawal in Stormont-Dundas.

However, Conservative Leader Stanfield is said to feel that he needs Mr. Baldwin, who has been appointed his party's House leader.

The Senate has a speakership problem as well.

Senate Speaker Sydney J. Smith is ill and is believed ready to submit his resignation from the upper house. Moreover, it frequently is the practice to name a new Senate Speaker for each new Parliament.

The Senate could have another English-speaking Speaker. The Speaker of the upper chamber is usually English-speaking when the Commons Speaker is French-speaking and vice versa.

Judy LaMarsh Broadcasts

OTTAWA (CP) — From behind a raised desk in a television studio Wednesday in the national capital, Judy LaMarsh, earnest and low-key, talked into the cameras.

The former Liberal cabinet minister was taping a new program on which, as host, she will be a kind of television ombudsman making the public aware of social injustices.

Miss LaMarsh, 44, accepted a one-year contract to do the show for CJOH-TV, an affiliate of the private CTV network, after giving up her Parliamentary seat in the June 25 election.

Now after weeks of work, final assembly, rehearsal and taping of two half-hour shows was taking place. Network executives were to have a private screening Friday of the segments.

If they give the word, executive producer Roy Faibish says, a number of shows will be produced for airing this winter.

"If we can't make arrangements with CTV—they don't like it or they want such a small number of shows it wouldn't be economically feasible—then we'll see if anyone has a better deal."

The "anyone" may be the CBC who, Mr. Faibish says, has had "conversations" with his station which already produces programs for the government corporation.

Miss LaMarsh, he says, is a "natural performer."

"She has great forensic qualities in her perception of problems. The production unit likes to work with her and she also has a mind of her own.

"She's not just going to be handed something and be a ventriloquist. She's taking an active part in what is done and said on the program."

Douglas Fisher, newspaper columnist and former NDP member of Parliament is a producer for the show.

"One of the things I notice about Judy," he said, "is that she almost always brings to bear her legal experience. What's surprising to me is that she always leads from this rather than the political side."

Minor Results

WINNIPEG (CP) — A major cabinet shuffle and the creation of two new departments are being planned by Manitoba Premier Walter Weir, a source close to the cabinet said Wednesday.

Government sources declined comment on the speculation that the changes, including the establishment of a transport department and a central services department, are being contemplated.

The report followed the conclusion of three days of meetings by the cabinet.

Sound Waves Are Curing Amputees' Stump Pains

MONTREAL (CP) — High-frequency sound waves are curing leg amputees of mysterious stump pain that prevents their wearing an artificial leg, the fifth international congress of physical medicine was told today.

Dr. Alfred Pavot of the Amputee Centre, United States Naval Hospital, Philadelphia, said the sound treatment brought complete freedom from pain in seven of 12 amputees and partial relief in four in a test at the centre.

All the men, including nine veterans of the Viet Nam war, suffered from a kind of pain which afflicts about eight per cent of amputees. They were unable to wear an artificial limb even for a few minutes.

Pain in a well-healed stump is fairly common in amputation cases. But usually it can be traced to some specific cause, such as a bony spur or scar tissue and, can be corrected.

The men treated by Dr. Pavot were among the eight per cent of amputees who suffer from pain of no known cause.

Only one of the 12 cases was classed as a failure after the ultrasound treatment. Although this patient claimed no relief, his problem may have been psychological because he was observed using his artificial leg with relative ease after treatment.

Dr. Pavot said in an interview he knows of no previous effort to use ultrasound in such a way. Large hospitals generally have ultrasound machines for other purposes and could employ them in similar fashion.

Ultrasound is a high frequency sound of between 1,000,000 and 4,000,000 vibrations per second.

Dr. Pavot said he cannot yet explain why the stump pain disappears or lessens but his theory is that the pain is due to inadequate blood supply to the stump and the ultra sound causes blood vessels to open up and improve the stump circulation.

He thinks the ultrasound produces very deep heating effect as far down as the bone. In addition, the high frequency sets up "vibrations in the body at the molecule level."

Appeal Board Approves Kiwanis Walk-a-thon

The Belleville Financial Appeals Board has approved the "walk-to-save-a-life" project of the Belleville Kiwanis Club.

The walk is scheduled to take place Sept. 14 starting at Zwick's Island.

Target for the walk is $18,000 needed to purchase and install a new heart monitering device for the Belleville General Hospital.

The new device will replace the monitor which now services the intensive care unit.

The present device serves only one patient. It is a portable unit and is bulky. There is no slave scope at the nursing station.

The new monitor, described as "more sophisticated" will serve four patients simultaneously and will be connected to all eleven beds of the intensive care unit.

It will be placed at the patient's bedside and a slave scope will be at the nursing station. It will also keep record of the most recent few minutes of the patient's cardiac functioning.

Attendance At Historic Home Increases

NAPANEE — Attendance at the historic MacPherson house has increased noticeably since the official opening August 3. Last week on two days it reached close to 40. Sunday it was necessary to call in two assistants to handle the crowd. Usually one curator is able to manage this alone. Between 80 and 90 called during Sunday, about half of them members of the Antique and Classic Car Club, Upper Canada Region. The 13 cars, all over 20 years old, had been on display on the Market Square before being driven to "The House".

Normally Mrs. Frances Walker, the permanent curator, has Sunday off, and her place is taken by volunteers. Monday this duty fell to Miss Marguerite Way, and Mrs. Walker returned to assist on learning of the visit of the antique cars, which had been expected Saturday. The two women found it necessary to call in Miss Betty Smith, also for the ground floor, and Miss Smith for the second floor.

Favreau – Hopeful Giant Killer for Gagnon

Quebec Sedan Team Meets Yank Racers

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadians are trying, for the first time, to end American domination of the Trans-Am sedan-class car racing series.

The Gagnon-Spring racing team of Montreal has only been on the circuit since the begining of the year, and already has shown it can compete with the best from the United States.

The team has two fourth-place finishes to its credit in the Trans-Am series and finished sixth in the gruelling 12-hour Sebring, Fla., race — the team's first start ni Trans-Am racing.

The entire program was started by an energetic 26-year-old racing fanatic, Bob Gagnon.

After several unsuccessful attempts in novice races and after his small racing car was stolen last year, Gagnon decided to go deeper into car racing.

He came back from the Sebring 12-hour race and bought a Camaro that Roger Penske had built — the car that won the 12-hour endurance test.

However, Penske sold the car without the engine, and that presented a little problem to Gagnon.

"We bought a new engine for it but it wasn't good enough," he said.

Far from discouraged, he went out and raised enough money to buy part of a racing team — the mechanics, a new Camaro and another car, giving him a total of four cars. He had a Mustang at the time he purchased Penske's Camaro.

"They weren't in good racing condition and we had to mold them together," Gagnon said about the crew he bought.

Gagnon also got Craig Fisher's name on a one-year contract as a full-time driver. Fisher was one of Penske's top drivers last year.

With the Firebird, which cost about $12,000, ready to go and with Fisher behind the wheel, the team set out on the Trans-Am trail.

The Firebird played fourth in Trans-Am competition at Le Circuit Mont Tremblant, in the Quebec Laurentians north of Montreal and took fourth place at Meadowdale, Ill.

Both fourth-place finishes were behind Mark Donahue, George Follmer and Sam Posy, the three top drivers on the Trans-Am circuit.

Meanwhile, the Camaro and Mustang continued to compete in Canadian championship races and on the Quebec sedan circuit.

With Francois Favreau and Richard Brown doing most of the driving, the Gagnon team has not lost a race in the Canadian championships and has never finished lower than second in any Quebec races.

Despite this tremendous amount of success in its first year of operations, Gagnon said the team lacks a lot of experience.

"It's hard in that Trans-Am series," he said recently. "You need 10 times more preparation to win a Trans-Am race than you do for one of the local races.

"But all we have to do is keep on working hard and we should come out in good shape."

Gagnon said that by next season his team should be one of the top contenders on the Trans-Am circuit, aid is hoping his Canadian team will have learned enough this year to pull it up on a par with U.S. drivers and cars.

Favreau is the top driver in the Canadian championship series and almost is a certain shoo-in for Eastern Canadian driving honors.

If Favreau wins the Eastern title, he will meet the Western champion Sept. 28 in Vancouver to decide the top Canadian driver.

Montreal Gives Standings New Look

MONTREAL (CP) — The Eastern Football Conference standings had a new look Wednesday night after Montreal Alouettes handed Hamilton Tiger-Cats a 23-21 setback here.

In recent years the standings have shown Hamilton and Ottawa Rough Riders battling for first place and Montreal and Toronto Argonauts struggling for the third and last EFC playoff berth.

However, the Alouettes changed that around a little Wednesday night as they moved up into a tie with the Ticats and Argonauts for second place, just two points behind the conference-leading Rough Riders.

Montreal's defence preserved the Alouettes' victory in the dying minutes of the contest. "That was the best defensive game we've ever played," said Montreal coach Kay Dalton.

An estimated 22,000 fans cheered wildly early in the fourth quarter when Dave Lewis grabbed a pass from quarterback Carroll Williams to score on a 75-yard play and then watched as the Montreal defence held tight to preserve the Als' second win in a row.

End Tommy Joe Coffey scored 19 of the Ticats' 21 points on field goals of 45, 32, 27 and 36 yards, one touchdown on a 35-yard pass from quarterback Joe Zuger and a convert. Zuger accounted for the other two points by booting singles.

Jim Walker scored a touchdown on a 47-yard run after intercepting a Zuger pass and Williams added a touchdown himself besides passing the winning touchdown to Lewis. John Baker kicked a 34-yard field goal and two converts to round out Montreal's scoring.

"They played us just as good a game last time and they did us a favor last time but we gave it right back to them tonight," said Joe Restic, rookie coach of the Tiger-Cats.

Montreal lost 21-25 to the Ticats earlier this year on a last-minute touchdown by Zuger.

Coffey put the Grey Cup champion Tiger-Cats ahead 21-16 with his fourth field goal of the night at 3:17 of the fourth quarter. But 31 seconds later on the first play after Coffey's three-pointer—Williams hit Lewis with the touchdown pass.

Garney Henley intercepted a Williams pass with five minutes left in the game and Hamilton appeared ready to mount a last-ditch offensive mark. However, it failed when Zuger fumbled on the Montreal 23-yard line and Al Ecuyer recovered for Montreal. The game ended on the next play when Williams fell on the ball.

Montreal had a total offence of 291 yards compared with Hamilton's 330. The Als had 162 yards rushing and 129 passing while the Ticats collected 158 rushing and 172 in the air.

Williams was good on only three of 12 pass attempts while Zuger completed 14 of 27 throws.

Dave Fleming was Zugers' main target as he caught four passes for 101 yards and carried the ball seven times for another 43. Williams had six carries for 64 yards as Montreal's top ground-gainer.

Defensive half Phil Brady of the Als left the game early in the first quarter with a shoulder dislocation after tackling Fleming. He is expected to be sidelined a month.

Eskies Saved Humiliation

Interceptions Lessen 12-7 Blow

EDMONTON (CP) — The defensive squad saved Edmonton Eskimos from humiliation Wednesday night as Calgary Stampeders posted a 12-7 Western Football Conference victory.

Without the defence, which intercepted four Peter Liske passes and confined the Stampeders' 425 yards of offence largely to the area between the 25-yard stripes, the Eskimos might have been defeated by several touchdowns.

The Edmonton offence managed only five first downs on 57 yards rushing and 43 yards passing. Frank Cosentino saw several of his passes dropped or unaccountably missed by receivers.

The Stampeders' victory, before a crowd of 22,407, put the club in sole possession of first place in the WFC, one point ahead of Saskatchewan Roughriders and three ahead of the third-place Eskimos.

Quarterback Liske scored the only Calgary touchdown on a one-yard plunge in the second quarter. Larry Robinson kicked a 23-yard field goal and a 45-yard single on a missed field goal attempt and converted Liske's touchdown. Jim Furlong completed tie Calgary scoring with a 51-yard single.

Art Perkins scored the Edmonton touchdown from three yards out midway through the second quarter. Peter Kempf converted.

The outstanding player for the Eskimos was defensive back Robbie Campbell, a sophomore from the University of Western Ontario.

Campbell, 24, a college draft choice for Edmonton, recovered an opposition fumble and made two key interceptions in the first half. The first interception snuffed out a Calgary drive and the second, a runback 22 yards to the Calgary 25, set up Perkins' touchdown. Campbell figured also in numerous defensive stands through the game.

One of three Calgary fumbles, dropped on a punt runback by Rudy Linterman and picked up at the Stampeders' 29-yard line by the Eskimos' Larry Plancke, put Edmonton within striking distance of victory as the game neared its end. But in a sequence typical of much of the game, opportunity knocked unheeded as Cosentino threw two incomplete passes and an offside pass.

Big offensive guns for the Stamps were flankers Gerry Shaw and Bob McCarthy and end Herm Harrison. McCarthy caught passes for 96 yards, Shaw six for 70 yards and Harrison four for 79.

The only notable pass exception on the Edmonton side was a 22-yarder by A. E. Sims that preceded Perkins' touchdown run.

Marlboros Fold

OHA Delays Setting Dates

The Ontario Hockey Association's meeting to ratify team schedules, held Wednesday night in Toronto, was aborted when Joe Kane, manager-coach of the Toronto Marlboros, announced that he would replace the late Jack Adams as president of the Central Professional Hockey League, thus nullifying the Toronto Senior "A" entry.

"That threw a wrench into the ratification plans and the remainder of the meeting was given to discussion of individual team franchise agreements with the association," said OHA president Jack Deviine.

"Kane said that several of his friends are considering filing another entry to replace the Marlboros, so the association gave them until Tuesday to make rink arrangements and notify us of their decision," Devine said.

In the meantime, association convener Ron Buddell of Waterloo is drawing up two schedules, one with eight teams and the other with nine, to be ratified at a special meeting scheduled for Thursday.

Lions Get Parker

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference have obtained playing rights to Jackie Parker, it was announced Wednesday.

General manager Denny Veitch said if the 36-year-old former star agrees, he may play for the Lions. He is currently an assistant coach with B.C.

Until this week, Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Conference held playing rights to Parker, who finished his career there in 1965. In return for the rights to Parker, Lions gave Toronto playing rights to Bernie Faloney who retired as B.C. quarterback last season.

Parker is the all-time leading scorer in the CFL with 744 points. He was chosen Canada's outstanding football player three times and was the Western Conference's Most Valuable Player seven times in an eight-year period when he played with Edmonton Eskimos from 1954 to 1961. He was all-star each of those eight years.

...But Argos Lose

TORONTO (CP) — Bernie Faloney, 36, former Hamilton, Montreal and Vancouver quarterback, said Wednesday he will not quit out of retirement and play for Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference.

"I'm flattered and surprised coach Leo Cahill wants me," he said in an interview. "But I told him there was no way I could play, because of my job. . . ."

Faloney, who retired last season as quarterback for the British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference, sells heavy industrial equipment for a Toronto company and also is committed to the CBC on its football telecasts.

The rights to Faloney's services were transferred to Argos from Vancouver in exchange for the playing rights to Jackie Parker, now an assistant coach with the Lions.

Lions general manager Denny Veitch said if he can negotiate a contract with the 36-year-old Parker, who finished playing with the Argos in 1965, he might play for them.

"It will be determined in the next day or two if Parker will play," he said.

Balyx and Culkin allowed five runs on five walks and three hits while striking out eight.

R. Suddard and R. Cunningham took the loss, allowing nine tallies on 12 hits, no walks, and striking out seven.

S. Bowes, R. Deline, and Balyx led the Alhambra win at the plate with a double and a single each. B. Porter and C. Buckles contributed a brace of singles each, and B. Hamilton and R. Culkin hit safeties.

Suddard, Cunningham, and Paul Coates hit three singles for IBEW.

Willow Park Toughened for Women Pros

CALGARY, (CP) — The Willow Park course has received a minor face-lifting to make things "more interesting" for competitors in the women's invitational open golf tournament, which starts Friday.

Assistant pro Lou Schmidt said Wednesday that the front and back nines have been switched, some holes lengthened and pin placements on the large, average-speed greens toughened in preparation for the 54-hole, $15,000 tournament. Par on the 6,400-yard layout is 36-37—73.

A man-made lake and a creek present water hazards on seven holes. There is water for 350 yards on the right side of the 18th fairway and in front of the green a coulee stretches out of the rough partway across the fairway. On the 17th there is water to the front and left of the green which Schmidt says "could catch a lot of good second shots, if they hit the ball long."

The rough has grown and the "course tightened a lot" since it was built four years ago.

The tournament, which has attracted 34 professionals and six amateurs, was preceded by a pro-amateur event today. It offered the pros $1,500 in prize money.

Carol Mann of Buffalo, N.Y., held the pre-tourney favorite's position on the strength of seven victories which have made her the leading money winner on the United States Ladies Professional Golf Association tour this year.

Her chief challengers are expected to be Kathy Whitworth of Dallas, Tex., winner of four tournaments, and Sandra Post of Oakville, Ont., Canada's only full-time touring woman pro.

Sandra, a three-time Canadian junior champion who turned professional this year, has won more than $9,000 and whipped Miss Whitworth in a playoff in June to capture the LPGA championship at Sutton, Mass.

Prior commitments forced two other top golfers out of the Willow Park affair, the first women's professional tournament in Western Canada. It offers one of the top 10 purses on the LPGA tour with first place worth $2,250.

Unable to come were Australian-born Margie Masters, 1964 Canadian Women's Open champion who now plays out of Largo, Fla., and Sandra Haynie of Fort Worth, Tex., the third top money winner on the women's tour.

The amateurs entered are Penny Burrows of Lancashire, England, Marilyn Palmer of Kamloops, Barbara Turnbull of Saskatoon and Coreen Brunham, Marilyn Karch and Marilyn Dahl of Calgary. Mrs. Brunham won the Canadian Junior championship in 1967.

Lacrosse Champs

Fast Break, Passes, Bring Oshawa Title

OSHAWA (CP) — During the last six years the quick break and the short pass have combined to carry Oshawa Green Gaels to five consecutive Canadian junior lacrosse championships.

The Green Gaels used the same combination to defeat Mississauga 13-4 Wednesday night and clinch their sixth Eastern Canada Junior A lacrosse championship. The victory also moves the Gaels into their sixth Canadian championship series.

Oshawa won the best-of-seven series 4-1 and will meet New Westminster Salmonbellies in British Columbia next week for the Minto Cup, emblematic of the Canadian championship.

The Green Gaels have won the Minto Cup five times. They beat New Westminster the last four, and in their first year of operation, in 1963, beat Victoria Shamrocks.

A major reason for the Gaels' domination of Canadian junior lacrosse has been Jim Bishop, coach of the team since he organized it in 1963.

Bishop employs a Spartan-like training schedule and demands total dedication to the game. Much of this approach has been credited to the four years Bishop worked as an assistant to Lloyd Percival of Toronto at the Canada Fitness College.

Bishop believes this year's club is stronger and more balanced than last year's despite the loss of Gaylord Powless to the National Lacrosse Association.

During 1968, the Gaels scored an average of 20 goals a game and to show Oshawa's all-round strength Bishop points out the final game of the season against St. Catharines.

Twelve players scored goals and John Clayton had four.

Oshawa finished the 24-game schedule with 24 straight wins, a record for Canadian junior lacrosse, and the Gaels didn't lose until the final series against Mississauga. They were nipped 13-12 in the second game.

Bishop attributes success to hard training. He emphasizes the quick break and the short pass. And boasts at having possibly the best goaltender in Canada, Merv Marshall.

Intell Ties Semi-Finals

The Intelligencer Department Softball League season champions, downed the CNR Combines 15-2 Wednesday night to tie up the semi-final best of five series at 2-2.

John Edwards pitched the Intell team into the deciding game with a two-hitter. The shut-out was ruined by a first-inning single by Junior Day and a fifth-inning double by Albert Lentini.

The Intell team committed one error and Edwards walked two and struck out five.

Fred Bellis, Craig, and Conway pitched for the Combines. They combined to allow 15 runs on 14 hits and five errors and walked five and struck out four.

Steve Ling led the Intell hitters with a double and two singles. Randy Johnstone hit two doubles for six RBIs, and Garry Wood, Terry Hiddleston, and Al Lee hit two singles. Merv Thompson and Lyle Thompson hit singles.

The winner of the final semi-final contest Thursday night plays the Firemen in a best of seven final series for the Mel Barriage Trophy.

Overtime Loss

Local Stickers Lose Series

Sixteen penalties and five Picton goals combined to eliminate the Belleville Minor Lacrosse team from the Quinte Lacrosse League playoffs last night as the locals fell to Picton 5-3.

The game was Picton's second straight victory in the best of three series.

The winners will meet the finalists from the Campbellford-Trenton series in the league's title playoffs.

Belleville collected 16 penalties in the game and Picton had 11. All the penalties on both teams were what could be categorized as personal roughness as opposed to technicals.

Dennis Lane scored two of Belleville's three with an assist from Joe Weymark on the first one and from Bob Siddall on the second.

Siddall notched the initial Belleville tally unassisted.

Glenn Jones connected for two Picton goals, one assisted by Dave Jones, the other helped by Rick Jones. Rick Jones got his own score with the help of Kreg Fredericks later in the game, as did Dave Jones. Pat Bond notched the only other goal, unassisted.

Gibson's Four-Hitter Gives Revenge

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bob Gibson is not the type of guy to hold a grudge, but you'd never know it the way he treated the Pittsburgh Pirates only four days after they turned on him.

Pittsburgh, after scoring only one run in two losses to Gibson, rushed his 15-game winning streak last Saturday by scoring two unearned runs in the ninth inning.

The fireballing St. Louis Cardinals right-hander didn't forget that disappointment, about the only one he has had in a sensational season. Wednesday night, he got his revenge.

Gibson made the Pirates his 11th shutout victim this season by cutting them down to four hits and striking out 14 as the Cardinals romped in an 8-0 victory.

His latest sparkler, raising his record to 19-6, also put Gibson back on the road toward the Cy Young Award and ended the Cardinals' brief spin en route to their second consecutive pennant.

The Cardinals' distance from the rest of the league stood at 11½ games over Cincinnati and San Francisco after the Reds swept New York Mets 8-3 and 5-2 in a twi-night doubleheader and the Giants nudged Houston Astros 4-3 in the afternoon.

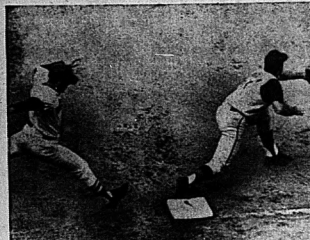
Atlanta Braves won a twi-nighter from Philadelphia Phillies 9-2 and 2-1 and Chicago Cubs beat Los Angeles Dodgers 7-4 before losing 8-4 in another twi-night twinbill.

Gibson, so outstanding that he is making his 20- and 21-victory years of 1965 and 1966 look like bad seasons, was the master again as the Pirates bowed to him. They never got a runner past second base.

The shutout gave him the St. Louis club record for shutouts breaking Mort Cooper's mark of 10 in one season.

Gibson also capped a five-run fourth inning with a two-run single. Orlando Cepeda hammered his 14th homer for the first three runs off Bob Veale, 10-13. Cepeda singled in another run in the sixth and Julian Javier stroked his second homer in the eighth as the Cardinals came to life after two straight shutout losses.

Cincinnati moved one percentage point ahead of the Giants as Gerry Arrigo scattered eight hits behind a 15-hit attack in the opener and Gary Nolan cracked a two-run double and teamed with Clay Carroll on a five-hitter in the nightcap.



Don Cardwell had retired the first 13 Reds in the second game and led 1-0 before Nolan capped a three-run uprising in the fifth inning with his double. He gave up only three hits before leaving in the eighth, leaving Carroll to protect his seventh consecutive victory over the Mets.

After Ray Sadecki had given Houston three runs by walking in one run and wild pitching two others home in the fourth, the Astros gave the Giants the winner in the ninth when Jim Hart's infield hit and three walks forced in the run.

Atlanta unloaded 19 hits against the Phillies in their opener, including three each by Felipe Alou and Hank Aaron, a homer and a single by Deron Johnson and winner George Stone's two run-scoring singles.

Aaron, playing first base in the nightcap for the first time in his major league career, hit his 25th homer for a 1-1 tie and then Johnson singled in Alou with the winning run in the eighth inning. Pat Jarvis, 14-9, got the victory with a three-hitter.

Ernie Banks keyed a six-run Cubs' uprising in the first inning of the first game with a two-run single, but the Dodgers scored six runs of their own in the eighth inning of the nightcap to overcome a 4-3 deficit. Ken Boyer struck the big blow, a pinch three-run double for a 8-4 lead.

Stretch for Jones

Dalton Jones, Boston Red Sox third baseman, makes with a flying stretch trying to beat out an infield hit in the first inning of Tuesday's game with the Cleveland Indians at Fenway Park. Dave Nelson's throw to Tony Horton covering first was in time to catch the flying Jones. Boston won 7-1. (AP Photo).

Washington Ruins Bird Tiger Drive

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Washington worm, creeping quietly along the bottom of the American League, has suddenly turned on the surprised Orioles of Baltimore.

All season long the Senators had been marvelously co-operative with the Orioles, playing Baltimore 18 times and losing 12 times. That's a perfect record in reverse.

Now, with the Birds making a run at Detroit's front-running Tigers, Washington has reared up in opposition.

While Detroit's Denny McLain was winning his 20th game Wednesday night, beating California Angels 6-1, Washington used Frank Howard's 27th homer for a 3-2 victory that dropped the Orioles five games off the Tigers' pace.

In other American League games, Chicago shut out New York 3-0, Oakland dropped Boston 5-3 and Cleveland nipped Minnesota 3-2.

Howard connected against Jim Hardin, 17-9, in the fourth inning after Bernie Allen's single had tied the score for Washington.

Aussie Rose Retains Title

LOS ANGELES (AP) — World bantamweight champion Lionel Rose of Australia survived a seventh-round knockdown by Mexican veteran Jose Medel to win a split decision Wednesday night in a non-title 10-round bout. Each weighed 120½.

The 20-year-old aborigine, who now calls Melbourne home, built an early lead and spun the 30-year-old Mexican to the canvas with two hard left jabs in the fourth. Medel was up quickly but referee George Latka ruled it a knockdown and called off the mandatory eight count.

Trailing by far in points, Medel began his rally in the sixth. In the seventh, Medel floored Rose for only the third time in his career with a left hook to the head.

Rose's lead was up at the count of three but had to take a mandatory eight. The Australian did not appear badly hurt and finished the round strongly.

Judge Dick Young scored the fight 7-3 for Rose and judge Lee Grossman 7-4 for the champ. Referee Latka tallied a 6-6 draw under California's scoring system of giving the winner of each round from one to five points and the loser nothing.

Rose, who won his title from fighting Harade in Tokyo Feb. 27, put his record at 31-2. Medel, unsuccessful in two attempts at the title, now is 65-24.

A crowd of about 12,000 at the Forum paid a gate of approximately $100,000.

Matheson Wins Pin Title

TORONTO (CP) — Twenty-one-year-old Bruce Matheson of Vancouver defeated Dennis Bartlett of Edmonton 21-16 Wednesday to win the Canadian lawn bowling singles championship.

Matheson won six matches in the three-day competition to go undefeated. He said he hopes to defend his title next year in Victoria for the chance to represent Canada at the British Empire Games in Edinburgh, Scotland.

The youngest bowler at the championships, Matheson had a total of 12 points, two more than John Henderson of Montreal. John Wheler of Toronto was third with eight points. Henderson edged John Elford of Halifax 21-18 Wednesday.

The Alberta team of Harry Justason and Ernie Munro, both of Calgary, won the pairs title with a total of 10 points. Bruce Miller and Gerry Hyde, both of Belleville, were awarded second place because of a higher point total in the seven-round competition.

Both Ontario and the Quebec team of Green Flook and Jim Forbes, both of Montreal, finished with eight points on four wins and one loss.

In the seventh round Wednesday, Flook and Forbes beat the Saskatchewan rink of Gord Robinson and Ron LaPlante, both of Saskatoon, 33-11.

Miller and Hyde walloped Stan Townsend of Winnipeg and John Dickie of Fort Garry, Man., 29-11.

The Ottawa rink of Pete Wert, Hec Maxwell, Bill Grant and Gerry Whitley won the fours competition with a 17-14 win over Fred Rendall, Dutch McGurk, Jim Graham and Jack Morrow of Manitoba.

The Ontario fours champions finished with 10 points, two more than the British Columbia and Nova Scotia rinks.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Often, a buyer has a choice between having a contractor construct a house on his lot or on the builder's. My advice invariably is, "Let the contractor build the house on his lot and then take title."

Dear Mr. Meltzer: After two years of shopping, I have found my ideal lot, a floor plan I like and a builder in whom I have confidence. By coincidence, he owns the lot which we want to buy.

He has given us two propositions. Either he will sell us the land and then build the house on our lot, or he will give us a package deal — i.e. he will erect the house and then, upon completion, turn it over to us.

It appears to me that it makes no difference which method is used. Do you agree? — Mr. W. I.

ANSWER: I can think of two major reasons why it is much more preferable to have the builder construct the house on his lot — it provides greater protection and it takes less cash.

If your present enamoured state with the builder should turn to anguish, you will be in a much stronger position to enforce your claim against him if he builds on his lot.

From experience, I have learned that the courts would be more likely to be sympathetic to your argument when the builder puts a building on his own land — the reason is obvious. On his own land, the builder can always sell the building to someone else. If he builds on your land, however, he cannot take it back and, therefore, it would be a greater hardship to deny him payment if a dispute should arise as to whether he performed substantially.

The second reason is that we know it takes more cash to finance a lot purchase and construction than a finished product. Conventionally, on a finished new building, mortgages of 80 per cent and sometimes as high as 90 per cent are obtainable, but to buy the lot and then put up the building could take as high as 40 per cent or 50 per cent in working capital.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I've followed your column for five years and have learned a lot on how to avoid fraud. Now that I'm about to build my own house, I'm prepared.

I drew up an elaborate set of plans and specifications. Much time went to make them perfect. Fortunately, as a municipal engineer, I am not too busy at times and could concentrate on the drawings.

I have the builders, everything is ready to go, but for a small item. I insist that the contract state, "the building be in strict compliance with the plans and specifications." The builder insists that it be, "constructed substantially as per plans and specifications." Am I starting in with a cheating builder? — Mr. W. A.

Answer: I think the opposite is true. You are dealing with a reputable builder. It is impossible to build a building in strict compliance with every tiny requirement of an elaborate set of plans and specifications. Any builder who promises to do so is giving you "sales talk."

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I hate winter primarily because nature is dormant. I am the lady with the original green thumb.

I've convinced my husband to give me a greenhouse for our 25th wedding anniversary. It can either be up against the side of the house or a free-standing one in the rear yard. The choice will be made based on cost. Is there any difference? — Mrs. J. A.

ANSWER: There is a substantial difference in cost. A free-standing greenhouse, size for size, costs almost twice as much as the lean to type.

Canada Council Picks Up Air Fare Tab For New Yorker to Wield Axe in B. C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — "Mission Destruction" for a young axe-wielding New Yorker has been accomplished.

Ralph Ortiz, an artist taken seriously in art circles for his attempts to create through destruction, staged the violent show Tuesday in a Vancouver warehouse. His $284 round-trip air fare was courtesy of the Canada Council.

An audience of about 80 persons watched his performance which he calls "a response to the crucial issues of mankind's emotional and physical survival."

To open the show he grabbed his axe and pounded an old record player into splinters. Next he wielded the axe into an upright piano draped with plastic bags containing cow's blood.

Four white mice inside the piano scurried for safety as Mr. Ortiz smashed the piano into a pile of blood-splattered wreckage. All the mice got away.

Later in the performance he was joined by 10 young persons including four young women who threw cow's blood over themselves and proceeded to rip off each other's clothing, but not all the way.

During this scene they shouted epithets and curses, mostly directed against the Vietnam war.

Doug Christmas, owner of the Douglas Gallery who sponsored the show said later:

"What Ortiz wants is that people will finally get worked up enough to really object to destruction."

Mackasey Likes Freedman Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey said Wednesday in a Labor Day message he is "completely committed" to certain recommendations made in a 1965 federal inquiry report by Mr. Justice Samuel Freedman.

Mr. Mackasey, who took over the labor portfolio in last month's cabinet shuffle, did not specify the recommendations involved.

But he added:

"I think that this report indicates the direction in which we should be moving to deal fairly and effectively with the effects of technological change; certainly one of today's major labor problems."

Mr. Justice Freedman of Winnipeg conducted a one-year study of CNR crew run-throughs at Nakina, Ont., and Wainwright, Alta., that had touched off an illegal walkout by railroaders.

His key recommendation, covering the whole field of technological change, was that management's right to introduce work changes during closed contract periods should be removed by law.

Organized labor has endorsed the Freedman report and has been campaigning for its adoption. Management organizations have generally rejected it, contending that employers must remain the sole voice in automation decisions.

Mr. Mackasey said it is too early for a statement on labor legislation. That would have to wait until after Parliament resumes Sept. 12.

One of his aims would be the development of new lines of communication with labor.

United Church May Have Psychiatrists Screen Would-be Ministers

KINGSTON (CP) — A report recommending radical changes in the training of clergy and lay personnel was presented Wednesday to the general council of the United Church of Canada.

The report, tabled at the nine-day meeting of the church's top legislative body which began Tuesday, also recommends greater use of mass communications and a reduction to five from eight in the number of United Church theological colleges.

Recommended also is a screening of potential theological candidates not only by interview but by psychiatric consultation.

The report stresses that ministers must be trained to understand and use mass communications because they have taken over the educational and community functions that used to be handled by the church.

In other business Wednesday, the church's international affairs committee urged that council again recommend that the Canadian government accord diplomatic recognition to Communist China.

The resolution also asks that Canada support China's admission to the United Nations.

Also suggested was a wide-ranging church-sponsored study program on China to arouse "the conscience of Canadians" and improve relations between the two countries.

"We have too little information about the Chinese cultural revolution and are exhibiting an incomprehensible unwillingness to obtain more," the report says.

The committee also predicted that war in the Middle East will be inevitable if Arabs and Israelis do not soon begin talks to resolve their differences.

A report on population explosion says civilization is doomed unless methods are devised to raise economic expectations and reduce birth rates.

It calls on Canada to develop programs for world population control.

McClure Says He's Foxhole Christian

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — "I'm a foxhole Christian," says Robert Baird McClure, first layman to become moderator of the United Church of Canada.

"Christianity to me has always been to be on the advance post of the Christian church," the 68-year-old medical missionary said Tuesday night following his election to the top church post.

Dr. McClure has been the advance post of his church most of his life.

He was born in Portland, Ore., where his mother was a refugee from the Boxer Rebellion. His father was a medical missionary in China where the new moderator grew up.

He spoke Chinese before English and says he still thinks in Mandarin.

Dr.McClure graduated in medicine from the University of Toronto in 1922 and the next year he and his wife returned to China where he stayed almost continuously until 1948.

That year, when the Communists took over, their daughter became ill and the McClures left China. From 1950 to 1954, he served with the church missionary hospital treating Arab refugees.

Since then he was medical superintendent of Ratlam Christian Hospital in India where he became active in public health and birth control problems.

"I am one of those who believes that the rapid population explosion is really one of the major dangers facing our world," the new moderator says.

He says he has sterilized more than 2,000 men and the same number of women and has "some disagreement with the Pope's attitude" in a recent encyclical banning contraception by artificial means.

Dr. McClure says his election to the top church post is a tribute to the lay missionary "who is now so important in the mission life of the church."

He says the great overseas mission of the church is "to demonstrate the love of God by meeting the needs of people, not merely by talking about it or even teaching about it."

As moderator he "will try to stimulate the church, to realize that this is an obligation in 1928."

Dr. McClure succeeds Rt. Rev. Wilfred Lockhart, president of the University of Winnipeg, who had completed the initial two-year period as moderator.

Some Diplomats Think Nigeria Will Make Belsen of Biafra

OTTAWA (CP) — Is Biafra Africa's Belsen?

Some diplomats here, including some Canadian officials, say they believe the Nigerians, despite their denials, plan to exterminate the the people of Biafra, though perhaps not as methodically as the Nazis slaughtered the Jews in Belsen and other genocide camps.

His listeners nearly vomited when a diplomat recently in Nigeria described how Nigerian soldiers deal with pregnant Ibo women: Cut open the stomach, remove the unborn baby, back it in two and sew it back inside the woman.

For their part, the Ibos castrated and gouged out the eyes of the then prime minister, Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, before killing him in January, 1966. The prime minister was of the Hausa tribe.

The Ibo population was estimated at about 5,000,000, out of a total of 14,000,000 in the Nigerian federation, when war broke out there in June, 1967.

Some officials here say the inability of the world, and especially the West, to provide aid to the thousands of starving Biafran refugees is widening the gulf between the black and white nations.

They say Canada was quick to put a resolution before the United Nations Security Council about the safety of Communist Czechoslovak leaders after the Soviet invasion, though it turned out these leaders still formed the government.

But no nation has brought the Biafran situation before the UN.

There are official reasons for this, of course, at least as far as Canada is concerned.

Canada does not recognize Biafra, the eastern region of Nigeria which seceded last year. Only four members of the UN—Gabon Ivory Coast, Tanzania and Zambia—recognize Biafra as an independent state.

"This is a civil war and thus an entirely internal affair for Nigeria which seceded last partment official said.

"It is not an international problem the way Czechoslovakia was. Czechoslovakia was invaded."

External Affairs Minister Sharp has in effect rejected the proposal of David Lewis, NDP parliamentary leader, that transport planes of NATO Command fly relief supplies into Biafra even without permission of the Nigerian government.

Some planes chartered by the International Red Cross and other relief organizations have made the hazardous flight into Biafra. Some were fired on by the Nigerians.

Canada began making appeals in Nigeria last May—the most recent was Aug. 16—for relief supplies into Biafra.

An air force Hercules transport plane took one load of medical supplies and food as far as Lagos, the Nigerian capital, but they did not reach Biafra. Other relief supplies are being held in Canada until firm arrangements are made for mercy flights into Biafra.

Canada has made no representations to either British or Russia about their arms shipments into Nigeria. Canada ships no arms in the area and ended military training for Nigerian cadets well before the civil war began.

The Organization of African Unity is acting as an intermediary between the Nigerians and Biafrans in talks at Addis Ababa.

Agreement has been reached in principle—but not in practice — on relief corridors. Meanwhile, the Nigerian military assault on shrinking Biafra is continuing.

The external affairs department said it is up in the Africans is being the situation before the UN.

Give Dissenters TV Time

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

While two-thirds of the world doesn't have enough to eat, it is scarcely comforting to learn that the nuclear powers (chiefly the U.S. and Russia) have enough explosive supply in their arsenals to supply the equivalent of more than 100 tons of TNT for each inhabitant of the world.

• • •

"Too much government" is the oldest American complaint; as far back as 1800, Jefferson himself said "We have more machinery of government than is necessary." (And Jefferson feared a large Army and Navy, ruthlessly sorting funds from both, on the grounds it would hurt less to lose a war to foreign powers than to win it with a military dictatorship.)

• • •

Perhaps the real difference between us and all other animals is that we alone pass down acquired attitudes toward our young; other species pass down only instinctive behavior which tends to safeguard the species, while we transmit emotional distortions that tend to imperil the species.

• • •

If groups which now have no chance to put their views before the public, except by demonstrations and carrying placards, could have radio and television time set aside for them, on a fair basis, it would not only provide a democratic forum for dissenting views but would also drain off the anger and resentment that so often nullify the effects of such demonstrations.

• • •

Man is no longer simply a "denizen" of the earth; he is now an "agent" of geological and biological change, whose technology, for the first time in history is now capable of destroying large parts of our environment without the realization of the irreversible nature of his acts.

It's odd that while science is able to create synthetics in dozens of fields, not one synthetic flavor has been compounded by chemistry, nor have flavor chemists ever invented a flavor no one found somewhere in nature.

• • •

It is often the "overlap" between generations, more than the "gap," that produces dissonance — that is, youngsters mature faster, both physically and intellectually, than in the past and the whole emotional age-structure of the past is constricting into a shorter span, which today's parents cannot comprehend or cope with.

• • •

Speaking of this "overlap" as Irving Kristol points out, neither Bonnie and Clyde nor The Graduate could have been prodiged — or, if produced, distributed — more 10 years ago." And who would have believed a decade ago that Bonnie and Clyde would have been voted the best adult film of the year by the Catholic review board?

Firefighters Donate Cheque To Retarded

NAPANEE — At its executive meeting for August, the Lennox and Addington Association for the Mentally Retarded had a pleasant surprise. President Fritz Julian was informed that a cheque for $50 was ready for their fund, the gift of the Napanee Firefighters Association. The good news was received from Harold (Pepper") Martin, president of the Firefighters, who had raised the money through a draw. Mr. Martin stated that the Association wished the money to be spent on the children themselves through the Happy Day School.

The executive had met to complete plans for setting up food booths at Centreville and Napanee Fall Fairs. The booth has now been placed on wheels, and a trailer, can be moved to Centreville next Saturday, August 31, and then to Napanee for the three-day fair which opens the following Monday. This will save a great deal of work, as the booth need not be rebuilt each time it is moved, and equipment such as the refrigerator and stove can be left in place.

Universities Admit 100 Grade 12 Students

TORONTO (CP) — Two Ontario universities which this year held six-week summer programs for exceptional Grade 12 students have decided that Grade 13 is not the only route to college.

Brock University, in St. Catharines and Waterloo Lutheran University used the summer program as a test of the abilities of Grade 12 students. If the student passed the test he was admitted to first-year university.

At Waterloo Lutheran, 40 students tried the program which began three years ago for 20 students. They studied English and French. About 80 students are expected to qualify for admission.

At Brock, 100 students from across the province attempted the program. Of the 100 who started, 65 were admitted to the school.

French Students May Stage Sit-in Over Language Issue

MONTREAL (CP) — School classes resume in suburban St.-Leonard next week in an atmosphere of linguistic strife that could b eworsened by a threatened students' sit-in.

Following demonstrations by English-speaking and French-speaking parents Tuesday, some French-speaking high school students may stage a sit-in Sept. 4 at the suburb's only high school.

Raymond Lemieux, president of the Mouvement pour l'integration scolaire, said Wednesday that French-language students who attended the high school last year will probably stage the sit-in if the regional school board in the area does not reverse its decision to award the school to English-speaking students only.

Aime Renaud Catholic high school was converted into a high school last year.

Mr. Lemieux said the decision of the adjacent Le Royer Catholic school commission to house all English-speaking students in the one building is an "injustice to the French-speaking students who attended the school last year."

"Now they will be dispersed to various other schools which means in many cases they will have to travel further."

Mr. Lemieux said Wednesday he sent a telegram on behalf of the Mouvement pour l'integration scolaire to the Le Royer school commission demanding that the high school be remodelled or the board "would be responsible for any resulting consequences."

Andre St. Onge, chairman of the regional school board with jurisdiction over the high school, said at a meeting Tuesday that the move to house all English-speaking students in one school was for economic purposes.

The move could save the board nearly $1,000,000 within the next few years while construction of new facilities are under way.

The board also insists it wants all English students together because this calls for only one principal and one set of teachers.

The board's decision calls for 800 English-speaking students to attend the high school—579 of them from St. Leonard—and for 800 French-speaking students to be transferred to another high school in an adjacent suburb.

Humphrey Called 'Voice of the Past' and 'Man of His Times'

CHICAGO (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey, nominated Wednesday night as the Democratic party's candidate for president of the United States, has been called a "voice of the past" and a "man of his times."

He has been called the idol of middle-aged liberals—and a betrayer of the liberal cause.

He has been called a cheerleader for the Vietnam war and a private doubter—a "happy warrior" and a "weeping hawk."

"Will the real Hubert Humphrey please stand up?" asked the master of ceremonies in introducing him at the National Press Club.

The usual Humphrey image is that of a fast-talking supersalesman with a sample case crammed with exclamation marks . . . a political evangelist who spouts slogans like "politics of joy."

But there is more substance than style to Hubert Horatio Humphrey, 57, a man of burning ambition kindled in the depression and dust storms of his South Dakota youth—when the depression sale of his boyhood home meant the end of childhood.

Thirty-three years ago Humphrey took his Huron, S.D., boy scout troop to see Washington. From the U.S. capital the young scoutmaster wrote his wife-to-be Muriel Buck: "I intend to set my aim at Congress."

Humphrey was born May 27, 1911, in a room over his father's drugstore in Wallace, S.D., a town of 100 or so in the prairie country. He was the second of four children.

The Humphrey family moved to nearby Doland, a town of almost 500, when Hubert was five.

The Doland high school had only 13 in Humphrey's graduating class. Thus, he recalls, "I got into everything—played in the band, acted in school plays, played on the basketball and football teams, did a lot of boxing, ran the half-mile, member of the debating team. . . .

"I had a lot of ambition then; I was going to be a great chemist and inventor. . . . Then I was going to be a lawyer."

But Humphrey also remembers the closing of the banks in the late 1920s caused economic havoc.

"One day I came home from school and there were mom and dad in the orchard with tears. My dad said 'son, I had to sell our house.' Childhood ended when we sold our house."

The depression had struck when Humphrey entered the University of Minnesota. People were trading chickens, eggs and meat for drugs at the Humphrey corner drugstore. He had to drop out of college and his father started anew in nearby Huron, a bigger town of 6,000.

When his father was elected to the state legislature, Hubert took a speeded-up pharmacy course at the University of Minnesota. In two years he was graduated magna cum laude. Just before graduation, the first Humphrey child, Nancy, was born. Then he went on to get a masters degree in political science on a teaching fellowship at Louisiana State University.

There were some tight days during that period at college: "Muriel made sandwiches and I sold them for 10 cents apiece. I got a WPA job in charge of adult education. Later I got a job teaching political science at Macalester College in St. Paul and worked as a radio newscast'er at night."

WPA was the federal Works Project Administration inaugurated under President Franklin D. Roosevelt for the purpose of providing jobs during the depression.

Then two labor leaders asked Humphrey to run for mayor of Minneapolis. He lost, the first time, ran again two years later and won. At 34, he was the youngest mayor of any major American city.

Destiny gave him a shove toward the national stage in 1948. He not only ran for the U.S. Senate but was selected to head the state delegation to the Democratic convention in Philadelphia where Harry S. Truman's nomination was automatic but where a battle crackled over civil rights.

Humphrey, named to the platform committee, recalls: "They had a civil rights plank but it skirted the tough issues. We wanted a simple strong plank that supported President Truman's full civil rights program, with the stress on equal employment and equal treatment in the armed forces."

Humphrey urged a tougher plank and the convention approved it.

But Southerners bolted the party and formed the Dixiecrats. Overnight Humphrey was a national figure.

That year he became the first Democratic senator in Minnesota history.

Humphrey and Lyndon B. Johnson were elected to the Senate the same year. Johnson moved quickly toward the inner circle and leadership. But Humphrey got an icy-cold shoulder. It was a painful time. He learned the hard way. Says Humphrey:

"One of the big things I learned in the Senate, and I learned it quickly, was that it's not necessary to sacrifice convictions for good manners, but you cannot operate on those convictions without good manners. But the main thing I learned was the need for patience and persistence. You need both."

Johnson had watched Humphrey, and when he was named Senate Democratic leader in 1953, he brought Humphrey into "the Club."

The Humphrey ambitions were still growing.

In 1956, he expected that Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee, would name him as his vice-presidential running mate. Instead, Stevenson threw the decision to the convention—which chose Senator Estes Kefauver. Humphrey was said to have been found by a friend crying in a corner of the convention hall.

And 1960 found Humphrey taking on John F. Kennedy in the presidential primaries.

He rode to defeat in a battered bus. Eight years later, Humphrey rides in a sleek jet.

In 1960, says Humphrey, "I learned you can't win without money."

In 1964, Johnson picked Humphrey as his running mate. It wasn't an easy job playing second fiddle to a demanding, sensitive conductor such as Lyndon B. Johnson:

"When I first became vice-president, I was warned my relationship with the president would deteriorate within six months to a year, according to the standard pattern of history. Well, we fooled them.

"The fact is that most presidents and vice-presidents hardly even knew each other before the national convention. But President Johnson and I have been friends for 20 years. He knows me well enough to expect loyalty, but not mimicry."

To complaints that he has been the administration cheerleader on Vietnam, Humphrey replies: "There is no such thing as a vice-president being too loyal. . . . I didn't become vice-president to doublecross the president."

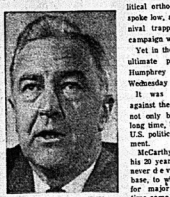
McCarthy Loses Nomination --- Politics Gets New Image

CHICAGO (AP) — Senator Eugene J. McCarthy bucked the Democratic party establishment with legions of breathless youngsters and none of the time-honored weapons and wiles of the successful politician.

He had no money, no name, no political base, no organization, no influential support.

So he lost, in the conventional sense of the word, in that he didn't win his party's presidential nomination. Vice-President Hubert Humphrey took it on the first ballot.



But McCarthy won something, too—especially in the light of the limited goal he set for himself when he announced his candidacy nine months ago.

Then, it was merely to take the war in Vietnam before the American people, personified in a candidate, to allow those people a vote on that war.

Eugene Joseph McCarthy also won his race, in the sense that American politics may never be the same after the romantic adventure that began so quietly in New Hampshire last winter.

His young supporters are also taking heart from some of the battles won by McCarthy on his way to losing the war.

He was the leading edge of the avalanche that ultimately forced President Johnson to announce he would not seek another term.

EUGENE McCARTHY

He spread throughout the land a new belief that housewives, clerks and college kids could find themselves a niche and play a role in shaping the country's future.

He gave a new image and likeness to the word "politician."

There have been few if any such as this former professor, who rejected virtually every political orthodoxy and tradition, spoke low, and avoided the carnival trappings of a political campaign whenever possible.

Yet in these victories lay his ultimate political defeat by Humphrey in the convention Wednesday night.

It was the untested kids against the pros; pros who had not only been in the game a long time, but hold the reins of U.S. political power at the moment.

McCarthy lost, too, because in his 20 years in politics, he had never developed a political base, to which he could return for major support when the time came for the big move. He had little patronage to give out, fewer political debts to collect.

McCarthy lost because he remained far out of the Democratic club in a year when the convention was deeply entrenched within it. There was a yawning generation gap between the McCarthyites and the party regulars.

Neither spoke the other's language or ever really tried to.

The regulars never could understand why McCarthy would not concede defeat when he lost to the late Senator Robert F. Kennedy in most of the primaries.

ADVANTAGES OF GOING TO A PRIVATE BUSINESS COLLEGE

EVERY PERSON needs to have at least a basic commercial course before going on to any other profession, yet if this is taken in the Secondary School the educational background has to be diluted to make time for it. In one year or less, you can have the advantages available to you at Ontario Business College which are:

1. Encouragement to work at your own speed. You do not wait for the slow learner, or speed up for the one who learns faster than you.
2. You may choose a partial course.
3. You get individual attention.
4. You can begin now, at the first of any month.
5. You are ready for a position when YOU have finished your course, and not looking for work at a time when the market is flooded with unemployed.
6. You can write each examination in the month the work on that subject is completed, and then you may fill that time with other subjects.
7. You can re-write any examinations the next month, if you do not have to lose a year.
8. You can earn all it costs you in your first two or three months of working.
9. Where else can you obtain a complete training for earning your living for the rest of your life at such a low cost? Compare, if you wish and then enroll at O.B.C.
10. You do not need previous commercial training.
11. Adult training a specialty.

Wet, Cold Weather Delays West Harvest

OTTAWA (CP) — Wet and chilly weather has delayed wheat maturity and harvesting across the Prairie provinces during the last two weeks, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday.

Ideal weather last weekend allowed resumption of the harvest through much of Saskatchewan and southern Alberta, the bureau said in the 10th of a series of 11 summer crop reports. The reports are based on telegraphic information sent in by agricultural experts up to last Monday night.

In the Maritime provinces, most crops have suffered from moisture lack. Recent rainfall has helped relieve the situation.

Conditions across Quebec are spotty because of wide variations in temperatures and rainfall. In Ontario, spring grains are in excellent condition and recent warm weather has improved the outlook for the corn crop.

British Columbia prospects are good, although rain and below-normal temperatures have delayed some crops.

In Ontario, record yields are forecast for spring grains, in excellent condition across the province. Recent warm temperatures have improved corn fields considerably, but prospects for the crop are still slightly below normal.

Digging of a good crop of early potatoes has been completed. An excellent crop of late potatoes is expected. The quality of flue-cured tobacco is exceptionally good and high yields are expected.

Diefenbaker Says Economy Is Damaged

OTTAWA (CP) — Former prime minister Diefenbaker said Wednesday the "failure" of the government to act in the Lakehead grain handlers strike is harming the entire Canadian economy.

He said at a news conference, that Parliament should be summoned immediately to deal with the situation.

He said Canada will lose some grain markets abroad and that when the western harvest is completed there will be "an overwhelming load of wheat, unsaleable and unshippable."

Mr. Diefenbaker said he is amazed at the silence of Prairie Liberal MPs about the situation.

"They are silent as the tomb," he said. So was the NDP, which was "allied with certain unions."

Mr. Diefenbaker suggested that Parliament could legislate for a wage settlement on an amount so far accepted by the unions and management. The rest of the wage increase sought by the handlers could be negotiated later.

Mr. Diefenbaker suggested that Parliament increase to $8,000 from $4,800 the amount of a loan a Prairie farmer can obtain for farm-stored wheat.

He also said the federal sales tax on building materials used in construction of farm granaries should be removed.

Four Ships Are Waiting

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — The German merchantman Susanne Fritzen is playing a disagreeable $2,000-a-day waiting game.

It began July 31 when the German bulk carrier arrived at the strikebound Canadian Lakehead, expecting to load a cargo of grain for England.

A month later, Capt. William Holterman and his 41-man crew are waiting for a settlement in the strike of 1,300 grain handlers which began July 18.

The situation for the Susanne Fritzen, two Yugoslav ships and a British freighter does not appear hopeful.

Instead of being away from their families for the usual few weeks the seamen of the Susanne Fritzen have been away six weeks and Canada's recent postal strike cut their ties with home.

Capt. Holterman said the strike will cost his company, Fritzen and Sons of Emden, Germany, $2,000 a day or more.

"Normally we make four voyages here during a season but now, because of the delay, we will only make three which no doubt will mean another ship will have to be contracted."

No New Offer Received

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Striking grain handlers said Wednesday they have received no new wage offer.

They were commenting on statements Tuesday by Prime Minister Trudeau and company counsel W. S. Neal that the terminal elevator companies had put forward new proposals to end the strike that started July 18.

"No wage offer has been made to the striking grain handlers by the companies as reported by you yesterday (Tuesday)," union negotiator Frank Mazur said in a telegram to Mr. Trudeau. "We would be obliged if you would correct this erroneous report."

Mr. Neal, meanwhile, reiterated that "a concrete wage offer has been made" and said Mr. Mazur's statements are not correct.

The 1,300 grain handlers, employed by 10 companies on 23 terminal elevators in Port Arthur and Fort William, are represented by the Brotherhood of Railway, Airline and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station employees.

The union has been demanding an increase of $1.05 an hour in a two-year contract while the last reported company offer was 42 cents over two years. Present wages range from $2.36 to $3.17 an hour and the average rate is $2.50.

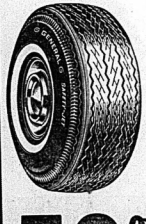
Douglas Likely to Seek Seat

OTTAWA (CP) — T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic Party, said Wednesday he has been asked by the NDP association in Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands to run for the party's nomination at a meeting Sept. 8.

He said in an interview he will accept the offer, providing no local person tries for the nomination.



Mr. Douglas lost his Commons seat of Burnaby-Seymour in the June 25 election to Liberal Ray Perrault. No byelection date has yet been set for Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands, left vacant by the death of the NDP's Colin Cameron.

PARK PLANNED

SURREY, B.C. (CP) — A municipal industrial park is planned and council has asked for suggestions on where to build it. Council has provided $100,000 for the project. It might be built near a railway line to the proposed Roberts Bank port.

In Nanaimo, B.C., MLA David D. Stupich said Wednesday he will support Mr. Douglas's nomination. So will Robert Strachan, NDP provincial leader, he said.

Matheson Stands Out Throughout Tournament

By CLAUDE D. TICE

TORONTO — One thing that stood out at the Dominion championships of the past three days for rinks doubles and singles in lawn bowling at the Leaside Bowling Club was the precision bowling of a 21 year old youngster, Bruce Matheson, from Victoria B.C.

His win the singles title without a single loss and his six straight wins in his last game on Wednesday morning with the greens lined by spectators more than three deep.

He beat off the challenge of Dennis Bartlett of Edmonton with a 21 - 16 win. Bartlett could have forced a playoff between Matheson and John Henderson of Montreal but Bruce never lost his poise but simply laid them on the cat with a score 19-16 in his favor.

He simply put three bowls within two inches of the jack to close out the match.

In the meantime Bruce Miller and (Jerry) Hyde, of the Belleville Club, were knocked up to Jack Justason and Ernie Munroe of Alberta in the doubles. The local pair downed S. Townsend and John Dickie of Winnipeg 29-11.

In the final game the Belleville pair won four games and lost two and had a better plus score than the Quebec pair who also had a four two record.

Incidentally the Alberta pair were runners up last year.

Jerry Hyde and his partner Bruce Miller received many congratulations for their comeback after losing two games on Monday. Had they won one of these games they could have tied Alberta, for the western team lost again to Quebec.

The tournament closed with a banquet at the King Edward Hotel Wednesday night. Mr. Hyde as president of the Dominion council presided and made the presentations of the trophies and then transferred the gavel to R. L. Dick Williams of Vancouver, B.C.

The championships for next year will be held in Halifax where new greens are being prepared.

Three-Way Tie At Chess Open

TORONTO (CP) — Marathon matches were the order of the night at the Canadian open chess championship Wednesday and three men are tied for the lead after six rounds of the 11-round competition.

Bent Larsen, international grand master from Denmark, Orest Popovych of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Ron Eberlein of Rochester, N.Y., each have 5½ points out of a possible six. Each victory counts a point and a draw half a point.

Of the three only Larsen, winner of the United States open championship and favorite in the 10-day Canadian event, had an easy night. He defeated Bruce Amos of Toronto in 32 moves.

Popovych played to a draw with Ken Rogoff, 15-year-old high school student from Rochester, in a five-hour game after 52 moves. Eberlein, another rookie five hours to defeat Edward Formanek of Chicago in 45 moves.

Two other players finished the Wednesday with 4½ points, but each had their game adjourned until this morning.

Lawrence Day of Ottawa and Walter Dobrich of Toronto had their game adjourned after five hours and 50 moves. The winner of today's game will have 5½ points and a share of first prize.

Meanwhile, six players are a half point off the pace with five points each. Formanek, Amos, Rogoff, Camille Coudari of Montreal and Ian Hambleton and M. A. Ragozin, both of Toronto.

A total of 164 players are entered in the tournament which ends Monday. Seventh round is scheduled for tonight.

Three Local Netters Win

The finals of the Peterborough and District Open Junior Tennis Tournament last weekend at Peterborough saw three Quinte Tennis Club juniors dominate their classes.

The tournament was held on the Bonaviaw Courts.

In the under 16 singles, Wayne Storms took three sets (6-4, 3-6, 6-3) to win the title; John Loden won the under 15 singles title in two sets, 6-2, 6-2 and Glen Woodley lost the consolation title in that class with a 4-6, 10-8, 7-5 series.

Tweed-Madoc Leads Series

Tweed - Madoc's OASA women's team bowled Clyde 25-21 Tuesday night to take their second win of the playoffs. They won Sunday 17-12 in the best of five series. Cloyne took one game by forfeit to put the team tally at 2-1.

The two teams will meet for the fourth tilt at 8 p.m. tonight in Madoc.

More Playground Meet Winners

These competitors were left out of the list of winners in the annual Playground Track and Field Meet held Aug. 14 in Oshawa: Betty Ann Sayer, three firsts and a second; Ber Brown, four seconds, Donna Roland, three seconds; Virginia Irwin, two seconds, Rich Bell, one first and one second, and Dick Howe, a first and second.

Barriage Takes Opening Tilt in Women's Series

Mel Barriage took the first of the best of five series for the Mcleroy-Maine Trophy in the Women's Softball League playoffs Tuesday night as they downed Moose Lodge 4-3.

Sandra Claus pitched for the winners and Ann Emerson did the honors for the losers.

With the game tied in the final inning and two down, Gladys Smith tripled for Barriage, then scored the winning run on a single by Dorothy Caverley.

Doreen Cooke doubled for the winners.

Linda Prudden hit a homer for the losers.

The next game in the series is Monday night at 6 p.m. at the Cheese Producers diamond.

Cobourg Tops Trenton

Cobourg's Midget "B" OASA team took Trenton 3-1 Tuesday night to tie the series at 1-1 in the best of three tournament.

The final game is slated for Saturday at 8.15 p.m. on the Alemite field. The winner of this contest will represent the zone in the provincial playoffs.

Minor Softball Results

Tuesday night, the Kinsmen Bobcats topped the Tabernacle Tyke Minor Softball team 10-6 in the finals while Western Tire rolled over Cozy Grill 9-6 in the Peewee division.

To Your Good Health

No Reason to Fear Sugar Substitutes

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: The same day we read your article about artificial sweeteners my husband brought home a page from a paper that someone had left in the shop where he works.

After reading both articles we were a bit confused. We are both nearly 60 and healthy but seek to watch our calories now. So we've been using saccharin (is that the same as cyclamate?) and using soft drinks with artificial sweeteners. Now we don't know what to do.

If an article like this claims its facts are from an investigation by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, wouldn't it have to be true? If not, they could be sued, couldn't they?. But if the facts are true, we weren't they in our regular reputable papers? — F. R.

The article enclosed by Mrs. F. R. is as thorough-going a scare story as I have yet seen, asserting that artificial sweeteners cause heart, liver and kidney disease, birth defects, retarded growth and even death. No wonder Mrs. F. R. was a "bit confused."

The article also mentioned a "secret report" by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

Saccharin and cyclamate are not the same, but both have been the subject of extensive studies.

I wrote to Thomas W. Brown a district director of FDA, and here is the essence of his reply.

"As of this date we have no evidence to support a conclusion that the artificial sweeteners as at present used in the United States, are a hazard to health.

"If there is a "secret report" I do not know about it. I have asked, while in Washington, I personally contacted the Bureau of Regulatory compliance to obtain the very latest information we have. This has now been passed on to you."

Among official reports he sent were these statements:

"The principal 'side effect' of the cyclamates demonstrated thus far in man is a mild laxative effect produced by more than 5 grams in the daily diet. (A 12-ounce bottle of an artificially - sweetened soft drink may contain about one gram of cyclamate.)"

And:

"Some animal studies have shown that growth retardation may occur in rats and pigs fed high levels of cyclamates. But these studies do not cover cycle mates made up $ to 10 p e r cent of the diet — an unreasonable level for even the most conscientious human calorie counter."

Further studies are still continuing, including "a study at Johns Hopkins College in which sodium cyclamate is being fed at varying levels to human volunteers. This study probably will be completed early next year."

And:

The label on artificial sweeteners saying they should be used "only by persons who must restrict their intake of ordinary sweets" is under study and may be dropped.

"The phrase, confusing to many consumers," says an FDA fact report, "dates back to the period when these products were intended primarily for diabetics." The present plan is to change the labelling and merely show which, if any, sweetener is being used.

There is the truth as I am able to get it, and I deplore the scare stories which so far as I can learn, are malicious- ly false.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible for a woman to have normal marital relations after a vaginal plastic operation? — Mrs. M. F.

Yes, certainly.

Note to Mrs. A. M.: No, there is nothing you can "slip into his coffee" that will make him stop drinking.

A Question of Finance

Finally, a community college in its own right, Loyalist College is being administered by its own board of governors. First meeting of the board's finance committee was held at Loyalist yesterday with J.E. Morrison, (rear) Napanee representative, making a point for (from left) F.G. Harry, bursar; J. K. Bradford, Loyalist president and committee chairman W. J. Wilkinson, of Trenton.

Pieced Together Contraption Turns Into Modern Gold Mine

VANCOUVER (CP) — Len Mitten recalls that United States manufacturers stared in disbelief at the pieced-together contraption billed as Ernest Runnion's one-man sawmill at Simpson Timber Co. in Shelton, Wash.

They closed their notebooks muttering: "That thing hasn't got a hope of working."

Mr. Mitten saw only the idea, grabbed the manufacturing rights and developed it into another export market.

Canadian Car (Pacific) division of Hawker Siddeley Canada Ltd., of which Mr. Mitten is general manager, has expanded the idea and its line into "what you'd have to call a whole family of machines."

Newest is a high-speed stud machine, costing about $130,000, which automatically turns out 2-by-4 and 1-by-4 wood studs, rippled through up to 1,000 logs an hour and saving on waste and labor.

Explains Mr. Mitten:

"Since our early machines, we've designed automatic log gauges that electronically gauge the diameter of the log and feed this information into a simple memory system which sets the (chipping) heads.

"Conventional sawmills ... operate in British Columbia and dust but our Chip-N-Saw will two were sent to Quebec last year. But Canadian Car is really enjoying "all that lovely American currency flowing back across the border."

About 40 of the automated mills have been sent to the U.S. in three main areas: the Pacific Northwest, the Virginias and Gulf of Mexico areas where they work on southern pine tree plantations.

Canadian Car says: "Economic analyses covering the applications of these machines show that the owners' investment can be recovered in six to 12 months, depending on the log supply."

That recovery rate, however, would be limited to major operations, said Mr. Mitten.

"You have to have a large number of logs to keep one of these machines busy. These machines process anywhere from 1,500 logs per eight-hour shift up to, at the present time, about 3,200 logs."

The high-speed stud machine handles eight-foot logs, ranging from 6½ to nine inches in diameter, in a solid stream. Uniform chips are sold for purple manufacturing.

Said Mr. Mitten:

"We have a machine going to Norway about the end of this year and . . . in Sweden, a market survey would indicate about $10,000,000 potential market and this can be increased as we develop more members in this family of machines.

"New Zealand has, well, only about a quarter of the market potential of Sweden and Australia is quite comparable to New Zealand.

"However, the market in Australia will become much bigger about 10 years from now as they have several plantations there that haven't yet reached maturity."

Emotional Conflicts Are Cut In Homes of Hemophilic Folk

MONTREAL (CP) — Much of the emotional conflicts between parents and their hemophilic teen-agers is being resolved through a series of "behavioral science evaluation centres" established through the National Hemophilia Foundation in the U.S., it was learned here Wednesday.

Herbert Rusalem, director of research of the foundation, told the fifth congress of the World Federation of Hemophilia:

"Each centre session is conducted in conjunction with a university and offers the services of a multi-disciplinary team to hemophiliac families in an effort to assess the interests, capacities and potentialities of hemophiliac adolescents."

The series has been sponsored by the foundation in co-operation with local hemophilia chapters throughout the U.S. for the past year and a half.

". . . Examinations are conducted in the areas of medicine, psychiatry, rehabilitation counselling, social work, special education, recreation and family life," said Mr. Rusalem.

The director's paper was one of several presented at the week-long symposium dealing with the disease which strikes about one in every 10,000 people throughout the world.

Victims bleed often and profusely at the slightest injury and many times hemorrhage internally and spontaneously when under emotional stress.

Mr. Rusalem said both parents and adolescents are exposed to a variety of group experiences which elicit interpersonal responses that provide clues to the functioning of the family unit and suggest sources of tension among parents, siblings and the hemophilic individual.

"In a final session at the conclusion of the two-day evaluation period, the inter-disciplinary team meets to share insights, arrive at a diagnosis and prepare recommendations.

"In turn, a professional member of the team is assigned to confer with the hemophilic individual and his parents and communicate findings and recommendations to them."

The approach, says the researcher, has been highly successful in "enhancing the understanding" of parents about their hemophilic teen-agers and has resulted in more realistic planning for the future."

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For August 30

Your birthday today is one of advancement is the keyword for the year. All activity tends to encourage better earnings. You are also searching for more convenience in life. Personal expression finds healthy channels. Today's natives are inclined to be self-sufficient, with a good memory.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): The end of the week is flawed by an error which creates problems when the time comes. Make use bickering; just pick up the pieces and take it from there.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Wishful thinking gets into the arguments today. "If" questions arise. The temptation for the young is to see everything brightly in rainbow colors while the older people focus on the "grays."

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): It is difficult to make your mind with so many viewpoints to explore. Enjoy the giddiness of the day; postpone decisions until tomorrow.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Anything you buy today does not fit the need, so stick with minimum outlays. Leave savings untouched (and abstain from speculation or gambling). You may find the psychology of the young puzzling.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Nobody knows your position, and people tend to project their own wishes. You can learn a great deal from watching and listening, but it takes discipline to hold your temper.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Women have a better time of it than men today, it seems. Emotional matters are extensive. And much time may be diverted from the routine.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Anything you disclose about your financial situation is misunderstood or disbelieved today. Romantic attachments (secret) pop into public view at unexpected moments; be discreet to begin with.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Your friends will surprise today, and it may be a long time before understanding of their reasons comes home to you. Be a little skeptical.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You get carried away by people overstating their positions. Much of what is said is just not so or is exaggerated.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): You find somebody of the opposite sex is unhappy over your views. There is a tendency for rumor to sweep the country now anyway, and this may be your share.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): You may not be able to avoid a quarrel except by adjusting your notions of fair play. Cheerfulness helps, but don't be silly.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): This is a time for exploring emotional drama. However, don't take for granted that the mood is a valid basis for plans. A day of better balance tomorrow.

SEN. EDMUND S. MUSKIE was named Thursday by Vice-President Hubert Humphrey as his running mate in the November U.S. elections. The Maine senator and his wife are shown during a vacation in Palm Beach in 1963. (AP Photo)

Maine's Muskie Humphrey's Mate

CHICAGO (AP)—The Democratic convention, as a formality, approved Humphrey's choice of a running mate, Senator Edmund Muskie of Maine, 54, a liberal with a record of more than 20 years in federal and state politics.

His only opposition was Julian Bond, Negro member of the Georgia state legislature who was prominent in the anti-war campaign of Minnesota Senator Eugene McCarthy, runner-up to Humphrey. Bond withdrew because at 28 he is too young to be vice-president under the requirements of the U.S. constitution which sets the minimum age at 35.

Humphrey made a special point of soliciting campaign cooperation from both McCarthy, who was not present and who said he would not campaign for the vice-president, and Senator George McGovern of South Dakota, third-ranking aspirant for the presidential nomination.

"I ask your help for America and I ask your help in the difficult campaign that lies ahead," said Humphrey. He praised his "good friends"—McCarthy and McGovern—for giving new hope to the younger generation.

McCarthy's forces represented perhaps the most massive turnout of youth support in American political history.

Humphrey also invoked the name of the two assassinated leaders, Senator Robert Kennedy and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., in an invitation to youth to support him.

"To those who have differences, I say all your hopes, dreams and aspirations will come to naught if we lose this election.

McGovern said he would back the vice-president in the coming election campaign.

He described Humphrey's speech as "very hopeful and striking," and a major step in unifying the party.

GOP Sponsors Radio Report On Democrats

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Radio broadcasts of the Democratic national convention in Chicago were sponsored in this Blue Ridge Mountain city by the local Republican campaign committee.

The broadcasts were liberally interspersed with the sponsor's commercials, the central theme of which was — If you don't like what you're hearing, vote Republican.

New Hampshire Chairman Jailed

CHICAGO (AP) — New Hampshire's delegation to the Democratic national convention lost its chairman Thursday night — he was taken into custody by Chicago police.

David C. Hoch was seized when fellow delegates said he attempted to show that a credit card would actuate the electronic machines which scan the credentials of delegates and others seeking admittance to the International Amphitheatre.

Hoch first cleared his delegate card in the machine. Then, fellow delegates said he commented: "These things are phoney — any old credit card will work."

They said Hoch shoved a credit card into the slot, and when the indicator light showed red, an usher called police, who took him away.

The machine shows a green light when it is satisfied with the admittance card.

When New Hampshire was reached in the roll call of states for vice-presidential nominations another delegate made the misstatement and said: "Our chairman has been in jail for an hour."

Hoch was detained by security officers, held by Chicago police, handcuffed and taken to a police station and eventually returned by Mayor Richard Daley's limousine and two Daley bodyguards.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Mainly sunny conditions are expected again today, with afternoon temperatures reaching the mid seventies in all regions. Little change is indicated for Saturday. However, some cloudiness and one or two showers will spread into the extreme northwestern sections.

Humphrey Hits Mob and Police

CHICAGO (AP) — Presidential candidate Hubert Humphrey, moving swiftly to unify a sorely-split Democratic party, said Thursday night Vietnam policy can be changed if he is elected and pleaded openly for support from disgruntled anti-war factions.

He lashed out at both "mob violence" and "police brutality" but also warned that "rioting, burning, looting, mugging . . . are the advance guard of anarchy and must and will be stopped."

Humphrey closed the four-day national convention with his acceptance speech—a convention that featured tumult and dissent within the tightly-guarded convention hall and bitter, bloody clashes between police and thousands of anti-war demonstrators outside.

A brave show of unity was displayed at the finale but the party faces an uphill struggle in the next 10 weeks to retain power.

Republican candidate Richard Nixon, given a second chance three weeks ago to become president, is favored in the Nov. 5 election. The racist appeal of George Wallace, former Alabama governor heading a third party, adds complications.

The Vietnam war shredded party unity here. Adopted was a war plank believed dictated by President Johnson, who never did visit the convention. The plank continues his insistence on an acceptable guarantee of military restraint from North Vietnam before halting all the bombing.

Humphrey pledged to do everything within his power until he takes over Jan. 20, if elected, to "bring a prompt end to this war."

His key phrase: "If there is one thing we have learned, it is that the policies of tomorrow need not be limited by the policies of today."

"If I get to be president, I shall apply that lesson to Vietnam and all the other areas of policy."

Tribute Is Paid Kennedy

CHICAGO (AP) — For the second time in as many national conventions, Democrats have paid an emotional tribute to an assassinated party hero—both times a Kennedy.

The final session of the 1968 convention Thursday night opened with a 20-minute film tribute to the late Senator Robert Kennedy, touching off 19 minutes of standing and chanting which convention Chairman Carl Albert was helpless to stop.

The film was introduced by Senator Edward Kennedy, the last surviving Kennedy brother, who spoke to the convention on televised videotape from the Kennedy family compound at Hyannis Port, Mass.

He said:

"If my brother's life and death had one meaning above all others it was this: That we should not hate but love one another, that our strength should not be used to create the conditions that lead to violence but the conditions of justice that lead to peace."

Four years ago, at Atlantic City, N.J., Robert Kennedy stood before another Democratic convention and, his eyes moist, paid a similar tribute to President John F. Kennedy, killed by an assassin in November, 1963.

Today's Chuckle

Maybe the trouble with the United States is that it is trying to run things with just one Vice President.

State Street A Hate Street?

Dissident Democratic convention delegates, led by Donald Peterson, head of the Wisconsin delegation, march along State street toward the International Amphitheatre in Chicago. Peterson said purpose of the march was "to test the openness of the city of Chicago". (AP Photo)

Troops 'Bombed' From Hotel Room

CHICAGO (AP) — Youths throwing bottles and glasses down on Illinois National Guard troops patrolling the street in front of the Conrad Hilton Hotel today brought police to the 15th floor where they quickly ordered 30 of the young people to the lobby.

The guardsmen were stationed on Michigan Ave. guarding the Democratic national convention headquarters hotel against singing, chanting anti-war demonstrators across the street.

Thursday night they fired tear gas on some 3,000 anti-war demonstrators and a number of convention delegates, and 79 persons, including eight convention delegates or alternates and two reporters, were arrested several blocks south of the Conrad Hilton.

Rock-throwing followed as guardsmen fired tear gas and used rifle butts to disperse the crowd.

Not as Brutal As Ours -- Dief

OTTAWA (CP) — A group of Conservatives gathered in a parliamentary corridor Thursday to discuss the Democratic convention in Chicago.

"Wasn't it brutal!" one said.

"It was nothing compared to the one we had," said John Diefenbaker.

Mr. Diefenbaker was deposed as Conservative leader at a party convention last September despite his terse and dramatic fight to retain the job.

Czech Premier Issues Warning

PRAGUE (CP) — Premier Oldrich Cernik today warned Czechoslovakia's intellectuals to "get out while they can".

The premier told a private briefing he could not vouch for his own safety let alone the safety of the thousands who backed the country's liberalization program.

He was quoted by Reuters news agency as saying that Soviet occupation commanders threatened to take over the country "with brutal force if necessary."

It was not immediately clear whether this was a new threat or one made during the first days of the occupation. However, similar threats were made to Czechoslovak leaders during their gruelling four days of talks with the Kremlin's leaders in Moscow.

Cernik called on the officials to "go away and urge the best brains of the country to get out while they can."

He said the Russians compiled a list of thousands of names of people to be picked up and transported from the country.

Cernik was asked at the meeting about the personal safety of members of the state government and party.

He replied: "No one now can guarantee this. I am not sure of my own safety."

Cernik earlier this week brought a resolution before the UN Security Council calling on Secretary-General U Thant to send a representative to Czechoslovakia to seek the safety and release of detained officials. But Czechoslovakia asked that the council stop all debate on the crisis after the signing of agreements with Moscow on the Czech capitulation.

The premier was one of the leaders of the Czechoslovak government who were arrested on the first day of the invasion and later flown to Moscow for negotiations with the Kremlin.

The negotiations were reported to be gruelling. The Russians threatened to divide Czechoslovakia, placing the Czech area under military rule and making Slovakia part of the Soviet Union.

Czechoslovak President Ludvik Svoboda resisted this plan and refused to negotiate until Communist party leader Alexander Dubcek, Cernik and other government leaders were present in the talks. They were then brought under military guard to Moscow.

Czechoslovak sources said Cernik disclosed more details about pressures to which the Prague leaders were subjected

Famine's Toll High In Haiti

PORT AU PRINCE (Reuters) — Eighteen months of drought have brought famine conditions in Haiti which one United Nations official described as "worse than those in Biafra."

Although August rains brought some relief to the barren northwest peninsula, cases of kwashiokor—a disease caused by chronic protein deficiency—are still being discovered by aid missions working in remote hill communities.

The precise number of deaths in the 1,200-square-mile area, where 210,000 persons live at subsistence level, cannot be reliably estimated. But in one district alone, more than 400 deaths between May and July were officially registered as due to starvation.

A French United Nations official who once lived at Port de Paix, a decaying north coast coffee port, reported being "appalled at conditions worse than those in Biafra."

The official, no longer in Haiti, said he had seen people die of hunger on the steps of his house.

Housewives Feel the Pinch

Up Two Cents Per Quart

Quinte Milk Price Increases - - Again

Belleville housewives are going to have to dig just a little deeper to come up with the change for milk purchases after September 1.

Local dairies announced this morning that the price of milk would go up two cents per quart next week with the delivered price to jump from 33 cents to 35 cents per quart.

The increase will be two cents per quart "across the board" and will apply to buttermilk and skim milk as well as for regular milk.

Dairymen said the September 1 increase is the result of higher prices to be paid to the producer commencing the first of the month.

The Ontario Milk Marketing Board has ordered that producers be paid $6.65 per hundredweight for 3.4 per cent milk, up 80 cents from the present $5.15.

This is the second increase in the retail price of milk in the past two months.

On July 1 the price increased by one cent per quart, with dairymen stating the extra cent was necessary to pay wage increases and other operational costs.

This time, according to a dairy spokesman, the entire two cents will be passed on to the farmer.

United Services Seeks $118,300

United Community Services will seek $118,300 from the general public for the support of 14 participating agencies this year.

An application by UCS to hold the appeal from Sept. 23 to Oct. 7 of this year has been endorsed by the Belleville Financial Appeals Review Board.

And the Review Board was pleased to learn that collection costs of the campaign, including all staff expenses, were less than five per cent of the amount raised. They observed that this rate compared favorably with those of independent campaigns who costs in some cases have exceeded 30 per cent.

The Financial Appeals Review Board is composed of two appointees from City council, Chamber of Commerce, Labour Council and one from United Community Services.

The federated financing of voluntary agencies in Canada began in 1917 in Toronto and the idea developed and became more sophisticated through the years.

Near the end of the War, the citizens of Belleville (less than 20,000) began a Community Chest. The Red Cross, Heart Fund, Cancer Society and the CNIB continued to hold their own campaigns.

In 1958, the Community Chest entered into an agreement with the Red Cross, and Blind and became a United Appeal.

Difficulties which contributed to the nine years of failure to achieve its goal was the community desire to get as many agencies under the United umbrella as possible.

"Organizations such as the HDEE became a part of the Appeal simply in order to obviate the 'need for another tag day,'" stated the application of UCS to the Appeal board.

In 1963 when the appeal collected little more than 50 per cent of its goal a general meeting was held and a report from the Canadian Welfare Council was submitted to City Council.

Among its recommendations was one for the establishment of a social planning council. This was formed with a grant of $2,500 from council and an executive director was appointed.

When the manager of United Appeal retired in 1966 the opstitute for the Blind and the United Community Services itself will get around $13,000.

The Retarded Children's Association will receive $3,000 Minor Sports will receive $7,000. Boy Scouts will receive $4,650 and the Canadian Arthrills and Rheumatism Society will be awarded $2,974.

The two welfare councils, Canadian and Ontario receive the least, $500 and $300 respectively.

The Civic Action Committee of the Catholic Women's League has been allocated $2,400 and both the Navy League and St. John Ambulance will receive just over $4,600.

Finally there is the Victorian Order of Nurses which will get $6,775 and $3,966 has been allocated for uncollectible pledges.

Creations of both the social planning council and the United Appeal were combined into United Community Services.

By this time, objects of the new corporation had been agreed upon and solicitors had prepared an application for incorporation.

UCS is incorporated under the laws of Ontario and its affairs are administered by 21 directors.

The amount of the goal is decided upon each Spring after a series of conferences with the participating agencies.

This year the $118,300 goal is divided into 14 parts with the YMCA receiving the most money, $22,200.

Red Cross will receive $18,945 and both the Canadian In-

Shopping Plaza Awaits Approval

Cambridge Leaseholds, of Windsor who earlier this year announced plans for the construction of a million dollar shopping plaza in North Belleville, are still awaiting Ontario Municipal Board approval for a zoning change which would make the plaza possible.

City council, prior to its summer recess, approved the required zoning change and an application was made for OMB approval.

Yesterday, George Elliott, Cambridge Leaseholds representative, said his firm was prepared to go ahead with the development once the Municipal Board approval for the zoning change was received.

Central Bridge Strikers Receive Their Last Pay

TRENTON: The striking members of Local 3526 of the United Steel Workers of America here at Central Bridge will receive their last paycheque today.

After today the 74 union members will have to depend on their strike fund to see them through the duration.

Richard Burnet, Works Manager at the plant said this morning the strikers would receive a paycheque which would cover work done until the beginning of the strike at 3 p.m. Tuesday.

And the strike continues without any changes.

Management is not making any move toward negotiations. As Mr. Burnet said, "We have no comment to make on that."

And the president of Local 3526, James Thompson, says, "Nothing has changed, everything's pretty quiet."

Meanwhile strikers continue to picket the plant on a 24 hour basis. Approximately 10 to 12 men are on the picket line at a time.

Work at the plant has come to a standstill leaving an antenna, destined for Peru as part of the Telestar program, resting partly finished in the plant.

A tent has been set up as headquarters for the strikers and it is here that the weary rest and sip coffee while they are replaced on the 80 yard picket line by fellow workers.

There has been no talk of lowering demands by the union.

"We have already come down to try and get a contract," said Mr. Thompson. "It's up to management to make a move now."

Animal Control Changes Hands

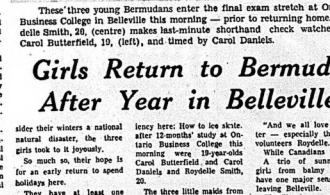
As of today Belleville's outdated animal control shelter in the city fairgrounds is no more.

Instead stray dogs and cats will be housed in temporary kennels at the recently purchased Humane Society premises in Sidney township.

And on September 3, the Ontario Humane Society will officially take over animal control operations in Belleville and in Trenton.

Instead of the familiar red dog catcher's truck two spanking new radio controlled trucks will be on call. The new blue painted trucks will be lettered "Quinte Regional Animal Control" with the telephone number 967-1423.

In charge of the Quinte Region Animal Patrol will be Inspector Hugh Morgan who will double as animal control warden. The other will be Gary Flunder, who has been working as the city's animal control officer.



Other staff members will include a kennel girl, a receptionist and a standby animal warden who will be on duty following the regular eight hour day shift.

Inspector Morgan said that while animal control duties will be taken over by the Quinte Region Animal Patrol on September 3, it was hoped eventually that both Sidney and Thurlow and possibly Ameliasburg would join. If so the number of trucks would be increased to four.

A month or so ago the Ontario Humane Society purchased the Belleville quarters of Eastern Breeders incorporated.

Temporary kennels have already been installed but the barns will be completely renovated with the latest in kennel units provided.

Eastern Breeders will move their bulls to Kemptville headquarters, but will continue to maintain an office at Belleville.

Girls Return to Bermuda After Year in Belleville

Belleville's loss is Bermuda's gain.

Three young Bermudans, Roydelle Smith, 20, Carol Butterfield, 19, and Carol Daniels, 20, are in the final stretch of their year's course at Ontario Business College here.

They have at least one common reason for doing so.

In Bermuda where it never snows, there is no ice.

And the two Carols and Roydelle learned one more thing besides business proficiency here: How to ice skate.

After 12-months' study at Ontario Business College this morning were 19-year-olds Carol Butterfield and Carol Daniels and Roydelle Smith, 20.

The three little maids from business school are scheduled to fly back to their island in the sun this weekend, where they will begin to practically apply their OBC-imparted knowledge.

All three girls agree they'll miss the fun they had with the people they met during their year in Belleville.

"And we all love the winter — especially the snow," volunteers Roydelle.

While Canadians may consider a trio of sunny-smiling girls from balmy Bermuda have one major setue of loss leaving Belleville.

They'll miss — wait for it — the Canadian winter!

In Thursday's Intelligencer story on the boom in travel agency business in Belleville, the accompanying picture carried the wrong identification. Mrs. Irene Rolof was named as the travel agency woman talking with a customer. The correct identification should have been Mrs. Jane Walker.

Loyalist Offers New Course

A new course — Water Science Technician — announced today by Loyalist College is designed to attract students from across Ontario. They will study a program aimed at turning out technicians qualified in resource management, pollution control and conservation procedures.

Loyalist has been chosen to launch the course and will be the only community college in Ontario to offer the first year of the two-year program. Employment opportunities are known to exist for graduates of the water science course as a result of studies conducted by the Ontario Energy Resources Commission.

Loyalist is also offering another course that is only available at the College which serves the Quinte Region. It is a course in the practical aspects of successful farm operation and livestock management.

With registration for night school classes scheduled for the beginning of next week, September 3, 4 and 5, Loyalist College is on the move from its temporary quarters on Palmer Road to a new engineered building on the Loyalist Wallbridge Road campus just west of Belleville.

Day students start registration September 16. Classes begin September 19. Enrolment is nearing the 600 mark but the new College which opens at ground zero one year ago has the building capacity and teaching staff to enable all qualified students to continue their education and live at home.

Loyalist is within driving distance of all centres in the four-county Loyalist College area of Eastern Ontario.

If weather predictions hold up, the Quinte area is hearing for a pleasant Labor Day weekend. Thousands will trek to the outdoors and it's still warm enough to take a plunge — as these young swimmers at Belleville docks demonstrated yesterday. Forecasts call for showers Monday — but mostly it should be warm and sunny.

Warm Weather for Weekend

The Quinte scene is shaping up as a sunshine sketch for the last long weekend of summer.

While there's a chance of showers at the end, the Labor Day holiday should be celebrated in almost perfect weather — sunny and comfortably warm.

Traffic may be a problem as thousands head for a final warm fling in the outdoors. Already, local and provincial police forces have issued safety reminders to all motorists.

Temperatures should remain in the low 70s until Sunday when they will climb higher, promises the duty forecaster at Canadian Forces Base, Trenton. Mostly, the weather will remain clear, although showers are in the offing for late Monday.

Quinte forestlands will be the focus of much action — many cottagers use the Labor Day holiday to close out properties for another year.

Reinforcing their trek to the outdoors will be the campers and picnic parties — all of which is bearing consservation officials slightly nervous.

The forest fire hazard in the area today was rated high and could become extreme if there is no rain soon in the northern townships, say Department of Lands and Forests wardens.

They urge all outdoor travellers to use extreme caution during the holiday.

It's also a perfect chance to view the change of seasons in the northern end of the district.

Forestern report trees are slowly showing hints of fall colors — one of the spectacular sights of Quinte forests.

With the change comes colder early-, morning temperatures, however — something to be borne in mind by campers and cottagers.

At Bancroft last night the mercury dropped to a low of 38 degrees. Further south at Tweed it was 41 degrees.

The holiday also will likely see the last big crowds at local provincial parks and beaches for the year.

The final outdoors trek should leave the urban scene fairly serene for the weekend. In Belleville, industry and commerce will slow to a halt until Tuesday. There won't even be the mailman to tread to disturb the early - morning sleeping Labor Day.

The city's post office announced there will be no urban or rural mail delivery Monday. In Belleville there will be only one evening collection from street mail boxes.

While mail will be received and despatched as usual, there will be no wicket services although post office boxes will be available as usual from 6.30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Two Planners Object To Meeting Cancellation

Cancellation of a special meeting to discuss the first element of Belleville's official plan has met with the objection of two planning board members.

Both Zdenek Kvarda and Mrs. Margaret Orr submitted they were unhappy about the decision of the majority of board members to cancel the special meeting scheduled for Aug. 29.

The board decided, during its regular meeting Aug. 22, to hold the special meeting to go over provisions of the transportation plan.

The plan, prepared by planning director P. J. Beavis outlines the way in which roads, railways, air-bases and waterborne transportation, and underground pipe lines should be developed during the next 20 years.

It is the first of 10 plans which will be presented to the board for discussion, recommendation to city council, and ultimately, inclusion in the official plan for Belleville and the suburban area.

Study of the transportation plan was on the agenda of the Aug. 22 regular meeting of planning board, but chairman G. G. Bussey and member Zdenek Kvarda suggested the board required more time to study and discuss its provisions.

Mayor Russell Scott recommended discussion at the next regular meeting Sept. 26, with a special meeting on transportation to be called after that date.

On a motion by Horace Knight, seconded by Ralph Plumpton, the date of the special meeting on transportation was moved to Aug. 29.

The special meeting was cancelled by chairman Bussey because he felt the board was not ready to discuss the transportation plan.

Mr. Knight was not available for comment, but Mr. Plumpton said a majority of board members were polled by telephone and agreed to the cancellation.

"The board is well acquainted with Mr. Beavis' policies, and we should wait for the new director who might bring in new ideas," he said.

Mr. Beavis resigned last month and leaves Sept. 13 to become planning director in Stratford.

Mr. Bussey concurred.

"We should see what the new director's thoughts are on transportation," he said. "He might recommend something different."

"I can't believe this is the best answer, and I intend to point it further," Mr. Kvarda commented.

"I can't see what the new director can accomplish when he arrives," he continued. "It will take a new man up to a year to know the city well enough to come up with a transportation plan."

Mrs. Orr agreed with Mr. Kvarda.

"It is unfair to Mr. Beavis to deny him a chance to explain his transportation study," she said.

"It is also unfair to expect the new director to make suggestions or decisions until he becomes acquainted with the town.

"The planning board has been accused in the past of dragging its feet in preparing of the official plan," she continued. "In the case of cancelling this meeting, I think the accusation is justified."

"The planning director has been told in meetings that his time might have been better spent on the official land use plan than on preparing reports," she added.

Downtown Business

Belleville's Downtown Businessmen's Association needs money according to president Ben Corke, in order to re-establish itself as a force in the community.

In the coming weeks stores will be asked for contributions based on footage. Mr. Corke points out that on this basis the association should raise $17,000. However, realist that he is, the president is anticipating only slightly more than half this amount — $9,000.

Mr. Corke was pessimistic on the subject of spending say $25,000 to $75,000 on the stores on contributions of $25. And well he might be, although he said "six of us are pledged to $500."

Looking in the direction of where the money is to be spent we wonder if such seasonal promotions as Christmas lights or the Santa Claus parade could be scaled down or even eliminated. Have them, say every other year, if by doing so money is released for more important projects such as the overall promotion of downtown redevelopment.

Meanwhile, the association and city representatives have received some pointers toward community betterment from A. F. Mandy, manager of the Downtown Association of Hamilton. Mr. Mandy said the objectives of an association are "more than sales," and it was encouraging in this context to hear him mention the need to deal with such matters as poor parking, bad lighting, litter (educating the public in this regard should be a comparatively easy and inexpensive task) and dirty streets.

Links with the Past

Ontario should be proud of its historic role in the development of Canada. More than any other province it has maintained tangible links with the past.

We have in mind in particular attractions like Old Fort Henry, Kingston's stronghold of the War of 1812, and Upper Canada Village near Morrisburg, the pioneer community established in the wake of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

The United States has similar attractions of historic interest, but in one State at least there is envy of what Canada has to offer in this respect. Hamilton's Dundurn Castle, for instance, last caught the eye of a group of state legislators from South Carolina.

Impressed by the fine work of restoration accomplished at the home of Canada's MacNab, the U.S. visitors have indicated that some of the ideas used at Dundurn may be copied when the city of Old Charleston is restored for the state's tricentennial in 1970. Among Dundurn's features are weekend entertainments, as well as sound and light reproductions that help bring back the atmosphere of an earlier era in Canada's history.

We should be grateful for these reminders of the past. Old Fort Henry could easily have been allowed to fall into ruin. The pioneer homes preserved from the flooding of areas of countryside for the Seaway are where they are today in Upper Canada — because of the imagination and zeal of historically-minded Canadians.

Without such links with the past Canadians would have too little pride in their country than that to which they are entitled today — a pride enhanced and given fresh significance by the truly marvellous exposition that was Expo 67. And now the future still beckons. Canadians look ahead, yet our links with the past are strong.

Mayoral Meeting

The spectacle of Mayor Drapeau and Mayor Dennison getting together at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto is rare enough. It not so long ago that Toronto was exhibiting ill-concealed hostility at the prospect of the CNE being upstaged by Expo rejuvenated in another guise (1968's Man and His World). And there was all that palaver about Toronto wanting back the park benches it had loaned to Montreal for Expo. Now it seems all is forgiven, Mr. Drapeau has made some flattering remarks about the CNE and he and Mr. Dennison even took flight together on one of those midway slides. Mr. Drapeau went further and set to improving relations between Quebec and the Indian population. There is little love lost between the Indians and the provincial government. Mr. Drapeau, however, was exuding his customary bonhomie and at the CNE's Indian Hall of Fame he shook hands with 18-year-old Maggie Bearskin, a Cree Indian from James Bay. A beau geste, to be sure, and one that set the seal on a significant contribution to better relations between Toronto and Montreal and between Ontario and Quebec.

Kremlin's Motives

Soviets Cannot Afford to Let Czechs Go Their Own Way

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press Correspondent

For those who thought the Cold War might fade away, this last week was a sad one. The words "peaceful coexistence" took on a hollow ring. East-West understanding became as even more distant goal.

For the United Nations and the West it was a week of frustration and futility; for the Soviet Union, a week of immense propaganda setback.

For Czechoslovakia, it was a nightmare and agony.

Some freedom-seeking Czechoslovaks had gloomily anticipated events, the world knew what it is today: Carved into spheres of influence among intellectual ideologies. Five weeks ago one of the most outspoken of Czechoslovakia's newspapers, Literarni Listy of the writers' union, asked rhetorically what might happen if the Soviet Union invaded to smother a liberalization movement deemed a danger to Communist authority. It came up with the answer: "Nothing."

Czechoslovakia is considered of great strategic importance by Soviet military leaders. It was outside the U.S. sphere and the Americans, beyond protests, did nothing, as they had done nothing in 1956, when a revolution in Hungary was crushed by the Soviet Union.

As the week began, Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper was thundering threats.

"In the field of ideology there can be no peaceful coexistence as there cannot be class peace between the proletariat and the bourgeoisie," it said.

In the early hours of Wednesday, combined forces of the Soviet Union, Poland, Hungary, Bulgaria and East Germany struck. Before the Czechoslovaks knew what was happening, they were at the mercy of the invaders.

For the second time in three decades, the nation was prostrate under an invader's boot. It invoked bitter memories of Munich, 1938, and the Nazi invasion, 1939.

For a small country that once prided itself as an oasis of prosperity, the last 20 years have been bitter. The post-war government was seized in 1948 in a Communist coup with Soviet troops poised on the borders.

Moscow seemed more angry at the lilting of censorship than over any other single aspect of the reform. In June, that anger boiled when a group of Czechoslovak intellectuals produced a manifesto called 2,000 Words. It was a denunciation of 20 years of communism. Over and over thereafter the Soviet press alluded to the document as proof that counter-revolution had taken hold in Prague.

Most Prefer Marriage To Divorce

Windsor Star

There will be a large surge in divorces in Canada consequent to the recent broadening of the divorce laws. This won't mean an increase in people wanting divorces. It only means that there is a large backlog of those who have wanted one but could not qualify, without degrading themselves, when adultery was the only legal cause.

Most couples in Canada will stay married. Few marriages are perfect but most are preferable to any other status. This is proved by a recent survey in Germany. It found that 69 per cent of all couples there had been wed at least 25 years. And half the marriages which ended with the death of one partner had lasted at least 37 years. The great majority of marriages, as in Canada, are enduring.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Aug. 30, 1968 . . .

The Dawes Plan for the rearrangement of German's war reparations payments went into effect 44 years ago today—in 1924. At the same time Germany set up a new currency system. The new mark was fixed at 1,000,000,000,000 old worthless marks. Inflation in late 1923 nearly ruined the country and wiped out thousands of bank accounts as the government printed paper money by the bushel to try to meet demands. Newspapers cost 200,000,000,000 marks, which by one-year values would have been $20,000,000,000.

1939 — Germany military rule was proclaimed in Slovakia.

1947 — A theatre fire in suburban Paris, France, killed 90 and injured 60.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—Canadian troops pushed up to the Drocourt-Queant line and attacked on the Arras-Cambrai front, capturing the village of Hoscourt; British troops crossed the Somme River both south and west of Peronne, occupying Bailleul and Hargicourt.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—King Christian X of Denmark was interned and Premier Erick Scavenius arrested as the Danish revolt continued; RAF bombers attacked Germany after a two-day pause in the bombings; Amerlean troops landed without opposition at Arundell, west of New Guinea; Axis troops evacuated Taganrog, the southern anchor of the German defences in Russia, about 40 miles west of Rostov.

Speed Reading Her Forte

Watertown Times

There is a common expression that "She (or he) can talk a mile-a-minute."

We do not profess to know how many words there are in a mile. But out in Illinois there is a little 15-year-old girl who seemingly could read a mile-a-minute.

Adult readers average 300 words a minute at 60 per cent comprehension, according to those who know about such things. Maria Teresa Calderon reads at the rate of 50,000 words a minute — with nearly 100 per cent comprehension.

This would seem to contradict the theory of a Japanese child psychiatrist who, noting the extreme rarity of reading disability among Japanese children, recently suggested that the disability may be the result of the language used rather than of a neurological disorder.

Maria, a Filipino, and the third youngest of seven children told the teacher her native language is Tagalog. The family speaks English and Tagalog at home.

Maria, who is from Quezon city in the Philippines, has been in the United States for nine months. In September she will be a junior at St. Clara Academy in Shoalcreek, Wis.

The girl has just completed a five-week rapid reading course held at Northwestern university. In her final test, Maria read a four-page article, containing 2,135 words, in 42 seconds — an average of more than 53,600 words a minute. And, the no-fly material, which she had never seen before, was prepared for the speed reading level.

At that rate, Maria could read the entire "A" book of the encyclopedia Britannica we were writing this editorial.

This sort of thing is contagious

College Combats Narcotics

Regina Leader - Post

While most communities tend to adopt a head-in-the-sand posture on the issue, at least one educational institution in the United States is making a realistic attempt to come to grips with the problem of a burgeoning drug culture.

The college, Cal Tech, is distributing to its students a set of rules governing conduct on campus, together with information on medical, psychological and lethal ramifications of the drug problem and advice on services available to students who already are victims of the habit.

While recognizing the right of the student to sufficient freedom to exercise individual and social responsibility, the administration policy also acknowledges the responsibility of the college in the maintenance of order within the general community.

Severe penalties, including expulsion, are combined with a mature educational program which alerts the student to the health and legal risks involved in the use of marijuana, LSD and other drugs.

Kiwis Put on the Dog with Brand New Name for Lamb

HamRivet Spectator

This Sunday — Fresh spring New Zealand Dombat!"

As a matter of fact, our best guess might take a page out of the New Zealand Marketing Board's sales book. Beef, after all, means more than just a meat in our language. It's in the same league as carp and nag — it's edible in one context and unedible in another.

How about a new name for beef in order to increase our exports to the healthy United States-Texas market? Would any Texan care to put up a prize for the best name? There's a lamb.

Canada's Trade Growth Second Only to Japan

By JAMES NELSON
(Fourth of a Series)

OTTAWA (CP) — If Canada maintains for the next two years the torrid pace of exports it has attained in the last two, it will far exceed the 1970 trade goals set by the Economic Council of Canada.

The council said in its first annual review of the economy, after being established five years ago, that exports should rise to $10,500,000,000 by 1970, from the 1965 level of about $7,000,000,000.

Canada came near that mark in 1966, exceeded it last year, and exports for the year are in stride with the government's present objective of $12,300,000,000 for 1968.

Imports, of course, would also be expected to grow dramatically, and they have. From about $8,000,000,000 in 1965, they climbed last year to $10,900,000,000, which is most the council's $11,000,000,000 target for 1970.

The council noted that in the past, during periods of boom, imports have tended to increase more rigorously than exports.

This happened in 1955 and 1956, reducing the merchandise trade surplus, but last year's big boom in exports more than exceeded the gain in imports. The council said that by 1970, Canada's traditional surplus of goods exports over goods imports might be converted into a deficit.

Canada usually runs a current-account deficit, but much more modest than this figure. It is covered by the inflow of foreign capital, mainly from the United States, in long-term investment.

But the council was not alarmed at the size of the balance-of-payments deficit projected for the end of the decade. It said the level of domestic savings would be relatively high and Canada reached the fullness of its potential, and added:

The Canada-U.S. Auto Free Trade Agreement has added a fillip to Canada's exports of manufactured goods. Exports of motor vehicles and parts climbed to $1,733,000,000 last year from $100,000,000 in 1963.

Exports of aircraft and parts have almost tripled, to $214,000,000 from $108,000,000 and shipments of chemicals and fertilizers have gained one-third, to $300,000,000 from $268,000,000, in last year's export figures compared with 1963 levels.

Exports of all other manufactured goods, apart from processed raw materials such as wood pulp, newsprint and metal products, climbed to $1,461,000,000 last year from $886,000,000 in 1963.

The council also said in its first report that in order to attain the goals it set for Canada, reasonable price and cost stability would have to be maintained if Canada were to have a strong competitive position in world markets.

Economists and government officials have worried about Canada pricing itself out of world markets.

Of the world's leading trading nations—Canada, the United States, Japan, Germany and the United Kingdom—the growth of Canadian trade between 1963 and 1967 ranked second only to Japan, according to international statistics compiled by the 22-member Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development.

Frocks Were Fake

MESSINA, Italy (AP) — Nuns at a nearby convent became suspicious of a young visiting priest and called police. Ann Landers

Introduction of Friend May Solve Problem

DEAR ANN LANDERS — This girl Marge is the best thing that ever happened to me. Last year I wanted to quit high school in my senior year and stay on at the job I worked at Christmas vacation. Marge was my friend and I hated to give up the steady money. Marge made me see that I had to go back to school and now I am glad I did. She's really a great girl, Ann.

Here's the problem. This evening she told me we were through. It seems that during lunch hour she saw me riding around with a girl. So help me, Ann, I wasn't riding around with a girl. It was a guy. He's one of those flower kids who likes to wear his hair long, and with beads and all that. I can see how she made the mistake.

I offered to bring the guy over and introduce her but she said not to put myself out. Please tell me what to do. I can't lose Marge. — LOVE HER.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR LOVE — Bring the flower kid over and introduce him to Marge — beats and all. That will settle it. I can't understand why she doubted your story. Nowadays when I see long hair and beads, I just assume it's a boy.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I should be washing my dishes but here I am writing to you because what I have to say won't wait.

That woman who wrote to complain about her husband's sex drive (she called him a dead battery) got me mad. I wonder if it has occurred to her that maybe she is the one who is to blame. Does she nag him to pick up his things, get his feet off the furniture, get his junk out of the den? Does she complain about how hard she has to work all day, how difficult the kids are to manage alone, how prices are going up and what a hard time she has trying to stretch the paycheck. I know the type, Ann. I see them every week at bridge club—and at the beauty shop.

If these women would stop complaining and give their hubbies a few compliments in front of the kids once in a while, offer to shampoo the guy's hair and be sweet and loving they might discover that the "dead battery" wasn't dead at all. It just needs recharging. — HAZEL NUTS.

DEAR HAZEL — You're not nuts dearie, You're a smart girl. Thanks for sharing the wisdom.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Several weeks ago my mother's college friend came to visit for a weekend and she brought along her 16-year-old daughter. (I am a boy 17). We got quite friendly but didn't do anything we are ashamed of, if you know what I mean. We kissed several time and that was about it.

Yesterday my mother got a letter saying Linda Sue has mononucleosis. I have heard this is a highly contagious disease. How come I didn't get it. — MR. QUESTION MARK.

DEAR MR. — Just lucky, I guess.

CONFIDENTIAL TO NO BABY BUT TREATED LIKE ONE — Sorry, but a 13-year-old girl who must be told to wash her neck, clean out the bathtub and sew a rip in her blouse sounds pretty babyish to me. The best way to get your mother to treat you like an adult is to behave like one.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problem. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed envelope plus six cents for postage.

Depressed and Aged Mother Is Possessive

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Can you help a person to face old age? My mother is 80; she hates to grow old (alone) and is trying her best to possess me body and soul. I work every day and some evenings — but I must be "her shadow" (unless I am on the job).

I am very tired, mentally and physically. The doctor say, I am very tense. But, what can I do? She's my mother, but she doesn't consider me as a daughter.

She won't interest herself in anything. She is depressed and nothing you do pleases her. — Can't Cope.

Dear Can't Cope: Old age is catching up with Mother.

You are suffering from what the geriatricians call social fatigue: the malady which besets homemakers who cope full time with dependent oldsters. For their relief there are now some day hospitals and day care centres designed to give attention to elderly patients and get them out from under.

Since nothing pleases her anyway, why not challenge her with a home job that simply must be done and needs her to do it? Ignore rebellion or refusal. Insist. I'm not suggesting being firm, but relaxer giving her something to crow about later. Which she will!

Plans for your holiday must be made, with or without her consent, or you won't be in shape to tend to her later.

Dear Doris: Our son, 21 stays out too late: three or four in the morning, even on casual dates. He only dates on week ends.

He was ill for several weeks is fine now, but the doctor advises an strenuous work before entering university in the fall. O.K., he gets an allowance, but we do ask this one regulation from him, and he just can't see it.

The favorite howl of young people: "You don't trust me!" is ridiculous; it is not a case of trusting at all. Emotions are strong and it only takes one unguarded moment to change from young and carefree to young and overburdened. — Rift in Home Life.

Dear Rift: It is his health or his morals that worry you? I'm thinking your time for such discipline is way past. Now is your time for trusting. "One unguarded moment" can happen just as easily before midnight as after.

Help your boy attain the stature of a man by giving it to him. Enjoy him. If his early days are restless, involve him in household chores within his strength.

All too soon he'll be working full time and so tired at nights he'll be falling into bed at 10.30.

Confidential to Bothered By: Too much perspiration is the bane of existence for some teens; seems connected with glandular activity and body changes.

What to do? Baths daily; find the anti-perspirant that works for you and post it on, repeatedly. It stimulates make you steam, drink orange juice instead.

More detail about this and about the hair growth could go into a private letter if I knew where to send it.

(Don't just muddle along. Do something about what's troubling you. A letter to Doris can put you on the way to more Successful Living.)

Two Quickly Prepared Supper Dishes

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Have just acquired a Buffet Syle Electric Frypan with highdomed lid. Would you please forward any recipes you might have using this type of pan? Because of special diets in the family, fried foods are not permissible. As I am a working wife and mother of four, quickly prepared recipes would be appreciated. Thanking you in anticipation of receiving some yummy ones. — Mrs. J. F. P.

ANSWER: I too have just acquired a high-domed avocado green electric frypan so welcomed your request. My first effort fills your requirements. I will give more as I make them.

DEVILLED PORK CHOPS (in electric frypan - serves 8)

NOTE: In your case, Mrs. J. F. P. this recipe will serve two meals to four people and as you are a working wife it will be a great comfort to freeze the slaw and reheat leftover half.

8 THICK PORK CHOPS (2 pounds) from which you have trimmed off excess fat. Mix together in a bowl

½ spanish onion finely chopped

¼ cup lemon juice

½ teaspoon dry mustard

1½ tablespoons brown sugar

½ cup catsup

1 tablespoon worcestershire sauce

Arrange trimmed chops, in single layer, in ungreased electric frypan. Pour sauce over all. Turn all chops over to coat them with the sauce. Simmer covered 45 to 60 minutes, turning chops over once during this simmering period. When serving, spoon some of the rich pan sauce over each chop. Incidentally we ate this meal outside and plugged in the frypan to an outdoor outlet. It was quite casual but the chops were grand and low. NOTE: Readers who have more time than Mrs. J. F. P. could marinate the chops in the frypan in the devilled sauce for one hour before starting the cooking.

FIGURE SAFEGUARDS — Universal Actress Anita Eubank demonstrates a series of exercises. Whether one's goal is to safeguard a good figure or shape a new one these are routines that meet both goals.

Regularity Key to Exercise Success

By REBA and BONNIE CHURCHILL

Who needs exercise? Probably you, that's who! Whether your goal is to safeguard a good figure or shape a new one, those 600 muscles of the body need help. Fortunately, there are several adaptable routines that meet both goals. In fact they're so flexible they can be performed indoors or outside, as Universal actress Anita Eubank prefers. Sit with knees bent, hands grasping a towel. Simultaneously, lift towel and left leg in an up-up-up push. Really stretch. She combined strengthening-streamlining benefits to arms, midriff and limbs begin with 10 practice sessions. Firm up legs.

Some young swingers tag exercise a bore, and point out they already have a good figure. But the question is, will they always have a good figure? Not if they don't keep muscles toned and firmed. Regularity is the key to exercise that doesn't be difficult. One series is nice success. Such workouts it on the ground and roll it back and forth without moving feet. Keep stomach muscles contracted and let arms, back and legs feel that elongated stretch. Afterwards, roll ball back to start position and repeat five times.

If you're athletically inclined, you may prefer a more utilizes a ball. Swing it overhead, behind back, or place challenging assignment. This, like all exercises, should be checked with your doctor. He may want to modify it to your special needs. For instance, raising the body off the ground in a seated lift calls for a gymnast's endurance and skill. However, a similar effect can be achieved while sitting between a pile of heavy books. Press down with the hands and straight ahead with the feet; barely lift derriere off ground. The same muscles have been brought into play, yet the drill has been reduced to beginners category.

P.S. Lose three pounds in four days — that's a goal of a new Monday-through-Thursday diet. Our brand new booklet offers complete menus, plus sketches illustrating firm and trim exercises. For your copy of this special pamphlet, "Diet for Figure-Trimmers", enclose 25c and a self-addressed stamped envelope to: Reba and Bonnie Churchill, Diet for Figure-Trimmers, c/o The Intelligencer, Room 1310, 80 King St. W., Toronto, Ontario.

Parliamentarians Play Musical Chairs

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberals and Conservatives are jockeying over Commons seating in the new Parliament which opens Sept. 12.

Specifically, the two parties are fighting for possession of two front-row seats which both admit they do not need except for prestige purposes.

On Parliament Hill, there's nothing like status symbols to touch off a good political row.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux may have to be called in to sort out this one.

There are 138 seats to the right of Mr. Speaker, the Commons position occupied by the government and its supporters.

There are 155 Liberals, meaning that 17 will have to sit in a rump immediately to the left of Mr. Speaker.

But the Liberals want a section of 22 seats, including four in the front row.

The Conservatives had 18 front-row seats in the last Parliament. Four front-benchers were beaten in the June 25 election and one retired. Gerald Baldwin, MP for Peace River, moves up in the front row as the new Conservative House leader.

This leaves the Conservatives occupying 14 front-row seats, the number so far assigned to them by the government.

The Conservatives concede that, in proportion to their Commons membership—72 against 95 in the last Parliament—14 front-row seats is fair.

But, one said: "How can we promote anybody to the front row? We can't move anybody back who was already in the front row."

The Liberals want 30 front-row seats, including the two in contention.

One Liberal said: "We have 155 members and the Conservatives have 72. Therefore we are entitled to more than twice as many front-row seats as the Conservatives — namely, 30."

The wrangle has reached the point where the two sides aren't talking to each other.

And it is holding up the printing of the seating arrangement for visitors to the public galleries. They're lost without a program.

Meantime, the Liberals have completed new seating arrangements for the cabinet in the section of the two front rows occupied by the treasury benches.

Robert Andras, minister without portfolio, makes one of the most spectacular leaps in status in recent years.

He goes from the fifth-row seat at the back of the chamber that he had in the last Parliament to the first row in the new Commons. He was first elected to Parliament only three years ago.

Others promoted to the front row are Trade Minister Pepin, Manpower Minister MacEachen, Finance Minister Benson, Energy Minister Greene, Northern Development Minister Chrétien, Revenue Minister Cote and Fisheries Minister Davis, a cabinet newcomer like Mr. Andras.

Government Works in Detached Isolation

OTTAWA (CP) — Two weeks from now the pressure will be on.

But right now, in the last cool days of summer, the government is working in almost detached isolation on the problems it will confront in Parliament this fall.

Reporters may pester the government with questions but the effect is slight.

Departmental spokesmen or ministers counsel patience: This issue still has to go before cabinet; that one is being studied by an interdepartmental committee.

When will the government decide whether to accept or reject provincial premiers' request for a new conference on medical care?

Answer: Unknown — no decision has been made yet.

When will the government decide on how to proceed with the stalled Northumberland Strait crossing?

Answer: Unknown — several departments are working "very actively" on it.

When will the government decide how to draw the new 12-mile fishing limit on the West Coast?

Answer: Unknown — the external affairs minister has a bulky report before him on the subject.

Reporters may — and do — grumble about secrecy but they aren't able to build up the kind of public pressure that a frustrated parliamentary opposition can produce.

Prime Minister Trudeau has talked of his inclination toward openness in government but he apparently balances this inclination with his clear determination to run a tidy ship.

That in turn means handling issues in an orderly way, with all the bows neatly tied before the package is offered to the public.

In Mr. Trudeau's four months in office, Parliament has met once: For five minutes on April 23 when the prime minister announced dissolution and the June 25 election.

In the two months since the election, the government has enjoyed relative peace — interrupted only by the occasional complaints of an opposition leader — to draft its program.

But starting Sept. 12, with the opening of the new parliamentary session, the pressure will be on.

Computers for Medicine Are A New Innovation

MONTREAL (CP) — Computers are being harnessed for such widely separated fields of medicine as operations to straighten spinal curvature and the care and recovery of stroke patients.

William O. Reese, an engineer, said the Texas Institute for Rehabilitation, and Research, Houston is building up body measurements and compiled mathematical formulas to feed into their computer.

These will give the surgeons guidelines on the length and location of steel rods to correct bent spines and the degree of force needed in such spine-straightening procedures.

He addressed the international congress of physical medicine here on behalf of Dr. Paul Harrington of the Texas Medical Centre, who developed the steel-rod operation to correct a spinal curvature condition called scoliosis.

The steel-rod implants have added as much as four inches to a patient's height and can relieve pressures that displace lungs and other organs.

Computers in the care and rehabilitation of stroke patients were described by Yehuda Ben-Yishay, rehabilitation psychologist at New York University. He believes they can help plan rehabilitation and aid recovery for the 2,000,000 stroke patients in the U.S.

Until now, he said, it has been a matter of "hunch" how much recovery stroke patients will experience and how long it will take them.

But using physiological and psychological data from batteries of tests given earlier stroke patients, the researchers made the computer "predict" how long they took in rehabilitation, their degree of recovery and how long it took to reach that recovery.

When they checked these "predictions" against what really happened to the stroke patients the computer proved "surprisingly" accurate, ranging up to 98 per cent correct. Formerly the best man-made predictions were about 33 per cent right.

ADVANTAGES OF GOING TO A PRIVATE BUSINESS COLLEGE

EVERY PERSON needs to have at least a basic commercial course before going on to any other profession, yet if this is taken in the Secondary School the educational background has to be diluted to make time for it. In one year or less, you can have the advantages available to you at Ontario Business College which are:

1. Encouragement to work at your own speed. You do not wait for the slow learner, or speed up for the one who learns faster than you.
2. You may choose a partial course.
3. You get individual attention.
4. You can begin now, at the first of any month.
5. You are ready for a position when YOU have finished your course, and not looking for work at a time when the market is flooded with unemployed.
6. You can write each examination in the month the work on that subject is completed, and then you may fill that time with other subjects.
7. You can re-write any examinations the next month, you do not have to lose a year.
8. You can earn all it costs you in your first two or three months of working.
9. Where else can you obtain a complete training for earning your living for the rest of your life at such a low cost? Compare, if you wish and then enroll at O.B.C.
10. You do not need previous commercial training.
11. Adult training a specialty.

Those Jones Boys Regular Entries In City Athletics

BY GEORGE CARVER

Those "Jones Boys" have written a colorful page in the sports archives of the city.

Their names, Davy and Peter, have always been prominent in the records of hockey, golf and the diamond sports.

During my tenure as sports editor I found both Peter and Davy modest and quiet-spoken. Braggadocio or self-praise was never, in my time, part of their vocabulary.

Both stood out as individual athletes. Their willingness to co-operate in team work was never questioned.

The Bay of Quinte Country Club as well as many district clubs known of their achievements on the golf links.

Easy-going sorrel-topped Peter was perhaps the better golfer of the duo in his putting-driving heyday. I understand he is still a force to be reckoned with in golfing circles down Montreal way.

Peter, I believe won the Quinte men's club title five or six times. I recall him at one time or another his finals rival was none other than brother Davy.

But the younger Jones was not to be denied. Experience, the greatest teacher of them all, has backed Davy's efforts to reach the top, and it was not long before he too was placing club championship souvenirs in his trophy room. He won the 1968 title over popular Bill Philp 7 and 6.

Back in the rollicking roisterous days of city and district and OHA senior "B" hockey, the names Jones P. and D. were regular entries on scorecards.

Both Jones boys, like big Vern Goyer, were "deceptive" skaters.

Deceptive, that is, in the fact their long-striding style often misled over-zealous puck players in their attempts at back-checking.

In those days I believe Peter was more experienced and in popular fan opinion the more effective plater of the pair.

But as in golf, experience and determination has brought Davy to the top. He was good enough for the McFarlands of 1959 where an unfortunate accident early in the world tournament in Prague deprived him of playing glory.

Today he is rated one of the best players in the OHA Eastern Senior "A" Hockey League.

A recent announcement by the Mo-Hawks newly-elected president Gerry O'Connor stated that Davy has been named player-coach of the 1968-69 edition of the club.

The announcement killed the oft-quoted rumor the club was seeking the services of a former NHL player.

The successor to Floyd Crawford should do a good job providing he is given a free hand. Player-coaching a senior "A" team these days is no sinecure. Confidence is a reciprocal item. Interference and early criticism should form no part of the picture until it is warranted.

In hockey, golf and the diamond sports, Davy has always enjoyed deserved popularity. He was well-liked in Kingston where he played senior hockey. Davy can always go back to the Limestone City according to hockey men of that town.

One thing going for him is his knowledge of the majority of the players who will come under his coaching guidance. I'm sure he has the confidence of his playing mates of the Mo-Hawks.

City and district fans like him due likely to one fact that he gives everything he has while on the ice. They're sure he'll do the same in his new capacity.

And the new coach has quite a task on his hands. Organization of the current team should have been made months ago. Jones has but a few short weeks to whip a new team into playing shape.

I'm sure Davy will do just that and if he can come up with a team that will give all it has out there on the ice and come up with a fifty-fifty record, the management need have no qualms as to John Fan's reaction at the box office.

Both Semi-Finals Tied

It's Two Out of 3 Now In Commercial Playoffs

Rick Denard, Black Diamond centrefielder, hid a bad 19 innings last night at the Alemite. The two - year league veteran went hitless in his four times at bat and made the only Black Diamond error of the game — a fourth - inning bobble that gave Belvedere Hotel its first run.

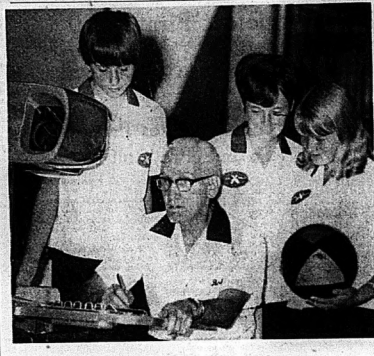
But he made up for it in the bottom of the eleventh.

With the fourth game of the Comercial Softball League tied 3-3 and the Cheesmen behind 2-1 in the series, Denard stepped to the plate with two away, collected two strikes — then slamed the game - winning, series - tying homer in left-centre—his first home run this year.

Denard's homer won Black Diamond's second straight series game and broke the extra-inning wining record of Belvedere.

The game was Belvedere's sixth extra inning contest in the last eight starts. Doug Ellis, who was credited with the loss last night, has pitched in five of the extra - inning games for the league pennant winners — and won them all with the exception of this one.

In the second game of the evening, City Hotel and Stinson played to a crowd that diminished considerably after the 2½-hour contest preceding it. The City Hotel nine, defending league champs, tied the series with Stinsons at 2-2 with a 4-1 win over the Builders.



Sonny Holoway started for the Cheesemen and was relieved by brother Don after five and one-third innings. He allowed three tallies on four hits and three walks and struck out seven. Don allowed no runs on two hits and one walk in his five and two - thirds innings and struck out nine.

Ellis was tagged with the loss going the full 11 innings and allowing four runs on nine hits and three walks and striking out 15.

Hitters for the winners were Dwight Rathwell with two singles, Denard with his home-er, Jack Francis with his double, and Don Wood, Wayne McTaggart, Sonny Holoway, and Martin Walsh with singles.

Belvedere's six hits were doubles by Lyle Wannamaker, Doug Ellis, and Paul Goodfellow; a double and a single by Dale Duvall, and a single by Cliff Hineman.

Farrells Beat Frid 9-3

Farrells took the first game of the Belleville Minor Baseball bantam division finals this week 9-3 over Frid.

M. Burley pitched for the winners, allowing three runs on three hits and striking out 15.

M. Goegan lost the game, allowing nine runs on eight hits and 12 walks and striking out 11.

S. Brooks led the winners at the plate with a triple and two singles, Burley had a double, J. Richardson had two singles, and R. Meagher and J. Bunner had singles.

C. Dershma had a homer for Frid and Goegan hit a double and a single.

Gerry Genereaux of City Hotel and Scotty Reid of Stinson pitched a one-hitter and a no-hitter respectively for the first three innings of their contest. Then Stinson collected two singles, by Reid and Paul Stinson in the fourth for the Builders' only score.

City got its first hit off Reid in the fourth, but left the losing scorelers, a performance they repeated in the fifth.

Down 2-1 in the series and 1-0 in the fourth game, City rallied in the sixth to tally three runs while holding Stinson scoreless, then added one for good measure in the seventh to make it the final 4-1 and tie the series 2-2.

Genereaux won the game going the full seven and allowing one run on three hits and one walk and striking out two. Reid struck out 12, but allowed six hits for four runs and walked two.

All the hits in the game were singles. Moe Hawkins, Jim Nichols, Doug Hull, Bob Brooks, Gerry Genereaux and Bob Wannamaker hit for City.

Rick Locke, Paul Stinson and Reid singled for Stinson.

Coach Knows the Score

Junior Bowlers Show Results of Coaching

The sports world is moving indoors for winter (with the exception of the hardy footballers and cross-country runners and their fans) and bowling, five and 10 pin, is on the move for the coming busy season.

Especially where the younger generation is concerned.

"Bowling is like any sport," said Bob Long, head coach of Brunswick Belleville Bowl's junior bowling program "if you know when you're young, the fundamentals help your game throughout your career."

And Long is active in teaching those fundamentals.

His junior program and others like them sent 20 Belleville youngsters into the finals of the annual Toronto Star's Junior Bowling Tournament 10-pin section last May.

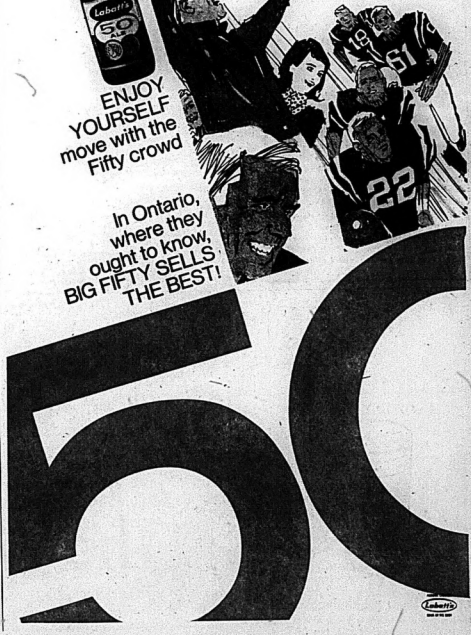
"The program is keyed to the specific needs, interests, and abilities of all the juniors from 18 down. The youngsters and the teens enjoy the fun of bowling and competing with their own age group in an organized league complete with special events and tourneys."

Long added that the supervision of experienced adult bowlers as coaches adds to the enjoyment of the program, because "the kids are learning the right way, not just by trial and error."

"Every youngster can learn to bowl well," Long continued, "and the handicap system equalizes the beginners and the experienced and gives them a broader range of competitive opportunity."

The head coach added that bowling, like golf and other sports demanding self-discipline, "gives everyone, especially youngsters, a real sense of development and learning and every success is a victory for yourself."

The junior program at the Brunswick Belleville Bowl opens Sept. 7 at 1 p.m. and will continue each week with entries in both five and 10-pin bowling.



Black Diamond Beats Ellis

Black Diamond topped Richard Ellis 13-5 in the second game of the semi - finals of the Women's Softball League Wednesday night.

Donna Barberstock pitched for the winners and Yvonne Mandl took the loss.

Verna Hill hit a homer for Black Diamond and Sharon Francis had two triples, Irene Brown had a triple, as did Mary Scerri.

Marge Reid tripled for Ellis.

Bobby Hull to Match Curves Against All-Star Pitchers

Four city officials will be the embodiment of the City of Belleville's spirit at Wednesday's Children Benefit Softball games at the Alemite Park.

Mayor J. Russell Scott, Aldermen Dick Ellis, chairman of the city's recreation committee, Ken Soden, parks board chairman, and Ald. Art Keegan will be featured in the pre-game ceremonies at the games sponsored by the Knights of Columbus Alhambra, the Belleville Shrine, and the Belleville and District Umpires Association.

The double header card for the night will feature Bobby Hull pitching with his brother Dennis on first for the Belleville and District Umpires Association team when it meets the Belleville and District Softball All-Stars in the final game of the night.

The Shriners and the Alhambra will field teams in the initial game of the doubleheader.

And it's all for the kids. The proceeds of the games will be donated to the Shriners' Crippled Children Fund and the Alhambra's fund for retarded children.

Hull will face pitchers Sandra Claus and Eveline Miracle for the Belleville and District All-Stars with Doreen Cook the backstop in the battery for the local players. Don Smith is coach of the All-Star team composed of players from softball leagues in and around Belleville.

"And," Sam Al Kelleher of the Belleville and District Umpires Association, "the fans will be treated to the umpiring of Darky Thompson, that renowned umpiring expert who always, until now, sat on the wrong side of the backstop."

Test Starts Tonight

Orioles Lose Ground But Get Chance In Series Against Tigers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Washington Senators have had their troubles moving forward, but they overcame them long enough to put Baltimore Orioles in reverse.

The Senators entered Baltimore two days ago buried in the American League basement while the Orioles had climbed within four games of leading Detroit Tigers.

Washington departed Thursday night still locked in the cellar, but left the Orioles moving backward, six games behind the Tigers after losing twice to the Senators.

Frank Howard's home run put the brakes on the Orioles Wednesday night and the kingsized slugger teamed with Ken McMullen and rookie Gary Holman jo beat Baltimore 5-4 in 11 innings Thursday night.

That loss came after Detroit rode Mickey Lolich's three-hitter to a 2-0 triumph over California Angels in the afternoon.

The Tigers enter a three-game weekend series against Baltimore starting tonight.

In other games, Chicago White Sox slipped by New York Yankees 1-0 and Minnesota Twins tripped Cleveland Indians 3-2 in night contests and Boston Red Sox crumbled Oakland Athletics 11-2 in daylight.

The Senators played their last place role for seven innings against rookie Roger Nelson, making his first start of the season. They had only four hits and trailed 3-0. Then came the start of the turnabout.

A walk and shortstop Mark Belanger's error on a potential double play sent McMullen up with two on and one out and he unloaded his 18th homer for a tie game. Howard followed with his 38th blast on the next pitch.

Baltimore got back on the beam temporarily when Brooks Robinson, who doubled in two earlier runs, singled home the tying run in the eighth. But Holman, who pinch hit unsuccessfully in the eighth and stayed in the game, followed Bernie Allen's one-out double off Eddie Watt, 4-5, with a two-out, game-winning single.

Lolich, 13-8, put the pressure on the Orioles earlier after a slow start in which he gave up three hits in the first two innings. But he retired the last 20 hitters he faced, and finished with 12 strike outs and one walk.

Willie Horton supplied the offence with his 31st home run in the fourth inning for the first of two hits given up by George Brunet, 13-13, in his seven innings. Horton drove in the second run in the eighth with an infield hit.

Luis Aparicio followed Tom McCraw's leadoff bunt single and a sacrifice in the seventh with a run-scoring hit against Steve Barber, 6-5, for Chicago's victory.

First Joel Horlen, 9-11, and then Wilbur Wood, who relieved in the ninth, protected the run with a seven-hitter.

Bob Allison's 18th homer with one out in the eighth broke a tie and gave Minnesota its triumph behind Jim Kaat's six-hit pitching. He struck out 10 as he raised his record to 11-10.

Reggie Smith led Boston's bombardment with his first grand slam homer and a run-scoring ground out. Joe Foy added two homers for three runs, making it easy for Dick Ellsworth, 12-6, who relieved injured starter Dave Morehead in the second inning.

Lou Brock Steals Four Bases As Cards Defeat Pirates 5-0

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pittsburgh Pirates had the right idea but the place for pine tar was on Lou Brock's spikes, not Bob Moose's hand.

Brock stole four bases and St. Louis Cardinals rapped the Pirates 5-0 Thursday night, smacking Moose and his somewhat sticky pitches for four runs and six hits in less than three innings.

The Cards complained that Moose had pine tar on his pitching hand and the umpires ordered him to the dugout in the middle of the third inning to clean his hand. He came back to face four batters, surrender a walk and two singles and leave again—this time for a relief pitcher.

Elsewhere in the National League Thursday, New York Mets shut out Cincinnati Reds 2-0, Atlanta Braves blanked Philadelphia Phillies 6-0 and Houston Astros rapped San Francisco Giants 6-1.

Brock, who scored twice, had a single and four walks. The only time he didn't steal was in the third inning when there were two runners on base in front of him and he had no place to go.

The four thefts gave the Cardinal speedster 41 for the season, just one back of Pittsburgh's Maury Wills, the National League leader.

Brock and Curt Flood walked in the first and scooted home on run-scoring singles by Roger Maris and Tim McCarver. Dal Maxvill and pitcher Ray Washburn single two more across in the third and Maris' single decided a wrapup run in the sixth.

Cal Koonce and Ron Taylor combined for a two-hitter against the Reds, giving the Mets their 62nd victory—one more than New York managed all of last season.

Houston posted his first start after 45 relief appearances, stymied Cincinnati until the seventh when Tighe took over. Bud Harrelson had three hits for the Mets and Cincinnati's Pete Rose went hitless, ending a 19-game batting streak.

Phil Niekro fired a two-hitter at Philadelphia and Atlanta used home runs by Felipe Alou, Hank Aaron and Deron Johnson to beat the Phillies.

Niekro didn't allow a runner past first base and won his 11th game. Alou and Aaron both homered in the first and Johnson connected in the eighth as the Braves pinned a fifth straight loss on the Phillies.

Houston pounded Juan Marichal for six runs in less than two innings and cruised past the Giants on Dave Giusti's four-hitter.

Denis Menke tagged a three-run homer in the first inning and the Astros knocked Marichal out after 1 2-3 innings—the earliest kayo of his career. It was the second straight loss for the Giant right-hander, now 23-7.

Palmer Makes Proposal To End Pro Golf War

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper are the favorites in the Thunderbird Golf Classic which starts today.

Also entered is Lee Trevino, the U.S. Open champion who shot a one-over-par 73 in Thursday's pro-amateur. "My putting needs a lot of work," he said.

Bob Murphy shot a 75 while Casper, Bob Goalby and Mason Rudolph had 68s.

A team led by Ken Venturi took the pro-am with a best-ball score of 56.

Palmer, the defending champion, and Nicklaus were busy in Washington Thursday with the feud between the Professional Golfers Association and the touring pros.

The struggle between the Professional Golfers Association and the rebelling touring pros continued, with most of the activity behind closed doors.

Arnold Palmer spent four hours in a closed-door session with the 16-man executive committee of the Professional Golfers Association in Washington Thursday. He made a proposal he declined to make public.

Asked if he would say the meeting was encouraging, Palmer said:

"It was cordial. But I would not use the word encouraging."

Palmer came before the executive committee on his own for the session in the best interests of golf," said a brief statement released jointly by Palmer and PGA president Max Elbin.

The statement also said "the executive committee is taking this (Palmer's) proposal under advisement for further consideration."

The touring pros, meanwhile, are setting up their own organization, the American Professional Golfers.

Jack Nicklaus and other members of the APG's executive board also held a closed meeting Thursday.

The touring pros broke with the PGA two weeks ago, complaining they had no say in the conduct of the tour.

Motorcycle Title Races Back Again

They're going to try again.

To hold the Ontario dirt-track motorcycle championship races on the Fairgrounds track, that is.

Rained out Aug. 16, the event was rescheduled for 8 p.m. tonight with the majority of the riders agreeing to make the return trip.

The championships will sport the same challenge as before for the riders and will offer the same individual duel as before, Duhamel vs. Sehl, for the fans.

Dave Sehl, 25-year-old expert Harley-Davidson rider who has risen amazingly high in his three years of riding, will be on hand again to challenge defending expert champion Yvon Duhamel, top international rider and a by-word in Canadian racing.

Sehl won't come alone. He'll be bringing the whole family: his brother Doug will handle the junior riding assignment and brother Jim will be on hand to take care of business in the senior class.

Young Doug has handled his big Harley 750 cc. machine in only two previous races, the junior dirt-track championships in 1967, which he won, and the muscular dystrophy benefit Vmcy July 1., at the fairgrounds, which he also won. And he's going to be up for keeping his record unbroken.

All those who attended the rained-out event have been provided with passes to this event and the Pinton-Pushers Motorcycle Club of Foxboro is hoping for the same record crowd this weekend as they had on hand for the cancelled affair.

Gabler Not In Doghouse Says Cahill

TORONTO (CP) — Head coach Leo Cahill of Toronto Argonauts is annoyed at some reaction that has followed the Argos' trade Wednesday with British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference.

The Argos sent the playing rights to Jackie Parker to the Lions for the playing rights to Bernie Faloney. A few critics assumed the trade meant Cahill had lost confidence in Wally Gabler, the Eastern Football Conference team's regular quarterback.

"How could anyone be stupid enough to believe that," Cahill said Thursday in an interview.

"They (Lions) wanted Parker and we felt that if we got Faloney in return it would be a duplication of accessibility. My purpose in calling Faloney was to make him aware that he was on our list. He told me he wasn't ready, or prepared, to play."

The Big M in Belleville Goes 3 Ways

"Three M", Morrison, Mathews and Mavety, will head the executive of the city's Junior "B" hockey club for 1968-69.

Harry Morrison of H. Morrison Realty will put the juniors on the ice with his colors this year while Jim "Snipe" Mathews will serve as president and manager of the team and "Red" Mavety will hold down the secretary - treasurer spot.

Gordon Bell and Charles Drake will serve as personnel directors of the team and Fred Smith will be trainer.

The coaching spot on the junior club is in the air, but the team's executive said they expect to name a mentor at this coming Wednesday's meeting at 8 p.m. in the Recreation Centre, Pinnacle Street.

As the league stands now, five teams will enter with the total number of games yet to be decided. Peterborough, Oshawa, Cobourg and Kingston will share the arenas with the Morrison Realty team.

"We'll probably have a camp of nearly 100 kids," said Mathews, "since anyone under 20 years old as of Dec. 1, 1968, is eligible."

"And we can use them," seconded Mavety. "We'll probably have a young team with only a few left over from last year. The team is going to be new-young and aggressive."

"I expect a better season than last year (3-5-26)" smiled Morrison, "but I'm not as much interested in the boys going undefeated as in teaching the sport."

Matthews seconded him — "That's right. We're in this to build. You can't have good seniors, or even good pros unless you have a good junior program."

"I was approached about the seniors," Morrison said. "But I think the youngsters are just as important, so I decided to support them."

Combines Oust Title Winners

The CNR Combines edged the Department of Softball League pennant winners, The Intelligencer, out of the finals for the Mel Barrage championship trophy last night 7-6 in the fifth game of the best of five semi-final series.

The Combines will now meet the Fire Department in a best of seven final playoff series.

A high - scoring first inning told the story for the Intels as the Combines collected five runs, then followed them up with two in the fifth.

The Intell rallied to collect their six tallies in the fifth and sixth and moved a man to third in the bottom of the seventh to threaten to put the game into extra innings.

But Steve Ling, on third with one away in the bottom of the seventh, got caught off base when Terry Middleston's bloomer was caught out and he couldn't get back in time to prevent the double play that ended the semi - finals.

Junior Day pitched for the winners and allowed six runs on five hits, two walks, and struck out four. The Combines had four errors.

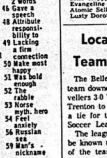
Intell pitchers John Edwards and Rod Bennett allowed seven runs on five hits and five walks and struck out three. The Intell had two bobbles.

Schwager led the winners at the plate with a double and a single, Day hit a double, and McMurter, and Conway singled.

Steve Ling and Al Lee led the Intell hitters with a double and a single each. Merv Thompson hit two singles, and Garry Wood and Bill Cooney had doubles. Edwards singled.

Harness Races Saturday To Have Double Heat

For the first time this year, harness racing fans will have two chances to bet on their favorites in the same night.



Nine district meets and 46 entries have forced the Quinte Riding and Driving Club to schedule a double heat for races three and six at the Fair grounds Saturday at 8 p.m.

"We try to avoid double heats," said track classifier Harry Burkitt. "This has been the first year we've been able to get enough entries so as not to have to run twice."

But 46 horses, just are enough for nine meets.

Local Soccer Team Wins 3-0

The Belleville Junior soccer team downed the Trenton Travellers 3-0 Wednesday night at Trenton to move into at least a tie for the Bay of Quinte Soccer League championship.

The league's top team won't be known until the remainder of the championship clash between the two teams.

The Belleville team's victory over their Trenton rivals was doubly sweet as it revenged the only defeat of the season, handed them, 2-1 by the Travellers.

At the end of the first-half, Tony Gonzales opened the games scoring with an easy left into the net.

Midway into the last half, the finest goal of Belleville's three was scored by Manuel Montes on an individual breakaway.

Belleville's defence tightened after the second goal and maintained goalkeeper Don Lonas' shutout.

Gary Swan collected the final tally.

Creed Makes No Reference to Crucifixion or to Resurrection

KINGSTON (CP) — Several commissioners to the general council of the United Church of Canada Thursday criticized a proposed new creed that has no reference to the virgin birth, crucifixion, and resurrection of Christ, nor to hell.

"What we've got here is a difference in emphasis," said Rev. Hugh A. Rose of Toronto in an interview after a session of the council which began a nine-day meeting here Tuesday.

The new creed would not replace the Apostles' or Nicene creeds, the traditional statements of Christian faith.

It was referred to the general council executive and may be included in the service book to be published this fall. There probably would be changes.

Mr. Rose, chairman-elect of the committee which recommended the creed, said he hopes its experimental use will stimulate criticism that would lead to revisions.

The creed:

Man is not alone: he lives in God's world.

We believe in God: who has created and is creating, who has come in the true Man, Jesus, to reconcile and renew, who works within us and among us by His Spirit.

We trust Him.

He calls us to be His Church: to celebrate His presence, to love and serve others, to seek justice and resist evil.

We proclaim His Kingdom.

In life, in death, in life beyond death, He is with us.

We are not alone; we believe in God.

Rev. Randolph C. Chalmers, professor of systematic theology at Pine Hill Divinity Hall, Halifax, said the creed is inadequate because it has no reference to Christ's virgin birth or to His resurrection.

He called for a redrafting that would produce a "more adequate expression of the gospel for our time."

Rev. Bruce Underhill of Kitchener, Ont., said he is "deeply disturbed" with the creed's failure to mention Christ's resurrection.

Rev. George Johnston, principal of United Theological College, Montreal, said the new statement of faith "does not appear as a specifically Christian creed." It was a defective non-Christian creed.

Rev. Joan Hunley of Stroud, Ont., said there should be a reference to the crucifixion in the creed "to bring out the meaning of the cross."

John Wilson, a lay commissioner from Halifax, said the proposed creed is "worth keeping in its present formal."

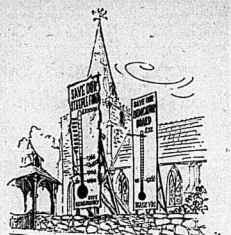
A report Thursday from the board of world mission called on the church to ask its members to pay more taxes and suffer economic inconveniences if that were necessary to give underdeveloped nations a chance at progress.

A resolution from the committee suggests that church members use their influence in industry and government "to counteract complacency and indifference in the face of human need of the poor countries."

It urges Canada to take the lead and challenge the world to give developing nations equal, and even preferential privileges, in their access to world markets.

Though They Had Power, Russians Were Pathetic

LONDON (CP) — A British computer-expert says he saw a Czech hand in bullets at the Czechoslovakia Embassy in Prague soon after the Russians invaded Czechoslovakia.



David Bryson, writing in The Spectator, says he was visiting Prague at the time, and that week's invasion and concluded that "for all the guns and all the killing the Russians were a pathetic sight."

One incident he recalled occurred Wednesday morning last week after the Russians had opened sporadic fire when an agitated, young man, presumably a Czech, appeared at the Canadian Embassy gates and pushed some bullets into the hands of someone on the other side, saying he had just shot his comrades shot in the head.

Bryson says some Russians may have considered the shooting worth pursuing but after 24 hours of seeing red stars marked with swastikas and pigs marked "U.S.S.R." and of hearing catcalls and booing, "they might well have felt like giving up."

It is just possible, says Bryson, that these young, bewildered and disillusioned Russian soldiers may bring their feeling home with them and spread the word where it can really count.

Rush Extradition Hearing Under Way

LONDON (CP) — The prosecution charged Thursday that Toronto stock promoter Myer Rush not only conspired to fleece Americans but intended to do the same to Canadians in a bucket-shop operation that offered glowing promises of non-existent diamonds and gold.

London lawyer Christopher French, appearing for the Ontario government at Rush's extradition hearing opened Thursday, said the extent of the alleged fraudulent operations Rush is charged with having been engaged in may have an important bearing on the outcome of the hearing.

French contended that, although alleged conspiracy to defraud was aimed mainly at stock buyers in the United States, much stock-promotion material was prepared in Canada, and that proceeds from sales flowed back to Toronto under a number of disguises.

The extradition hearing, likely to continue for five days, is based on charges that Rush, 44, conspired to defraud the public of $100,000,000 in stock deals and that he was involved in obtaining $20,000 from a Toronto bank under false pretences.

Housed in Brixton Prison for the last two months, Rush attempted to hold a press conference as he entered the court but he was cautioned by a Scotland Yard officer that this was not allowed.

Rush maintained that recently while he was in prison a London resident went to his Panama offices and "robbed" him of a vehicle and other possessions.

But he appeared otherwise cheerful. He said he is still carrying on business while in Brixton and that his meals are brought in from a nearby restaurant.

Milk Price Will Rise In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Milk prices in Toronto will rise two cents a quart Saturday and prices in other Ontario areas will also increase, a spokesman for Borden Co. Ltd. said Thursday.

At Sault Ste. Marie, it was announced earlier Thursday that prices would rise to 36 from 34 cents a quart, effective Tuesday.

The Borden spokesman said all major dairies are imposing the increase. The price paid per hundredweight by dairies has increased 50 cents to $6.65.

Theft Gang Is Sought

TORONTO (CP) — A gang which has stolen more than $100,000 from Toronto ladies' and men's wear stores this year, is being sought by police.

Deputy Chief Bernard Simmonds said Thursday he believes the thieves have entered the stores with a set of master keys or a new type of lock-pick that leaves no marks.

He said labels are removed from the stolen clothes before they are sold on the underworld market.

Last year more than $5,000,000 worth of apparel was stolen in southern Ontario.

Toronto Side of Beef Had Three Front Legs

TORONTO (CP) — A side of beef bought at 79 cents a pound from a Toronto discount meat store had three front legs, a preliminary hearing into attempted fraud charges was told Thursday.

Dr. Ross C. Croucher, a veterinarian with the federal department of agriculture, said that two of the legs were from an older animal, while the third leg was from a younger animal similar in quality to the hind quarter of the beef.

Two other witnesses, hired by a private investigation firm to buy meat from the store, testified that meat they bought from the store weighed less on government inspected scales than it did when weighed at the store.

Magistrate Hugh Foster committed Meat Packers Outlet Ltd. of Toronto and Marion J. Esser, 28, of Detroit, for trial on four charges each of attempted fraud. Mrs. Esser's husband, Gunter, 31, will face two charges of attempted fraud.

They elected trial by judge, but no date was set.

Observatory Plan Scrapped

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has scrapped construction of the Queen Elizabeth II Observatory in British Columbia, saying the $22,000,000 cost cannot be justified "in this period of retrenchment."

The observatory on Mount Kobau was to commemorate the Queen's 1964 visit to Canada and $4,500,000 has been spent on it, including $1,500,000 for a 17-ton, 157-inch, U.S.-built mirror.

Railroads Have Lost Battle To Airlines Declares Crump

TORONTO (CP) — Railroads have lost the battle with the airlines for Canada's long-distance passengers and cannot continue fighting, the chairman and chief executive officer of the Canadian Pacific Railway said Thursday.

N. R. Crump, whose railway transported 4,138,737 passengers last year, mostly over long distances, said Canada's geography and population patterns preclude a continued fight between land and air carriers for passengers.

"By 1980, 80 per cent of our population will live in urban areas," Mr. Crump said. "They won't need long-distance trains."

Canada's small population and tremendous land expanse negates the possibility of high-speed railway travel, he said.

Even the future of commuter service is a morphous, Mr. Crump said, because "94 per cent of intercity passenger miles are by private automobile —and that percentage is getting bigger every day."

Mr. Crump was interviewed after a speech to the Canadian National Exhibition directors' luncheon on Transportation Day.

Milwaukee to Quebec Megalopolis Predicted

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A vast megalopolis stretching from Milwaukee, Wis., to Quebec City with a population of 120,000,000 is foreseen by Sir James Easton, former British Consul-General in Detroit and now consultant for the Great Lakes Area Trade Development interests of the Detroit Edison Co.

Meeting with Windsor port authorities Wednesday, Sir James said:

"The major problem we face is to convince people of the great potential this area has."

It is almost beyond belief what importance will be attached to this area in the next three decades."

Of the growth pattern of the area he said from a present population of about 9,500,000 the figure should reach 37,500,000 by the year 2,000.

Windsor Woman Unable to Return

WINDSOR, Ont. CP - The Iron Curtain surrounding Czechoslovakia has separated Ambrose Clisar of Windsor, Ont., from his wife who is stranded in her homeland.

Mrs. Clisar, 52 was not allowed to leave Czechoslovakia after the Russian invasion because she only had a Czech passport and is not a Canadian citizen. She came to Canada two years ago to be married.

Oil Industry Expansion May Lower Hail Damage

TORONTO (CP) — Expansion of Alberta's oil and gas industry may help reduce hail damage to crops in the province, a scientist said Thursday.

Dr. Peter W. Summers of the research council of Alberta said there is evidence that since 1965 more soft or mushy hailstones have been falling in southern Alberta. Insurance figures also show a substantial reduction in hail damage, he said in a paper to the International conference on cloud physics.

Dr. Summers said a "likely cause of the decrease is the rapid expansion of the oil and gas industry in Alberta."

Much of the natural gas is "sour" and hydrogen sulphide is flared off or converted into sulphur. This means large amounts of sulphur are being emitted into the atmosphere.

"It is therefore possible that sulphate in this amount may be affecting the freezing processes in the storms. There is some recently-documented strong evidence that urban air pollution is having a very marked effect on downwind precipitation patterns and on hailstorm frequency."

Dr. Summers said the analysis was based on 8,581 reports.

Ottawa Bishop Draws Clear Distinction Between Law, Morals

OTTAWA (CP) — A Roman Catholic bishop in a publication due for release Sunday, draws a clear distinction between the church's moral teaching and the laws of a country.

The distinction is made in a preface by Most Rev. Alexander Carter, president of the Canadian Catholic Conference, for a booklet containing statements by the CCC regarding proposed changes in Canada's divorce, contraception and abortion legislation.

A copy of the preface was released in advance Thursday to the press. A spokesman for the CCC, the association of cardinals, archbishops and bishops of Canada, said 10,000 to 12,000 copies of the booklet are being printed.

Bishop Carter, who is Bishop of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., expresses the opinion that nothing in the Pope's recent encyclical on birth control is in conflict with the position of the Canadian bishops.

The encyclical reiterated traditional Roman Catholic teachings against artificial methods of contraception.

It is to be hoped, Bishop Carter says, that readers of the booklet "will come to understand the difference between what the church teaches as right or wrong and the role of the state to punish, as a crime, what is injurious to the temporal order and the welfare of citizens.

"That which the church teaches to be morally reprehensible should not necessarily be considered as indictable by the criminal code of a country."

Another point, Bishop Carter draws attention to the church's recognition "that the legislator must apply his principles to the concrete and complicated realities of social and political life to seek the common good."

"This is the ultimate responsibility which he must fulfill alone."

The booklet contains two briefs presented by the CCC to the Commons committee on health and welfare, which, in addition to contraception, also studied proposed changes in Criminal Code provisions governing divorce and abortion.

Changes in the laws on birth control and abortion are expected to be made by the next Parliament, which convenes Sept. 12.

In addition to the two briefs, the booklet contains a copy of a pastoral statement on abortion issued by the Catholic bishops of Canada last February. It described abortion and infanticide as "unspeakable crimes."

On the question of divorce, Bishop Carter writes that the Canadian government has a solemn duty to strengthen family life.

"The churches are concerned, and rightly concerned, that the legislative interest be widened far beyond its negative conditions for separating married couples."

Split Develops in Union of Students

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — One student council pulled out of the Canadian Union of Students Thursday and at least five others threaten to withdraw today unless immediate changes are made in the organization.

The University of Ottawa council announced its defection after a wrangle over a "commitment to the union statement" that member universities are required to sign before the end of a second full day of debate.

Conrad Baquette, the Ottawa council's co-ordinator, told 200 students attending CUS's annual congress:

"We must, before any national or international action, deal with the problems of our own campus. The portion of our budget that goes to CUS will be used to further the creation of a university community in Ottawa."

After Mr. Baquette's statement, a representative of the only French-speaking university left in CUS said his college will pull out today unless it receives "special status."

Jean-Eudes Gendron of the University of Moncton said in an interview that he has a mandate from his student council to withdraw the 1,900-member university.

He said Moncton would like recognition from CUS that French-speaking universities exist and that several Maritime universities have sizable French-speaking populations.

David Zarshell, student president of the University of British Columbia, said his university would also withdraw if the union does not restructure itself to bring control down from the national secretariat to the local campus.

"If it does that, then we can have a reassessment of the union's ideology, structure and finances and perhaps return to the union."

The Southern Alberta Institute of Technology, Dalhousie University in Halifax and delegates from the University of Calgary said they agreed with Mr. Zirnhelt and would withdraw unless changes were made.

The issue should be settled tonight, Peter Warrian, CUS president-elect, said. By then universities are required by the CUS constitution to file a declaration committing them to the principles of the union.

But Ed Aunger, vice-president of the University of Waterloo student council, said universities should not be expected to commit themselves to CUS polling the week-long meeting.

The committal clause was passed at last year's conference at the University of Western Ontario.

Delegates from Carleton University in Ottawa announced Thursday they want the committal clause deferred until Sunday, but Mr. Warrian said that unless the finance commission knows how many universities will stick with CUS it will be impossible to draw up a budget.

Other dissenting schools complained that they cannot commit themselves to remain in the union next winter until their students have had a chance to debate the congress policies.

But the meeting broke up into table-thumping applause when Martin Loney, president of the student council at Simon Fraser University, accused the dissenters of blackmail.

"We came here to discuss policies and it's not democratic to take part in discussions until your view is knocked down and then get out of the organization.

"We can appreciate any university which says it is unable to pay the fees, and makes an arrangement. But we cannot agree with anybody who says that unless his view prevails he'll leave. That's blackmail.

"You should have already involved your students in debate and activity before you come here. If you have no local practice, you'll never have national

Foes of French-Only Schools Planning Appeal to Trudeau

MONTREAL (CP) — A unanimous vote by parents angry over a linguistic edict could keep about 1,700 children out of school when classes start next week in suburban St. Leonard.

The vote by 700 adults is another step in their fight to eliminate the French-only rule for children of "non-Anglo-Saxon" immigrants, starting with Grade 1 in September.

In addition, there is a threat by some French-language high school students to hold a sit-in Sept. 4 at the suburb's only high school because the school has been set aside for English-language classes.

President Robert Beale of the Association of Parents of St. Leonard—formed to fight the French-only classes—says the Union Nationale government is to blame for strife in St. Leonard.

He accused Premier Daniel Johnson's government of being authoritarian and said Quebec is being ruled indirectly by France.

And Raymond Lemieux, president of the Mouvement pour l'integration scolaire which supports French-only classes, said the French-language students who attended the high school last year probably will hold the sit-in if the regional school board does not reverse its decision to award the school to English-speaking students.

Mr. Lemieux said his group is not against allowing English-speaking persons their educational rights, "but they do not have the right to have their own school."

Andre St. Onge, chairman of the regional board which has jurisdiction over the suburbs, says the all-English high school is basically an economic move. The board, pending construction of new facilities, could save $1,000,000.

The board's decision calls for 800 English-speaking students to attend the high school—579 of them from St. Leonard—and for 800 French-speaking students to be transferred to another high school in an adjacent suburb.

Both factions in the French-only dispute plan further action through delegations. The parents' association plans a trip to Ottawa for a meeting with Prime Minister Trudeau and the Mouvement pour l'integration scolaire and separatist Rassemblement pour l'independance nationale will travel to Quebec City.

St. Leonard has a population of about 35,000—about half of French origin—and more than 5,000 students.

Crucifixion Was for Gain

LONDON (AP) — The crucifixion of an interior decorator, nailed half-naked to a cross on a lonely London heath, was no religious ritual—it was a plot to make money, a court was told Thursday.

And the interior decorator, Joseph de Havilland, 36, helped and encouraged the three men who spiked him to his cross and tied it to a tree, prosecutor Peter Spencer claimed.

The crucifiers and the victim wanted to sell photographs of the ceremony and "divide the spoils," said the prosecution.

De Havilland was found hanging from the cross on Hampstead Heath July 28 by police, who lowered him from the tree, pried the six-inch nails from the cross and took him to hospital. Police said the decorator was in a semi-trance and his hands, despite the iron spikes driven through them, were not bleeding.

Accused of causing "grievous bodily harm" to the man on the cross were Desmond Pollydore and David Conklin, both jobless, and another interior decorator, Erich Leach.

The case was adjourned until Sept. 6. The three accused were held in prison without bail.

OFF THE RECORD — BY ED REED

Known as Senator's Senator, Maine's Muskie Has Come Far

CHICAGO (AP) — In nine years as Democratic senator from tiny Maine, long a Republican party stronghold, Edmund Sixtus Muskie has come a long way.

From Lyndon Johnson's doghouse, the lanky senator has emerged as a masterful legislative tactician—and presidential candidate Hubert Humphrey's choice as vice-presidential mate on the Democratic slate for the Nov. 5 U.S. general election.

Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield calls Muskie, 54, "my senator's senator, a man who eschews publicity, works hard, and has gained a well-deserved reputation among his colleagues for integrity, fair dealing and effectiveness."

When Muskie was picked by President Johnson to shepherd Senate passage of air- and water-pollution legislation and the hotly-disputed model cities program, a former White House aide noted:

"The president regards him as a real powerhouse. He's one of the few liberals who's a match for the Southern legislative craftsmen."

Adds a cabinet officer: "If you have a domestic bill that's really tough and you need advice on how to get it through, Ed Muskie's the best guy up there."

The Muskie method is solid homework in legislative detail, a diplomacy that avoids personal attacks on legislative opponents, and an understated eloquence.

Paradoxically, Muskie's Senate prominence is due, in part, to an early run-in with the then majority leader, Lyndon Johnson, in 1959. Johnson asked the six-foot-four freshman senator to vote with him in repealing the perennial move by liberal senators to limit the power of filibuster. Muskie refused.

Johnson then assigned Muskie his fourth, fifth and sixth committee choices: Banking and currency, public works, government operations. Muskie was denied a coveted spot on the foreign relations committee.

Muskie generally avoided national limelight for years, but shifted course last year by accepting chairmanship of the Democratic senatorial campaign committee. The committee helps finance and chart the campaigns of Democratic senatorial candidates.

Further, Muskie is a member of the Democratic Senate leadership and has been widely mentioned as possible successor to Mansfield as majority leader.

Muskie began building national contacts after beoming in 1954 the first Polish-American U.S. governor.

Muskie's election as governor ended 20 years of Republican rule in the Maine statehouse. He was re-elected in 1956, and then made his successful U.S. Senate bid in 1958.

Muskie is Maine-born, the son of Stephen Marciszewski, a tailor who emigrated from Poland. The name was later anglicized.

He was graduated Phi Beta Kappa from Bates College and has a law degree from Cornell.

After a Second World War navy stint, Muskie settled in Waterville, and was elected to his first of three terms in the Maine legislature in 1946.

Muskie married the former Jane Gray of Waterville in 1948 and they have five children ranging in age from 7 to 19.

He took up golf two years ago, and, confided a congressional colleague, "manages to shoot in the 90s by hitting them straight but not far."

Sunday School Lesson

Doing Something About It

By Clarence W. Cranford

Some young people were discussing a serious social problem. Finally, one of them amused the group by saying, "If things are as bad as that, why doesn't God do something about it?"

How does God do something about it?" they asked. History gives the answer. When He wanted the children of Israel led from slavery in Egypt, He sent a man named Moses to do something about it. And when He wanted the walls of Jerusalem rebuilt in Nehemiah, he called to a Jew in far-off Babylon to do something about it.

The story of Nehemiah's leadership in the rebuilding of Jerusalem's walls is one of the greatest epics of faith and determination in all literature. Nehemiah was cup-bearer to the king of Babylon, but his mind was miles away. The destroyed city of Jerusalem lay so heavily on his mind, he could not laugh and enjoy life as the king thought he should.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for September 1: "Nehemiah Rebuilds The Wall," Nehemiah 1 through 6.

When the king asked for an explanation of his sadness, Nehemiah told how the thought of the destroyed city of Jerusalem preyed on his mind constantly, and he asked for permission to go and supervise the rebuilding of the ruined city.

The king gave his permission, but Nehemiah's problems were just beginning. For one thing, the political enemies of Judah were not about to see the city rebuilt. (Nehemiah 2: 10) They derided the whole idea. They refused to believe Nehemiah could succeed. But they underestimated Nehemiah's ability and the determination and the willingness of the people to work. (Nehemiah 4:6)

Nehemiah got the jump on his enemies by surveying the ruined walls at night so people would not see what he was doing. He proved his leadership by rallying the people behind his plan to rebuild. Responsibility for rebuilding the gates and sections of the wall was carefully allocated. What the enemies of Judah said couldn't happen, did happen, and Jerusalem found itself again behind the protective shield of a stone wall.

Two things show something of Nehemiah's astuteness as a leader. When some of the political enemies asked Nehemiah to come and talk things over with them so they could lay their hands on him, Nehemiah reused their trick, and he sent them a classic answer, "I am doing a great work and I cannot come down." (Nehemiah 6:3 RSV) There was no false modesty with Nehemiah. He knew he was engaged in important business, and no political wrangling was going to deter his efforts.

Later, when the wall was completed, Nehemiah set each guard to guard the section of the wall nearest his own house. (Nehemiah 7:3) If danger came each guard would be fighting not merely to protect the city, but his own dear ones by family. To duty was added the motivation of family loyalty. This would make each guard doubly alert and brave in carrying out his duties.

But not all the enemies were outside the wall. Even in the midst of such magnificent rebuilding, there were nobles who did not work themselves and were not above exploiting the poor. Some social rebuilding had to be done as well, and Nehemiah did not hesitate to get on with the task. He shamed the nobles into cooperation. (5:6-9) He set up a credit union where people could borrow money without having to pay exhorbitant interest rates. (Nehemiah 5: 6-10).

He turned to Ezra to instruct the people in the law. (Nehemiah 8:3) He supported Ezra in his reforms. And when the great push to rebuild the wall was over, and people began to relax and to neglect their religious duties, Nehemiah thundered, "Why is the house of God forsaken?" (Nehemiah 13:11 RSV)

He took steps to stop the desecration of the Sabbath. And as life behind the protection of the walls became more normal and as the people became secure enough to go out to plant new vineyards and grow more grain, he joined the priests and scribes in reminding the people not to forget those less fortunate than themselves (Nehemiah 8:10)

Without the willingness of the people, Nehemiah would have been helpless. He succeeded because "the people had a mind to work."

Strictly Personal

Education Is Way To Reduce Mishaps

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

With depressing regularity, my home city engages in a "traffic drive" to crack down on motorists who violate the law.

For a few weeks, tickets are promiscuously handed out offenders are strictly fined—and then the program collapses into apathy, traffic again becomes as heedless and tangled as before, and motorists display the same impunity toward lights, signs and regulations.

By this time, you would think that police officials might know better. But either they do not know or do not care. All they seem to care about is the "record" — that is, displaying the large number of tickets they have written out during the crackdown period.

As a nation, the U.S. is obsessed with size and volume and number. We naively believe that a senator's success twice the number of convictions as his predecessor is twice as good — when he may merely be twice as over-zealous or twice as unjust.

We believe, or like to believe, that writing out copious numbers of traffic tickets will decrease violations — when all the evidence points against it. The motorist has a short memory and a full pocket; he spends more on his car than on his food in the U.S.

Public education is the only way to prevent disease; and public education is the only way to cut down on traffic accidents and fatalities, which are once more ominously on the rise.

And our obsession with numbers is equaled by our obsession with money. We blindly subscribe to the notion that fining a motorist will reform his traffic conduct; but, to many people, a fine is less than a fleabite.

Instead of urging traffic cops to record a meaningless "quota" of tickets issued, police officials need to concentrate on such matters as planner markings, more realistic speed limits, uniform regulations from area to area, and a system of warnings which educates rather than merely penalizes, the motorist.

I remember reading, some years ago, that motorcycle police in Yugoslavia would not ticket or arrest flagrant speeders on the highways. Instead, they were authorized to curb the offending car and deflate all four tires. The annoyance and lost time made a deeper imprint on the speeder than any monetary punishment might.

For every one motorist who is viciously negligent, a hundred are ignorant of basic traffic laws. Our traffic problems must develop driving skills, inculcate a sense of responsibility, and simplify the chaotic vehicular pattern in most communities if our highway death rate is going to be permanently reduced.

Writing out tickets is the easy way, the lazy way — and the futile way. It may make the police commissioner look good for a few weeks, but it only delays the enactment and enforcement of a sensible traffic system, conducted by experts who are not relatives of an alderman.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For August 31

Your birthday today: For you the coming year is full of surprises including releases from long-standing burdens. On the other hand there seems no way to delegate responsibilities, either. Find less complicated schedules. Today's natives usually have mathematical abilities, and many have been famous leaders in society.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Beginning journeys is favored today; the earlier the hour the better. See that nothing is left behind. Romantic interests come alive (along with other surprises).

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Suddenly the situation turns around . . . and it's very likely to satisfy your needs.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Take the most convenient course today. Enjoy what is at hand only. There should be enough people in good humor to make everything go well.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): If you're young and irreverent, your sense of the ridiculous may run out today. More mature people expand this into playing gracious host. It's a great day for intimate entertaining.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Leave the cares of the job aside for the moment and enjoy your leisure. Find out what your loved ones would like to do.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Today you can make a great deal by sharing ideas with people you seldom see. Have a party, invite your friends.

Willowdale Boy, Age 7, Is Smothered in Pit at Sandbanks

By DAVID LEES
Staff Reporter

PICTON (staff) — A seven-year-old Willowdale boy smothered yesterday beneath the sands of the dunes near the Sandbanks Provincial Park, about 12 miles from here.

The boy, Neil Robert Crowdery, was buried by a collapsed wall of sand triggered as he and a friend slid down the banks of the Triad Trackways Ltd. sand pit, formerly the Le Houp sand pit.

The sand along portions of the pit reached close to 40 feet high and an overhanging ledge extends around most of the surface rim.

The lad was vacationing in the area. His mother, Mrs. Mary Crowdery was at the scene when Ontario Provincial Police arrived around 2.30 p.m.

Dr. Lionel Dockriff was notified. Resuscitators from the Department of Lands and Forests in Picton and the Camp Picton Fire Department were called.

Mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration, cardiac massage and mechanical resuscitation were attempted.

Life-saving efforts were continued for two hours until death was pronounced by coroner Dr. C. R. Richmond.

Danger signs around the pit warn of the risk of collapsing sand. Almost all of the perimeter of the pit has been fenced off for a number of years.

Winter Works Killed In Economy Program

PM Promises 'Drastic' Cuts

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has promised "drastic" cuts in many areas of public expenditure, coupled with a drive to force cabinet ministers to come up with more productive programs.

The prime minister made the promise at a news conference Friday as he announced cancellation of the winter works program, which has cost Ottawa some $30,000,000 a year for the last decade.

"We will be cutting various important projects, new or ancient," he said.

On Friday Mr. Trudeau spoke of a need for the "greatest possible restraint" in spending by all levels of government, and declared that the planned federal cuts were no "sham."

Difficult decisions had to be made about which programs and services could be continued, expanded, reduced or eliminated, he said.

The winter works program, begun by the Conservative government of John Diefenbaker, paid half the payroll cost of most capital expenditures undertaken by municipalities in winter.

Opposition Leader Robert L. Stanfield provided the harshest comment in saying the cabinet decision was "unjust and unjustified."

However former Conservative labor minister Michael Starr, who launched the program, was more philosophical.

"It was a good program and it served its purpose," Mr. Starr said. "But if the government in its wisdom sees there is no further need for it, that is their decision."

The decision evidently was an unalloyed federal one.

The construction association complained that the government hadn't consulted an advisory winter construction committee about the cancellation.

Mr. Trudeau said the government's planned regional development program will aim to strengthen the whole economic base and increase employment opportunities in a more fundamental way than that of winter works.

More than 300,000 adults would be trained in 1968-69 under an expanded manpower training program, compared with 180,000 in 1964-65.

He said the amount of useful and constructive work done under the winter works program has been steadily decreasing. It had been increasingly difficult to control a tendency for the program to involve "make-work" activities.

The cancellation was only one of a series of announcements made by the prime minister in the wake of intensive cabinet work in recent weeks.

He named 16 parliamentary secretaries to cabinet ministers and said these posts will be rotated more frequently to put more Liberal MPs to work. He indicated their role will be enhanced in the new Parliament opening Oct. 23.

The appointment was also announced of a five-man committee to study and report by next March 1 on ways of improving government information services.

"Another non - secretary's wife wishes to speak with you, sir!"

Bank Rate Cut Again

OTTAWA (CP) — Governor Louis Rasminsky of the Bank of Canada announced Friday night a cut in the bank rate to six per cent from 6½ per cent, effective Sept. 3.

His brief announcement said the cut was "in line with recent developments in Canada and abroad."

Praise Mingles With Protests

OTTAWA (CP) — There were gurgles of dismay as the federal winter works program went down the drain Friday.

But cancellation of the 10-year-old program appears to have been accepted by some hard-pressed municipalities as an aid in holding the tax line.

"The prime minister's move is in keeping with the pressure on all of us to cut down spending," William Allen, Metropolitan Toronto chairman, said.

Under the program, Ottawa had subsidized municipal construction projects carried out during the winter in an effort to offset seasonal unemployment.

In one comment, former mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa said the benefit to labor was "indiscriminate" and the administrative cost high.

Miss Whitton, a fiery Conservative, congratulated Prime Minister Trudeau for wisdom and courage in chopping the $30,000,000-a-year program.

The Canadian Construction Association, noting publicity about abuses of the program, said the government might have chosen to be more selective in its grants rather than ending the program outright.

It said that if the manpower mobility program is to take the place of winter works, it should be stepped up to help the construction industry.

Russia Tightens Grip On Prague Regime

PRAGUE (CP) — Liberals who controlled information, education and the secret police were reported on their way out today in a shuffle to make Czechoslovakia's Communist government more acceptable to Moscow.

Associated Press correspondent Carl Hartman reported that Soviet security men had moved behind the scenes to tighten the Russian grip on the country occupied 10 days ago by 350,000 Soviet bloc troops.

Reuters correspondent Lionel Walsh said the Czechoslovak central committee scheduled a meeting today to elect a new 11-man presidium that would include pro-Soviet hard-liners.

Hartman wrote that the Russians were reported putting their own experts in all ministries and into the Czechoslovak Communist party's central committee building.

The main figure reported on the way out in Premier Oldrich Cernik's government shuffle was Interior Minister Josef Pavel. Under him, the secret police had stayed in the background since Communist party chief Alexander Dubcek began in January leading the nation away from 20 years of Stalinist rule.

There were reports, but no official confirmation, that Pavel already had resigned.

Liquidate Resistance Pravda Asks

MOSCOW (CP) — The Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda today called for the "liquidation" of resistance groups in Czechoslovakia, which are said to have more than 40,000 members.

Pravda complained that Czechoslovak resistance has spread to the countryside and cited examples of sabotage and Soviet soldiers being attacked.

"Liquidation" in Russia does not necessarily mean killing.

Pravda correspondent S. Borzenko charged that members of the alleged bands "not Soviet soldiers and were touring the countryside on motorcycles urging peasants to refuse food to Russian troops.

Russians Approach Romania

BUCHAREST (AP) — Western diplomats and Romanian travellers reported a growing number of Soviet and Bulgarian troops near Romania's borders Friday, rousing fears the Soviet Union might be planning another invasion of a Warsaw pact ally.

In San Antonio, Tex., President Johnson said in a speech there were rumors that the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia might be repeated elsewhere in Eastern Europe and a White House aide said such reports had created anxiety.

"We don't know what to make of it," said one Western diplomat. "It might be the real thing or it might be just another move in a war of nerves."

A group of Romanians returning from a visit to the Ukraine, said they had seen Soviet troops headed toward Romania.

Another Quebec Resident Gets Heart Transplant

MONTREAL (CP) — Elie Zaor, 58, a native of Turkey and resident of Sherbrooke, Que., received a new heart Friday night that "took over in a beautiful fashion" at the Montreal Heart Institute.

Mr. Zaor, widowed father of five, got the heart from Aims Labuthe, 20, a resident from Sorel, Que., who died of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Anyone for Sightseeing?

This contraption is no midway thrill ride, but Belleville public utility linemen still get to see the sights. Its called a "twin" bucket truck and is intended for working on live power lines.

Bucket Truck Work-and-Life Saver

New labor saving gadgets are coming off the production lines every day, but as far as hydro linemen are concerned the bucket truck is the ultimate in convenience.

Originally designed to allow "live" line work, the hydraulically controlled bucket trucks have a multitude of other uses — including tree trimming.

After occasional use of Ontario Hydro bucket trucks, the Belleville Public Utilities Commission bought its own last spring and has found that the new equipment more than pays off in reduced labor costs.

Through its use, linemen could actually work without gloves on live lines.

Other uses include quick hoisting of men for work on poles and convenience in tree trimming around hydro wires.

The new Belleville truck purchased in May at a cost of approximately $28,000 hoists men for working at heights of up to 42 feet, and can be manoeuvred with controls right inside the buckets.

Gerald Wishart takes an opportunity to watch the workings of one of the new pieces of machinery at Mead Johnson. The device electronically counts capsules and places them in bottles.

Free Enterprise Vital: Wishart

"I think that free enterprise has built this country. There's all sorts of opportunity built on free enterprise and education," says Gerald A. Wishart, vice-president of manufacturing for Mead Johnson in Belleville.

"We have one of the finest educational systems in the world and this, combined with free enterprise and natural resources, makes the future unlimited," he says, "as long as we're willing to work at it."

Mr. Wishart is an experienced man in the fields of free enterprise and education.

Born in Montreal, he was educated at McGill University from which he graduated in 1943 with a bachelor of engineering degree.

He spent three years in the airforce in Transport Command and managed to serve overseas just after the war, filling the gap for commercial flying in England.

He returned to Canada and it was then, in 1946, that his corporation career began.

He joined the Agricultural Chemicals Division of Canadian Industries Limited. He left five years later as production supervisor.

He was production manager for Milnor products for four years before joining Mead Johnson in Belleville in 1955 as works manager.

A year later he was made vice-president of manufacturing, the position he now holds.

Mr. Wishart has been involved with Belleville organizations and clubs since his coming to this area.

He is a member of the Belleville Kiwanis Club which he joined in 1955. He served as president in 1959 and in 1963 was Lt. Gov. of this division.

The Chamber of Commerce became one of his main interests in Belleville. He was president in 1961 and this year is chairman of the Educational Committee of the chamber.

"The Chamber of Commerce is something I find rather dear to my heart for it represents free enterprise in which I'm a firm believer," he says.

Education is his other love. Mr. Wishart served on the Bay of Quinte District High School Board for six years, from 1960 through 1965. He was chairman in 1964.

He was actively involved in United Community Services and is its appointee to the Belleville Financial Appeals Review Board and is chairman of that board this year.

In the business end of things, Mr. Wishart is active in the production section of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association of Canada. He was chairman of the local section in 1961.

He is married with a wife, Sheila, a daughter, Marian, 14, and a son, Scott, eight.

Lady Carrier Retires

Mrs. Hattie Williamson, 68, an intelligencer paper-carrier for over four years, is hanging up her carrier-bag for the last time tomorrow.

Carrier for the R.R. 1, Carrying Place west section, Mrs Williamson is a top employee and an institution along her route.

Throughout her days as a carrier Mrs. Williamson has met with raves of approval from her customers who marvel at the woman who travels 12 miles a week along her route.

Her route customers number 45 and it takes her about an hour to deliver papers to all of them. Mrs. Williamson is enthusiastic about her chore.

As a matter of fact she has only one complaint. "It gets pretty cold in winter."

But, tomorrow Rednersville will see the last delivery by Mrs. Williamson after four years. The route which has been in her family for 14 years will become someone else's project.

She will reside in Belleville after her retirement.

There is one main memory about her route that she will carry with her from Rednersville and that is the friendliness she has met during her delivery career.

She says, I'd like to thank all of them for treating me so well, and she means it.

Yesterday was preparation day at Stirling Fair and the big wheel was up to overlook the whole proceedings. The fair got off the ground today around 11 o'clock with the western horseshow.

Correction

In a report published in yesterday's newspaper the comments of Mrs. Margaret Orr were altered in meaning by the omission of the last paragraph.

The last part of Mrs. Orr's comments should have read in full:

"The planning director has been told in meetings that his time might have been better spent on the official land use plan than on preparing reports," she added.

"This transportation study is an important part of the official plan, and should be dealt with quickly by the board so that we can get on with the other nine elements."

Accident Damage Totals $500

TWEED — A Springbrook man is disappointed with his view from the bridge early this morning.

David O'Dea, 18, was the driver of a car which was in collision with a bridge at Bogart early this morning at 2.30.

His vehicle struck both sides of the bridge and $500 in damages resulted to his car. Damage to the bridge is yet unestimated but is expected to be extensive.

There were no injuries in the mishap. Mr. O'Dea has been charged with careless driving.

A two-car accident yesterday at 7.45 p.m. resulted in a total of $200 damages to the two vehicles.

The accident occurred two miles east of Ivanhoe when a car driven by Brenda Robertson, 23, of Toronto and a automobile driven by Robert James Sararas, 27, of Thomasburg came into collision.

Damage to the Robertson vehicle was estimated at $200 and to the Sararas car at $300. There were no personal injuries.

Stirling Fair Under Way Today

After the cooking comes the eating so today Stirling Fair officials will be able to see the fruits of their labors.

After working yesterday to set up the fair the gates open this morning at 7:30 a.m. to the public.

Also held yesterday was some of the judging but most of it will be on today's schedule.

First on today's program is the western horse show beginning at 11 a.m. along with the cheese judging.

At noon the cattle judging. Judging of heavy and light horses begins.

A couple of highlights of the one day fair will be the western games and the dance which will be held tonight after the judging is over and the exhibits have been removed.

A roadster race will also be held sometime during the course of the day.

George Sutherland is president of this year's fair and R. E. Short is the secretary.

Mr. Short said yesterday that with the weather forecast so good for Saturday officials were expecting a record crowd.

Members of striking Local 3599 at Central Bridge in Trenton, group together as they change shifts during pickets. The local is seeking wage parity with Toronto Ironworkers.

No Holiday for Trenton Strikers

TRENTON — The Labor Day weekend and the holidays that go with it will not have the same meaning for 100 strikers at Central Bridge Plant here.

Traditionally steelworkers enjoy time off from Friday afternoon until Tuesday morning, but this year it means picket duty for the men.

Strikers are picketing in six shifts 24 hours per day and, according to the union's local president, Jim Thompson, they will be maintaining picket lines throughout the holiday weekend.

The workers drew full pay from the company yesterday but have wages for another 15 hours still coming to them.

The union has its own strike fund as well as an active account in the bank.

If it is necessary the union expects financial assistance from the International United Steelworkers of America.

The union is demanding parity wages with Toronto Iron Works, the parent company of Central Bridge.

The company and union officials have agreed on benefits but are still at loggerheads concerning wages.

There will be no meetings between the company and union officials until after the holiday.

Meanwhile the strikers have received a number of small cash donations and gifts of soft drinks from people sympathetic to the strike.

Prince Edward Billboard Has Been Erected

PICTON — Work is finally about to begin on the much - discussed and long - planned billboard promoting the attractions of Prince Edward County.

The sign is to be erected at the eastern approaches to the county along Macdonald - Cartier Freeway. It will be 80 by 40 feet.

Reeve Robert Boyce, county promotion committee chairman, said the project had been delayed by the lack of anyone to do the work. Arrangements have now been made and all problems involving land used for the sign have been settled.

Reeve Boyce said the sign should be erected by mid-October.

IN MEMORIAM

BRADLEY — In loving memory of our dear granddaughter, Lenore, who passed away August 31st, 1963.

She has gone to be an angel,
Safe in our Father's care,
And her dear little feet now patter elsewhere.

The heartbreak streets up there,
Lovingly remembered by Mother and grandfather Bradley.

BRADLEY — In loving memory of a dear daughter Lenore who passed away Aug. 31, 1963.

We are sad within our memory
Of the day you went away,
For the one we loved so dearly
Has forever been taken away,
A million times we've missed you,
No eye may see us weep,
But many silent tears are shed,
When others sleep.
Lovingly remembered by Mom and Dad, Jack and Ruth, Darrell, brothers Larry, Lindsay and Leslie.

CLARK — In ever loving memory of our dear husband and father who left us August 31st, 1961.

Always so good, unselfish and kind,
There are no words to express what we find,
Honest and upright in all her ways,
Loyal and true to the end of her days.
—Ever remembered by grandson Owen.

CLARK — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandmother, Mrs. Lillian Smith, who passed away August 31st, 1963.

Though her smile is gone forever,
And her hand we cannot touch,
Still we have so many memories,
Of the one we love so much.
Memories we will always treasure,
With which we'll never part,
God has her in His keeping,
We have her in our hearts.
—Ever remembered by daughter Lenna and grandson Earl.

QUINTE SECONDARY SCHOOL students put wings on the heels of district track and field enthusiasts with the construction of a 440 track, the best in the district, at their school. Making a trial run, after presenting their cheque for over half the cost yesterday, are student leaders Terry Wellesley, Janice Thorburn and Henry Kafka, while principal John Hayman, left, and school board chairman James Clarke, right, hold the tape to mark the finish line of the student fund drive.

Teenagers Raise $6,000 for New Track

A $6,000 cheque changed hands Friday, symbolizing the climax of one of the largest student endeavors in the city.

The cheque was Quinte Secondary School students' contribution to the building of a track at the school, and the money represented more than half the total cost.

Bay of Quinte District High School Board chairman James Clarke accepted the cheque from Quinte's student parliament prime minister Henry Kafka. Looking on were the presidents of the boys' and girls' athlethic associations, Janice Thorburn and Terry Wellesley, and an obviously elated principal, John Hayman.

"I'm very, very, proud of our students," he said. "They wanted a track and they went after it themselves. Furthermore, it will be an asset to the whole district, for other schools and organizations besides Quinte will make use of it."

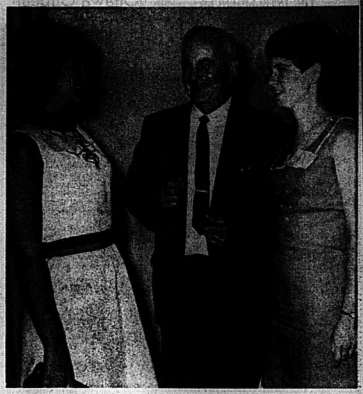
"We're going after the 1996 Olympics to celebrate," quipped Mr. Clarke.

Quinte students have something to celebrate. They were promised a track when the school was built, but the money was not available.

Two years ago, when castleg about for a centennial project idea, someone suggested the students build a quarter-mile track themselves.

For two years they held inter-class fund-raising competitions, presented two variety reviews, and staged the district's first walkathon to collect money for the project.

The student parliament and school clubs made donations.



Last spring, when the students had about half the required funds in the kitty, the school board agreed to contribute the remainder of the cost of the track.

Total cost of the project was about $11,800, of which the students gave $6,000 and the board $5,800.

Football goal posts were moved inside the track, and three pits for field events were located at the top of a bank on one side of the field. The steep bank between the school grounds and the track provides a natural bleacher for spectators.

"We have the best track in the city, thanks to our students," Mr. Hayman said. "Bay of Quinte track championships can be held here, as well as all types of community track meets."

All physical education classes at the school will use the track, and other schools are expected to use Quinte's facilities for training their track teams.

STUDENTS in Bay of Quinte District High Schools will gain an international outlook from teachers on staff this year. New to district schools are Johannes Muchlhart from Germany, Mrs. Muchlhart from Argentina and Don Grant from Barbadoes, who got acquainted at a dinner given by the school board Friday.

Teachers' Orientation Program

Orientation day for 146 teachers new to the Bay of Quinte school system was held Friday in the city.

About 42 public school teachers newly hired for city schools attended sessions at Sir Mackenzie Bowell school and were entertained at a noon dinner at Hotel Quinte.

Present to welcome them were Mayor Russell Scott, school board members and officials.

Bay of Quinte District High School Board welcomed about 104 new teachers with a dinner at Trent Motel.

On hand for the event were school board members and officials, and G. F. Bradley of the Chamber of Commerce, with maps and literature to acquaint the teachers with the Quinte district.

A Word From the Wise

John Cousins, Belleville Public School Board official shares a joke with two teachers new to the local school system during orientation day sessions Friday. Miss Patricia Shepherd, left, will teach at Prince of Wales school and Miss Heather Ogilvie will be at Sir Winston Churchill.

Girls Return to Sunny South

A trio of sunny-smiling girls from balmy Bermuda have one major sense of loss leaving Belleville:

They'll miss — wait for it — Canadian winter!

Writing their final exams after 12-months' study at Ontario Business College this morning were 19-year-olds Carol Butterfield and Carol Daniels and Roydelle Smith, 20.

The three little maids from business school are scheduled to fly back to their island in the sun this weekend, where they will begin to practically apply their OBC-imparted knowledge.

All three girls agree they'll miss the fun they had with the people they met during their year in Belleville.

"And we all love the winter — especially the snow," volunteers Roydelle.

While Canadians may consider their winters a national natural disaster, the three girls took to it joyously.

So much so, their hope is for an early return to spend holidays here.

They have at least one common reason for doing so.

In Bermuda where it never snows, there is no ice.

And the two Carols and Roydelle learned one more thing besides business proficiency here: How to ice skate.

The Big Spenders

When Parliament reconvenes next month one of the first financial items that should be questioned is the $489,019 — more than a fifth of its total budget — paid by the Company of Young Canadians for "consulting and professional fees."

The amount appears without explanation. In the CYC's annual report, which also shows that the company ended the year with a deficit of $94,345. The company's accountants reportedly found the organization's bookkeeping in a tangle, with receipts and records missing, and the financial administration generally was poor.

Why this white elephant of an agency is permitted to continue, is a question that should be given top priority in Parliament next month. Ever since it was sponsored by the Pearson government its image — at no time very inspiring — has deteriorated. Many of its members showed themselves more at home with the radical student left element of society than with any desire to indulge in social betterment.

As it is, the CYC is still in being. Yet even with a staff reduced from 70 to about 45, a sum of $500,000 has been budgeted in the current year for staff salaries, as well as $950,000 for volunteer allowances.

The CYC report said there had been 45 resignations among volunteers during the year, and admitted that the organization must accept most of the blame for the curtailment of its activities in the Atlantic provinces. Most of the Maritime projects either collapsed or were closed down.

Canadians should be concerned about such costly administration. The federal government is the country's biggest employer and most extravagant spender. Consider for instance that item we mentioned the other day — a $40,000 grant to a University of Alberta sociologist to investigate who gets into Canadian universities and why.

Or consider perhaps the ultimate piece of government financial whimsy, it involves only $284 — but it was paid by the Canada Council, a federal agency, to a New York artist, Ralph Ortis, to travel to Vancouver to wield an axe in an orgy of destruction. The performance was described as symbolic. Ortis hacked to pieces a record player and a piano among other things, the idea being that it would inspire people to unite against the concept of destruction, period.

To use an old colloquialism, Ottawa should catch itself on!

Critic of U. S.

It is sad to observe any public figure in Canada sound off so vehemently against the United States as NDP leader Tommy Douglas.

True, Mr. Douglas was hitting out the other day against the Russians as well, concerning their re-occupation of Czechoslovakia, but to castigate the United States in the same breath was, to put it mildly, uncharitable.

The United States may be pursuing a controversial war in Vietnam — but in the light of events in Czechoslovakia, and of Soviet domination of once independent states, this war now makes a good deal more sense. And it not been for the Americans going into Vietnam, at the invitation of the South Vietnamese government, the south by now would have been annexed by the communist Viet Cong guerrillas and North Vietnamese regular forces. Similarly, the other nations of southeast Asia would have been easy prey for communist subversion.

Moreover, were it not for communist aggression — backed by the Soviet Union and China — in Asia, the United States probably could not care less about Vietnam. What Hitler started in Europe in 1938 is merely being manifested in continuing form 30 years later by international communism. It is the old liebensraum at work.

The United States is concerned not only with the containment of communism but the threatened fabric of the free world. It is concerned with the raising of living standards in underdeveloped countries. Nor should it be forgotten that whenever disaster strikes any population, say by pestilence or earthquake, it is generally the United States that is first on the scene with food, medicine and other relief supplies.

On one score, however, many would agree with Mr. Douglas. Describing today's beards, beads and long hair as superficial symbols of "a genuine disenchantment with our modern society," the NDP leader said: "Ours is a manipulated society, a society of shabby values, a materialistic, hypocritical, fear-ridden society."

Certainly it could be a better society, one in which respect for people would replace the modern tendency to take advantage of others either individually or collectively. Young people have a great opportunity in this regard. And they don't have to become hippies or dropouts to realize the fact.

NDP's Douglas Assesses Chances of Remaining in Parliament

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA - Tommy Douglas, the New Democratic Party leader, really doesn't want to give up that job.

He is finding — like John Diefenbaker — that the prospect of being tossed aside by his party isn't all that pleasant.

Sure, Mr. Douglas puts a brave face on it and talks about the distinction of getting a new man to take over.

But if the party urges him to stay on and if they can find a Commons seat for him, he'll remain as boss for another two or three years.

The vacancy in Burnaby-Seymour constituency, caused by the death of NDP stalwart Colin Cameron, may provide Mr. Douglas with his entry back to the House of Commons.

He suffered a severe blow, being defeated personally in the election, after he put on one of his best campaigns up and down the nation.

The setback was such that at first he could think only of resigning as leader and getting out of politics.

Then he was persuaded by party officials that he should stay at least until the 1969 leadership convention could elect a replacement.

Meantime David Lewis was elected to lead the party in the Commons.

But there were influential people in the NDP who weren't ready to write Tommy Douglas off, just like that.

Cliff Scotton, the national secretary, was one who argued that the party needed more — not less — of Mr. Douglas. Stanley Knowles, veteran NDP parliamentarian, also declared Mr. Douglas should stay on.

Quite a number of NDP faithful believed the man to succeed Mr. Douglas had not yet arrived on the scene. There was the feeling that Mr. Douglas' best choice who could be elected next year and really get the party moving.

The unfortunate death of the much admired Mr. Cameron may provide the opportunity for Mr. Douglas to make a comeback. He certainly is not ruling it out for the nomination but obviously he would like it.

The NDP leader is ready to plunge into the byelection whenever Prime Minister Trudeau calls it. He is ready to take on such Conservative notables as Alvin Hamilton or Duff Roblin who have been mentioned as possible Tory candidates.

"The best thing for us would be a strong Tory candidate," Mr. Douglas observed. "A good fight between Liberal and Conservative would help our cause."

There is a risk for the NDP leader though if he runs in the British Columbia riding. If he were defeated again, this would undoubtedly be the end of the trail.

But if he won and returned to the Commons he would take on again the full party leadership now being carried in part by David Lewis.

And the Douglas presence back in the Commons would strengthen the movement in the party to extend his term as leader for several years.

The view is that the party would best be served by electing a new man much closer in the next election.

The newcomer would present a fresh image in the political leadership scene. He would also have had the benefit of much convention publicity.

And, for that matter, the man for the job may have emerged in 2 or 3 years — apparently he is not obvious yet.

As for Mr. Douglas—he would like to do like John Diefenbaker and after his leadership days remain as a private member in the Commons.

Explosion of Knowledge But are Young People Any the Wiser Today?

London Free Press

It is no new thing for the younger generation to feel that it knows more than its elders. Ask any teen-ager what he thinks of the old fuddy-duddies who run things now. Up to now they have been laughed off, but times are changing.

People who have equated age with wisdom will be shocked to learn from Dr. Margaret Mead, one of world's outstanding anthropologists, that this time the young people may be right and for the first time in history the younger generation may know more than their elders.

Her reasoning resembles that of Marshall McLuhan. She points out that the explosion of technological change has left widened adults who find themselves in a completely unfamiliar world, while young people, who have grown up in it, understand it much better.

This explains "student power" and some of the other bewildering phenomena of the day. It might be well however to remember the old song about Rosh, who, because he knew a thing or two, thought he knew it all.

Today's bewildering world is going to require the combined knowledge and wisdom of all generations to cope with its problems. Even if the oldsters are not entirely up to date they have their place in the scheme of things. And proud youngsters will get badly off if they grow older without becoming wiser.

Bikinis and Bombs

Ottawa Journal

The South Pacific atoll of Bikini is famous for giving its name to an article of clothing and as the site of 1946 American nuclear testing. The bulk of those tests, with us, and so does nuclear testing.

Above ground testing — like the first Bikini blast that sent a 200 mile trail of radioactive dust across the Pacific — has been banned by treaty between the Soviet Union and the United States. Red China and France continue with above ground tests.

But only now after 22 years, are the inhabitants of Bikini being allowed to return to their islands. American consultants feel that radiation levels here have declined to a safe point.

A 1962 film shot on Bikini showed sea turtles which after giving birth to deformed young had wandered inland and died, rather than returning to the sea as they had always done before. Millions of strontin tera eggs littered the island.

Man can rebuild, and the soil may be coaxed back to fertility. But what of our minds? Should not man live in some shame so long as his most imaginative and costly works are devoted to the destruction of his fellowmen?

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Aug. 31, 1961 . . .

The Federation of Malaya entered the British Commonwealth as an independent country 11 years ago today—in 1957. The federation, made up of nine Malay states and the British settlement of Penang and Malacca, won self-government despite a political and military crisis spurred by the operations of Communist guerrilla bands from the end of the Second World War.

1939 — Women and children were evacuated from a 100-square-mile area in western Prince Edward Island as fires continued to burn.

1965 — Heavy fighting continued between Indian and Pakistani forces in Kashmir.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—German forces retreated on the whole line from Ypres to Soissons; Australian troops seized Mont St. Quentin; British soldiers took Marrieres Wood; French troops occupied Campagne on Canal du Nord and Jevigny, above Soissons.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—crushing all organized resistance by Danish soldiers, who fought to the last bullet in isolated engagements, Nazi air forces began purging Denmark of all subversive elements. Soviet and Canadian bombers blasted Berlin with 1,800 tons of explosives; Rear Admiral Victor Brodeur was appointed commanding officer of the Pacific coast for the Royal Canadian Navy.

School Again Soon!

Ottawa Journal

In a few days, 1,900,000 Ontario students will go to school. For approximately 170,000 of them it will be a new adventure to be approached with a mixture of fear and pride.

Of every 10 scientists who have ever contributed to man's reservoir of knowledge, seven are living at this moment, and 90 per cent of all scientific knowledge dates back only 50 years.

These facts, from the report of the provincial committee on aims and objectives of Ontario education, underline the challenge faced in the home and school, specially among "Grade 0" ers."

It is interesting to note that the report says 17 per cent of the child's learning growth will occur between the ages of four and six with another 17 per cent taking place between six and nine.

The Vote At 18 In UK?

Windsor Star

An old, old subject — the vote at age — is to get a rehashing in England and it's possible. Just possible, that when the first returns are in British 18-year-olds will be voting in national elections, and Canadians of that era as well.

Certainly there is little militancy among young Canadians at least that is evident — on the subject of voting age. Young Britons could be even more conservative.

The British argument, or part of it, might easily find adoption in Canada, among young people who are beginning to take politics seriously. If they are stable enough to have the right to marry and establish homes while still in their teens, why should they be denied the full rights and responsibilities of citizenship!

English As It Is Spoken

Montreal Gazette

The spelling of English is ridiculous enough, as George Bernard Shaw pointed out long ago and the grammar disorderly. To put it politely. But when the non - English immigrant has mastered these he has half begun. Then he must learn the peculiar ways in which Canadians speak English, the "idiom".

A New Canadian from Portugal tells of one of his confusions:

"I say to my neighbor that is is cold and he say, 'You can say that again'. I say it again and he laugh. I learn that he is just agree with me when he say 'that'.

The greatest current roadblock holding up vocabulary and munication b ve ver, is the phrase "you know". Trying to get information out of someone who is addicted to "you know" is like trying to get the first olive out of the bottle.

Intended originally as a compliment to the listener's intelligence, the phrase has become the lazy man's way to avoid the bother of choosing his words, or perhaps of thinking at all.

Higher Than Anticipated

Money Supply Totals Nearly $23 Billion in 1968

By JAMES NELSON
(Last of a series)

OTTAWA (CP) — Since the Economic Council of Canada set a series of goals for Canada to achieve by 1970 in bringing the economy up to its potential performance, the country has strayed farthest from the mark in prices, taxes and government spending.

The council set "reasonable stability of prices" as one of the key objectives of its plan and—with governments spending about one-third of the country's gross national expenditure—called on federal, provincial and municipal treasuries to curb themselves.

"The goal of reasonable price and cost stability is one which is extremely difficult to define," the council said in its first review of the economy, issued in January, 1965.

"We do not believe that a rigid structure of constant price is desirable or feasible objective."

In setting its price targets for the last half of the 1960s, the council went back to the experience of the decade between 1952 and 1963, when Canada had reasonable stability in prices.

In its 1966 review, the council was more specific, and noted that the average increase in prices in these good years was 1.4 per cent a year.

"If this standard were followed between 1963 and 1970, there would be a seven-year price increase of only a shade more than 10 per cent. That amount of price increase was already experienced by the spring of last year. At mid-year this year, prices were 16 per cent above the 1963 level.

The council noted in its 1965 review:

"It is disconcerting to note that during the last decade, prices of very few individual items declined, in spite of productivity gains in certain fields, and greater and more prolonged declines in fact are to be found that at any time since the 1930s.

The council's main goal for the Canadian economy in the last half of the 1960s was to achieve a 5.5-per-cent annual increase in gross national product—the total value of all goods and services produced by Canadians.

"A strong upward trend in the physical volume of output such as we have projected is the expansion of the economy to potential output calls for a similar trend of growth in the monetary system," the council said.

The general longer-term requirement suggested here is an upward trend in the money supply broadly in step with the rise in real output; and since the achievement of potential output in Canada by 1970 involves an accelerated rate of real growth, it is likely to require a more-rapid increase in the money supply than took place in the past decade."

The Bank of Canada, which controls the money supply by its influence over the chartered banks, has permitted such an increase in the amount of money in circulation and bank deposits held by the general public.

The money supply has risen to $22,750,000,000 at mid-1968 from $16,150,000,000 at the end of 1963. This gain of more than 40 per cent in 4½ years is greater than the economic council projected.

Actually, combined spending by all governments in 1968 was closer to $18,000,000,000, and it mounted to an estimated $23,100,000,000 last year.

Former Top Aide for Robichaud Head of United Church Board

FREDERICTON (CP) — It wasn't long after Rev. Charles Harkness Forsythe came to New Brunswick five years ago that people started asking questions.

How did a Protestant minister become the right-hand man of a Catholic premier and what was he doing there?

There were even whispers the stocky Westerner, a study in contrasts to his Acadian boss, was part of a Liberal plot to soothe English-speaking New Brunswickers bristling over the government's controversial municipal reform program.

But the 42-year-old United Church clergyman stuck to his guns, working long and arduously alongside Premier Louis Robichaud as his executive assistant. He toured with the Liberal administration through a storm of controversy over the Program of Equal Opportunity to victory in a bitter 1967 election.

Now he's retired, at least temporarily, from the background scene of politics to return to not dissimilar labors within the church.

He recently resigned as Premier Robichaud's executive assistant and this week was appointed secretary of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service of the United Church of Canada.

In that post, he succeeds Dr. J. R. Mutchmor, a former moderator of Canada's largest Protestant denomination who had been active secretary since the death March 1 of Rev. Ray Hord.

He takes to his new job a dedication to do his part in lifting the opportunities and hopes of the less fortunate—the poor and underprivileged.

It was these ideals that gave him justification for exchanging his clerical collar for a business tie, and he became a firm believer in the government's attempts to revolutionize administration of social services.

Monday and Monday, he still has firm convictions, "after the exciting job that I've had," that the equal opportunity program was "the right course of action for the government to take."

"The government has built some very real progress into the educational services of the province."

Will his new post be similar in scope?

It will have "broad similarities," he said. "Both are in a sense administrative-policy development kinds of jobs." The board of evangelism is in part involved with social policies and government programs of social welfare and urban environment.

As minister of a United Church in the quiet college town of Sackville, N.B., Mr. Forsythe first came to Premier Robichaud's attention through presbytery briefs that coincided with government policies.

He took the job when a cabinet minister rapped on his door at midnight.

The board secretariat was less clandestine. However, he made no application for the position and was not aware of recommendations on his behalf by Winnipeg and Moncton, N.B. presbyteries.

Primitive East Africa Tribe Is Moving Out of Stone Age

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—One of the world's most primitive tribes is increasing its tiny population after living for centuries on fish and occasional crocodile eggs.

The El Molo tribe, discovered by Europeans only 60 years ago, finally agreed to give up its Stone Age way of life and move into the 20th century.

Five years ago it was feared that the tribe, which lives on the bleak eastern shores of Lake Rudolf near Loyangalani, would die out from malnutrition.

As the result of a campaign by the Kenya government to persuade them to modernize their ways and eat other food besides fish, their numbers now have grown from 130 in 1964 to more than 230.

With the Bushmen of the Kalahari Desert, the ethnically distinct El Molo are one of Africa's most remote and primitive peoples.

The 20th century caught up with them in 1963 when a Kenya government minister came back from a visit to the area, shocked at their neglected condition.

Their diet, occasionally supplemented by crocodiles' eggs and turtles, was seriously deficient in calories. The El Molo were pathetically weakened by bone deformities and lack of muscular development.

Appeals and special committees were set up to save them. Famine supplies were freighted over the burning deserts and lava tundras of Kenya's northern frontier district.

Now the tribe has left its shelters on islands on the lakeside and set up a butted village. The tribesmen are obviously healthier now that they have taken to eating varied food.

A school was established two years ago and now is attended by 7 children.

The origins of the tribe are mysterious. Some say they are the last survivors of an unknown dynasty. Others claim they are an offshoot of the proud warrior Masai tribe, cut off from others to whom their language is akin.

The El Molo still must rank as the world's great fish eaters. An American fishing party once gave 100 El Molo some 400 pounds of fish. Next morning only the bones were left.

Highly Religious Tibet Folk Leave to Be With Dalai Lama

KALIMPONG, India (AP)—Perched at 4,000 feet on the edge of Tibet, this sleepy town used to be a meeting place for Tibetan merchants and Indian mule traders, coming and going between their two countries.

Now the traffic is one way only—out of Tibet. It is made up of Tibetan refugees, telling tales of chaos in the country they have fled.

The 1959 Lhasa uprising against Communist Chinese rule prompted the Chinese to seal escape routes out of Tibet.

Despite increasingly tight Communist border surveillance, a trickle of refugees continues. On the average 10 Tibetans a month manage to escape, joining an estimated 11,000 already in India. Another 15,000 live in Nepal, Bhutan and Sikkim.

The usual fate of Tibetans captured escaping is the firing squad or mysterious deportation, refugee sources say.

What made these people leave their native land and face the dangers of the trek south?

Speaking only Tibetan—and rudimentary Chinese—these highly religious people emphasized that above all they wanted to be with their spiritual and temporal ruler, the Dalai Lama, who lives in exile in Dharmsala, northwestern India.

Also, they said, the wanton and anti-religious crusade of the Chinese Red Guards had bewildered many Tibetans and uprooted them from their traditional groundings. Almost all of them feel lost in their own country.

Moreover, the refugees complained, life is hard in Tibet these days, with food inadequate, enforced labor excessive and suspicion everywhere.

Yishey Topgay, 23, had special reasons for fleeing Tibet.

In 1958, he said, his father, a minor government official, was deported to a labor camp as a "feudalistic upper-strata reactionary."

Five years later, Yishey said, his mother was publicly tortured and denounced as "anti-national activities," which he said included praying for the health of the Panchen Lama, a Tibetan religious leader then under Communist suspicion.

Few Drops of Artificial Pot Could Make Potent Reefer

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new cloud of worry is swirling up over marijuana.

The question is whether underground chemists will succeed in making synthetic or artificial marijuana. If they do, then a few drops of the liquid "pot" could transform an ordinary cigarette into a potent reefer.

Such altered cigarettes might easily pass inspection. Smugglers and customers might find dozens of new tricks for transporting the concentrated chemical.

American and Israeli chemists a few years ago discovered the principal ways to synthesize the active ingredients of marijuana —chemicals known as tetrahydrocannabinol or THC.

In normal scientific fashion, they published their findings. Soon THC now is being made for legitimate research studies to pin down more knowledge about the psychological and health effects of marijuana, including any effects from using it regularly for long periods of time.

Federal agents have already "busted" several illegal laboratories where they found some of the starting chemicals from which to make THC, and literature about the process, says John Finlator, associate director of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

"We don't know if illegal THC will become a serious problem," Finlator adds. "The raw materials for it are relatively easy to make, or to find. But the underground press is looking for supplies. If underground chemists feel they can make money on it, and not get caught, they'll try to turn it out."

In a counter-move, Attorney-General Ramsey Clark on July 6 signed a proposal to make illegal manufacture or sale of THC a federal offence, punishable by a year in prison or $1,000 fine or both.

He acted under the Drug Abuse Control Amendments of 1965. Unless there is objection, the order covering illegal THC would take effect early in October.

In tests with human volunteers, THC has produced effects such as those from natural marijuana. On low doses, volunteers said they felt happy, gay, silly, relaxed. On higher doses, some users saw colors as being brighter, or felt their bodies become lighter. On still higher doses, most volunteers had hallucinations, delusions or hallucinations. THC was found to be 2.6 times more potent when smoked than when swallowed.

Former Napanee Resident Enjoys His Retirement

NAPANEE - Charles Buchanan, now in his 90th year, the former agricultural representative for Lennox and Addington for several years, is now living in retirement at his former home in Thamesville.

The visitors were surprised to find their friend so alert and active. He plied them with questions on people and conditions in the Napanee area, with what appeared to be an unfailing memory.

Mr. Buchanan keeps up to date on matters in this county through the local weekly to which he has subscribed since leaving the area. The Parks family brought back several messages for all Mr. Buchanan's friends in the Napanee area.

"Consumer's Protector" Ever Watchful

OTTAWA (CP) — Manufacturers have called exuberant Eleanor Orchard "the consumer's protector" and she "housewife's friend."

Miss Orchard, director of the new consumer service and information division of the consumer affairs department, couldn't be more pleased at the pat on the back from people who might, in some fields, be considered her opposition.

Miss Orchard, 50, has the kind of warm personality which can completely captivate a person and yet leave them with the impression that she can be decidedly firm when it suits her.

"I'd like to see the consumer be more discriminating," she said in an interview in her bright, modern office.

"So many people, when they go to buy a carpet, ask for broadloom, for example. All that means is that it's broad and it's loomed.

"If you're buying a carpet — a considerable investment —find out something about carpets. Go to a reliable manufacturer who you know will be in business two or three years from then when your carpet begins to wear. Ask questions."

The new consumer information and service division is not going to tell the consumer what to buy, she said—just what to watch for.

The department's new service—"The Consumer, Box 99, Ottawa, Ont."—has, however, received complaints and enquiries from consumers in all parts of Canada.

"There are a tremendous number of men writing in about cars, power mowers and clothing." Miss Orchard said, pointing up the fact that women aren't the only concerned consumers.

"One of our responsibilities is to deal with complaints not coming under any government authority, either federal or provincial."

When the division gets an enquiry or complaint concerning something under provincial jurisdiction, it gets in touch with the consumer protection service in that province.

In other cases, Miss Orchard writes the manufacturer a complaint involving his products and asks him to comment.

"I want to make sure I get both sides of the story. If there is an injustice, fine. We'll do all we can to correct it.

"If there's an injustice, the manufacturer knows I'll be tough, but I'll be fair," says Miss Orchard who, nevertheless, is not afraid to tell them: "Make no mistake about it. I'm here for consumers."

The division can only help so much, she cautions. The consumer has to help herself.

Miss Orchard, who enjoys her job because of its "tremendous scope" and because she is doing something for society, was born and raised in Regina.

Following school, she took a two-year laboratory technology course and then came to Ottawa to the health department's food and drug division where she worked for 27 years.

"I worked in the labs and then went to the administrative side. In 1957 I was appointed head of the consumer information service.

"I came to the new department Oct. 1, 1967, and there have been moments when I wondered whether it would ever find the ground. Now, however, I can really see we're going places."

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — Home Affairs Minister Said Maswanya has pocketed a roundup of prostitutes on his capital's streets but has refused to extend the crackdown to homosexuals. "To interfere with someone's conjubine would be a violation of fundamental human rights," he said.

(CLUB 4-H NEWS)
(Bethel Zion)

The Bethel-Zion 4-H Club had its first meeting. The group has 10 members with Mrs. Ted Ray as leader and Mrs. Laurison Ketcheson as assistant leader.

At this meeting, the election of officers took place with these results: president: Susan Ray; vice-president: Bonnie Marvin; secretary: Ann Ketcheson; treasurers: Mrs. Ray and Mrs. Ketcheson; press reporter Miss Janet Wilson.

Mrs. Ray read some interesting points on the proper methods to use when washing dishes; and an interesting discussion followed, based on why we eat fruit. This was followed by a demonstration by Susan Ray after which everyone participated in a quiz.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ray on September 2nd.

Ann Landers

Reader Gives Other Side of Picture

DEAR ANN LANDERS — You recently published a letter from a woman who said she would rather starve to death than return to housework. The gal listed several complaints — principally the extra things she had to do which were not housework, such as wash the car, repair the plumbing, shampoo the dog, mow the lawn, shovel the snow and, to me, the most unsympathetic and invited you to present the "other side of the story — if there is one."

ANN LANDERS

Well, there is one, and here it is.

Two years ago I went to the expense of retiling a newly-tiled housekeeper over here from another country. Within 60 days, she had boiled the plastic egg timer with the eggs, tried to straighten-the curved grapefruit knife with my pliers, put the rubber bathmat in the clothes dryer and ruined the motor, boiled a leg of lamb in deep water in the oven, and polished my silver service with steel wool. I could go on, but I think you have the picture.

Thanks in advance for printing the "other side." — EASIER TO DO IT MYSELF.

DEAR EASIER — Yes, and cheaper, too. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a mother of three active children and I seem to be working from morning till night. I am not complaining. I love my husband, my kids and my home. My problem is my sister-in-law.

Lizette has three children who ages are the same as mine — not one of them. Once a week Lizette drops her kids off at all under five. Every other week I baby-sit for them in my house while she does charity work and gets her picture in the paper for being on this committee and that committee.

I think it is wonderful that Lizette is interested in community affairs, but I feel she is taking advantage of me. Never does she say I bathe, feed and care for the kids, but she hands me her grocery list and says, "While you're getting your groceries, please get mine."

What do you think of this? — LIZETTE'S PATSY.

DEAR PATSY — I think Lizette has found herself a free babysitter, a grocery shopper, and all-around chum. But the question isn't what I think, it's what do you think, and apparently you think it's fine or you'd have done some thing about it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I married an immature, hot-tempered, lazy, lying scoundrel against the advice of my family, friends, my clergyman and you. After six months of hellish fighting and being called every name under the sun, I told him (through the handgrai) that I wanted a trial seperation — three months.

The three months were over last week. I realize now that I must have been crazy to have married that loon and crazier still to have put up with his cruelty. I am filing for divorce tomorrow.

The question: Should I return the wedding gifts? Some of them are still in boxes — ALIVE AT LAST.

DEAR ALIVE — The wedding gifts belong to the wife unless she makes a special agreement with her husband as part of the divorce settlement.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope plus six cents for postage.

Neurosis: A Problem Requiring Professional Treatment

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: If my husband and I go out anywhere I come home with the feeling people were talking and thinking untrue things about me. The doctor told me I'd no grounds for thinking lesbian thoughts of that people thought that about me, but I always feel I have proven things to people.

I love my husband but I feel that unless I cling to his arm or sit close in the car people think I'm cold. Get the picture?

I know neurosis is a mental illness—but I do wish you could help me. I don't want to go to a psychiatrist any more. Can you please consult your experts and help me? — Neurosis.

Dear Neurosis: Our imaginations play tricks on us. You've got self-doubt about whether you do give enough warmth to your husband may be at the root of your imaginings. You reject these accusations and then neurotically, turn around and impute them to other people.

It might help you if you made a special study of the healthy expression of affection and feelings within marriage. Then to make this a topic of open discussion with your husband might help even more.

But a letter from me cannot replace a talk with your psychiatrist. A pronounced neurosis is still an illness, and needs a doctor.

Dear Doris: How can I explain to our 31-year-old son that a wife's place is with her husband, and not with her son? So far he's a solid wall of concrete. When he got word from us that we planned to buy and remodel an old house in town, all hell broke loose. He accused his own father of becoming a spendthrift.

I have begun to dread to go to the farm on week ends, where I do the laundry, baking, cleaning, for him and our 14-year-old son. We turned the farm over to him when I became seriously ill last year. If I mention I'll take the vacuum cleaner and washing machine he puts up a howl that he needs them more.

Is my husband right that our oldest son is jealous over the fact that his father took his mother away from him? He did it because he knew I shouldn't work so hard. — Can't Think Straight.

Dear Can't Think: Very same son would be the last to want you around if his romance had come off as scheduled. He is bitter. Your job is to keep your health, your husband, your sense of proportion. His is to stop being a dependent son.

Take the vacuum and washer and stay away. Let Son Number One do the coming.

Dear Doris: As I write this letter I gaze fondly on the lovely wardrobe of clothes I wore 15 to 18 pounds ago. All I eat seems to be settling on my hips and thighs and stomach. I never felt better in my life, but I do look fat in slim dresses, which I love to wear.

According to my weight table I am only four pounds overweight, but the fat is too much in the wrong places.

(1) What exercises do you suggest to lose fat from hips, etc?

(2) How often should I exercise?

(3) In a strict diet required, as well as exercise?

(4) Just how fast can I expect to lose pounds, safely? — Plessingly Plump.

Dear P.P.:

(1) Our leaflet "Be Figure Perfect" gives them to you, under headings like Small Waistline, Flat Tummy, Slimmer Hips.

(2) Daily, which means every single day, including Sundays, holidays and Leap Year Day.

(3) Not to rearrange the plumpness.

(4) One or two pounds a week. This calls for diet plus exercise.

(Leaflets mentioned by Doris are available to readers for 10 cents and a large stamped self-addressed envelope, unless otherwise specified.)

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Primary Ingredient Is Cleanliness

By MARY MOORE

LETTER: I noticed the fillings for sandwiches in a late column contained mayonnaise and were to be frozen. The Medical Officer had informed me that a very high degree of food poisoning existed and in a very short period of time after thawing they would be contaminated. I wondered if I had been ill advised or if this rule had since been changed. Due to the fact that this recipe was given in warm weather, perhaps it was assumed immediately after should have been given that the sandwiches should be consthawing. Thought I would pass this information on to you and you could look into it further. I enjoy your column and have a number of recipes on file for which I am very thankful. — Mrs. Grace H.

ANSWER: I read your letter to our local Medical Doctor of Health. He gave me this explanation: The mayonnaise itself is not contaminated for it is processed in inspected factories under ideal conditions. The trouble comes from food handlers preparing such products as potato salads and sandwiches containing mayonnaise who are "carriers" or incubators. Mayonnaise-containing products and those with cream as a filling sometimes WILL boats or media for bacteria or spores which have been introduced by handlers. As soon as the product is thawed and warm the bacteria thrive at a rapid rate. This explains the mystery of multiple sickneses we sometimes read about after wedding receptions or catered parties—especially in warm weather.

Conclusion: Obviously all preparation should be done in perfectly clean surroundings by meticulously clean workers. Such food, when thawed, in refrigerator storage conditions permit, should be served at once. Thank you for your concern.

QUESTION: We have a small yield of grapes on our own vines for the first time this fall and I am planning to make some grape juice. Would you give the method for a small quantity in your column? — Idabelle M.

ANSWER: GRAPE JUICE (three Imperial quarts)

Wash and stem and measure 16 cups concord grapes. Turn into large preserving kettle and add 7 cups hot water. Bring to boil and simmer covered 45 minutes. Line colander with double thickness of cheesecloth and strain — preferably overnight. (You may press the pulp to extract as much juice as possible at the finish.) Measure juice. I had 12 cups. Turn into preserving kettle and add 3 cups sugar and bring to boil. At once pour into sterile jars and seal. (NOTE: If you have large bottles with lids rimmed on inside with rubber they may be sterilized and used instead of sealers.)

"I wouldn't have anything else," said Mr. Heinz Knobloch of Peterborough.

Electric heating pampers everyone in the Knobloch household. Guests included.

In a recent interview about his electrically heated Peterborough home, Mr. Heinz Knobloch had this to say, "Some of my friends like it up to 80 degrees, but there is no problem. I can turn it up in the living room without affecting the rest of the house. My wife and I like to sleep in a fairly cool bedroom. With electric heat we can sleep in 65-68 degrees in the winter. In Sandra's room we can have it at 72 degrees because of the separate thermostats."

"The house is cleaner with electric heat," Mrs. Knobloch added. "Dust in curtains stay very clean. I haven't had them down for months." Of course, cleanliness and the convenience of room-by-room temperature control aren't the only features the Knoblochs like about electric heating. They also enjoy its even heat and economy of operation. Electric heating is quiet, draught-free, safe. And because electric heating is trouble-free, the Knoblochs aren't bothered by the expense and inconvenience of annual servicing.

If these are advantages you'd like for your next home, insist on electric heating . . . one of the many features of the famous Medallion all-electric homes. For complete details, consult a qualified electric heating contractor . . . or ask your Hydro.

THE GRACEFUL ELM

" . . . the great elms overhead
Dark shadows wove on their aerial looms
Shot through with golden shread."

"Our trip to Belleville was delightful, except for one thing," said a friend who had come to visit for several days, "and that was the shock of realizing there is not a single elm to be seen from 401 driving through western Ontario to Montreal!"

And we all commiserated with her, knowing so well, from what we had seen locally and elsewhere, pictures in the Intelligencer of stately elms now gaunt, gnarled, dead-bare branches, once alive with lusty boughs, stretching helplessly to an unanswering summer sky for rescue.

"I have heard, however," our friend continued, "that there are several theories concerning this state of the disappearing elm that now borders on the catastrophic."

"You mean — they know what is the reason — the causes?"

"The Graceful Elm"

"Well, Dr. Albert Dimond Chief pathologist of Connecticut Agricultural Experimental Station (for the disease is rampant in New England as well) states that from 50 to 60 per cent of the infections occur underground; that they are unrelated to the bark beetle that is normally blamed for spreading the disease, which makes tree spraying control measures of little value.

"What does cause the disease then?"

"A fungus, which Dr. Dimond says can be carried from tree to tree by the bark beetle. The fungus slows down circulation of the trees' sap so that it literally dies of thirst."

Is there 'any way to combat it?"

"It's really difficult, for it seems a peculiarity of the elm is, that its roots connect to roots of other elm trees, when they meet underground, and a "sap transfusion" takes place which carries with it bud cells of fungus infection and if trees are 50 feet apart. And the only way to combat it, is to achieve isolation by digging three foot trenches around a tree and treat it with root killing substance; or it is cut deep in the ground in areas of possible root contact."

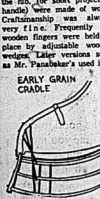
"That sounds encouraging then, isn't it?"

"Well yes. Except that at the Forest Disease Research Laboratory in Quebec, Dr. Rene Pomerleau reports a recent discovery, — that the deadly action of the fungus occurs in the leaves and leaf stem, where the sap flows through the minutest channels of the sapstream. And Dr. Pomerleau believes it is there, that fungus bud cells do the clogging."

"That's easy to believe, considering how partly brown and ugly green the leaves are on a diseased tree."

"Well, anyway, fungus killing injections either into the tree or the ground reveal retardation of the disease for several weeks, but other than that, there is to date—no cure achieved.

"But," she concluded, "one ray of hope is that, in Holland there is some sign of success in developing a strain of European elm that is resistant to the fungus. Sad to say, there is a "but"; But it does not grow into the graceful wine-glass shape pattern we know and love so well, that lends such beauty to Canada's towns and countryside.



Early Grain Cradles Made Solely of Wood

By JACK JAMIESON

The grain cradle illustrated turns up with surprising frequency at farm auctions. Mechanical reaping machines made it obsolete before the middle of the last century, but as late as December 1, 1962, Lewis Panabaker, of the township of Normanby, County of Grey, patented at Quebec, capital of the Province of Canada, a "Grain Cradle Finger Adjuster".

"Fingers" are the wooden extensions added to a scythe to convert it to a cradle. A cradle cut a swath of grain and laid it neatly in rows where it was bundled into sheaves. (often by the lady of the house).

In early cradles, all parts, except the blade and tang of the nib, (or short projecting handle) were made of wood. Craftsmanship was always very fine. Frequently the wooden fingers were held in place by adjustable wooden wedges. Later versions such as Mr. Panabaker's used iron adjusted by nut or screw.

Wooden grain shovels, wooden hay and barley forks exhibit the same skill apparent in the construction of grain cradles. Frequently the tools that made these implements are available as well, beginning with a broad-axe.

Early broad-axes and hatchets were frequently made for the Indian trade and bear small stamps in the form of a mallese cross or other emblems. A broad-axe head can be obtained in almost any junk shop and unless clearly stamped with a maker's name probably dates from the frontier period before Confederation. Broad axe heads without polls, (the hammer-like balance on the side opposite the blade) may be found, sometimes L-shaped dating mid-18th Century. There are possibly earlier ones dating to the first days of the French regime.

Early planes were frequently made by their owners who bought the blades alone. Cabinet-makers and later carpenters had complete sets of planes for making a variety of mouldings and window sash. Some planes were elaborate and required both the carpenter and his apprentice to operate.

Craftsmen prized their tools. Although older tools were replaced they were seldom thrown out. The end of the hand-crafted tool came with the disappearance of the horse and the demise of the blacksmith who wrought the iron fittings required.

Some tools were only used for framing of barns and may be found in a barn they helped build, put away against a future barn-raising. Hay knives of iron, hay forks of wood, flails, (a counterpart of the cradle), winnowers, (two-handled, flat-shaped trays), sickles, (or reaping-hooks), wagon-jacks, blacksmith's tools, to say nothing of spades and shoulder-yokes are to be found in barns.

One of the largest tools to be encountered is a pounding "commander", a large mallet, sometimes made of a log 12" to 18" in diameter and 24" long with a long handle. It was swung backwards between the legs to pound a 15" beam teron into its mortise when building a barn.

Tools vary in value. Good ox-yokes, all wood and wrought iron with no machine fittings fetch $75.00; grain cradles about $25.00 and planes about $5.00 or less. Values will undoubtedly increase.

Countries Interested in Broadening Auto Pact: Industry Minister

OTTAWA (CP) — Both Canada and the United States are interested in broadening the auto pact between the two countries, Industry Minister Jean-Luc Pepin reported Friday.

He made the statement in announcing conclusion of a two-country review of the pact, signed early in 1965 and providing free trade at the manufacturer's level in autos.

In Canada, Mr. Pepin said, the pact has "meant progress" in increasing production, employment, trade and productivity.

It has also cut appreciably the difference in car prices between Canada and the U.S., he said.

Mr. Pepin said talks which began last December on broadening the agreement will be continued when the United States administration is in a position to recommend the necessary legislation to Congress."

The announcement also provided a number of statistics on results of the pact.

Two-way trade in automotive products had increased to $2,200,000,000 in 1967 from $700,000,000 in 1964, said the 1968 figure would be even larger.

"He tried to combine jogging for good health and motivating for peace of mind, and he jogged in front of a moving taxi."

Kidnapper Tries Hard But Misses Big Payoff

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Tiie kidnapper of four-year-old Stanley Stalford Jr., telephoned four restaurants in the Los Angeles area before he found a man willing to deliver $250,000 ransom.

Before Harold (Red) Tracton agreed, the caller said of the others: "They all said they didn't want to get involved."

A nerve-wracking 36 hours followed for Tracton, 47. The ordeal included 15 hushed phone conversations, the care of a 50-pound satchel containing $250,000 in $20 bills and a lonely drive to the payoff spot with the hope FBI agents were somewhere near, watching.

At the end Robert Dacy, 39, an ex-convict, was wounded and captured Friday in a wild auto chase and gun battle, and the frightened boy was returned to his parents.

Dacy, in hospital with a broken right leg, later pleaded not guilty to two state counts of kidnapping for ransom. He was ordered held without bond with his preliminary hearing set for Sept. 20.

"I took good care of your boy," Dacy told the mother as she arrived at Morningside Hospital where doctors were taking seven stitches in Stanley's leg, cut in a traffic collision that ended the long chase.

"I gave him candy and milk."

The youngster still wore the blue bathing suit which he had on Wednesday morning when a man posing as an electrician working next door tied up his mother and kidnapped the boy from the Stalford's $90,000 home.

As the man demanded, Stalford sent $250,000 ransom for his only child. The kidnapper didn't get to it, although Tractes left it minutes before FBI agents arrived and the chase began. The money was recovered.

Wesley G. Grapp, FBI agent in charge, said Dacy "at all times was trying to use the boy as a shield." During the 28-block chase over streets, alleys and parking lots, agents were instructed: "Don't do anything that could endanger the boy."

"We had to be careful with our firing," Grapp said.

Return gunfire broke the windshield of Grapp's car and hit the right arm of his driver, agent Emmett Doherty.

Grapp then ordered the other car rammed. The FBI car smashed into the other, spinning both out of control. Four agents were needed to subdue Dacy.

Agents refused to say whether the boy had been threatened or —other than bruises or the leg cut—harmed, since this would have a bearing on the penalty if Dacy is convicted.

When the first telephone call from the kidnapper came at his restaurant, Tracton said, the man told him: "I've called three other restaurant men and asked them if they'd be the intermediary. They all said they didn't want to get involved."

He didn't say why he wanted a restaurant man involved, Tracton said.

Stalford, board chairman of the Fidelity Bank, and his family had eaten in Tracton's restaurant. But the husky Tracton doesn't know why the kidnapper singled him out as intermediary.

Trudeau's Era Starts on Sept. 12

OTTAWA (CP)—The 28th Parliament which opens Thursday, Sept. 12, will take on added significance as the start of the Trudeau era in Canada's legislative history.

It will provide the first public exposure of Prime Minister Trudeau's ideas for developing his promise of "a just society" for all and greater opportunities for underdeveloped regions of the country.

Just about everybody in Ottawa expects some surprise items when Governor-General Michener reads the Throne Speech from the throne at the parliamentary opening in the Senate chamber. But few hard predictions are being made.

Normally after a general election it is a simple matter to review the campaign promises and sift from them the items likely to emerge as legislative proposals. But Mr. Trudeau steered away from hard promises, both in his April campaign for the Liberal leadership and in his election speeches.

The technique, a sharp departure from political tradition, worked like magic. Mr. Trudeau dominated the leadership race and the Liberals won a commanding majority in the June 25 election, the first party to do so since the Conservative landslide 10 years ago.

When the new Commons assembles, Liberals will hold 155 of the 264 seats. They will face an opposition composed of 72 Conservatives, 21 New Democrats and 14 Creditistes. One seat is vacant and the other is held by Lucien Lamoureux who ran as an independent and is expected to be re-elected Speaker.

The probable content of the throne speech, which outlines the government's legislative plans, is not all mystery, however.

A certain item is an official languages bill to give English and French equal status throughout the federal sphere. Mr. Trudeau has made several references to it.

Also sure to be listed is a measure increasing postal rates to end the long-standing deficit of the post office and meet extra wage costs resulting from the postal strike settlement.

Regional development is assured of a priority position on the agenda with particular attention to the problems of the Atlantic provinces. A special department or agency probably will be proposed to consolidate and expand existing programs in this field.

There also is a boldover of unfinished items from the last Parliament.

Prominent among these is the massive amendment to the Criminal Code introduced last year by Mr. Trudeau when he was justice minister in the Pearson government. One section that would ease the ban on abortions is certain to stir up a major political row.

The bill to reduce drug prices by the removal of patent protection, thus creating increased competition among manufacturers, likely will be revived to meet a commitment by the former government. It is being opposed by a powerful lobby.

There also is the ticklish question of reviving a labor bill that ran into heavy criticism in the last Parliament. The bill, revising the structure of the Canada labor relations board, was attacked as a sellout to the Confederation of National Trade Unions in its campaign to wrest Quebec groups from national bargaining units.

Some of the heat may be taken off the labor issue, however, by a special commission that has been studying federal labor law for two years and is due to present recommendations by December.

A long-delayed Liberal project, the Canada Development Corp., may get off the ground in this session. It was part of the original program of the Pearson government but never got beyond brief annual appearances in the throne speech.

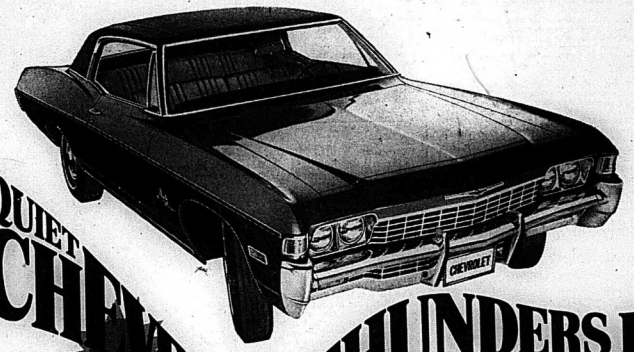
The corporation would raise funds from the public and private sectors to be used in resource development. Shares would be priced low enough to attract participation by ordinary citizens. Finance Minister Benson has indicated that work is proceeding on the project.

An overhaul of the Indian Act is in the works and will go before Parliament after a current series of public hearings at which Indians and Eskimos are presenting views on it.

One of the first items for the Commons will be rules of procedure. A new set of rules adopted on a temporary basis died automatically with the dissolution of the 27th Parliament in April and the House will revert to rules of 1962 for the Sept. 12 opening.

Around The Cut

Ab Wonnacott with Mrs. Edna Jackman won the mixed doubles tournament staged by the Stirling Bowling Club on Saturday last. The two-game high was won by Mr. and Mrs. Lugtenburg, while the one-game high was won by Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Carr. All these bowlers are from the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club and they brought home the top prizes in the tourney.



The women's section of the local club staged a trebles tournament with ten rinks from Trenton, Belleville, Kingston and Cobourg taking part. The three-game high was won by Verna Woodbeck and her rink from Stirling. The two-game high was won by a rink of "Doll" Argue, Tal. Mascaro with Grace Clapp as skip and the one-game high was won by a rink of Nora Kyle, Irene Trudeau with Carm Mott as skip from the Belleville club.

Two rinks, Eadie Elliott, Gordon Vickers, Betty Vickers with Walter Elliott as skip and Marg Sherman, Herb McIntyre, Grace Clapp with Bill Van Tassel as skip journeyed to Brockville last Saturday but failed to make the prize list. Mr. Elliott's rink won two games.

"Doll" Argue and Edna Jackman won the high score at the Thursday afternoon bowling with Lil Hermon and Irene Trudeau in second place and Nora Kyle and Thelma Fitzgibbon third.

The tea hostesses were Mrs. William Oliphant, Mrs. Elda Watson, Mrs. Ethel Silver and Mrs. Kathleen Bottom. There were seven tables of bridge in play.

NHL Schedules 79 Pre-season Tilts

MONTREAL (CP) — A record-tying 79 pre-season games have been scheduled for this fall by the 12 National Hockey League clubs, the NHL announced Friday.

The total equals the number of exhibition games played by NHL teams in last year's exhibition season.

This year, teams from the year-old western division will be allowed to play pre-season games against east division clubs. Of the 41 games involving only NHL teams, 14 are between east and west.

Training camps cannot open before Sept. 11, exactly one month before the start of the NHL's regular 1968-69 season, but only three teams will open on that date. They are Los Angeles Kings and St. Louis Blues of the west division and Toronto Maple Leafs of the east section.

Chicago Black Hawks, who open camp Sept. 16 at Chicago Stadium, will be the last team to start training. However, the Black Hawks will be the only club to hold a full-time camp at its NHL rink.

The North Stars will spend two weeks at Haliburton, Ont., before moving to their home rink in Bloomington, Minn.

Apart from the 41 games involving only NHL teams, there are 17 in which NHL clubs will oppose those from the American Hockey League, 10 between NHL and Central Pro League teams and six between NHL and Western Hockey League clubs.

Also scheduled are four games with NHL teams facing Canada's national team and a game in which St. Louis Blues will meet Ottawa 67s of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A circuit. The Kings and the Blues will meet Canada's national squad twice each.

New York Rangers are the only club to play against NHL opponents only throughout the entire exhibition schedule. The Rangers have scheduled 11 exhibition games.

Training camp sites and opening dates:

Boston Bruins, London, Ont., Sept. 14; Chicago Black Hawks, Chicago Stadium, Sept. 16; Detroit Red Wings, Port Huron, Mich., Sept. 13; Los Angeles Kings, Barrie, Sept. 11; Minnesota North Stars, Haliburton, Ont., Sept. 12, then to Metropolitan Sports Center, Bloomington, Minn., Sept. 24; Montreal Canadiens, Verdun, Que., and Pointe Claire, Que., Sept. 12; New York Rangers, Kitchener, Sept. 12; Oakland Seals, Oshawa, Sept. 13; Philadelphia Flyers, Quebec City, Sept. 15; Pittsburgh Penguins, Brantford, Sept. 12; St. Louis Blues, Ottawa, Sept. 11; Toronto Maple Leafs, Peterborough, Sept. 11.

Intelligencer Sports

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, AUGUST 31, 1968

Wilfred Sehl, himself a champion dirt-tracker, tapes the cables on his son Dave's bike between heats. Dave leads the expert drivers throughout the nation in total points, outstripping such veterans as 10-year rider Yvon Duhamel whose factory racing bike kept Dave from the provincial 500 cc. expert half-mile dirt-track title at the Fairgrounds Friday.

Bikes Uneven

Sehls Take Two Titles

By JERRY HOFF
Staff Reporter

Less than five years ago, Dave Sehl, 21, stepped into the seat of a 250 c.c. BSA for his first dirt - track race.

"Before he left that track, Dave had done everything wrong that could be done," said his father Wilfred, a former dirt - track National champion himself.

Dave managed to dump the bike, tear off three of the track's posts with the pretzled wreck before it and he came to a halt, then he looked up at his father from the wreckage and said "Well, what are we waiting for? Let's get the thing fixed for the next race."

"I told him right there," said the senior Sehl, "that a dirt - tracker he was not. He's been making me eat those words for the past several years."

The most recent portion of that verbal diet came Friday night at the Fairgrounds where Dave won the 250 c.c. expert Ontario half-mile dirt-track championship and finished second in the expert 500 c.c. class behind Yvon Duhamel who took the title by downing Dave's Class 'C' Harley - Davidson with his Class "A" Jawa.

"Those bikes aren't even allowed on the same track at the same time in the States," snorted Dave's dad.

Besides having to swallow Dave's refutation of his prophecy, the elder Sehl has found that his 18-year-old son Doug has also inherited his father's love for the dusty ovals and roaring machines.

Young Doug raced his third event at Friday's meet. This time, he won the Ontario dirt - track 50 c.c. junior title.

Which isn't really surprising. In his first start, Doug took the National Junior 250 c.c. title for 1967.

In his second, he won the junior 500 cc. event at the July 1 Muscular Dystrophy races here in Belleville.

Which makes a National and a provincial title in a total of three starts which isn't bad for any young man on the way up.

But then, perhaps it's just the old Sehl blood coming out. A dirt-track racer for nearly 11 years (1946-57), the Sehl patriarch still holds the National Mile Dirt - track title which he won in 1948, three years before he took the Ontario Half - mile Dirt - track championship.

"I never encouraged the boys to race or even ride bikes," Sehl senior smiled proudly. "I just had the machines around and they always knew I raced. But I never pushed them and I still don't. In fact, I spend more time blowing up at them than I do anything else."

"I won't offer sympathy. And if they lose or go down by taking unnecessary chances, they hear about it. In this sport you have to use your head. And if you do you win. And keep the bike and the rider up. If you get scarried away, you get carried away."

As for Mrs. Sehl, who accompanies the family team on all their racing excursions, her husband names her the "steadying influence" of the clan.

"I don't worry about the boys," she said. "They know what they're doing — but I will say I'm glad I don't have 10 more doing the same thing!"

In their total races Friday night, Dave took two of three heats and the final in the 250 cc. expert class (his sprocket came off in the other heat) and followed Duhamel home in both heats and the final in the 500 cc. events.

Doug won both junior 500 cc. heats and the final and fell-off in the first 250 cc. heat, then came back to win the second heat and the consolation final.

The Sehl's from Waterdown, are sponsored by Perc Pool's Harley-Davidson agency in Hamilton. Duhamel races under the Jawa factory out of Montreal.

The fastest race of the evening, four miles in 3:46.0, was the senior 500 cc. final, won by Jean Guy Bibeau of Val D'Or, Que. Bill Gibbons of Ottawa took the title in the junior 250 cc. class.

"Gee . . . someday I'll Have One!"

Doug Sehl, junior 500 cc. half-mile dirt-track champion of Ontario, lets his nephew Bobby share the glory of the trophy presentation at the Fairgrounds last night. From the look in his nephew's eyes, dirt-track racing may have another up-and-comer — and Mrs. Sehl, Bobby's grandmother (right) doesn't seem to mind a bit.

For the Clutch

Parker in Reserve

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

British Columbia Lions are looking for a key situation before they take the wraps off Jackie Parker, their newest quarterback, says coach Jim Champion.

But it still looks like he will get into the lineup sometime during Monday's game when the Lions visit Calgary Stampeders, the leaders in the Western Football Conference.

"We'll certainly be using Parker," Champion said Friday.

As to when and how we're not saying.

"This is a pretty good situation for us because it is going to keep the Stampeders on edge, wondering just when we're going to throw Parker in there. And they've had to spend time preparing for him also."

But it doesn't look like Parker will be behind the centre the first time the fourth-place Lions get the ball as regular Pete Ohler's ankle is showing signs of improvement.

"Pete looked a lot better in practise and it looks as though he'll be ready to start," said Champion.

In the other Labor Day contest in the West, third-place Edmonton Eskimos play in Regina against second-place Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Both games are key contests as Stampeders and the Roughriders battle it out for the WFC leadership and the Lions and the Eskis try to move closer to a playoff berth.

The Calgary-B.C. game will be shown on the CTV network starting at 2:30 p.m., MST.

Parker, dubbed Spaghetti Legs during his days with Edmonton Eskimos and Toronto Argonauts, is trying a comeback after the Lions secured his playing rights from Toronto.

The West's all-time scoring champ hasn't played since 1965 but, as an assistant coach with the Lions, he has been tutoring the club's injury-prone quarterbacks.

Paul Brothers is still slowed by a sore shoulder but will dress in Calgary as the Leos' 16th import.

On the other side of the scale, halfback Jim Young looks ready for heavy duty after a brief appearance in Sunday's 17-10 loss to Winnipeg. his first game since a knee injury three weeks ago.

Although Calgary may be preparing for Parker at quarterback, the Lions have more to worry about in Stampeder quarterback Peter Liske who bombed them 41-7 in Vancouver.

"We're going to do some new things and some switching to defence Liske's passing," said Champion. "But mainly we're encouraged by the fact that our defence has had a few weeks to jell as a unit since we last faced Calgary."

The Stamps are as healthy as they have been all year with the exception of fullback Gerry Weber who is on the 30-day injured list.

The Eskimos will need to get a more potent offence when they tangle with the Roughriders, who have had an eight-day rest after thrashing Calgary 32-17.

Only defence made the Eskimos look good in Wednesday's 12-7 loss to Calgary and the Eaks will be without defensive end Tom Jones Syndarony and Joe Hernandez who were injured in the game.

Katie Gray's Last Captain

A. A. Bartlett, "Bart" to his crew and friends, made the Katie Gray a near-legend in the Quinte area in the Twenties with his open-handed hospitality and his constant "crew" of his collie Lassie and the "camp kids" who always found a welcome on the romantic ship.

Bay of Quinte Tribute

Katie Gray Remembered Through Annual Race

The old yacht, Katie Gray, nearly faded away.

In fact, her final resting place still hasn't been located for certain.

But if the famous yacht of the original Bay of Quinte Yacht Club fleet lies undiscovered, she certainly is being remembered.

With the original trophy presented in 1879 to the yacht Katie Gray for her victory in the Union Regatta in that year recovered at a 1967 auction, the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club has inaugurated an annual event in memory of the famous racing vessel.

The first annual Katie Gray Race started from the government dock today at 11 a.m. with 17 boats — from Trenton, Belleville, and Picton — taking part. The finish line for the race will be at the Prince Edward Yacht Club.

If light winds prevent Saturday's date, the race is scheduled for Sunday from Picton to Belleville.

Presentation of the trophy is at 7 p.m. tonight (or Sunday) at the PEYC.

The original Katie Gray was built in 1875 by Alexander Cuthbert for Belleville Fire Chief W. H. Campbell.

She sailed on Lake Ontario for 62 years and brought home more honors than any yacht of her time.

The original trophy presented the Katie Gray upon her victory in the Inland Union Regatta in 1879 is on display in the trophy case of the club.

Andreotti Wants Loose

TORONTO (CP) — Lawyer Alan Eagleson said Friday he has been retained by linebacker Jim Andreotti in an attempt to work out a deal between Toronto Argonauts and Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference.

Andreotti, under contract with Toronto until June 1, 1969, has a year-round job in Montreal which prevents him playing for the Argos. He wants the Toronto club to release him or trade him to Montreal.

Eagleson said he has a meeting scheduled with Argo coach Leo Cahill and hopes to discuss how "will listen to representation on Andreotti's behalf."

"Andreotti has a business future in Montreal," Eagleson said.

"Football players are attracted to Canada by a league which stresses business opportunity. Now he's being told to choose between business and sport."

Andreotti, 30, was a Canadian all-star in 1962-63.

Leafs Argue CFL Swap

TORONTO (CP) — The Parker-for-Falonzy deal between two Canadian Football League clubs has brought a bellow of protest from an unlikely quarter—Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

Nobody was more horrified at the publicity British Columbia Lions and Toronto Argonauts got by swapping the rights to retired quarterbacks Bernie Faloney and Jackie Parker, both 36 years old.

"I was all set to spring a deal of my own that would have knocked them all down," Coach Punch Imlach said.

"We had a trade set with New York Rangers—an exchange of rights—Red Horner for Frankie Boucher."

Boucher would be centre-ice insurance, Imlach said, reasoning "he has the experience."

Boucher is 66; Horner 58.

Wilson Hits Homer and Single

Power-packing Pitcher Punches Four Home Runs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Detroit's Earl Wilson, who lost his pitching edge by leading with his chin, has found it again by swinging his bat.

Wilson hurled a four-hitter and drove in four runs with a homer and single as the American League-leading Tigers shook Baltimore's pennant hopes Friday night by jolting the second place Orioles 9-1 in the opener of a three-game show-down series.

The loss, third in a row for the Orioles, dropped them seven games off the pace. They were only four out last Tuesday.

The home run was the 11th of the season for Wilson, 12-11, who won 22 games for Detroit last season but has been sidetracked this year by fire-line drives he couldn't dodge.

Three of them resulted in shoulder, face and heel injuries that knocked him out of the starting rotation.

In Friday night's other AL action Washington Senators trimmed Boston Red Sox 5-1; Minnesota Twins stopped Chicago White Sox 5-4 in 11 innings; California Angels beat Oakland Athletics 5-3 and New York Yankees split a doubleheader with Cleveland Indians, winning 1-0 before bowing 3-2 in 10 innings.

Wilson, who stopped Detroit's four-game losing streak last Tuesday with a 3-0 six-hit triumph over the White Sox, and drove in two of the Tigers' runs to boot—crashed a three-run homer in the third inning and punched a run-scoring single in the fifth to cap a five-run wrap-up burst.

His 31 career homers are eight less than the all-time mark for pitchers, held by former Cleveland right-hander Wes Ferrell.

"They pay me to pitch," said the 6-foot-4 right-hander. "This is the first time I've had this much of a lead this year."

A crowd of 34,318—largest to see a game in Tiger Stadium since 1961—watched Wilson retire the first 11 Orioles he faced and send Detroit ahead to stay with his three-run blast off Tom Phoebus.

Bill Freehan was hit with a pitch for the 23rd time this year, tying the AL record set in 1956 by Chicago's Minnie Minoso, and Tom Matchick singled before Wilson unloaded in the third.

Don Buford ruined Wilson's bid for a second straight shutout with a bases-empty homer in the sixth.

The Senators, trailing 1-0 in the ninth, capitalized on successive throwing errors by Dalton Jones and Russ Gibson in a five-run comeback that beat Boston's Garry Bell.

A walk, followed by the two errors on bunts by pitcher Joe Coleman and Del Unser, tied the game. Ken McMullen's infield hit scored another run and Frank Howard doubled home two more before scoring on Mike Epstein's single.

Coleman held the Red Sox to six hits, including Ken Harrelson's 33rd homer.

The Twins pulled even with Chicago on Cesar Tovar's two-run triple in the ninth, after a two-out error by second baseman Sandy Alomar; then won it in the 11th on Rick Renick's double and Rich Reese's run-scoring single.

Successive second inning homers by Bobby Knoop and Tom Satriano helped stake the Angels to a 5-1 lead over Oakland. Jerry Peterson stopped Cleveland on four hits in the first game and the Yankees nicked Sam McDowell for the only run in the third on a walk, Bill Robinson's single, Tom Tresh's infield hit and a bases-loaded force at second.

The Indians filled the bases in the 10th inning of the nightcap on a single by Tony Horton and two walks, then broke the 3-2 deadlock when Max Alvis grounded to short and Horton beat Tresh's throw to the plate.

Hull, Umps, Stars Pitch for Kids

By GEORGE H. CARVER

Of all the two-footed Hull-headed diamond antics, this one takes the annual cake.

The main event sees the Blind Man Baffs of the Belleville District Umpires Association take on the stars of the city softball leagues.

The appetizer pits the red-footed Shriners of the Belleville club against the silver-fessed valiants of the K. of C. Alhambra here.

The big winners will be the crippled and retarded children of the city and district.

Perhaps the main attraction, especially from a mogpot point of view, will be the Chicago Black Hawks blonde bomber Bobby Hull who assuredly gives his service to the cause. He will be seen in an umpires uniform.

The Point Anne star will sign autographs before and after the game.

The twin all-for-fun and fun-for-all bill will take place at the Alemite field on Wednesday, Sept. 4 starting at seven o'clock. There will be 10 gate prizes given away.

All proceeds will go to the funds for crippled and retarded children.

Both the Shrine and Alhambra teams are sporting players. Wheel-chairs will be provided for potential base-runners who haven't established track marks.

Bobby Hull will pilot for the Umps while efforts are being made to bring in Ole Satch Paige from the Atlanta Braves to hurl for the Shriners.

Gilding lights of the Alhambra are Grand Commander Jerry McAvery; Lieutenant commander Wilf Fitzgibbon and Master of the Oasis Jerry Herrington.

The Shrine master-minds include club president Wally Bill Stewart and Nobles Jim Matthews, Ralph Plumpton and George "Mickey" MacDonald.

Whether you attend the games, better buy a ticket (75 cents) or better yet a book, five for a dollar.

Besides the fun you will be investing in the future well-being of less fortunate children than your own.

And remember "A man is never so tall as when he stoops to help a child."

CNE Track Stars Ready

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian National Exhibition Invitational track meet Monday will bring together some of the best athletes from Canada, United States, Australia and Jamaica.

The United States contingent of 20 is led by two world-record holders, Tommie Smith and Wyomia Tyus.

Both are expected to win gold medals in the Olympics and American coaches have said the CNE meet should confirm their supremacy in world sprint events.

Smith holds the world record in the 220-yard dash at 20 seconds.

The San Jose State graduate will compete in the 200 as well as the 1,500-metre relay at the CNE. In the relay he will be joined with another top U.S. sprinter, Lee Evans, winner of the 400-metre event in the Pan American Games.

Miss Tyus of Tennessee State University may become the U.S.'s second female athlete to win three gold medals in the Olympics. Wilma Rudolph did it in 1960.

Miss Tyus has already qualified for the 100- and 200-metre dashes and the relays for the Olympics.

Smith's main competition in the 200-metre dash comes from Jamaica's Mike Frey who has run the distance in 20.2 seconds.

The U.S. team also includes Bob Schul of San Diego, winner of the Olympic 5,000-metre race in 1964.

Swingin' Carol Takes One-Stroke Lead

CALGARY (CP) — Carol Mann, a tall swinger from Buffalo, N.Y., displayed 34-34—68 form Friday to take the first round lead in the Willow Park women's invitational open golf tournament.

Good for a one-stroke lead over Sharon Miller of Battle Creek, Mich., Carol's five-under-par performance was the kind of golf that has made the six-foot, three-inch blonde the leading money winner on the year's pro tour.

Carol, who has won seven tournaments and more than $42,000 since late April, was in and out of sand traps on four holes and missed six birdie putts, including a four-footer.

On the par-three, 180-yard 18th she hit into the trap on the right of the green then blasted across into the one on the left. Once on the putting surface it took her two more for a five, two over par and her worst hole of the day. Two strokes off in third place was Kathy Whitworth of Dallas, Tex. Miss Whitworth, who recently won $10,000 and first place in the Ladies World Series of golf, shot nines of 33 to finish level and back.

Murle Lindstrom of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Shirley Englehorn of Caldwell, Idaho, produced brilliant 32's on the back nine after weak starts to finish at 71, tied with two others for fourth.

Par at 71 in the $15,000, 54-hole tourney were veteran Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S.C., and Peggy Wilson of Fallbrook, Calif.

Marilyn Karch of Calgary, the lowest of the amateurs, shot nines of 37-37 to start and back.

Mrs. Post, the only Canadian professional among the 41 entries, had troubles with her putter on the front and went to a 39, two over par. The 20-year-old tour rookie from Oakville, Ont., regained her form on the back nine, shooting a two under-par 34 to finish at 73.

Kathy Farrer of Birmingham, Ala., made her debut as a professional golfer, shooting a respectable 36-par-73, good enough for a share of twelfth place.

Shirley Wilder of Grand Rapids, Mich., had a disappointing day with a 40-41—81.

The tournament over the 6,400-yard course offers a $2,250 first prize and is to finish Sunday.

KNUDSON'S WORLD OF GOLF

CLIFTON, N.J. — Ac curacy is always important in golf, but for the professionals here this week at the Thunderbird Classic it's at a premium.

The architect who built the Upper Montclair Country Club knew what he was doing when he designed this one. It's a great little course, short but still demanding a lot of skill.

The greens are very small which means you need accuracy off the tee so that you can position the ball for your approach shots.

In addition to being small, the greens have a fairly severe contour, which means you don't want to be hitting your iron shots behind the flag for that you are putting downhill.

Naturally, you hit it better off the cut fairway than you can from the rough. So — be accurate off the tee. From the rough you won't have much control over your approach shot and chances are that you'll be lucky to get down in two putts.

But, with an effective sporoach shot, you try and leave yourself below the hole. You can always hit an uphill putt more aggressively. You try to make it. Putting downhill, however, is something else.

When putting downhill, speed is your main concern. You try to coxy it up to the hole instead of trying to pop it in. Wrong speed can be fatal.

It's something you should remember at your course. And, if you find yourself above the hole, one tip is to try putting the ball off the toe of your club. It will come off much softer than if you hit it with the centre, or sweet spot, of your putter.

Mets' Seaver Blows Shutout in Seventh

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tom Seaver, once of the precocious New York Met pitching staff, moves to the back of the class today. He now is the St. Louis Cardinals two runs.

Seaver pitched seven perfect innings against St. Louis Friday night, extending to 25 the string of zeroes dealt the Cards by Met pitchers this week.

Then he blew up and surrendered three hits and two runs for an 8-3 victory. That almost won't do for the Mets, who became accustomed to shutting out the Cards when Jim McAndrew and Dick Selma produced consecutive blanks earlier this week.

Elsewhere in the National League Friday, Chicago Cubs dropped Houston Astros 5-3, Philadelphia Phillies took Cincinnati Reds 7-4, Atlanta Braves downed Pittsburgh Pirates 2-0 and Los Angeles Dodgers shaded San Francisco Giants 5-4.

Seaver, 13-9, retired 21 consecutive batters before Orlando Cepeda broke the spell by dropping a leadoff double to right-field opening the eighth inning. Mike Shannon's run-scoring double and Lou Brock's ninth inning single were the only other hits of Seaver.

Meanwhile, the Mets had built a wide bulge against loser Nelson Briles with a six-run fifth inning, climaxed by Art Shamsky's grand slam home run.

Ron Sando drove in all five Chicago runs with a pair of homers and Ferguson Jenkins, Chatham, Ont., native, beat Houston for his 10th victory.

Sando, who has 12 homers for the year, connected with two on in the fourth and again with one man on in the sixth.

Denis Menke homered for Houston—one of 10 hits Jenkins gave up.

Doug Clemens rapped a three-run homer and Philadelphia halted a five-game losing streak by beating the Reds.

Clemens' shot—his first home run of the season—off a four-run Phillie rally in the sixth inning that opened a 7-0 lead.

Bill Pappas allowed four hits in eight innings before a wrenched back forced him out of the game but Claude Raymond in the ninth preserved Atlanta's shutout against Pittsburgh.

Felipe Alou and Felix Millan drove in the Braves' runs with singles in the fifth inning.

The Dodgers snapped a 2-2 tie on Ken Boyer's run-scoring pinch single in the eighth, then scored twice more in the ninth inning on the help of two of San Francisco's five errors.

Bishop Trying for Six

Final Season for Gaels' Coach

OSHAWA (CP) — Coach Jim Bishop of Oshawa Green Gaels has a special reason for wanting to win the Minto Cup for the sixth consecutive time.

It probably will be Bishop's final season in Oshawa and he would like to leave with another national junior lacrosse championship to his credit.

Ollie Green Gaels will try to make Bishop's desire become reality Wednesday when they open their Cup finals against New Westminster Salmonbellies in the British Columbia city.

This has been a busy season for Bishop who has coached both the Canadian team in the Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A series and the professional Canadian Olympics in the National Lacrosse Association.

After Oshawa won the Eastern Canadian title last Wednesday by defeating Mississauga, Bishop indicated he was almost through with junior lacrosse.

"This will be my last year here if Detroit operates next year, you can definite," he confided. "I'm not taking two clubs again. It's sure taken a lot of fun out of winning with Oshawa."

A look at his schedule this year shows why Bishop is definitely tired. He coached two games between the Olympics and Montreal Canadiens, then flew to New York and back for the Wednesday game.

Inspired by Bishop's hard-nosed discipline and helped by an efficient farm system in the Oshawa area, the Green Gaels have been almost invincible since moving from Hunstville, Ont., in 1962.

Their chief victims have been the Salmonbellies, defeated by Oshawa for the Minto Cup finals the last four years.

This season, the Green Gaels waltzed through their regular 24-game season without a loss. They lost their first playoff game, then won 12 straight to capture the eastern title.

Despite Oshawa's past success against New Westminster, Bishop said in an interview Friday that the Salmonbellies are going to be tougher this year.

"They are going to be a good club," he said. "They always are. The team that can make the most adjustments during the series and gets the best goaltending will probably have the edge."

Bishop is relying heavily on goaltender Merv Marshall to duplicate his shutout against Pittsburgh.

"There will never be another goaltender like Merv Marshall in the history of Junior A lacrosse," Bishop said.

One thing is certain—the Green Gaels will be in excellent physical condition. Bishop employs a Spartan-like training schedule and demands total dedication to the game.

Superintendent of Bishops Is Suggested for Bishop-less Church

KINGSTON (CP) — A recommendation that the United Church of Canada institute a system of superintendent bishops sparked heated debate Friday in the church's general council.

"We are not really talking about bishops in any recognizable sense," said Rev. J. A. Davidson, minister of Sydenham Street United Church where the council began a nine-day meeting last Tuesday.

Mr. Davidson was speaking during debate on a report on bishops prepared by a special committee set up four years ago to study the matter.

The committee suggests the appointment of superintendent bishops who would act as counsellors to clergy and, as it were, a pastor to pastors. Their area of jurisdiction would be known as synods and as well as pastoral they would have some administrative functions.

There has been concern among some of the more than 400 commissioners to the council that the introduction of the term bishop and synod at this stage into the United Church, which has a councillor form of government, will jeopardize union talks with the Anglican Church of Canada.

Under the Anglican episcopal system bishops are believed to be in direct line to the apostles.

The United Church report does notattempt to define theologically what a superintendent bishop is. It deals rather with the pragmatic aspects of his work.

"There exists throughout the church a widespread and deeply-felt need for the kind of personal supervision and guidance that a bishop might give," the report says.

The council approved a motion that the report be referred to presbyteries for study but declined to approve the report in principle.

Rev. Leonard Griffith of Toronto called for approval of the report in principle but said its summary treatment was "not an action worthy of this court."

The report was prepared by a committee under the chairmanship of Rev. John R. Corston, professor of New Testament at Pine Hill Divinity Hall, Halifax.

Student Union Loses A Third Of Affiliates

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — The finance commission of the Canadian Union of Students starts work on its budget today minus revenue from a third of its members.

Seven universities withdrew Friday night and five others were expected after they refused to sign a declaration of commitment in a pre-capita levy. The departing universities have about 25,000 students.

The committal clause was written into the constitution by last year's convention in London, Ont. It was designed to give the finance commissioner a guideline in drawing up the budget at the week-long conference.

The levy now averages 75 cents a student. It is expected to rise to $1 although CUS has a surplus of $90,000.

At the midnight deadline, delegates from Waterloo Lutheran University walked out of the plenary session. CUS President Hugh Armstrong said the University of British Columbia, Mount Allison in Sackville, N.B.; British Columbia Institute of Technology, Calgary; the Saskatoon Campus of the University of Saskatchewan; the University of New Brunswick in Fredericton, and the University de Moncton.

Ottawa University pulled out Thursday, leaving 27 universities still in the union today.

Peter Warrian, president of the students' council at Toronto's Polytechnical Institute in Toronto said he was not frightened by the dropouts because it may mean that CUS will develop a unified policy for the first time.

"When I go back to campus they are going to know what CUS views are and they are going to accept them or I'm getting out because I don't want to lead that type of body."

President-elect Peter Warrian said early today the withdrawals may mean a cut in CUS services.

As the dissenting delegates withdrew after midnight, Mr. Warrian offered to resign and take the secretariat with him. He said the union had a general mistrust of the relation between schools and the secretariat.

"The per-capita levy which everyone seems hing up about won't be established until we see what the program is."

Notre Dame delegate said it found "little viable use for CUS membership" in a small university 500 miles from Vancouver.

A Victoria delegate said he felt he had been in a pressure cooker for three days.

"Dropping out seems the only way of getting out of here."

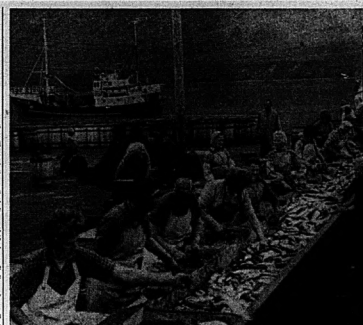
The Saskatoon campus blamed "a vocal minority committed to leftist dogma" that refused to hear opinion not in harmony with their own.

"The president-elect opened the congress with statements which we felt committed him to an economic and political analysis which is both dogmatic and unrepresentative of the mass of students," said the Saskatoon withdrawal statement said.

Steven Langdon of the student administrative council at the University of Toronto said the possibility of student unionism in Canada and what it could do could be destroyed.

"If there's any way of saving CUS please help us do it. I could talk a little about the bitterness that has dominated this congress but how sad that is."

The universities of Calgary and Dalhousie introduced a motion of confidence in Mr. Warrian.



"We believe that CUS can continue to function with a unified policy for the first time."

Public School Boards Open French-language High Schools

OTTAWA (CP) — The public high school board here will be the only one in Ontario this term to have a special Grade 13 school with French-language instruction, its officials say.

The Ottawa collegiate institute board's Grade 13 "pavilion" opens its doors to students Tuesday as do an additional seven French-language high schools the board has just started to administer. They were formerly private schools.

The board's new jump into bilingualism is bringing it $3,500 French-speaking students.

Other Ontario centres including Timmins, Cornwall, Welland and North Bay are integrating French high schools into their public systems.

But L. F. Labrosse, supervising principal of the Ottawa French-language schools, says this city now has a much greater number of French-speaking students in its public high school system than has any other place in the province.

Until this year, parents wishing to provide their children with a French-language education sent them to separate schools until Grade 9.

Then, in addition to paying taxes for public secondary school education offered only in English, they had to spend about $300 a year to send the child to a private high school for Grades 10, 11 and 12.

Private schools operated on insufficient incomes and did not attempt to give technical or commercial courses. Nor did they offer instruction in Grade 13.

French-speaking students who could not attend them, however, had to face a difficult adjustment at an English high school.

The transfer of the French private schools to the public system was a direct result of Premier John Robarts' announcement in 1997 that his government intended to extend second-level education in the French language.

Last January, a group of local French-speaking citizens asked the collegiate institute board to consider the move.

It was completed in about four months with the guidance of a committee of representatives from the collegiate institute and separate school boards, French private schools and French-speaking ratepayers.

The board is leasing the schools for about $900,000 a year.

Instruction is provided entirely in French except in a few Grade 13 courses, notably science subjects, where French-language teachers and textbooks have been difficult to get.

In addition, the board hopes to have a new French-language composite high school built by

Further Hearings Recommended Into Great Lakes Pipeline

WASHINGTON (CP) — Examiner William Levy of the Federal Power Commission Friday recommended further hearings to determine to what extent, if any, the certificate issued to Great Lakes Transmission Co. for its $212,000,000 pipeline should be "modified or set aside."

He made no recommendation on whether construction of the line should be halted until the issues involved are finally resolved.

Levy's recommendations, following a three-day hearing earlier this week, also called for the filing of prepared testimony in support of the action the various parties are urging the commission to take by Sept. 29. The hearings would be reconvened on or about Oct. 31.

The first phase of the line—157 miles from Farwell, Mich., to St. Clair, Mich.—is already completed. Great Lakes spokesmen say about 600 miles of pipeline in the 816-mile link from Emerson, Man., to Farwell, already is welded and completion of the line is scheduled for Nov. 1.

Northern Natural Gas Co. of Omaha, which had proposed an alternate scheme for supplying natural gas to Eastern Canada, took the case to the U.S. Court of Appeals this summer. The court ordered the FPC to consider the case further, saying it found the proceedings on which Great Lakes was awarded the certificate deficient in two respects.

One was the alleged anti-competitive effects of the joint venture—Great Lakes is owned jointly by Trans-Canada Pipe Lines and American Natural Gas of Detroit. The other was the commission's analysis of the cost advantages of the Great Lakes plan over Northern's exchange-displacement proposals.

Arthritis Victims Are Helped

MONTREAL (CP) — Nearly 70 per cent of rheumatoid arthritis sufferers could be helped by early surgery to remove the inflamed joint lining that is causing them pain, the fifth international congress of physical medicine was told Friday.

The finding results from a British program of stepping up the teamwork between physicians and surgeons in the treatment and rehabilitation of arthritis sufferers.

Dr. John J. Duthie, a physician, and Dr. Douglas L. Savill, a surgeon, described the team approach undertaken with arthritis patients at two Edinburg hospitals. They bring the surgeon into the picture almost at the first examination of a new patient.

Dr. Duthie said at a news conference that their experience leads them to believe that 70 per cent of patients could be helped by surgery. They have not been able to check the figure because of limitations on the number of beds available for surgical cases.

Dr. Savill operates on six or seven cases a week, sometimes on two or more joints, and many experience such great relief that "they come back willingly asking for more surgery" on other diseased joints.

He said it is vital that as soon as possible after the operation the patient should begin a rehabilitative program that ensures no loss of joint functioning.

Milk Board Criticized

TORONTO (CP) — Elliott Harrington, chairman of the Agricourt Milk Producers' Association, said Friday that "the dictatorial attitude of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board" is causing many dairy farmers "serious financial hardship."

Mr. Harrington said in a statement that the new board regulations will cost 450 farmers in operations adjacent to Toronto a total of $1,400,000.

Many of the farmers had made substantial investments to produce the top quality required by board regulations, he said.

New regulations forced them to sell to the board instead of directly to producers as many had formerly done, and paid them a lower rate for top quality milk.

New Book Approved

KINGSTON (CP) — A new service book replacing The Book of Common Order was approved Friday by the general council of the United Church of Canada.

The service book, presented in proof form at the nine-day council meeting which began Tuesday, will be published in the next few weeks.

Prepared after 10 years of study by a special committee, the new service book will be primarily for the use of ministers.

An abridged edition is planned for congregational use and a third edition will contain services for use in courts of the church.

Heresy Charge Repudiated

KINGSTON (CP) — The United Church of Canada has repudiated a charge of heresy against Rev. Arthur Ebbutt, head of the department of religion at Mount Allison University, Sackville, N.B.

The charge against Prof. Ebbutt was lodged in the church's Moncton presbytery by Charles H. Johnson, retired minister now living at North Kamloops, B.C.

Mr. Johnson claimed that Prof. Ebbutt's views on the doctrine of the trinity are heretical. The doctrine, stated simply, is that God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Spirit are three persons in one God.

Moncton presbytery dismissed the charge but Mr. Johnson appealed at the session of general council two years ago. The council referred the appeal to its judicial committee which recommended it be rejected.

The council Friday concurred in the recommendation.

The judicial committee says in its report it has no doubt that Mr. Johnson is sincere in his convictions.

TRUDY

Lawyers' Group Considers Ban On Wire Taps

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Bar Association Monday takes another look at a resolution to control electronic eavesdropping and ban the use in courts of evidence obtained by illegal use of the practice.

By coincidence, discussion follows another front-page flurry involving electronic eavesdropping: The disclosure in June that it was used in an investigation of the conduct of two Toronto magistrates.

Here, the subject is one of several as the association continues to draw up positions on human and civil rights and press them on government through what a member calls "a powerful voice in Ottawa."

The resolution on eavesdropping, which would make wiretapping and bugging a criminal offence except when used by lawmen under judicial control, is the first major discussion of the five-day convention.

The broader field of rights includes discussion Tuesday of a resolution urging Ottawa and the provinces to amend the British North America Act to provide for a constitutional charter of human rights.

A constitutional bill of rights was outlined at the 1967 convention by Pierre Elliott Trudeau, then justice minister, who as prime minister is to address a luncheon session Tuesday.

Selected lawyers will argue for and against a rights charter — those opposed bringing up other methods of protecting rights—before a three-man tribunal and resolutions could be brought before delegates.

Last year, the association endorsed the principle of creating of a room.

The national commission on human rights, to educate the public and work with government to combat discrimination in Canada.

About 2,000 are expected to attend the convention, which includes discussions on obscenity and the law, new divorce legislation and the admission of criminal records brought out in court appearances.

A member paints the association as "very liberal" on human and civil rights but in the past year a CBA president and his successor have said the need for law, and enforcement, must not be obscured.

Current President A. Gordon Cooper of Halifax said punishment must be adequate to deter crime. And, he said in June: "The liberty of freedom of expression must not be allowed to be degenerated into license."

The eavesdropping resolution was tabled at the 1967 Quebec City convention. In 1966, the CBA's civil liberties section opposed bugging except when police have a court order approving it.

A year ago, then-solicitor general Larry Pennell said electronic eavesdropping should be banned except for use in national security and crime-fighting—with court permission.

Justice Minister Turner is expected to attend discussion on the resolution Monday.

Generally, current legislation or regulation bans "physical" wiretapping—but tapping and bugging can take place without any attachments to telephone circuits or "physical" invasion of a room.

Minneapolis Greets Humphrey With Mixed Cheers and Jeers

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey, Minnesota's first major party presidential nominee, arrived home to a mixed greeting of cheers from supporters and hooting from anti-war demonstrators.

Humphrey, fresh from his first-ballot nomination at the Democratic National convention in Chicago, and his running mate, Senator Edmund Muskie of Maine, flew into Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport Friday night en route to a weekend of rest at the vice-president's suburban home in nearby Waverly, Minn.

About 200 persons, divided about evenly between Humphrey supporters and backers of his defeated presidential rival, Senator Eugene McCarthy, also of Minnesota, were on hand to greet them.

The mixed reception was similar to many of those Humphrey received in the pre-convention campaign. And the tenor of the crowd indicated that Humphrey's appeals for party unity delivered at the convention and at Friday's meeting of the Democratic national committee had made little impact on those who had backed McCarthy and opposed the Democratic party position on Vietnam.

"We want Gene!" they shouted as Humphrey worked his way along the airport fence shaking hands.

Those chants, and others of "Stop the war," frequently drowned out the "We want Hubert" cries from the vice-president's supporters.

At Chicago, Humphrey broke with party tradition by naming Lawrence O'Brien to both run his campaign for the presidency and at the same time head the Democratic party organization.

In a move to assert his control over the party, Humphrey Friday removed John M. Bailey of Connecticut as chairman of the Democratic national committee and replaced him with O'Brien, a top aide to President John F. Kennedy and postmaster-general under President Johnson.

Humphrey also named O'Brien, 51, as his campaign manager against Republican challenger Richard Nixon. The vice-president thus ended what has become an often disruptive split between the presidential candidate and the party organization.

Humphrey will officially launch the Democratic campaign for the Nov. 5 election in New York Labor Day.

But Humphrey may have to march in New York's Labor Day parade without Paul O'Dwyer, a supporter of Senator McCarthy.

Trudeau Denies Calling Humphrey

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau denied Friday that he had telephoned U.S. Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey Wednesday to wish him well just before his election as Democratic presidential candidate.

"As usual, the press made a mistake," he told a news conference.

Mr. Humphrey was quoted as saying that Mr. Trudeau had "wished me well" and had said he hoped to get in "early congratulations."

The vice-president was also quoted as saying that Mr. Trudeau was an old friend from attendance at interparliamentary conferences.

Mr. Trudeau said he did not think Mr. Humphrey could have been deluded by "some wiseacre" into thinking he was the caller.

But he had had no conversation with Mr. Humphrey.

Corruption Drive At Critical Point

SAIGON (AP) — Premier Nguyen Van Huong's campaign against corruption in South Vietnam may have reached a critical point.

Sources within the cabinet say the premier has sent to President Nguyen Van Thieu 62 dossiers detailing corruption charges against government and military figures, many of them high-ranking and politically powerful.

"Much of the corruption involves people appointed by Nguyen Cao Ky when he was premier, and who have been in power for two or three years," one cabinet source said. Ky now is the vice-president and at odds with Thieu and Huong.

The dossiers are the latest scandal in the anti-corruption program of the 64-year-old premier, a former teacher who is widely respected.

Meanwhile, the U.S. mission has instituted a new system to try to cut down diversion of U.S. goods in Vietnam. Such diversion is conservatively estimated to have reached $272,000,000 over the last several years.

Huong recently said that corruption has become so prevalent that "it may destroy all achievements of the government and the entire people.

So far this year, Thieu has removed 17 of South Vietnam's 44 province chiefs, 33 district chiefs, and hundreds of police officials and other government functionaries, many for corruption.

But officials close to Thieu and Huong say that corrupt officials remain.

A member of the premier's staff said:

"The impression is so ingrown that we've even found some members of the corruption investigative staffs trying to blackmail or bribe people who were investigated."

Instances of corruption are numerous.

U.S. aid equipment—stationary, sewerpipe, television sets, barreries, and thousands of other items—often end up on the black market.

One report said a former official at the Saigon port was demanding a $2,000 payoff from each of the thousands of ships which delivered essential, military supplies, U.S. aid items and commercial cargoes.

Cabinet ministers appointed by Huong have found dozens of ghost employees in their ministries who never never worked but drew monthly salaries.

The U.S. mission has announced unilateral measures to cut down its losses due to corruption and theft.

A joint security system provides for American checks on all deliveries of U.S. aid.

Canadian Will Preside Over Security Council

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — George Ignatieff, Canada's ambassador to the United Nations, will be president of the Security Council for the next 30 days.

September is Canada's month to provide the leader for the 15-nation council, charged with the main UN task of keeping international peace and order.

The 54-year-old Canadian ambassador will be on call day and night to help solve the world's problems as they arise.

Ignatieff, a tall, imposing figure with a receding hairline and a moustache, will be occupying the president's chair for the second time since he was named in 1955 to the UN ambassadorship.

The Security Council presidency rotates among the 15 members' countries in alphabetical order.

Canada on Jan. 1, 1967, began its current two-year term as a non-permanent council member, but the third time the country has been honored with election to the peace body. Ignatieff first held the chair in April, 1957.

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton was council president three times—when he was Canada's ambassador here—in February, 1948, and January and December, 1950. Charles Ritchie, now high commissioner in Britain, was council president in May, 1958, and June, 1959.

The Security Council has five permanent members, all with veto powers over its decisions —the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France and Nationalist China. Until 1965 there were six non-permanent members, elected from the general UN membership. Now there are 10 non-permanent members, five elected each year for two-year terms.

It is impossible to predict what matters might suddenly be brought before the Security Council next month, but it is a certainty that Ignatieff will be busy. This week he was involved in a series of consultations preparatory to taking over from Ambassador Joao Augusto de Araujo Castro of Brazil, president for August.

Discussions continue, out of public view, on the Czechoslovkian situation which came before the council this month. Debate is in abeyance at the request of the Communist-bloc other Warsaw pact troops marched this month in a bid to reverse the Czechoslovak leadership's liberalization policies.

Canada has said it will not press a resolution it presented country into which Soviet and to the council to have a UN representative go to Prague to see to the safety of Czechoslovak leaders, but the council must keep itself constantly informed on the situation.

Ignatieff, who has been in the Canadian diplomatic service since 1940, has excellent credentials for his UN post, being fluent in English, French and Russian. As a young adviser he helped organize the Canadian UN mission in 1946, and friends said that his appointment as head of the mission 20 years later was especially pleasing to him.

He came here after four years as Canada's permanent representative on the NATO council in Paris. Before that he held diplomatic posts in Washington and London, and—as ambassador—in Yugoslavia.

George Ignatieff is the youngest of three sons of Count Paul Ignatieff, a minister of education under the Russian czars who fled from St. Petersburg with his family after the Bolshevik Revolution.

Biafran Pilot Is Found

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Red Cross announced Friday it has found a pilot to fly relief missions to starving Biafrans.

The Red Cross, which started a week ago to find a pilot for a Swedish Hercules C130, said Capt. J. A. Michel P. Renaud, 25, of Quebec City, will make the mercy flights.

Capt. Renaud completed department of transport tests for a commercial license Thursday in Ottawa and will leave Canada soon for Stockholm where he will be briefed by the Swedish Red Cross.

Then the Canadian pilot will go to the Spanish Island of Fernando Po to begin his flights. His plane is one of a fleet of five stationed on the island by the Red Cross.

Capt. Renaud is on rehabilitation leave from the Canadian Armed forces after seven years of service in the RCAF.

Democratic Convention Grab Bag of Surprises

NEW YORK (AP)—The Democratic national convention, up to its final hours, continued to be as full of surprises for the television observer as a grab bag.

One might have expected that the wake of disturbances and shows of force the night before that things would have quieted down for Thursday night's final session.

But it was not to be. As the session was about to open network viewers heard the wife of Dr. Benjamin C. Hooh, chairman of the New Hampshire delegation, tell TV reporters that her husband had been arrested, handcuffed and taken to jail.

With that, coverage shifted to the broadcast of a memorial film to Senator Robert Kennedy.

The short film, composed of still pictures, motion pictures and television clips, was introduced by Senator Edward Kennedy and narrated by Richard Burton. It was a warm tribute and at its conclusion the big hall seemed full of subdued men and women, many wiping tears from their eyes.

There was some reverent and persistent applause that resulted in the most dramatic spontaneous demonstration of the convention. Suddenly the crowd started clapping in unison and singing The Battle Hymn of the Republic.

Time after time attempts were made to halt the singing and clapping and go ahead with the agenda. Even television viewers could feel and sense the mood of the crowd change—to defiance and stubborn resistance.

Obviously perturbed officials on the podium even ordered the band to play to try to stop the demonstration. It stopped when a speaker came forward with a brief tribute to the memory of Martin Luther King Jr.

During the crazy formal oratory, interviewers on the floor by network reporters made the viewing time pass more quickly. But constant interruptions of interesting demonstrations or announcements from the platform—because some reporter had button-holed a delegate began to get irritating.

CBS, more than NBC, had a tendency to concentrate on the work of its floor reporters, and a few times Walter Cronkite talked almost idly while some interesting action was in progress.

Just before the acceptance speeches by the two candidates—and nobody interrupted them CBS showed some take of a delegate incident involving young people and national guardsmen in downtown Chicago. The reason for the scene carefully explained that there was provocation for acting in breaking up the crowd. He said that while the soldiers used tear gas to disperse the young people, he had observed a youth leader egging the kids on.

The national conventions are now over for another four years. Television's coverage,

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For Sept. 2nd

Your birthday today: The year ahead will be one of readjustment. Many responsibilities pile up on you, along with reward for carrying them. A major consideration might be your health. Natives tend to be conformists on the surface, mainly as a matter of convenience so as to be free in reality. They may drift from trade to trade with little difficulty.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Today you are promised the luxury of being able to say, "I told you so." But you will be better off if you let the point make itself. Allow your bosses to do the talking, for a change.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Money-making, creative hobbies, and investments receive favorable stress today. Pursue your romantic interests this evening.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Social activity is prominent today. Expect lively exchange of ideas, news (and introductions). Keep the evening's diversions light, relax early.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): You have probably achieved a considerable improvement in your affairs. See whether you can recognize this and let well enough alone.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): You should achieve added recognition today. In return, your appreciation of others should be expressed fully.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept 22): Friends, particularly women, have cheering news on the way today. Start early and prepare a tidy, light entertainment for this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): The temptation today is to let a sudden mood lead you into spoiling your friendship with a woman. Good friends and disputes will not hold together long. Better keep everything cool.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Look for a chance to meet with those in high positions. New affiliations are favored today. (but wait until you see where the expenditure is before trying to play the host).

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You may find your expenses are excessive despite all efforts at moderation. Write it all off as experience, and spend the evening seeking to turn a new leaf.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Answers begin to arrive, by slow but logical trains of thought, to supplement earlier intuitions. Let your inner vision work by avoiding anxiety over trifles.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Earning (and saving) money is a lot more feasible today than it has been recently. Take a share in some group effort now. The evening should be long as quiet as possible.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Your friends are conspicuous today. Co-operate, without neglecting your own interests. Where groups have offered a welcome, join; you may not always have the choice.

For Sept 3rd

Your birthday today: Progress is in store for you this year. The opportunity to render service to others and to the world is opening wider. Your mind sharpens. Today's natives have unusual perception, some fateful role in the progress of the world.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Today your tendency is to talk — when you could listen with greater results. Yesterday's achievements should not be taken as any reason for pride now. Take yourself out of the crowd early this evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Be receptive to opinions from fresh sources. The mails and papers should bring you some cheering news. Plan on it.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): The mood is to share the wealth mostly yours, in loans that don't come back. There is excitement for you in the news. Find good reading tonight or do some self-communing.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Impatience will not get results today. Let your affairs take their own slow pace and then, as soon as you're free, get on to your hobby. Social activity can be productive.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Aside from a sales pitch to cater to your vanity, all is apt to go well today. Take care, keep your figures confidential. Try to take this evening off.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Routine is to be preferred now, as cash income is low. Your estimate of things acquired today is apt to change. Postpone major decisions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): If you can focus on your home, you will be able to achieve great progress today. Entertainment is favored tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Interesting news should not excite you into premature action. Avoid any overdoing which may involve fatigue or unusual foods. Driving also is hazardous — and the unexpected is likely to happen.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Develop a different approach. Add a cheerful touch to routine activities and see the rewards. Celebrate the evening with a go at games.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): "One thing at a time" is the motto for today. There is no need to worry about postponed details. Good news from faraway places and people is promised.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Do not be surprised if unexpected opportunities appear your daily chores. Add to your savings if you can manage it. Visiting is a good idea for the evening hours.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You are encouraged today and this evening for entertainment. Check your budget first, there's no hurry. Turn loose and enjoy the evening.

For September 1

Your birthday today: This is the beginning of a year of consolidation in your career. Spiritual questions arise this year, and you will have to answer all of them, somehow. Today's natives are apt to be moody during this coming year, sometime alone. Most of them are students of the mysteries of nature.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Health is the most sensitive subject today. Choose intelligent ways to protect your well-being. Any chores are apt to bring surprise. Take it easy.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Young people pose problems today. (Keep an eye out for confusing incidents.) Hobbies, sport or entertainment are favored all day.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Check your home . . . for security and safety. Follow a conservative course. Family conferences this evening promise results.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Today your concern is with people and circumstances near at hand rather than the distant. Relatives may be tense and querulous. Let them unravel their ruffled feelings.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your best path today is to spend time planning. There is a special penalty for carelessness today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Surprises link your personal life with your public position, however conventional it may be. Take some time this evening to meditate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Use special care in evening travel today; you can expect (secret) hindrances and personal resistance at work today. Your activities are better done in solitude today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your friends are likely to call your attention to the occult or mysterious. Can you do it? Learn something. Their plans are apt to shift several times before the day ends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 — Dec. 21): The side roads are the best roads today. Take a special group with you for a lively expedition. Get plans on your time — a slide by your original schedule.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your mate helps in finding a way through the current problem. Financial affairs may arouse your intense interest. Impatience does not work.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): It seems best to rise and fall with the tide for the moment. Control what your friends do. Postpone serious decisions.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Today gives a touch of delicate balancing. For further details, don't press people. Wait.

To Your Good Health

Autogenous Vaccines Sometimes Help

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: Please write about vaccine made from sputum and blood from your bronchial tubes, to be given back to you for protection against that same bronchial trouble. — Mr. J. M.

Vaccines of this type are called autogenous vaccines.

They are sometimes used when other treatments have failed. They are not by any means kind to bronchial trouble, but are used for chronic infections elsewhere in the body, too.

Germs are collected from the infection — from the sputum in this case. Then the germs are cultured — grown, that is — in the laboratory, and modified, killed, or otherwise made into a vaccine.

Then they are given to the patient by injection, starting with extremely small doses, which are very gradually increased.

The basic theory is the same as in all other vaccinations. In the case of standard vaccines, for smallpox, polio, measles, and so on, the vaccine is modified, or weakened form of the germ which causes the disease. The dose is not strong enough to cause the disease; it is strong enough to cause the body's own system to start creating antibodies, or substances which protect against that particular germ.

That is the purpose of autogenous vaccine, hoping to help you build up resistance against some particular strain of germ which is bothering you.

Since the appearance of a considerable number of varieties of antibiotics, the autogenous vaccine treatment is not used as much as formerly. One or another of the anti-biotics will succeed in suppressing most cases of bacterial infection.

But when that fails — as, for example, if you have acquired resistant to antibiotics — the autogenous vaccine method may be tried. It is a complicated and time-consuming process, obviously, which is why other methods are tried first.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 57 and never had tonsils or adenoids removed. At night I breathe through my mouth, which causes my tongue to be red, dry, and irritated. Gargling with mouth wash seems to relieve it. Should I see my doctor? — Mrs. A. K.

Unless you want to keep on with this misery, I'd see the doctor (or a nose-throat specialist) to find out what is causing your mouth breathing and making you sleep with mouth open. I wouldn't be too sure that you don't need tonsils or adenoids. But why guess? Find out.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am in my middle age. My weight is gave birth to a 10½ - pound baby. My doctor ran tests on me to see if I had diabetes and said that overly large babies were usually a sign of a potential diabetic.

My tests were okay, although there is a history of diabetes in my family. My question is, what can I do now to prevent or at least slow down the onset of diabetes as I get older?

— Mrs. K. F.

Your doctor was entirely right. The diabetes may not become evident for many years.

The only things you can do which will be helpful are: (a) to keep from becoming overweight, since obesity brings on diabetes sooner; (b) be tested for sugar periodically so that, if you do develop diabetes, you will learn about it soon and thus be able to control it more easily and successfully.

Note to R. D.: When a malignant tumor is removed while still encapsulated — has not begun to spread — the chances of removing it without any recurrence are very good.
